Trent Caretakers won an award to clean the municipal office at 15 Dundas Street East at a cost to the town of $1,938 for the year. Two other cleaners had tendered for the job, but it was felt the winning firm had given good service in the past and should be given preference. One tender was lower than Trent's . . . one higher.

The Canadian National Railway will be contacted and asked what action — if any — has been taken on the proposed lowering of tracks on Stanley Street to street level. A copy of the letter from council will be sent to Lee Grills, MP for Hastings South. The CNR was asked in the past to take such action, but no answer has been forthcoming. Council wants an answer by March 1.

Firemen Called To Hospital

TRENTON — The Trenton fire department was called to Trenton hospital around 8:30 a.m. today when oil from the furnace spilled out onto the furnace room floor.

There was no fire and patients in rooms overhead were unaware of anything being amiss.

May Install TV Cable In Town

TRENTON—Trenton council last night promised to consider the application of Cable TV Ltd. of Brockville and Montreal to install TV cable throughout the town, after the company has cleared procedures with the Bell Telephone Company, Ontario Hydro and the Department of Transport.

The cables, strung on utility poles, would "blanket" the town, and would be installed in homes or commercial property when requested. Cost to the homeowner would be $12.50 for installation and $4.50 monthly.

TV stations in Syracuse, Toronto, Watertown, Peterborough and Kingston would be included in the hook-up. Mr. John Hanna, representing the company, said if the public demanded it, other stations might be added to, or substituted for those suggested initially. He said a recent poll, taken in a small area of the town indicated there was a 37 per cent demand for his service.

Council Gives Permission to Conduct Survey

TRENTON — Mrs. R. H. Smithrim came before town council last night to report on the 1965 activity of the Trenton Community Assistance Association . . . to ask council's permission for the association to conduct a Better Living Survey throughout the town in late April . . . and that council some way provide adequate premises for the used clothing depot, run by the association.

The association last year provided new clothing for a number of needy persons; groceries for others; medicine in some cases; haircuts for unemployed men and assisted families who were burned out.

Mrs. Smithrim asked that council either buy the old post office immediately and provide the basement for a used clothing depot, or agree to pay the $80 monthly rent on the Purdy house on Front Street, near the new post office. (Council gave the association a grant of $250 in 1965.)

Mrs. Smithrim said the association needed a larger space where clothing could be displayed. She said sales were down $300 last year from 1964 owing to lack of space in the depot on Quinte Street. With more room, the association members could conduct cooking classes, sewing classes and give lessons in homemaking and home nursing, she said.

Council readily agreed to the Better Living Survey, but referred the clothing depot request to the finance committee for further study.

Residents Must Clear Snow Or Pay Fine

TRENTON — Trenton council was literally "snowed under" for a considerable length of time at last night's meeting.

The upshot of the snowy discussion was that council finally passed a by-law, by the terms of which home owners, tenants, businessmen, industry and those in charge of places of worship must clear snow away from the front, the sides and the back of their properties within a specified time after snow has ceased to fall... or be liable to a fine of $10 for a first offence and $25 for each subsequent offence.

Householders will be given 24 hours after the snow has ceased. Those in charge of other properties must clear away within four hours of the fall.

Safety inspector William Anderson will be asked to see that snow does not accummulate on the roofs of public buildings. Councillor Edward Todd vouched for the safety of the arena roof.

And one last "snowy" reminder.. and a pleasant one at that. Downtown businessman Donald McPherson had written to council, complimenting the public works department on the "remarable" speed with which it cleared the downtown streets, following the Jan. 30 Big Snow.

Storage Pond Approved by Town Council

TRENTON — Trenton council last night approved the 1966 utilities' commission major project... the building of a water storage pond and a retaining dam in Murray Township. This approval is subject to the approval of the Ontario Municipal Board.

The cost of the $472,200 project will be advanced in its entirety by the Ontario Department of Energy and Resources, with the PUC paying back one-quarter of the cost over a 13-year period. No interest on the PUC's share of the cost will be charged for the first three years during which the commission will pay $10,000 a year. For the remaining 10 years, a rate of interest agreed upon by town council and the department will be paid.

Council gave two readings to the approval by-law. A third reading and the passing of the by-law will take place after OMB approval of the project has been gained.

However, council did give three readings to a by-law calling for the expropriation of land west of the town, needed for the storage pond project. The parcels of land are owned by Jack Alyea and Francis and Jane Hellyer. This by-law was passed.

Bishop Evans Will Speak on Brotherhood

As a prelude to Brotherhood Week being held next week, the Rt. Rev. Kenneth Evans, Lord Bishop of the Anglican Diocese of Ontario, will speak to members of several religious denominations of East Belleville on Wednesday evening.

Bishop Evans will be the guest speaker at a Brotherhood Week banquet being arranged by the laymen of St. Margaret's-On-The-Hill Anglican Church. His topic will be "Are There Alternatives to Brotherhood?"

Laymen and clergy from St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, the Sons of Jacob Synagogue, St. Columba Presbyterian, Eastminister United Church and others will attend the dinner. The address will be broadcast over radio station CJBQ at 8 o'clock.

Bishop Evans has a profound interest in the brotherhood of man, no doubt emanating from his early life in China where he was born, and from his studies in Oriental languages.

Large and Receptive Audience Enjoys Program by Orchestra

By EUGENE LANG

For the third time in as many years the St. Julien Chapter of the Imperial Order of Daughters of the Empire presented the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra in the Belleville Collegiate Auditorium before a large and receptive audience. Weaned and nursed in its beginning months by its founding and permanent conductor, Stephen Choma, this group of about forty-five musicians of all ages and backgrounds has gradually grown into an organization of extending stature as the years go by. The players come from Belleville, Brighton, Trenton; Colborne, Wellington, Frankford, Havelock, Campbellford, Stirling and Batawa and have one aim in life as a group and that is to give their very best of varying talents musically in the programs that they entertain local and district audiences throughout the year. Through continued practice sessions each Sunday at Batawa their combined efforts were shown with great satisfaction to all last evening and their proficiency increases with each performance that they give.

Prefaced with opening remarks as to the work locally and nationally by the I.O.D.E. by Mrs. George Hume, Regent of the Chapter and Mrs. Ralph Ellis as convener the Orchestra presented a two-hour concert of compositions drawn from the Classic, the Romantic and the Modern eras of musical expression. Suppe's rousing "Light Cavalry" Overture was the curtain opener which was played in a spirited fashion with fine work from the trumpet section.

The first movement of Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony" (No. 8 in B Minor) got off to a dragging start but after the first appearance of the second subject tempi were picked up and the remainder held together remarkably. Woodwinds were a little too piercing now and then, but strings held up fine throughout the movement. The horns when needed failed not, but tympani could have had a little more strength. What work the strings did not encompass in the Schubert they made up for in their playing of the accompanying parts in the Haydn Trumpet Concerto featuring Joseph Burchill as soloist. Mr. Burchill gave a very well rounded rendition of the first movement, a reposeful resonance to the second and a spirited and fluent realization of the jolly finale. With fine assistance by the orchestra Mr. Burchell displayed a complete command of his instrument in tonal shadings, and dexterity. We hope to hear from him again in future entertainments.

Following intermission six selections were performed by the orchestra, reaching from Handel through Tschaikowsky to Ernest Gold. We could single out the Rumanian Overture by M. J. Isaac as one of the best interpretations of the entire concert.

ATTACKED WITH GUSTO

The various rhythms were attacked with gusto, the short cadenzas emotionally played by Concert Master Marion Stratton and the syncopations pushed with clean emphasis. Themes from "Romeo and Juliet" and the B Flat Minor Concerto of Tschaikowsky were played with sensitive poignancy, their tunes being so well known to the listeners. Out of context they lose their appeal, but nevertheless pleased as applaud testified. The Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's Messiah was taken by Mr. Choma at a brisk pace, but here entrances were late (or early in some cases) and the musicians seemed to not meld and weld their various instrumental choirs. As an encore a Fantasy based upon Walt Disney's "Snow White" was entrancingly given.

Featured guest artists were Robert and Hazelanne Reid who delighted their audience with selections from "My Fair Lady", "Student Prince" and "Vagabond King", three well known productions in the realm of Broadway and Operetta. As usual this highly gifted pair of vocalists enraptured their hearers both in their solo offerings and duet appearances. The opaline tones from Hazelanne's vocal outpourings always balance so freely against the strength and fervor that Robert produces with his clear and vibrant voice. The hand clapping ovations they received were justly merited by their lovely interpretations. Ronald Robertson handled the piano accompaniments with aplomb.

The concluding number by the orchestra was based upon themes from the motion picture "Exodus" and here Mr. Choma built up his musical edifice with ever increasing sonorities from the players under his baton. It was an imposing end to a very well served musical fare by conductor and orchestra alike. Flaws there were, but one should remember that a good portion of the body of instrumentalists are amateur, so with this in mind we can only compliment all on their respective abilities and look forward to more evenings with them in the months and years ahead. In Belleville performances now it is more or less synonymous that Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra and St. Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E. go together.

Robarts Meets Labor Leaders In Connection With Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts disclosed Monday night that he had met labor leaders in connection with the Oshawa newspaper strike and as a result a meeting of both sides in the dispute has been set for today.

Mr. Robarts said Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree and Attorney-General Arthur Wishart sat in on the meeting in the early afternoon before the sitting of the legislature began. In the house later Mr. Wishart made an appeal for respect of the law in Oshawa.

Labor leaders who attended the meeting included George Burt, Canadian president of the United Auto Workers union; David Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor; Fred Jones, international representative of the American Newspaper Guild; Ald. Clifford Pilkey of Oshawa and Douglas Sutton of Oshawa, vice - president of UAW Local 222.

Premier Robarts said today's meeting between the Oshawa unit of the Toronto Newspaper Guild, which is on strike against the Oshawa Times, and Thomson Newspapers Ltd., owner of The Times, is in accordance with usual conciliation procedures within the department of labor.

ANY DISPUTE SERIOUS

Asked whether he regarded the Oshawa situation as serious, Mr. Robarts said "any labor dispute is serious" but gave no indication the government is planning special measures to deal with it.

There were two developments in the legislature: A call by Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson for an emergency debate on the Oshawa situation, and an expression of confidence by the attorney-general that there will be no outbreak of violence.

James Renwick (NDP—Riverdale) asked Mr. Wishart what steps were being taken to prevent violence in Oshawa. The attorney - general replied that anyone who flouts or disobeys the law "can only be described as an enemy of the state and in the end result he is his own worst enemy."

WON'T APPEAR

Also replying to Mr. Renwick, the attorney - general said he will not appear personally in the supreme court today at an injunction hearing in connection with the strike, but that he will be represented by senior members of his department.

The Times, which last week obtained an interim injunction limiting picketing at the newspaper building, is seeking a court order prohibiting all picketing and directing the reading of the Riot Act if necessary.

Mr. Wishart said the court action will be a civil one in which the Crown ordinarily would have no status. But counsel for his department would be present because an order is to be sought directing the activities of the provincial police and the sheriff of Ontario County.

". . .We will state our position to the court at the hearing at which time all of the facts in the matter will be before us," he added.

The 375 - page report was tabled in the Commons by Solicitor-General Pennell without comment. He said in an interview later that he tabled it as soon as it was published by the Queen's printer and had not had time to study it in detail or discuss it with the cabinet or justice department.

The inquiry was a pet project of former justice minister Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops) but the preparation of the report was given low priority by the Liberal government. The draft was handed to the justice department last June.

The report argues that the phrase juvenile delinquent should be dropped from statutes because it has acquired a harmful stigma. Children caught breaking a minor town bylaw once were officially branded juvenile delinquents for life and their job opportunities were affected.

In one instance where a boy was charged with firing a rifle contrary to a municipal bylaw, "the mother nearly went out of her mind and the father was terribly upset by the fact that their son would be classified as a juvenile delinquent"

Auditor-Generals Report

It is a good thing that Canada has an auditor-general to keep watch over the country's profligate spending ways. Otherwise there is no knowing what heights of extravagance Ottawa might reach.

As it is, some means will have to be found to inculcate a greater degree of thrift-consciousness in routine government operations before they reach the point that they warrant critical comment. At that point the damage has been done ,the errors have been made and the expenditures are irretrievable.

Consider the Civil Service and government administration generally. A commission headed by J. Grant Glassco went into this subject thoroughly some time ago. Inevitably, it uncovered a monumental degree of wastefulness and unnecessary expense in the vast structure of government operations. It made many recommendations as to how such waste and expense should be eliminated.

Yet, according to Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson only 100 of the 275 main recommendations of the Glassco commission ,and less than a quarter of its findings have been acted upon.

There are still antiquated, wasteful, and uneconomical procedures and operations in the federal government which need to be rooted out or modernized," he said.

The overall picture of extravagance in this country is compounded by the fact that it also costs money to establish and support the investigation itself. Thus the taxpayers spent $3,000,000 on the Glassco report, and there is no way of estimating what the savings may be. Meanwhile, the auditor-general says, the cost of government is continuing to mount because of higher salaries and material costs.

Excess expenditures by the defence department afford an excellent example of the sort of bungling that helps to drain the national coffers unnecessarily. They were cited in the auditor-general's report.

Like the $7 million spent on "bomb toss computers" for the CF-104 jet bomber although three months earlier the RCAF had discontinued training on the type of weapon the computer was designed to deliver.

And the 514 acres that were expropriated at Penhold, Alberta, to extend the runways of the RCAF station there for jet training. Then it was discovered that civilian airways were too near to permit jet training.

The cost of this misadventure was $15,000.

Let us hope action will be taken to avoid such extravagances and errors of judgment in future. Inflation may be all right when kept within normal bounds. But not when it is aggravated by wastefulness of the kind outlined by the auditor-general.

Canadian Ownership

Here is one of the most practicable solutions yet offered to the problem of how to increase the Canadian share of ownership of Canadian industry: "If we wish to be more self-reliant, inheritance taxes should be abolished on all the assets of Canadian residents in direct investments in equity, risk-taking shares in active business in Canada, and the maximum level of the progressive income tax should not exceed 50 per cent, instead of the present 80 per cent. When income taxes go beyond that level, it cannot be realistically expected that anyone will make a maximum effort except, perhaps, in the realignment of his income and resources to avoid maximum taxation."

The quotation is from a recent speech made by Neil J. McKinnon, chairman of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. The inheritance taxes, he pointed out, provide less than two per cent of total government revenues; and the income tax rates above 50 per cent provide less than one-third of one per cent of federal revenues.

In other words, Mr. McKinnon's proposal would mean only a minor (and probably temporary) loss of tax revenues, but it would both encourage and permit greatly increased savings and risk investment by Canadians. It is a positive approach to the problem, whereas the government's approach to date has been largely negative.

A Whiz at Judo

A blonde and a beautiful film actress may be an improbable expert in the art of judo. But an English girl called Honor Blackman is just that.

And who is Honor Blackman? Why, Pussy Galore, of course.

And who is Pussy Galore? As if the question were necessary. She was the blonde bombshell in the James Bond film, Dr. Goldfinger. And it really was Honor Blackman, alias Pussy Galore, who strutted around in a black leather outfit and tossed poor old Bond for a loop when he became obstreperous. And not just a double.

Miss Blackman has been visiting Toronto in connection with a new film. She did not throw anyone around while here. But it is interesting to note she has published a book on self defence. It contains many pictures of the fair Miss Blackman. And proves beyond doubt that she really is a judo expert — with a brown belt.

Small Farms and Cost of Living

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I have read your paper for a few years and I am pleased you are giving more news around Napanee and Deseronto.

I noticed that the Milk Board, the Creamery Board and the C.F.A. are holding big meetings in Toronto. What for? They have been talking for years and they will still go on talking. There is more graft and corruption in our country today that if this money was put to a better cause the farmers might be better off. Let us take the price of milk, 30c per quart, what does the farmer get? Also take a look at our cheese. Why do some farmers get approximately $3.20 a hundred, others get $5.25 a hundred, milk is milk, and cows are cows but farmers are compelled to ship Grade A1 milk. Why two prices?

Why not pool all the milk when it is Grade A1. Then it can be divided between the milk dealers and manufacturers.

Let us take a look at the truck drivers. They go on strike, also the railway workers, the bus drivers, factory workers and it is all legal. There is an old saying, "What is good for the goose is good for the gander".

Let us take a good look at the Ontario Farmers' Union. They have meeetings and talk, but that is all. It is a known fact that farmers of today can hardly make ends meet. So why should the young men stay on farms when they can get better money in big concerns in the cities, also pensions, sick-pay, holidays and other concessions. The family farm is the backbone of the country, or is it?

I hope I live long enough to see the time when farms are in short supply. This is one example what we have to put up with as I have just received my bill —

12 - 2"x5/16" Shear Bolts	$3.60
Plus 11% Sales Tax	.39
Plus 3% Sales Tax	.11
Plus Postage	.48
	$4.58

How long can we carry on?

Farmers' Loss on Milk Distribution

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Well, the poor milk distributors have had to pay the farmers a few more cents per hundred pounds for their milk. But they could not stand the shock so they had to raise the price of milk to the public.

I wonder if the public knows that the distributors pay the farmers 14½ cents per quart for the milk they sell for 28 cents. And after they have bottled enough for their customers the rest is called surplus. For this they pay 9 eents per qt. or $3.60 per hundred of 40 qts.

This they separate and from each 100 lbs of 40 qts., they receive 33 qts of skim milk at 24 cents per qt. or $7.92. Also 28 half-pints of table cream at 40 cents each, or $11.20. If they put the skim milk into half-pints with a little chocolate they would get 132 at 10 cents each, or $13.20 for the skim, plus $11.20 for the cream from $3.60 worth of surplus milk as they call it.

In my 35 years experience in dairies and milk plants I have known a lot of farmers who have lost all, but I have yet to hear of a milk distributor or dairy going broke.

Quebec's Dilemma

Le Novelliste, Three Rivers

"If Ottawa no longer matters, then there are 75 MP's in Ottawa who have nothing to do. Why do the other provinces permit them to participate in the preparation of laws that will not apply to their electors? If Confederation does not reflect the aspirations of the Province of Quebec let her get out of it.

Or let her concede that Ottawa also has a role to play and let her permit Ottawa to fulfil it. That the constitution must be modified to meet the needs of the day is admitted. Let us then do this; let us redraft the divisions of governmental responsibilities and cease to plague Canada with quarrels that often seem based on political opportunism. It is not by getting into fights over authority that we will achieve a happy future."

Angina Is Something One Must Live With

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 62 and have had chest pains since last summer. In the hospital they were diagnosed as angina pectoris.

Is there a chance they won't clear up? My doctor keeps saying to take it easy, but after this long, I wonder. When I sit in a rocking chair, everything is fine, but with the least exertion I have the pains. — I. J. H.

Generally speaking—although there are exceptions — angina pectoris is something a person has to "learn to live with."

While there are different degrees, ordinarily angina — the pain, that is — indicates that the heart is being called upon to work harder than it is able to do without strain! The cramping pain is Nature's way of saying, "Ease up"

In short, you have to realize that your heart will accept only so much demand upon it before it rebels. That's why you don't have pain while sitting quietly. Your heart doesn't have to do much work.

Gradually increasing the amount of exercise — as walking — improves the problem so that the need for medication decreases and the tolerance of the heart muscle increases. This can be accomplished by taking a nitroglycerin tablet before you embark on the walk. When and if pain occurs — stop and rest.

Hence the solution boils down to learning exactly how much you can do without causing the pain, and being careful to stop before that happens. In addition, certain drugs are not habit-forming and can be taken whenever needed.

People with ailing hearts and angina pectoris often get along quite well for years provided they understand the problem, and take the trouble to avoid overtaxing their hearts. I think, I. J. H., that it would be profitable for you to read my booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart." For a copy, send 20 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: I read that a woman can undergo an operation after her tubes have been tied, so she can have a baby. Plastic tubing is inserted where the tubes were tied. If this is true, where can I get all the necessary information about it? — Mrs. M. R.

It's true that such an operation can be performed. Sometimes it succeeds; sometimes it doesn't.

The uncertainty of success explains why I so repeatedly advise women not to have the tubes tied (or in the case of men, not to have the sperm ducts tied) unless they are sure beyond any doubt that they should not have any more children. Many people are "sure," but later change their minds. You did, didn't you, Mrs. M.R.?

As for "information about it," if you want to have the restorative operation, and hope that it will succeed, go to your regular physician and have him refer you to a gynecologist.

In some communities there may not be surgeons with the skill and training to perform this operation, but you can always go to a medical centre or to one of the cities to have it done. Just don't expect a guarantee that it will succeed. Often it does, but sometimes it does not.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it all right for diabetics to drink wine and if so, what is the best kind? — Mrs. S. J.

No, it's not all right for diabetics to drink wine, and the only "best kind" is none at all.

Britain and the United States encouraged Japan's expansion in the Pacific as a counterbalance to Russian ambitions.

Milch Cow

Winnipeg Free Press

Ontario has complained incessantly about equalization payments and claimed that it is the "milch cow" of Canada, being milked by the rest of the country through the tax arrangements. No part of Canada should get more than its right. But no part should get less either. In the interests of Canadian unity — in which Mr. Robarts is sincerely interested —he should remember this.

Pension Issue Brought Full Turn Out in Commons

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It was away back in the summer of 1963 when the newly-elected Prime Minister Pearson, raising Parliament's pay from an MP's annual $10,000 to $18,000, told them that now theirs was a full-time job demanding full-time attention.

That, at the annual $10,000, it was supposed to be something of a side-line or a part-time job may have come as a surprise to some taxpayers.

But being an MP — at $10,000 or $18,000 — like a lot of other endeavors, is really only what you make it.

Full - time it turned out to be for some, and part - time it remained for others.

And through three and a half years and two Parliamentary Sessions, never enough MPs considered it full - time enough that they never were all on the Commons job — no matter how urgent the issue, how important the vote.

There were times and votes when far less than half the full attendance of 265 was on hand.

And there were even occasions when Mr. Speaker or his Deputy had to halt proceedings for lack even of a quorum of 20 members.

IMPOSSIBLE, ALMOST:

Then bingo, the other night — a minor miracle —a full House except for four.

With wonder of wonders, every last one of Opposition Leaded Diefenbaker and his 97 Conservatives answering the vote roll.

How did this next-to-impossible happen? What magic did Conservative Whip Eric Winkler employ to pull this rabbit out of the Party hat?

Well, it wasn't easy.

He began "whipping" his MPs days before the scheduled vote, tracking down every one of them at their Parliament Hill offices, their Ottawa hotel rooms or apartments, or at home in their constituencies, and warning them that this time — on the Old Age Pension non-confidence vote — they had better be in the Commons to be counted.

Or else!

Or else what?

Politics being what they are, the Opposition Whip isn't really in a position to do much "whipping."

He can't dangle the carrot of Party goodies — the House committee chairmanships, places in line for future appointments to the Senate, as ambassadors or even as parliamentary secretaries and other such to-be-desired things — which are at the promissory disposal of the Government Whip.

Nor can he threaten to cut off patronage — the power to at least influence jobs and exert pressure for favors — back home in the constituency.

But he is not exactly without his own special means of persuasion.

Naughty Naughty:

He can issue — or threaten to withhold — promissory notes of good things that might come if and when the Party wins power.

If he is tough enough and has the backing of the Party Leader to make it stick, he can do something to help make or break an MP's future.

But more immediately, he can fix it so an MP doesn't get to go with any of those delegations jetting, all-expenses-paid, to NATO conferences in Paris, Commonwealth Parliamentary Association gabfests in Colombo and Canberra, Inter-Parliamentary Group junkets to Dublin, Copenhagen, to UN in New York, to Washington as guests of Congress, NORAD excursions to Colorado Springs, or on any of those other business-and-pleasure political sabbaticals to Faraway Places.

This time, though, Whip Eric Winkler didn't have to twist any arms.

The Conservatives — the Party collectively and the candidates individually — had promised during the campaign to fight for the promised $25 monthly increase in the Old Age Pension to $100.

And here was the place to fight. On the floor of the Commons. With a vote.

Each MP knew that the folks back home in the constituency would be watching over his shoulder to see that in the Pension question he stood up to be counted. It was a matter of good faith. Honor even. And with voters beginning to develop long memories, perhaps of survival in the next election.

Mark it well. Tick it on your calendar. It hadn't happened in years that every last Opposition MP had been there in the Commons to vote, and it may not happen again for more years to come.

Latin Lover Is Realistic

Peterborough Examiner

A student survey in Turin, Italy, has done much to explode the myth of the Latin lover. This myth has long held that people who live in warm climates are somehow more passionate than those who live in colder countries. But the student survey has found that Italian men give more thought to the financial and social position of the bride and the bride's family than they do to other things.

To anyone who has lived his life in a cold environment, the myth has appeared to be ridiculously lacking in logic anyway. One has no doubt that the success of such lovers as Rudolph Valentino was due mainly to the fact that he came to America where he could receive the invigorating effect of cool currents of fresh air wafting down from Canada.

Tyranny of the Automobile

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The only permanent way to solve transit problems like those of New York City is so simple that it will not be attempted until traffic grinds to an absolute halt.

Only essential vehicles should be allowed to operate in central Manhattan during the business day. This would include buses, taxicabs, and trucks making necessary "time" deliveries. No pleasure cars at all.

The private automobile is not, and cannot be, the answer to the problem of transportation from the suburbs to the central city. For the automobile is strangling the city, with highways, garages, parking lots and mass violations of traffic laws.

Only one person in 7 owns an automobile in Manhattan. The great numbers of cars come in from the suburbs, and they should be banned. Nothing less will keep the city, and others like it, from physical congestion and financial bankruptcy.

But, more than this, an increasing dependence upon public transit would remove such threats as the strike New York has just witnessed. With many more persons forced to take subways and buses, public transit revenues would increase, new equipment could be purchased, and wages could be raised without further indebtedness.

Within the last dozen years, the number of passengers using public transit has declined by two-fifths — a whacking 40 percent drop — and nearly 200 transit companies have abandoned their lines. Yet, even with more and more costly superhighways the urban transportation problem is getting worse each year.

The suburbanites have already inflicted nearly mortal damage upon the cities they have fled from — taking their tax money to another community while earning their living in the city, using its facilities, and being the chief beneficiaries of the expressway systems. Soon, they will have to pay an "employment tax" or else a daily "head tax" for driving into the city and contributing nothing to its upkeep.

Visionaries like Lewis Mumford and Paul Goodman were warning as many years ago that the cities were strangling themselves by providing more facilities for automobiles than for persons — and that the saturation point for automobiles would soon be reached. The New York strike has made us see that they were right, that the visionary is often the only man with 20-20 vision into the future.

The automobile has been a wonderful invention, a blessing in many ways. But the time has come to ask ourselves the ultimate question on the subject: are we driving it, or is it driving us?

"Apple Blossom Week" Favored for Township

AMELIASBURG — One of nature's unmatched beauties may be employed by township fruit growers this year in their effort to attract visitors to this part of Prince Edward county.

During the weekend Reeve Harold Bonter said he favored the apple blossom promotion suggested by the township homeowners at their last meeting. "Apple Blossom Week" was one of several items Homeowners' president Fred Evans put forth as a base the community as a whole could use to start improving township spirit. Eestablishment of large natural ice skating rinks along the south shore of the Bay of Quinte between Rossmore and Carrying Place was another.

Reeve Bonter in expressing a desire to back any move that would increase interest in the township offered to throw open grounds on the waterfront north of his home below Onderdonk's hill. His intention is to set up picnic tables where people taking the blossom time drive can stop and rest in pleasant surroundings. He has developed an artificial island and lagoon worthy of closer examination as they complement a spectacular view. This point on the shoreline provides one of the finest panoramas between Carrying Place and Rossmore.

As it stands now the matter comes up for discussion at the homeowners' February meeting. It will have to be approved and a committee responsible for organizing and effecting the undertaking appointed. Then the homeowners will formally request council to declare the proposed week-long event official.

At this point it is interesting to recall that when the idea was introduced it was noted how Niagara district fruit farmers have taken advantage of the peach blossom period. Blossomtime on the Niagara peninsula it was pointed out has been established as a late Spring promotion that provides numerous benefits, directly and indirectly, for all the people in that district. Each year it attracts more and weekend visitors, some of them driving long distances to view the great orchards of blooming trees in glorious colors.

Local Drivers Are Picketing Truck Depots

Local members of the Teamsters' Union, idled since late in January as a result of the dispute between the highway transport companies and drivers, began picketing local transport warehouses yesterday.

Yesterdays pickets were reported parading in front of Direct Winters Transport on Cannifton Road, while today pickets were also reported at Smith Transport and at Argosy Transport in the Hillcrest area.

In all instances pickets were limited to about four in number, it was stated.

the index. Officials of the newly revamped Holy Office still will review writings. The agency's job remains the protection of faith and morals and the judging of dogmatic teaching and heresy.

The Pope, as spiritual ruler of the church, may order books put on the index any time or way he chooses.

But by wiping out the section for the censure of books the Pope made a dramatic gesture signifying a major de-emphasis of the index mentality of the past.

Few English-language books are on the index. At latest count the index contained about 5,000 titles.

Among the titles still on the index are Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, by Gibbon Madam Bovary, by Flaubert, works by Emile Zola, Jean Paul Sartre and Andre Gide.

emergy and resources, introduced a bill to establish a Grand River Conservation Authority, uniting the Grand Valley Conservation Authority and the Grand River Conservation Commission.

—The annual report of the Ontario Liquor Control Board showed liquor, beer and wine sales during 1964-65 climbed by about 10 per cent to $450,753,982.

On the strike issue, Mr. Robarts said today's meeting between the Oshawa unit of the Toronto Newspaper Guild and Thomson Newspapers Ltd., owner of The Times, is in accordance with usual conciliation procedures within the department of labor.

Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson called for an emergency debate on the situation, but Speaker Donald Morrow ruled the issue was before the courts and a debate would be sub judice.

The Liberals challenged the Speaker's ruling, but it was upheld 57 to 17, with the New Democrats voting against the Liberals and on the side of the Conservative government.

Life in the Greys

Sitting in the greys at Maple Leaf Gardens is an experience.

They sell oxygen masks on the 506th level.

Nevertheless, the greys are still in the park, though barely, and offer many advantages over watching the game via the tube.

There are some real hockey fans up there in the heavens of Mr. Smythe's favorite building. One lady, who had obviously been to a game or two before, came in with a flourish, saying hello to everyone in the section and wearing a Maple Leaf baseball cap.

As soon as she was seated, she stood up again, took a deep breath and hollered, "C-m-o-n Frankie baaabbbyyy."

A fellow sitting below me, who heard the lady's triumphant entrance to the section, turned to his friend and said, "There's Mary again."

Like I said, she had been to a game before.

Mr. A. of The Intelligencer's sports staff and myself drove to Toronto Saturday. Mr. A. went to see Mr. H. of the Hawks. I went to watch the Leafs win.

And though I am a Leaf fan of the first order there is one gentleman who attended the game who will never believe it.

From the start of the game, one Robert Hull had been grabbed, hooked, elbowed and generally dishevelled by the Leafs, all under the watchless eye of the referee and to the delight of most Leaf fans. Illegal hockey, no matter who is doing it, never delights me.

Anyway, mid-way through the opening frame, Mr. Hull gained some revenge when Wally Boyer tripped him and received a penalty. The trip was questionable, but I chalked it up to poetic justice.

I said to Mr. A., "It's a cheap penalty I guess, but they've been hooking and holding him all night so I think they've earned it."

A Leaf with a heavy French accent turned around, looked at me disgustedly and said, "What do you mean? Boyer didn't deserve that penalty."

"Maybe not," I said, "but the Leafs did."

I mention this incident to show that sometimes trying to be fair ruins a person's reputation. That man to this day is convinced I am a Chicago Black Hawk fan. Outside of being a Montreal Canadian fan, there is little worse.

Somebody standing behind us hollered, "Hurrah Bobby Hull."

A barrage of boos followed.

Feeling giddy about his success with that manoeuvre, and also feeling tipsy for other obvious reasons, he again hollered. This time he said, "Hurray Frankie."

Again a chorus of boos.

This particular fan spent the rest of the game alternating "Hurrah Bobby Hull" and "Hurrah Frankie."

People were standing behind the greys in rows four lines deep. Between the first and second periods two anonymous fans apparently disagreed on some of the finer points of the game and commenced slugging it out in the hallway.

The quarters were very cramped of course and there was just room to swing. No room to run.

Mr. A. remarked to me, "Perhaps Chuvalo should meet Terrell in a place like this. Then Terrell couldn't run away from him."

Mr. C. will definitely not like that comment.

"It's amazing how many fans sit in the arena and see only half a hockey game — the half their team is involved in.

If their team is tripped, they see it. If the other team is tripped, they say "Good play."

And so it goes, but I suppose that's what brings them back again the next game.

I did hear an original theory Saturday at the game that made the whole thing worthwhile.

After one Toronto penalty, the man (with the French accent) said to his friend, "They're just giving that penalty to give Hull more chance at the 50 goals.

"That guy down in Montreal (Campbell I presume) has given orders to call penalties on the other teams so Hull will have a better chance at scoring.

An amazing theory.

Even more amazing when you consider his friend agreed.

And while on the subject of Mr. Hull, and who isn't these days, many people from this area, out of envy I suspect, criticize him at every opportunity.

Well, you can say what you like about him, but all I know is that every time he gets on the ice there is a stir of impending excitement among the crowd, any crowd, and when he gets that puck on his stick and streaks down the ice, the place goes wild.

They don't do that for everybody

The only thing I have against Bobby Hull is his uniform. I don't like the color. I would rather see him wearing blue and white.

Commerce Chamber Sponsors Shop Canadian Campaign Here

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce is cooperating with the Ontario Department of Economics and Development in a ten-day "Shop Canadian" campaign. The campaign will begin here Thursday, Feb. 24, and conclude Saturday, March 5.

The Chamber will display locally manufactured goods in windows of vacant stores. Two stores, one on Front St. and the other in Belleville's Shopping Plaza, have already been obtained for this purpose.

The Belleville Jaycees will assist by distributing "Shop Canadian" buttons, banners, and shopping bags to the local merchants.

"Shop Canadian" campaigns are designed to interest buyers in Canadian-made products. Consumers are encouraged to "look at the label" and "Shop Canadian" when quality and price are competitive to an imported product.

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce will probably be arranging a dinner to be held in conjunction with the campaign at which a qualified speaker will discuss the consumer market in Canada.

Preceding the campaign, an Ontario Government-sponsored Women's conference, featuring a fashion parade of the latest Canadian creations, will be held at the Club Canara on Tuesday, Feb. 22.

for young Donald.

The mayor accused the chief "of dereliction of duty and incompetence which could well have involved the life of a four-year-old child."

Council supported the suspension and the interim appointment of Cpl. Rene Poirier as acting chief by a vote of 4 to 2, But Mayor Acland stepped down as police commission chairman after he said he felt he "should no longer control the committee."

He was replaced as chairman by Frank Lynch, a federal government employee.

In his report, Mayor Acland accused Chief Boucher of "wasting precious daylight hours" of search time the day after Donald was reported missing. He said the chief kept his men at an afternoon lecture by a Roman Catholic priest instead of leading them on the search for the boy.

The lecture dealt with the duty of constables in calling in representatives of the appropriate religious denomination in dealing with fatal and near-fatal accidents.

Mayor Acland also claimed Cpl. Poirier, the second senior officer at the time, heard of Donald's disappearance from an 11 p.m. news broadcast Thursday.

The boy's foster mother, Mrs. Norman Bois, had reported Donald missing early Thursday afternoon.

Today, acting Chief Poirier and Quebec provincial police continued investigating the possibility Donald Gauthier had been abducted.

OFF THE RECORD

By Ed Reed

"Tell what little boy not to play so loud?"

Canon Wright Challenges Theme of Celebrations For Centennial Year

The church is dying — that it may be reborn in the image of the Lord, Canon R. B. D. Wright told fellow Rotarians yesterday.

The Christ Church rector acknowledged his statement was startling "but it is one you will see propounded in novels and on newstands . . . that the church has had it".

"I will go along with this argument", said Canon Wright, "but only to the extent that man may be reborn in the image of his Lord".

Cannon Wright was challenging the theme "Man and his World" chosen for Expo 67, Canada's centennial celebration in Montreal next year. "Man and his World . . . God and His World. Whose world is it? It is a good question".

Of Ontario Centennial Director Allan Rowan-Legg's talk on Expo 67 last week, Canon Wright said one thing that had struck him was the "fantastic amount of money" being spent. Much of it would not be reclaimed after the exhibition was over.

"Mingled with admiration for what is being undertaken, I had a feeling that somewhere, somehow, we have missed something in this part of the western world".

Was it man's world or God's world? he asked.

Discussing the task of the church and of ministers, Canon Wright said many people have ideas of what a clergyman should be. He cited Dr. Billy Graham — "one of the greatest evangelists and a wonderful man" — and said he once held a parish.

"After three years he gave it up, primarily because the congregation wanted 'I venture to suggest type of sermons,' when he felt he had been called upon to preach 'Thus saith the Lord' sermons".

LOSING MEN CLAIM

To many people, said Canon Wright, the Bible is the most "unread" book, although at Christmas time they were told it was read more than any other, "including Lady Chatterly's Lover - and it was good, wasn't it?"

Critical of congregations "who want us to placate rather than to challenge," Canon Wright said that across the country more than any othre group of people, the ministry is losing men from its pulpits.

"It is losing men particularly going into college to study for the ministry."

"In the home," he added, "there is little or no encouragement by parents to present the ministry as a vocation to their children."

The Belleville rector said the Bible 'has become a cherished memento of a bygone age," and went on to criticize parents who call him to say they want their Johnny "done," meaning batized, as if it were an inoculation and because all of the other kids had had it.

"Too often, Canon Wright said, "our profession has been prostituted by people who want us to sip tea with them, instead of going out and attending to the spiritual needs of the people."

Of the church on the world scene, Canon Wright said it should identify itself more with people everywhere, in an age when in Africa and Asia for example, two out of three children die before reaching the age of three.

He said that 100 of the 300 Bishops who attended the Anglican conference in Toronto were from Africa and Asia. One delegate from that region had said, "you call us brothers - then for God's sake treat us like brothers."

Rotary president Ernest Burnham presided.

Premature Babies Said Less Efficient Students Than the Normal Infants

BALTIMORE (AP)—A Johns Hopkins medical school research team has concluded after a 13-year study that a "significant number" of premature infants later grow up to be less effective students than normal infants.

Dr. Gerald Wiener and Dr. Paul Harper said "contrary to the old wives tale that prematures catch up, there is no evidence that this is so."

In a study of 992 single births in several Baltimore hospitals, the researchers found that IQ scores were about three points less than those of normal children at the age of six. By three or more years later, the IQ gap had widened to 5.5 points.

The study, financed by the U.S. department of health, said arithmetic skill was more impaired than reading skill—possibly, they said, because reading problems don't show up as readily at an early age.

The researchers said their findings held true for both Negro and white children in the 492 infants of less than 5½ pounds compared with the remaining control group of normal children.

The researchers said they also found "flaws in comprehension and abstract reasoning, poor gross motor development, immature speech and (an) impaired IQ . . ." in a significant number of premature children.

Wiener said medical science "knows that the incidence of prematurity is higher among low socio-economic classes." He said about 10 per cent of all babies are born prematurely. He said the rate is up to 30 per cent among certain population groups.

Last June, when the investigative phase of the project was complete, the average subject should have reached the seventh grade at age 12 or 13.

But results showed that only 40.1 per cent of the prematures had reached this academic level, compared with 56.4 for the normal-birth control group.

The researchers said though a "preemie" may be physically indistinguishable from his classmate who weighed more at birth, subtle but definite ability deficits are more likely to exist.

ODOR FREE AGAIN

Dear Susanna: An application of clear mouthwash can sometimes be used to treat dresses where perspiration has left no stain, but where the odor still remains after cleaning or washing.

As this treatment could possibly be ruinous to some materials by discoloring them or weakening the fabric, it is extremely important to test an inconspicuous portion first.

I am a sales girl in a large department store and we are required to wear black dresses during the winter months. It is with these garments that I have such good results. My particular problem is that though I am fastidious about bathing and applying deodorants, a slight perspiration odor is still sometimes left after the garment has been cleaned.

I am able to freshen the underarm section perceptibly by placing it over turkish toweling and sponging it thoroughly until quite wet, with full strength mouthwash. — Miss Mary

French Teacher Spends Hours at Spinning Wheel

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) As a boy William Howe was fascinated to watch an aunt adept at spinning.

At 18 he decided to take up spinning as a hobby and bought a spinning wheel from a Toronto store owner and a book on the craft.

Now, 15 years later, he spends about three hours a day at his hobby. In addition he has been weaving for the last six years and has a collection of some 50 old coal-oil lamps.

Mr. Howe, an elementary school French teacher here by profession, now has two handmade spinning wheels. One was made in Quebec and the other is the product of a man at Acton, Ont., who learned the craft from his Icelandic father.

Most of the fleece from which he spins his wool comes from corriedale sheep at the farm of Mrs. Edna Blackburn in Caledon East, Ont. Mrs. Blackburn, a school teacher, also is a spinner during the summer at Pioneer Village on the outskirts of Toronto.

Mr. Howe, who formerly taught at country schools for four years in the London, Orangeville and North Bay areas, is president of the local Spinners' and Weavers' Guild. He spends weekends at the farm of relatives at Maple, Ont., where he has a 36-inch weaving loom.

"It takes two or three years before a person can be confident enough in their wool to actually make something out of it,", he said.

Girls List Their Twelve Pet Peeves

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: "Chicago Bachelor" got our blood pressure up with his list of twelve gripes against females. (He called it the "Dirty Dozen.") Since you offered the girls equal time we hope you will print the following list put together by six Chicago secretaries. We can't stand men who:

1. Ask for a phone number and never use it.
2. Keep pressing a girl to have just one more drink after she has said she's had enough.
3. Wear plastic rain covers over their hats.
4. Leave an embarrassingly small tip for the waiter or waitress.
5. Wear white socks with dark business suits.
6. Let you know (in the strictest confidence, of course) that they made the Grade with Gertie.
7. Douse cigarettes in coffee cups or grind out cigars in left-over food.
8. Turn on the car radio and sing over Frank Sinatra.
9. Show up with the grandfather of all colds and an urge to get romantic.
10. Try to disguise baldness by combing their few remaining hairs in reverse.
1. Make very small talk at cocktail parties while their eyes roam the room in search of someone they'd rather talk to.
12. Try to light a cigarette like Cary Grant and don't know how.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was the happiest second wife who ever lived — until a few weeks ago. Mark and I were married in 1961. No man could be more considerate or generous or loving. He never spoke to me about the problems with his first wife but I heard from others about her unseemly behavior and impossible demands.

Last week Mark underwent extensive surgery. I was at his bedside in the recovery room for several hours. When he was coming out of the anesthetic he called repeatedly for his first wife — never did he call for me. It was the most shattering experience of my life.

Now I am tortured with the fear that he may still be in love with her. If he is I don't want to keep him from her, no matter what the price. Please tell me if I should talk to Mark about this. I am going out of my mind with anxiety. — THE RAGGED EDGE.

DEAR EDGE: It is how a husband behaves when he is conscious that counts. And apparently Mark's behavior is beautiful.

The fact that he called his first wife's name while coming out of the anesthetic does not mean that he is still in love with her. It means only that he was thinking about her. It may be that he associates her with feelings of discomfort and pain.

Say nothing to Mark about this. Just concentrate on being the happiest second wife who ever lived.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 13-year-old girl who is in eighth grade and already I am a has-been.

When I was 11 I was elected Little League Queen of our town. I was on top of the world and everybody was my friend. All of a sudden my complexion got bad and I have been on the downgrade ever since. People are nice to me but I don't think they mean it. It seems like I am always saying the wrong thing and making people mad. I'd give anything to turn the calendar back to the good old days when I was 11. Can you help me regain my popularity? — MISS 13.

DEAR MISS: Thirteen is about the worst age there is. It's sort of like being a fish with feathers. If you will show a genuine interest in people and their feelings, you'll have many friends — like in the good old days when you were 11.

Earl to Give Adopted Girl Party

LONDON (CP) — Earl Alexander of Tunis and Countess Alexander will present their 17-year-old adopted daughter, Susan, to society at a cocktail party in June.

Susan was adopted by Lord Alexander in Ottawa in 1948 when he was Governor - General of Canada.

The party will be given at the family home, June 17, last day of the Royal Ascot horse race meeting.

When Susan was only three, her elder sister, Lady Rose, had a coming-out cocktail party in Ottawa and came back to London for the social season. Four years later she married a general's son, Maj. Humphrey Crossman.

"I'm not at all sure what a debutante is these days, and so I don't know whether you would call Susan one," said Lady Alexander.

"It seems to be that all young people go to a lot of dances and parties and some of them call themselves debutantes."

Among Susan's better - known escorts will doubtless be her brothers, Lord Rideau, 30, and Brian Alexander, 26.

Chiffon is Top Evening Fabric for This Spring

By MARGARET NESS

NEW YORK (CP) — In French, chiffon means "rag." This is a most unflattering description of the gossamer fabric that has become so popular for evening wear.

Used in the late 1800s as sleeves and trimming, it became a dress fabric around 1908. But it didn't achieve fashion status until the mid-1900s.

This spring chiffon is the top evening favorite. Donald Brooks includes a group of frosted chiffons, including a lemon-yellow smock-and-skirt style and a halter dress in mauve. The frosting is embroidery and iridescent paillettes.

Chiffon is also championed by such important designers as Malcolm Starr and Ferdinando Sarmi, an Italian count with a New York haute couture business. Starr likes triple-layered chiffon, with narrow stiffening under the hem, for short formals and double layers for floor-length gowns. One of the latter is pale blue and seafoam green that floats out over a lifted and jewelled bodice.

But the most exciting collection of spring chiffons is that of Stavropoulos, the Greek designer who, in a few short years, has become New York's kingpin. He has stripped his chiffons of any ornamentation. Clean-cut lines and a sort of squared-off, floating poncho are his forte. He explains his short formals as a "float of chiffon over a stem body."

IT FLOATS IN MOTION

This is definitely the top fashion news this spring. Other designers, too, like these bare little short dresses covered by a floating "cage."

Chiffon is a sheer silk. Its great beauty is its floating quality in motion. Usually it has been popular when the current fashion is in a romantic mood.

This spring it fits right into the return of elegance. Its "floating quality" has never been better utlized. Adele Simpson describes the mood as the flirtatious "to - see - and-to-see-through" look of chiffon veiling a fitted sheath.

Back in the 1920s there had been a certain interest in three-tiered skirts of pleated chiffon, topped by long hi-length lace bodices. Often the tops were beaded.

This spring many of the designers ar using glitter with chiffon. Geoffrey Beene, for example, places a banding of rhinestones above the flounced skirt of a black chiffon tank-top dress Beene also uses an ostrich hemline on black chiffon, over which floats another layer of chiffon.

TAKES OVER LIMELIGHT

Chiffon appeared only fitfully during the 1930s. During the war years all fabrics were scarce. Designers still believed yards and yards of chiffon were required to create an effect. This was proved false a few years ago when a single layer of chiffon clung close to the body. And this spring the spare little chiffon sheaths are delightful, with or without their floating "cage."

Chiffon fell out of fashion favor in 1947 after Dior plummetted the hemline down to the ankle. Fashion had no place then for clinging chiffons.

But in 1950 chiffon became top fashion when Paris introduced slim shaped dresses for late-day wear. Christian Dior favored pastel chiffon; Spanish Balenciaga sparked black. This was the first time that chiffon had actually taken over the fashion headlines.

Then in the late 1950s, in the wake of keen interest in brown as a basic color, Luis Estevez included a slinky brown chiffon in his evening collection. In 1960 he even combined shocking pink and orange-toned chiffon in at-home dinner pyjamas. Last fall, Oleg Cassini introduced bittersweet chiffon in a long-sleeved gown, its freely moving skirt hemlined in mink.

TURNED TO PATTERNS

Next patterned chiffons appeared. The day of only pastel or black chiffon was over. This spring there's practically every combination of pastel colored prints possible as well as some vivid orange and sombre shadings. Adele Simpson even has a group of jungle animal prints.

In 1960 there was a distinct liking for beads, paillettes, jewels and sequins set on sheer chiffon. Ceil Chapman teamed a fluttery white short chiffon skirt with a bead-and-sequin bodice. This year there's also an interest in beading but not a compulsive one.

This spring several browns are being shown. Christian Dior - New York presents a taupe with a full skirt and bodice that gathered up to a frilled neckline. Norman Norell combines tones of brown and white in a long-sleeved gown with pleated skirt and tops it with a large - brimmed brown straw hat.

Also this spring chiffon-over-crepe is found in several collections. One of the smartest is Ceil Chapman's flamingo pink. It skims the figure in easy lines from cowl neckline to masses of silk flowers at the hemline.

FIND MONEY FOR LAND

MONTREAL (CP) — Dublin-educated Barbara O'Neill is a specialist in an uncrowded field: landscape design — "normally the last of the fine arts people appreciate because of the money involved." Canadians now are becoming more able to afford landscaping, Miss O'Neill said. She knows of only four other women designers in Canada.

Mother Seeks Advice For Quiet Daughter

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS: I would like the list of books you recommend for girls concerning the facts of life.

My 14-year-old daughter is on the quiet side, an only child; enjoys the quiet and privacy of her room with her books, radio and record player. Boys don't seem to interest her as yet. She is very enthusiastic about sports, attending most of the intercollegiate games, and cheering wildly.

Any advice you may give me will be greatly appreciated.

I'm certain the help you give young people must have far-reaching benefits. Heaven bless your work. — MOTHER OF TEEN.

DEAR M.O.T.: The list is on its way. But I can't imagine what's worrying you. Your girl will begin looking the boys over in her own time. I'd say she has nicely balanced interests — and a particularly nice mother!

DEAR DORIS: Can you tell me how to go about getting an additional Christian name? I was born in England but we have lived here for 15 years. — JONESY, AGE SEVENTEEN.

DEAR JONESY: The law here is that if you were baptized with two Christian names, but have not been using one of them, and would like to, you can apply for this. You make a statutory declaration and pay a nominal amount. Otherwise to add a name is legally seen as something like changing your name.

At the same time, for most practical purposes, nobody minds if you'd like to give yourself a middle name. Only when you sign a marriage licence or take out insurance, or inherit through a will, will your true, legal name be insisted upon.

DEAR DORIS:

(1) What shoulder does my corsage go on, with a formal dress?

(2) If I need an evening bag, what would I do with it? — FIFTEEN AND FORMAL.

DEAR FIFTEEN:

(1) The left one. Or on your wrist; or at your waistline.

(2) Carry it around with you. Or, if you have a table location between dances, leave it on the table at your place, when you are dancing.

ONIONS WITH CHEESE SAUCE

There are 450,000 fifty-pound bags of extra onions to consume in Canada. Next to potatoes they were the cheapest vegetable I could find at a huge vegetable counter.

So in our house we have been eating onions all week for the sake of my dear readers, and for health's sake for onions are good for you.

BOILED ONIONS WITH CHEESE SAUCE (serves 4):

8 medium cooking onions, 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 3 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1½ cups milk, 1 cup shredded old Cheddar or process cheese, packed, 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley (optional).

Cover peeled whole onions with boiling water, put on lid and boil 5 minutes. Drain. Cover again with boiling water and cook covered until tender but not falling apart. Drain well. Serve with Cheese Sauce made by melting butter or margarine, stirring in flour and salt until blended, then milk until thick. Add cheese and stir over low heat until cheese is melted. Add parsley if used just before pouring over onions and serve.

GIVES UP BABY

MILTON, Ont. (CP) — A mother of 12 whose husband is in jail for attacking her with a knife has given up her nine-month-old baby to the Children's Aid Society. She is unable to make ends meet and does not qualify for provincial assistance because the jail term is less than a year. Judge Langdon released the information, he said, because it warranted public concern.

CAUTION NEEDED

WASHINGTON (CP) — Dr. Luther L. Terry, former surgeon-general of the U.S. public health service, has cautioned against "premature efforts" to make fluoridation of water mandatory. He ranked fluoridation with pasteurization of milk and purification of water supplies as a health measure, but told a dental conference that no community can expect a mandatory law until a majority of citizens is known to prefer fluoridation.

First Cheese Produced by Arabs

Apocryphally, a serendipity did it. But that was a few thousand years ago.

It seems that there was this traveling salesman — an Arab trader named Kanana, who carried milk around in a dried leather bag, slung over the side of the family dromedary. With the heat of the desert sun and the motion of the camel, the milk curdled. But the curds tasted great. Kanana smiled and said "cheese".

Today, Canadian dairy chemists and consumers of all ages smile and say "cottage cheese". But theirs is much refined, scientifically processed — and far more attractively packaged.

The Arabs, according to cheese heraldry, knew only three characteristics of cottage cheese. They found it tasty, no doubt an understatement considering Kanana's manufacturing process. It was cheap. And it was easy to manufacture, if you had a camel and a dried leather bag.

But it was 20 or 30 centuries after Kanana, give or take a century or two, before dairy chemists and nutritionists got into the act.

MANUFACTURING PROCESS

It was the dairy chemist who who finally refined the manufacturing process. Curd is made from pasteurized non-fat milk solids by adding a lactic acid "starter" and perhaps a touch of rennet. Heat, wash, drain, cut to the desired size and lightly salt. And it was nutrionists who dubbed "cottage cheese" as the family budget's best friend — protein rich (19 per cent) and calorie poor .120 calories per four ounce serving, creamed).

Meanwhile, back in the Old World, the Scots made cottage cheese and called it "bonny clabber". In French it is 'fromage de holland" and schabziger" to the Swiss. Italian "ricotta" is much like it, so is baker's cheese (hoop cheese) from which pies, cakes and pasteries are made.

Generically, the closest kin of cottage cheese is "pot cheese", and "farmer's cheese" (a pressed form). These turned up in North America with the earliest colonists. The Pennsylvania Dutch, for example, called it "schmierkase".

ORIGIN OF NAME

Where the name "cottage cheese" originated is a matter for speculation. We know, however, that it was originally produced in this country by the colonists in their homes. This occurred in the days before the industrial revolution when "cottage" industries began to set the New World economy in motion. Probability takes over from here.

Canadian consumers agree with all the experts: the Arabs, the dairy chemists and the nutritionists. The consumer appeal of "cottage cheese" lies — according to surveys — in taste, economy, nourishment, low-calorie-high protein content and convenience. In that order. Nutritionists list its equivalents as follows: One pound of cottage cheese concentrates the proteins of about three quarts of skim milk. A four ounce serving of fish, poultry or lean meat: three eggs or three slices of cheddar.

STANDARD ON MENU

Today, cottage cheese is a standard on the Canadian menu and nutritionists are having a hey-day with cottage cheese dishes: hot, cold, fried, boiled, baked and broiled. It is a concept that is a far cry from the snowy heap of "cottage cheese" that stares up at us from a leaf of lettuce. It is a far, far cry from what that serendipity did, apocryphally — that unforeseen pleasant event that happened in the leather bag of an Arab trader, according to legend.

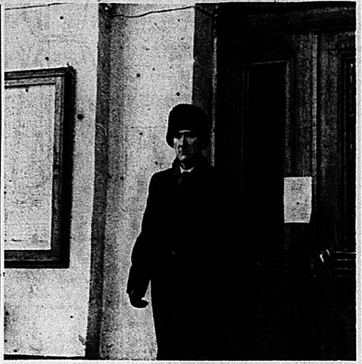
Finds Moscow Has Its Charms But They Are Hard to Define

John Best has been Canadian correspondent in Moscow since the summer of 1964. After more than 1½ years he finds life in the capital city of the Soviet Union is often exasperating, though it also has its elusive charm. He describes problems of every - day living there in this story.

By JOHN BEST



LIFE AT THE HEAD OF THE LINE — John Best, Moscow correspondent of The Canadian Press, leaves the Bolshoi Ballet after picking up his tickets. To get into the Bolshoi he must write a letter to the cashier then wait until the afternoon of the performance before he knows if he will get them. Foreigners in Moscow get a break; they're allowed to go to the head of the long line.

(CP Photo)

MOSCOW (CP)—If anyone had told me during my first few months in Moscow that I would come to like the place, I would have said he was daft.

Now, after more than 1½ years here, I have to say that Moscow indeed has its charms. But it is difficult to define them.

Moscow is a place that you have to learn to take on its own terms. This means learning to live with shoddy goods and services, cheeky salesgirls and omnipresent policemen.

Most difficult to cope with is the inordinate length of time it takes to get things done. Red tape, bureaucracy and sheer disorganization curse this Communist society from top to bottom.

Westerners suffer infinitely more than Russians because they're not used to it. They do a lot of beefing about bureaucracy at home but generally speaking they don't know what the word means until they come here.

You need gas in your car, so you drive to the nearest gasoline pump. But the woman on duty refuses to give your gas because you haven't got coupons; sale for cash is not permitted.

TICKETS BY LETTER

You want tickets to the Bolshoi Theatre so you write a letter and take it to the cashier. But you don't know until the afternoon of the performance whether you're going to be in luck and get the tickets.

You get a gas or electricity bill, which it would be handy to pay by cheque. But they don't use cheques here so you have to go to the bank and transfer the money from your account to another.

Similar instances could be cited ad infinitum. The upshot of it all is that Moscow is a hair-raisingly tough place in which to operate efficiently.

But you learn to live with the situation — coexist might be a better word—and even draw a perverse satisfaction from a growing ability to sniff out the pitfalls in time to take evasive action. . .how to cut your losses.

You buy gas coupons with a vengeance, 500 litres worth at a time, and henceforth always make sure you have some with you when you revisit the woman at the gas pump. Then you learn the hard way not to visit her between 12 noon and 1 p.m. when the filling station is closed for lunch.

PILE-UP BILLS

You learn to go to the head of the long line at the Bolshoi because foreigners with application letters are expected to. At least nobody stops them.

And you get into the habit of saving gas bills and the like for perhaps two weeks at a time, to cut down on trips to the bank.

About the charms of Moscow. You might say they are of a highly elusive quality.

There is the tangy crispness of a clear winter evening when Muscovites spill by the thousands onto frosty streets and sidewalks to stroll, talking noisily and happily.

There is the look of Moscow under a carpet of fresh snow, when even drab apartment buildings with the same uninspiring square lines as 10,000 other apartment blocks in the city seem to take on a certain softness of contour.

There is Gorky Park in the winter, with its miles of flooded walkways good for skating, its ice slides and general winter - wonderland atmosphere.

On a more practical level, there is the consideration shown foreigners in the allotment of tickets to entertainment places like the Bolshoi. It's seldom that he goes back on the day of the performance and finds no tickets waiting for him. Ordinary Russians have a far lower batting average.

APARTMENTS SCARCE

For an individual just starting up an operation in Moscow, accommodation can be a problem.

Russian apartments are not so much unfurnished as stripped down. When my wife and I moved into ours 18 months ago, there wasn't so much as a shelf in the whole place. Instead of light fixtures, bare wires protruded from the ceilings in all three rooms.

We had workmen come in to install shelves, and got an electrician to put up lamps which we bought at a nearby electrical shop.

We re-painted two of the three rooms, because we couldn't stand the screaming colors of the wallpaper.

Then we proceeded to furnish the apartment with furniture from Scandinavia. Furniture available here is not generally of a design and finish that appeals to Westerners.

After about a year we had the apartment pretty well set up. We live on the 12th and top floor of an apartment block assigned to foreigners—the Soviet government believes in keeping foreigners segregated from its own people. Others in the drab-looking grey brick building include Americans, Britons, Frenchmen, Italians, Swedes, Norwegians, Japanese, Cubans, Bulgarians, Hungarians, Germans, Yugoslavs, Austrians, Egyptians, and a number of Africans.

HEIGHT HAS ADVANTAGES

Our location is both good and bad. We are high enough to be able to see beyond rooftops to Lenin Hills and Moscow State University off in the distance — an altogether pleasing sight when there's a slight mist hanging over the hills, or at night when the university is outlined in lights.

We are also high enough to be removed from the noise of scores of multinational children at play, which in summer goes on well into the night and, we are told, makes for extremely difficult sleeping on the bottom floors.

But being on the 12th floor we are extremely vulnerable to the fluctuating moods of the two creaky little elevators that serve occupants of our section of the building. many's the time that we have had to walk all the way up or down.

As for food, our canned goods come mostly from Copenhagen, several hundred dollars worth at a time. We also get frozen meat from Copenhagen. The rest we buy here —except for fresh fruit and vegetables in winter, which may have to come from Helsinki.

Fruit and vegetables are normally unobtainable out-of-season here. But last winter, some became available in a special "dollar store" for foreigners opened to earn convertible currency for the Soviet treasury.

PAY BY COUPONS

Incidentally the usual method of payment at the dollar store is with coupons—purchased for hard currency at the bank.

One of the sad things about working in Moscow is that one has so little social contact with Russians. I have been in Russian homes a half a dozen times or so, but no more than twice on a strictly informal basis.

We've had Russians to our apartment for dinner on occasion but were never invited back to theirs. However, I've been invited to dinner at a restaurant by Russians.

Most foreigners agree that it is a great pity in every way — but particularly from the standpoint of understanding among peoples—that contact between Russians and foreigners is so effectively limited.

The result, socially, is that foreigners have nobody to associate with, but themselves.

About policemen. Foreigners are particularly aware of them because at each of their residences there is a little sentry box occupied by police who work in shifts around the clock.

They check the foreigner out when one leaves the compound, and check him in again when he returns. Russians with no approved business in the residence are turned away if they should seek to enter.

CONTROL STREETS

There are also hordes of policemen in the streets, mostly directing traffic. If there is one city where traffic is over-supervised, it is Moscow.

Many Westerners find policemen here too eager to blow their whistles, to stop and fine drivers for superficial infractions. But at times they can display a wry, disarming humor.

One of my favorite stories about Moscow life concerns a Western diplomat who was stopped by a policeman on his way home from a free-flowing Christmas party. The policeman demanded the diplomat's driving licence and asked him where he thought he was going.

"Forward, to the victory of communism," replied the diplomat, who wasn't feeling any pain.

The policeman pondered a moment, handed back the licence, saluted briefly and waving him on his way said: "May the Good Lord go with you."

Income Tax Tips

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By D. W. DAVIES, C.A.

CHARITABLE DONATIONS

A taxpayer may claim as a deduction from income the total of his charitable donations up to but not exceeding 10 percent of his income for that year. Each donation must be verified by a receipt, and be a gift, the nature of which benefits the public as a whole. Any donation that is limited to one person or a select group of persons is not acceptable as a deduction for income tax purposes.

Charitable gifts to organizations or institutions outside of Canada are not allowable except in certain cases, where the taxpayer also has income from the country in which the organization is situated. Acceptable donation receipts are those from non-taxable organizations located in Canada. Any organization outside of Canada that maintains an office in Canada for the sole purpose of receiving donations is not acceptable as a Canadian charitable institution.

Acceptable receipts are those from Canadian organizations whose purpose is religion, education or the betterment of the community. Many taxpayers will make a gift, which to them is pure charity but such gift does not qualify as a deduction for income tax purposes on account of it being for the use of one person or family. These include gifts to a needy person or family paying a brilliant child's educational costs or a gift of useful articles to persons who can use them.

Persons who reside in Canada and commute daily to their employment in the U.S.A. and make donations in the U.S.A. for charitable purposes, may use their receipts on the Canadian Income Tax return, providing such organization in the U.S.A. is one that would be acceptable if located in Canada. Such accepted receipts would be from the Red Cross, Community Chests, etc. When in doubt, contact your nearest income tax office or a letter to me will bring correct information.

For a personal reply, enclose a self- addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: P paid a needy family's heating bills last winter. Can I claim these as charitable donations if I attach the bills and a note saying I paid them?

Answer: No.

Question 1: I paid a needy behind the "Iron Curtain" a few years ago. I send money to the U.S.A. to assist the "Radio Free Europe." Can I claim it as a deduction for charity?

Answer: No.

THE MAIL BAG

L.L.M. Shannonville: I am not sure of Max Baer's age. He won the heavyweight title from Primo Carnera in 1934: lost it to James J. Braddock in June, 1935 and later that year was knocked out by Joe Louis. Give or take, I would say he would be 57 this year.

J.O.N. Picton:- Seasonal records, not goals per game, are recognized by the NHL only. For instance Joe Malone scored 44 goals in a 22-game schedule. Nothing was said about this even when the Rocket scored 50 in 50. If Bobby Hull scores 50 in 50 games it is merely incidental. His seasonal record will go down in the record books.

G.S.J. Frankford:- You win. Gordie Howe came within a goal of the 50-per-season record. He scored 49 in the 1952-53 season and 47 the year before.

"Oldtimer", Madoc:- Babe Ruth's total income from 1914 to his retirement in 1935 was fixed at $1,076,447. His first salary was $1,900 and his peak was $80,000 with the Yankees in 1931. It dwindles to $35,000 in 1934.

"Indignant", Point Anne:- "I see where Picton and Prince Edward county are claiming Bobby Hull as a 'Spaniard'. He wore his first diapers in this cement village which claims both Belleville and Prince Edward as suburbs — and nobody is going to steal his birth certificate from us."

"Disgusted", Belleville:- "It's too bad the muskrat season was open when that sadistic egghead tortured that poor mustrat before killing it in front of a gang of gaping onlookers. The law could have taken it's course, but it's too bad some of the onlooking he-men didn't give him a dose of his own medicine. A dunking in the icy water might have cooled off his idea of having fun at the expense of a poor defenceless animal." — Ed. Note: Concur.

A Faithful Rollins Supporter":- "I was reading the "Pinch Hitting" section in the January 31 issue, by Garry Alexander, in which he said, quote, "The gentleman apparently hasn't been near Memorial Arena this year on Friday nights", referring to the local know-it-all overheard recently claiming, "There's no interest in junior hockey here so why bother going to the rink?"

"Well, in my opinion, it's more than the gentlemen who do not go near the arena on Friday nights but the ladies also. Surely there are some interested in hockey.

"It also stated the crowds have been better this season than for years. This may be so, but the support the Rollins' are getting could be at least three times larger than it is.

"I for one have missed very few games (am a working housewife with family, take family along). We have also gone to Trenton when the team was playing there, the support Trenton gives their team is tremendous.

"Probably a lot of people are saying after what happened because of the "Belleville Macs", we don't want to be bothered with hockey or anything to do with hockey.

"Well, I think the Rollins should be given their chance and if they're willing to get out and play good hockey every Friday for Belleville there is no reason why a lot more people can't get out and go to support them.

"I have faith in the team, they have many very good players as well as one of the best goalkeepers in Junior "B" hockey.

So why don't a few of you readers go and see the next Friday night game and I'm sure you will find it most exciting. Once you see one of these games, I'm sure you won't want to miss the next game."

"Curious", Belleville:- What became of Barbara Ann Scott, Canada's Dresden doll figure skating champion who won the Olympics title at St. Moritz, Switzerland in 1948?"

Barbara, who skated in Belleville with the late Tommy Gorman's show, is married, and I believe, operating a successful beauty salon in a Chicago suburb.

Guelph U. Defeats McMaster

HAMILTON (CP)—University of Guelph Redmen scored their first Ontario - Quebec Intercollegiate Hockey League victory over McMaster Marlins in five seasons when they handed Marlins an 8-3 defeat Monday night.

Paced by Reuben Mapletoft's three goal performance, the Redmen built up a 3-0 first-period lead, increased it to 6-2 in the second period and outscored the Marlins 2-1 in the final 20 minutes.

Four Race^{4} For Top In CPL

DETROIT (CP) — For seven players fighting to better their position in the Central Professional Hockey League scoring race, every game counts.

Only four points separate 10th-place Andre Champagne of Tulsa Oilers from fourth-place Andre Boudrias of Houston Apollos. Champagne has 11 goals and 32 assists for 43 points. Boudrias has 19 goals and 28 assists for 47 points.

Leading in the scoring race is Art Stratton of St. Louis Braves. He has combined 19 goals and a league-leading 44 assists for 63 points and is ahead of Paul Andrea of Minnesota Rangers by four points.

Andrea leads the league in goals with 27 and has 32 assists for 59 points.

Bill Inglis of Houston is in third place with 51 points on 23 goals and 28 assists.

The Braves' Denis Dejordy is top goaltender with a 2.84 goals-against average and is tied in shutouts with Bruce Gamble of Tulsa Oilers with four each.

Pre-Race Testing Planned

NEW YORK (AP)—Harness Tracks of America, an organization of 37 trotting and pacing race tracks outlined Monday a $340,000 program for the pre-race testing of horses and the detection and cure of diseases.

"We are not viewing with alarm the recent outbreak of swamp fever among thoroughbreds at Bowie, Md.," said Frank Devlin, president of HTA.

"The disease has been with us a long time. But we are working on it and other contagious diseases peculiar to horses in co-operation with a number of other organizations."

Harness Racing Institute, a research organization sponsored by the HTA and the U.S. Trotting Association, has joined two thoroughbred groups—the New York State Racing Commission and the Jockey Club — in a $100,000 research program at Ohio State.

Education is the best preventive now for swamp fever, Devlin says.

"Used syringes and squalid stable conditions have been found to be a carrier of the disease," said Devlin.

MONTREAL (CP)—A lot of emphasis has been placed on Bobby Hull's scoring pace this season.

But there is another National Hockey League record that Chicago Black Hawks' left winger could shatter before the season is over—the record for most points in a season.

The emphasis has been placed on Hull's scoring ability because he has 44 goals in the 43 games he has played and needs only seven more goals in 23 games to break the record of 50 goals in a season.

The 27 - year - old native of Point Anne, Ont., shares the record with two retired Montreal Canadiens players—Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion

However, Hull is averaging 1 7 points a game and, at that rate and barring injury, he is almost certain to break the record of 96 points in a season set by former Montrealer Dickie Moore in 1958-59.

LEADS MIKITA

Statistics released by NHL headquarters today show Hull now has 73 points and currently holds a 16-point lead over teammate Stan Mikita in this season's individual scoring race.

Mikita, scoring champion for the last two years, has 57 points, including a league-leading 33 assists, and holds up a two-point lead over Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings. Mikita and Ullman have 24 goals each, second highest in the league.

Gordie Howe of Detroit and Bobby Rousseau of Montreal are tied for fourth place with 50 points, one more than Detroit's Alex Delvecchio, who last week became the ninth player in NHL history to score 300 goals.

Montreal centre Jean Beliveau is seventh with 47 points, one more than team-mate Henri Richard. Bob Nevin of New York Rangers is ninth with 42 points and Bob Pulford of Toronto Maple Leafs is 10th with 40.

Detroit goaltenders Roger Crozier and Hank Bassen still hold a slim lead in the goalkeepers' race with a 2.57 goals-against average.

Montreal's twosome of Lorne (Gump) Worsley and Charlie Hodge are next with a 2.58 average. Crozier leads the league in shutouts with seven.

LEADS IN PENALTIES

Ted Green of Boston Bruins has missed 19 of the Bruins' 46 games but continues to lead the league in penalty minutes with 113. His nearest rival is Reggie Fleming of New York with 96 minutes.

The Rangers lead in team penalties with 624 minutes.

Receives Lester Patrick Trophy

"JACK ADAMS PRESENTS" — "Jolly" Jack Adams who was honored with the Lester Patrick Trophy in New York last night, presents a galaxy of "Them Were the Days" hockey luminaries. Next to the Red Wings immortal on the extreme left is: L. Daigneult, Michael J. Rodden, Terry Reardon and "Bun" Cook. The picture was taken at a Kingston press conference.

NHL Honors 'Jolly' Jack Adams'

NEW YORK (CP) — The names of two Canadian evangelists who preached the gospel of hockey south of the border with great success were linked on a trophy Monday night.

President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League, speaking at a dinner at which Jack Adams received the Lester Patrick Trophy, said Patrick preached the gospel so zealously and so successfully in New York that the city "has been able to survive a drought of 25 years without a Stanley Cup."

Adams, general manager of Detroit Red Wings from 1927-28 to 1961-62 and coach of the team for the first 20 of those seasons, became the first recipient of the Lester Patrick Trophy "for long and meritorious service to hockey in the United States."

The trophy was donated to the NHL by New York Rangers, to be awarded annually in memory of Patrick, the Silver Fox from Vancouver, who was the first coach and general manager of the Rangers. Patrick retired from the Rangers in 1946 and died in 1960 at the age of 81

The 70-year-old Adams referred warmly to his long association with Patrick, who was building up hockey in New York at the same time as Adams was doing it in Detroit.

Adams said "we were great friends, especially between April and October."

HEADS CENTRAL LEAGUE

Since retiring from the red Wings, Adams has continued to play a key role in hockey as president of the Central League, set up as a proving ground for NHL prospects.

While Adams was in charge, the Red Wings won the Stanley Cup seven times. They captured the NHL title 12 times, including an unmatched string of seven consecutive first - place finishes from the 1948 - 49 through the 1954-55 season.

Adams, born in Fort William, June 14, 1895, played amateur hockey in Ontario and Michigan and had a pro career of 10 seasons in the NHL and the old Pacific Coast League before going on to become one of the most successful executives in the history of the game.

Two of the most successful players in the history of the game were among the 300 paying tribute to him at the dinner. Eddie Shore, once a great defenceman with Boston Bruins, spoke for the past, and Gordie Howe, who came out of Floral, Sask., to help Adams keep Detroit on the hockey map, spoke for the present generation.

Howe said: "He ruled the team with an iron fist but he was always honest and fair."

Actual presentation of the trophy to Adams was made by two sons of the Silver Fox, Lynn Patrick, general manager of Los Angeles Blades of the Western Hockey League, and Murray (Muzz) Patrick, booking agent for the Madison Square Garden Corp.

Vancouver Rates High In NHL Bids

LA, Frisco Almost Sure

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

NEW YORK (CP) — Vancouver today makes its big pitch for a National Hockey League franchise, along with six American cities, at special meetings of the league's board of governors.

Planning to expand to 12 teams from the present six in the 1967-68 season, the NHL will probably designate two or three of the new franchises by the time the special meetings wind up Wednesday, one source said.

Vancouver is considered to have a good chance of joining the expanded league, which will put its six new teams in a separate division. Two other Pacific Coast cities—Los Angeles and San Francisco — are regarded as the surest bet for membership.

The six NHL governors and president Clarence Campbell are holding closed sessions to hear applications from various groups who want franchises. In a few cases, there is more than one group from the same city.

Campbell said "we don't expect to make any announcements until Wednesday."

A group seeking a Los Angeles franchise was among those interviewed Monday, first day of the meetings. Its spokesmen, lawyer Greg Bautzer and television producer Tony Owens, came away in a pessimistic mood.

This attitude contrasted with optimism shown by Baltimore, Buffalo San Francisco bidders after their interviews with the governors representing the existing league members—Montreal, Toronto, Boston, New York, Detroit and Chicago.

Jake Embry, president of Baltimore Clippers of the American Hockey League, figured his city is as good as in the NHL. "I can't see how they can resist our bid," he said.

Four more groups contending for a Los Angeles franchise are scheduled to see the NHL governors today, in addition to single groups representing Vancouver Pittsburgh, Minneapolis, Cleveland, Philadelphia and a surprise last-minute bidder, Louisville, Ky.

Four cities—Vancouver, San Francisco, Los Angeles and St. Louis—were designated by the NHL last October as suitable "sites" for expansion but Campbell and other NHL authorities have said recently this guarantees them nothing.

Now it appears St. Louis won't be in the running at all. The league is scheduled to hear a St. Louis application late this afternoon but Campbell said nothing has been heard from St. Louis and "we don't expect anyone to show up from there."

Three Off Defence Pace

Orr Eyes Scoring Record

BOBBY ORR

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Attention has shifted from a forward to a defenceman in the Ontario Jockey Association Junior A scoring race.

Bobby Orr of Oshawa Generals is just three goals away from establishing a season's record in goals scored by a defenceman.

In the 1964-65 season, Orr scored 34 goals in 56 games. In 48 games this year, he has 32 goals with nine games remaining.

Helped by 52 assists, Orr has a total of 84 points, and in the last two weeks has closed in on scoring - leader Andre Lacroix of Peterborough Petes, shaving eight points off a 20-point lead.

Lacroix now has 96 points with 27 goals and 69 assists.

In third place behind Orr is Danny Grant, Lacroix's teammate, with 38 goals and 39 assists for 77 points.

Top goaltender is Brian Caley, also of the Petes, with a 3.12 goals-against average. In second place is Bobby Ring of Niagara Falls Flyers, with a 3.16 average.

Rollins' Rally Falls Short

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

CARL BOOMHOWER

Half a stride behind most of the night, Belleville Rollins finished just that way in dropping an important 4-3 OHA Junior "B" decision to Peterborough Don Byes here last night.

Peterborough skipped past Rollins into third place with the win. The Petes have 29 points, Belleville 28 and Trenton 25.

Belleville next faces Oshawa here Friday then goes to Kingston on Sunday as the schedule enters its final weeks.

The locals played in spurts and were at times guilty of sloppy play in their own end as well as erratic shooting inside the Byes' blueline.

They were never ahead. After a scoreless first, Peterborough scored a pair of quickies early in the second and led 2-1 by period's end.

Two fast goals early in the third made it 4-1 and a late rally by Rollins, led by Carl Boomhower, fell short.

Belleville had a good last-minute opportunity when the visitors were penalized at 18.03. Brant was taken out for the final minute and five seconds but strong checking prevented the losers from getting a dangerous shot.

Ron Chittick and Jim Glynn each had a goal and assist for Don Byes with Perry Chittick and Bob Lacey also scoring. Terry Blewett had two assists, Bill Stabler and Rob Murray one each.

Carl Boomhower scored twice and Bob Boyle gained a goal and an assist. Doug Potts, with two, Pete Fleming and Jim Pringle added assists.

Both goalies, Wayne Brant and Randy Reid, made some alert saves. Belleville had a 29-28 edge in shots.

A lapse put Rollins down 2-0 in the opening seconds of the middle frame. Ron Chittick shot from the faceoff beat a partly-screened Brant at .44 seconds and Perry Chittick converted Stabler's pass at 1.26.

Potts recovered his own wide shot on a powerplay and fed it out front for Boyle to rap home quickly to put Rollins back in contention at 6.58 The clubs took turns pressing with manpower advantages for the rest of the period as ten of the games' 15 penalties were assessed. The winners took nine.

Glynn scored through a maze of players at 3.00 of the third and Lacey rammed another home from a goal - mouth jam at 4.08 for a 4-1 score.

Boomhower tipped a mate's shot over Reid's pads at 10.23 and Rollins came to life. Boomhower made it close at 13.07, sweeping in to score on a three-ply rush with Pringle and Potts. They carried the play for a time but shot wide on a couple of occasions.

Grant Hagerman dressed for the first time in over three weeks but the injured knee appeared weak and he took only a couple early shifts.

Peterborough: Reid, Blastorah, Davis, P. Chittick, R. Chittick, Stabler, Bell, McCarthy, LaPlante, Blewett, Saltern, Lacey, Murray, Scriver, Glynn.

Belleville: Brant, Potts, Ethier, Boyle, Fleming, Hagerman, White, Boomhower, Pringle, Stewart, Townsend, Marks Duval.

Announce New Healing Substance: Shrinks Piles

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured inflamed tissue.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most important of all — results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue.

Now Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H. Ask for it at all drug stores. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

9168: The Case of the Extra Seats

DOCKET 9168 IS EXCITING READING. Jet-swift, it shows how the decisions of a few men — made back in 1963/64 — are going to affect your flying convenience.

HERE IS THE PRINCIPAL EVIDENCE:

Exhibit A. Your national airline already has SEVENTY-EIGHT aircraft in its all-turbine Air Canada fleet.

Exhibit B. By mid-summer, 1966, TWO more DC-8 jetliners, plus SIX swift new twin-jet DC-9s will be added.

Exhibit C. FOUR more DC-8 and another TWELVE DC-9 jets will join the Air Canada fleet between January and June of 1967.

SUMMARY: 24 NEW JETS IN 24 MONTHS

DECISION: An additional 9,168 seats a day will be available for jet travel within Canada! It took wise planning to forecast these future needs, starting back in 1963. The simple truth: good service always creates more customers, and Air Canada ordered these 24 aircraft to make sure that you will enjoy greater flying satisfaction than ever before — with 40% more seats to choose from. You'll see new schedules, new cities added to our Air Canada Canadian jet routes, new convenience in departure times: all in step with our new aircraft. See you aloft!

Gamble 7 Points Up In AHL

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Dick Gamble of Rochester Americans has opened a seven-point margin over Gordon Labossiere of Quebec Aces in the American Hockey League scoring race but has lost the goal production lead to Al Caron of Buffalo Bisons.

Caron broke out of a prolonged scoring slump and scored his 30th goal Sunday. He has one more than Gamble, according to latest AHL statistics.

Gamble, with 29 goals and 34 assists, tops the point parade with 63. Labossiere is second at 22-34-56. Quebec veteran Guy Gendron, who has come along fast in recent weeks, shares third place with Rochester's Gerry Ehman and Jim Pappin at 55 points apiece.

Gerry Melnyk of Buffalo is the top playmaker with 39 assists, two more than Cleveland's Bob Courcy.

Quebec, which has won nine straight, has the leading goaltender in Gary Bauman but the rookie currently is sidelined with a leg injury. Bauman has an average yield of 2.66 goals in 44 games.

Ravens Win Cage Title

OTTAWA (CP)—Carleton Ravens clinched the Ottawa - St. Lawrence intercollegiate basketball title for the fourth consecutive year Monday with a 113-54 win over University of Ottawa.

Carleton, with one game to go in the schedule, has 14 wins and only one loss. Second - place Royal Military College could end up in a points tie for first, but would drop to second because they have lost to Carleton in both games between the two teams this season.

RMC has played only 12 games, winning 10 and losing two.

Forward Tommy Gorman, who holds the individual game and season scoring records for the league, had another big night with 41 points.

NBC Special Held Together By Charm of Mary Martin

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Monday night's NBC special, Hello Dolly, Round the World was an entertaining theatrical hodgepodge, beautifully filmed and pulled together by the vitality and charm of Mary Martin.

There were the delightly bits and pieces of Hello, Dolly, the smash Broadway musical with Miss Martin in the title role.

There were glimpses of the backstage life of the touring company. Viewers saw hectic preparations for opening night in Tokyo, with the Japanese audience using earpieces to tune in on the simultaneous translation.

Shots of Tokyo by night and the lovely Japanese countryside followed plus a charming report of Miss Martin's visit to an orphanage.

The scene shifted to South Viet Nam, where the 71-member troupe entertained soldiers from make-shift stages.

Batman, in its first appearance on the national ratings lists, crashed into TV's elite circle, the top 10.

The ABC two-a-week series moved into the eighth and ninth spots in the report released Monday by the A. C. Nielsen Co. in its estimates of audience sizes for the two weeks ending Jan. 23.

Most popular show of the period was, by a long shot, Bob Hope's Christmas show on NBC, followed by the same network's Bonanza. Third was the CBS Andy Griffith Show. Others in the top 10 were ABC's Bewitched, CBS' The Lucy Show, Gomer Pyle, Red Skelton Show and Beverly Hillbillies.

Recommended tonight:

CBS Reports, 10-11 p.m. EST, Sixteen in Webster Groves, a study of teen-agers and their parents in a midwestern community.

AT THE PARK — Alain Delon and Ann-Margret form the sizzling love team of "Once A Thief," showing today and Wednesday at the Park Theatre, explosive drama of an ex-jailbird forced back into a life of crime. Kim Novak Progressing Slowly After Accident

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Report from British actor Richard Johnson in the health of his wife Kim Novak:

"She is progressing slowly. Her activities are limited, since she must get a lot of rest, and she wears a brace on her back when she gets tired. She will have another examination at the end of this month to see if the crack in her vertebra has healed."

This is the state of what might be called the $3,000,000 back. That sum was lost when Kim suffered an injury in falling from a horse last November. The ailment caused her to withdraw from the London filming of 13, which had only a fortnight's shooting left. She was replaced by Deborah Kerr.

"She not only cracked the vertebra, she chipped it as well, and her discs were impacted," said Johnson.

RESTED FOR 2 MONTHS

Johnson brought her to the Cliffside hideaway at Big Sur, where Kim retreats between movies. She rested there for two months.

When can she return to work?

"That will be determined by the examination later this month," Johnson said. "I hope she won't try to go back soon. She simply isn't able."

The pair will mark their first anniversary as husband and wife on March 15. It has been a distant marriage at times; while she was making 13 in London, he was in Cairo for Khartoum.

Now he is dashing off to Rome for a role in Aura, a suspense film. Kim may join him later. If not, he'll come back for a visit before reporting to London and Deadlier than the Male with Elke Sommer.

"The marriage has been a bit scattered," Johnson admitted, but we expected that."

AT THE BELLE — Wednesday — Coquette . . . Mariann Hill provides romantic excitement for James Ward in "Red Line 7000", from an original story from Howard Hawks. Filmed in Technicolor, the exciting Paramount picture opens Wednesday at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

AT THE BELLE — Final Day. Doris Day stars in the romantic comedy, "Do Not Disturb", in CinemaScope and DeLuxe Color, shows Tonight for the last times at Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Fans Roar When He Falls

He Laughs--On Way To Bank

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — People laugh when Frank Udvari slips and falls heavily on the ice.

They abuse him with insults, toss things at him and, even when he is doing his job to the best of his ability, they still give him a hard time.

But this doesn't bother the 42-year-old Udvari. He laughs all the way to the bank.

Udvari is the man who wears a black-and-white striped shirt bearing the number one. He is a hockey referee and he makes $4 a minute in a sport where he is the man fans love to hate.

Udvari, who was born near the Austro-Yugoslavian border, estimates he has worked 1,850 National Hockey League and American Hockey League games and has missed only two assignments.

The stocky five-foot-10 resident of Waterloo started refereeing in 1946—at 50 cents a game in Kitchener minor hockey. His career as a player lasted three years as a defenceman in Junior B.

SALARY SOARED

In his second year as a referee, he earned $2.50 a game for the Ontario Minor Hockey Association. The following season his pay jumped to $8 a game working Junior C.

But that was a long time ago. As a senior NHL official, Udvari picks up close to $20,000 for a job which lasts from September to May and covers 85 games.

Hockey doesn't provide Udvari's only income. He is a director of a prosperous Kitchener insurance agency.

There are times, however, when being a hockey referee has its disadvantages. Such as when he has to drive 600 miles, sleep on a train for 460 miles, get up at 5:45 a.m. to fly another 460 and skate for miles during a game.

He has been hit by pucks and by insults and sometimes by hockey players. And there are even times when he has to sacrifice some of his home life for his job.

But Frank Udvari says he loves the game and the income and admits that his fame as a referee doesn't hurt his insurance selling.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For February 9

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Emphasis on mate or partner. Be aware of advertising, publicity potential. Day to observe and learn . . . hold back on direct action. Outsider apt to come up with valuable idea.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Check employment situation for "hidden" benefits. Accept added responsibility as challenge. Push ahead — be determined to succeed. Older individual plays paramount role.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Major cycle may be shortly concluded. Know this and prepare early. You attract fascinating persons. Be charming — and provocative. Refuse to take situations for granted. Be alert!

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Conditions at home demand special attention. Fine time for conferring with real estate experts, checking property values. Realize there are legitimate bargains available.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Share knowledge. Demonstrate personal abilities by bringing sense of humor to forefront. Experiment . . . stress versatility. Best not to show anger — or anxiety. Maintain even course.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Overcome temptation to be extravagant. Don't scatter forces. Do have confidence. You can create your own opportunities. Realize a smile can also win valuable allies.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Cycle high. Enhance personal appearance. Exude confidence . . . strive for new, modern methods. Contacts made now prove beneficial. Push ahead!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Highlight drama, special presentations. Don't let gloomy friend influence you. Brooding accomplishes nothing. Seek cooperation of group, organization, club. Study Libra message.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Friendships now tend to prove their importance. Fine for entertaining at home. Discuss hopes, aspirations. Relaxed atmosphere helps clear away prior tension.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Cooperate with authorities . . . display sense of responsibility. Realize you obtain nothing for nothing. Means put forth best efforts . . . pounce on career opportunity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Give extra attention to special references, publishing activity. Study long-range possibilities. Avoid associate who lacks imagination. Petty persons badly hamper program.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Permit mate or partner to take initiative. Better to give rather than receive. This attitude creates more harmonious atmosphere. Ultimate gain indicated for you. Stand tall.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you have great sympathy for underdog . . . are attracted to medicine, teaching. Your principles are admirable, but you could learn to be more practical.

• • •

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Libra, Scorpio, Sagittarius. Special word to Taurus: Adhere to recent resolutions concerning health, diet.

LBJ Trip to Honolulu Said Public Relations Gambit

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The most cynical interpretation of President Johnson's trip to Honolulu is that it represents another public relations gambit in the Vietnamese war, this time aimed at muffling the rising U.S. congressional criticism of American policy in Viet Nam.

Credence is lent by the president's past successes in news management — whether snatching headlines from political foes or sweetening inescapably-sour facts of life with the simultaneous revelation of happier tidings elsewhere.

A most recent example was the presentation by White House staff to certain congressmen of identical speeches prepared for convenient delivery or insertion in the record to praise the presidential budget.

In any event, the decision to hold high-level talks on Viet Nam in Hawaii was sudden and it followed a fascinating nationally-televised session of the Senate foreign relations committee.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, a dissident, and numerous others looked critically at details and aims of the United States economic aid program in South Viet Nam.

EFFORT WILL INCREASE

Forecasts now are that the military effort will increase, but that it will concentrate on the South and the prevention of infiltrating men and supplies from the North. There would be continued restraint in bombing the North and the choice of targets.

The new program of pacification and reconstruction for the South would be launched with considerable fanfare. Among the almost unlimited problems are the ferocity of the fighting in the South, extensive graft, little or no organized and effective contact between villages and Saigon, lack of trained personnel and the difficulty of conducting essential land reform because of fat-cat native landlords.

These conditions all persist, the Senate committee was told.

Adroit as President Johnson has been in the past in selling policies to Congress and the public, the war in Viet Nam continues to raise more difficulties of communication for him.

The Senate foreign relations committee clearly has the bit in its teeth.

It resumes with a lineup of witnesses capable of extending to the utmost any Johnsonian plan for muffling headlines.

AROUSED JOHNSON

On today is retired Lieut.-Gen. James Gavin, a former senior army thinker and a former ambassador to France, who recently aroused the Johnson camp. He proposed the U.S. fight a primarily-defensive war from coastal enclaves until it had clarified its goals for more war or peace.

Gavin is to be followed by George F. Kennan, a former diplomat with reservations about Viet Nam, and perhaps by retired Gen. Matthew Ridgeway, a former American commander in Korea who believes strongly that never again should the U.S. get involved in a major Asian land war.

Defence Secretary Robert McNamara and State Secretary Dean Rusk, after digging in to oppose any public sessions, now seem less reluctant.

Some observers profess already to see a considerable feat of public relations magic in what the president is doing in Viet Nam now.

The Commons debated interim supply, the government seeking money to meet its normal February bills.

The supply bill for $1,700,000,000 was passed later without a vote and debate returned to external affairs estimates.

A New Democratic attempt to hold an emergency debate on the strike situation at the Oshawa Times was ruled out of order.

NDP MPs returned to the battle on the supply motion, which allows discussion of a wide range of topics.

David Lewis (NDP — York South) accused the newspaper of using the law as a strike-breaking weapon.

Reid Scott (NDP—Toronto Danforth) said a petition sought to ban pickets at The Times could enshrine injustice in the law.

Gerald W. Baldwin (PC—Peace River) attacked government spending of money before parliamentary approval.

Solicitor - General Pennell tabled a committee report on juvenile delinquency.

It recommended federal grants for treatment facilities and a revision of the Juvenile Delinquents Act.

An NDP call for a vote against provisional rules that eliminated the dinner adjournment was voted down 34 to 16.

Jack McIntosh (PC—Swift Current-Maple Creek) said he would be prepared to support sending Canadian troops to Viet Nam.

PCs Convinced Medicare Program Will Succeed

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts said Monday he met with representatives of the Canadian Health Insurance Association last week but that organization made no recommendations about the government's medical care insurance bill.

The premier told the legislature that in the last year he has met with several groups and he was sure they did not always want made public what was discussed.

Mr. Robarts, answering a question from Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson, said also that the insurance association made "no complaints" about the province's proposed medical-care insurance rates.

Edward Dunlop (PC—Forest Hill) said during the debate on a proposed amendment to the Medical Services Insurance Act that a "preconceived notion about universal compulsory medicare" is the star to which the NDP had hitched their political wagons.

FEAR SUCCESS

The plan does not conform to the NDP requirements and they therefore fear it will succeed, Mr. Dunlop said.

"I am convinced, as I believe most informed opinion is convinced, that the government's plan will succeed," Mr. Dunlop told the house. "It will be popular and it will be seen to be appropriate to the circumstances of the day."

Donald C. MacDonald, the NDP leader, said the government's plan is shaped primarily to meet the interests of the insurance companies and the Ontario Medical Association.

"It is incredible that this government should be such a slavish minion to the vested interests in the field at the expense of both the medical needs and the pocketbook of the people of Ontario," Mr. MacDonald said.

WILL FIGHT

He said the NDP "will fight this fraud, this poor substitute for the real thing" because if the Ontario government were to give the proper leadership a universal compulsory medical care plan would be "within our grasp."

Mr. MacDonald said that "Ontario's indecision stands as the main roadblock to this nation finally being able to achieve this major piece of legislation (medicare) which has eluded us for generations."

J. B. Trotter (L—Parkdale) said that because there is "nothing more important than the health of our people" a comprehensive government - sponsored health scheme is a necessity. "Anything less is not good enough," he said.

"All the present medicare bill does is subsidize the insurance companies," Mr. Trotter said. "We are not helping the people who need it most."

Two Committed For Trial on 6 Joint Charges

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Two men arrested on six joint charges after the armed robbery of a bank here Jan. 10 were committed to trial at their preliminary hearing Monday.

The trial of John Clarence Jance, 37, of Hamilton and Edward Macon, 27, of Oshawa has been tentatively set for Feb. 17.

They are charged in the $13,800 armed robbery of the bank, possession of a sawed-off .303 rifle and possession of a revolver and part of a uniform stolen at gunpoint from Constable Ernest Steacy of the provincial police detachment at Campbellford.

Provincial police also charged the men with kidnapping Constable Steacy and with stealing his cruiser.

They are also charged by provincial police at London, Ont., with a $15,000 armed robbery of a Mount Brydges bank last September.

They also spent a few hours with their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Oliver of the Deseronto Road.

TO DEMOLISH ARMORY

The first steps were taken last week which will lead to the demolition of a historic landmark in the centre of the town, the Napanee Armory. Soundings were taken early in the week preparatory to the actual work. A federal building which will house the post office, customs office, and other federal agencies, will be erected in its place.

OBSERVING BYLAW

Napanee town police report that Napanee car owners are now strictly observing the bylaw forbidding night parking. No cars have been towed away for three nights hand running. One of the last to learn the hard way was one of the men who decided that the bylaw must be enforced. Councillor Don Reid drove his car to a meeting a little over a block from his home Wednesday, forgot he had done so, and walked home as he usually does. Friday he was informed that he had left it parked in the Market Square.

SNOWBLOWER HITS TRUCK

They put good glass in windshields today. Driving his milk truck on Highway 33 near Millhaven last week, Tom Nagel met a snowblower wrestling with the problem of snow removal after the weekend storm.

Blinded by the snow, the operator did not see where he was directing it, and the full force hit the windshield of the truck. It was driven out of its fastening and back into the truck, still in one piece.

15-year-old Girl Is Still Missing

NAPANEE — No word had been received late Monday afternoon regarding the disappearance of Betty Anne Louise King, aged 15, missing from her home since Saturday afternoon. Betty has blonde hair, blue eyes, and is five feet five inches tall. When she left home she was wearing school clothes, a long green coat over a black skirt and a red sweater. Betty lives with her grandmother, Mrs. Bessie King of 47 Water Street.

Mrs. King says that her granddaughter left the house shortly after two o'clock Saturday afternoon to take some laundry to the laundromat. She was seen in the Superior Restaurant about three, where she was getting change to use to do the laundry. She was alone at the time. When she did not return by evening her grandmother called the police.

Constable Tom McCrea said that the town police had nothing to report. They have followed several leads but all have been false trails. "We have just one thing to go on", he remarked. "About all we can do is to keep publicizing her description. "We keep hoping someone has seen her."

CPR Will Be Put On Griddle

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Executives of the CPR will be grilled shortly by a Commons committee about the controversial cancellation of The Dominion and plans to drop other passenger trains.

The usual parliamentary inquiry into affairs of the privately-owned railway colossus was approved in less than a minute Tuesday night on a motion by Transport Minister Pickersgill.

The 25-member committee is expected to hold its first meeting shortly to elect a chairman and make arrangements for public hearings.

The CPR, which has been under fire from many opposition MPs and some Liberals including Agriculture Minister Greene, is expected to get more lumps today as the Commons opens a debate on transportation problems.

New Democratic Leader Douglas asked for an assurance Tuesday night that the committee inquiry into CPR passenger services will not prevent discussion of this issue in the Commons itself today. Mr. Pickersgill gave that assurance.

Other issues expected to be raised include the shortage of grain boxcars on the Prairies, which affects farmers' incomes, branch line abandonments, a CNR wage dispute, water pollution and low water levels in the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence system.

The board of transport commissioners has authorized the cancellation of The Dominion through next summer and the Alberta government and rail unions have appealed to the cabinet.

Mr. Pickersgill said last week the cabinet would await the committee's report before deciding on the appeals. The committee is composed of 14 Liberals, eight Conservatives, two New Democrats and one Social Credit MP.

Tobago Ready to Greet Queen

SCARBOROUGH, Tobago (Reuters)—This tourist island paradise of the west Indies, famous for its lovely beaches and the Robinson Crusoe legend, eagerly prepared today to welcome the Queen and Prince Philip.

They are scheduled to land here at 8:45 a.m. EST Thursday after an overnight voyage in the royal yacht Britannia from Port of Spain, Trinidad, with which Tobago is linked as an independent Commonwealth couknıtry.

After a drive through the island, the Queen and Prince Philip will meet a wide cross-section of the 33,300 people of Tobago at a garden party. This will be followed by a dinner at the governor-general's house.

One of the major tourist attractions, the gaudy birds of paradise still living in a wild state on the tiny adjacent island of Little Tobago, is not on the royal program.

Queen at End of Tether May Abdicate - - Paris-Jour

PARIS (Reuters) — The newspaper Paris-Jour suggests that Queen Elizabeth, 40 in April, may soon give up the British throne because of the heavy strain of being both a mother and a sovereign.

The tabloid daily headlined two pages of articles about the Queen: "Elizabeth's Choice: Self-Sacrifice or Abdication".

The paper says: "Yes, Elizabeth is 'at the end of her tether. The Crown of England is decidedly too heavy for her to carry for a wife, a mother of four children, who works more than 12 hours a day and for 14 years has not had a single moment of complete relaxation."

The Queen leads four different lives: Those of head of state, a great star, a wife and mother of a family.

The paper says: "Regularly, her doctors have to intervene to make her rest a little. For several years, she has suffered from inexplicable illnesses."

The Queen may abdicate within a year or two and retire to Sandringham, says Paris-Jour.

This was perhaps why Prince Charles, heir to the throne, had gone for a toughening up course at a school in Australia — to be prepared soon to succeed his mother.

India Discounts Theory Ho's Letter Peace Bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson returned from Honolulu conference today confident "we shall prevail" in South Viet Nam. He said he will meet again with South Vietnamese leaders "within the next few months."

In a statement during a Los Angeles stopover Tuesday night, the president said he felt "refresh ed and confident" from his talks with top South Vietnamese officials that they know that social and political progress "cannot wait until the guns grow silent and terrorism stops."

During his Los Angeles stop, Johnson conferred with Vice-President Hubert Humphrey, then wished him godspeed on a mission to Saigon to spur political, economic and social programs outlined at Honolulu. The vice president also plans to visit some additional Asian capitals.

Earlier Tuesday, Johnson and the South Vietnamese chiefs ended three days of what they called "the most intense and friendly discussion." In a "declaration of Honolulu," they vowed to fight aggression, meet the hopes of the people of South Viet Nam and press the search for lasting peace.

Although the communique emphasized the non - military programs for economic and social improvement, South Viet Nam's leaders made it plain in a press conference that they favor stepped - up air operations against the chief North Vietnamese port of Haiphong and other industrial targets.

Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu said he would be unwilling to sit down at a conference table with representatives of the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong guerrillas, U.S. officials have said NLF representation would not be a roadblock to the start of negotiations.

COMMUNIQUE TERSE

The 10-point communique said in the only paragraph devoted to military matters that "there was a full discussion of the military situation and of military plans and programs" and added without elaboration:

"The leaders of the two governments reached full agreement on a policy of growing military effectiveness and of still closer co - operation between the military forces of Viet Nam and those of the United States."

The other nine points as well as the bulk of declarations by the U.S. and South Vietnamese governments were devoted to what was summed up in "the common commitment" as a renewed pledge "to the work of social revolution . . . the goal of free self-government . . . the attack on hunger, ignorance and disease, and . . . the unending quest for peace."

The South Vietnamese leaders, in a statement, pledged dedication "to the eradication of social injustice among our people."

Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, at the earlier press conference, referred to 1967 as "the year we will have free elections" and also when "we will eliminate the influence of the Communists in South Viet Nam."

Honolulu Meet Marked By Element of Mystery

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's meeting in Honolulu with leaders of South Viet Nam was one of the more puzzling international conferences of recent years.

Despite a torrent of public and private pronouncements by its participants, the meeting retained an element of mystery.

The parley was born under puzzling circumstances. Johnson announced plans for it last Friday and left for Hawaii Saturday. The conference site bore the earmarks of hasty preparation, at least so far as physical arrangements were concerned.

Only hours before the president's arrival, walls were torn open in his Waikiki Hotel suite—so air conditioning could be installed.

Johnson flew to Hawaii as the Senate foreign relations committee, dominated by critics of his Southeast Asia policy, was holding televised hearings on the Viet Nam situation.

Some of the possible witnesses on the administration side went with him.

The White House insisted there was no connection between the conference and the hearings. Before leaving Washington, Johnson said the focus of the conference would be on planned efforts of the Saigon government to promote social and political reforms, with U.S. aid.

Yet the conference ended with public attention fixed on other matters: Possible intensification of the war and potential roadblocks to any moves toward a peaceful settlement.

When Saigon officials arrived in Hawaii Sunday, the president welcomed them with remarks aimed at home-front critics. He said Americans must stand and fight in South Viet Nam or face inevitable bloodshed elsewhere at unknown cost.

South Viet Nam's chief of state, Nguyen Van Thieu, learned about Johnson's planned statement while en route to Honolulu. He scrapped his own remarks and prepared a new arrival speech in which he applauded—almost as if it were totally unexpected — Johnson's pledge of steadfastness.

At the outset, therefore, the emphasis shifted to some extent from reform plans to military firmness.

Liberal Leader Says Govt. Is 'Arrogant, Complacent'

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson temporarily drew attention away from the medical care debate in the legislature Tuesday when he charged the government with trying to muzzle the Opposition.

In other business the House:

—Heard more arguments for and against the government's medical care legislation;

—Learned of a new approach to reach persons interested in Ontario;

—Was told by Premier Robarts that the royal commission report on redistribution should be ready for tabling next week.

Mr. Thompson termed the government "arrogant and complacent with a swollen majority" and said it was stamping on the opposition. He led off debate on his own resolution calling for a committee to study rules and procedures in the House.

He said the government didn't answer opposition questions, failed to call opposition bills for debate and generally broke rules of the House.

He said the government should be forced to debate legislation introduced by the opposition, just as the opposition debates government bills. The government doesn't necessarily have to call opposition bills for second and third reading.

Elmer Sopha (L — Sudbury) embarked on a broad criticism of proposed amendments to the Medical Care Insurance Act and said his party wouldn't be satisfied until there was complete medical care insurance for everybody.

He said Health Minister Matthew Dymond "doesn't believe that doctors should take part in government medical care" and said a doctor should not be health minister.

Both he and Stephen Lewis (NDP — Scarborough) objected that cabinet ministers, especially Dr. Dymond and Mr. Robarts had not yet participated in the medical care debate.

Stanley Randall, economics and development minister, told the legislature that the province has spent more than $90,000 on a publication designed to provide the "direct approach needed to reach persons interested in Ontario."

He said the book Ontario '66 is being distributed to selected groups and people in various parts of the world.

Premier Robarts said he has received part of the report of the royal commission on redistribution of Ontario's electoral boundaries and added that the entire report should be available for tabling in the House "sometime next week."

300 Teachers Resign Posts

HULL, Que. (CP) — More than 300 Roman Catholic high school teachers resigned their jobs today rather than submit to arbitration in a contract dispute with the Hull regional school board.

Rene Laurin, regional director of the teachers' federation, made the announcement at a press conference following an all - night meeting of the 354 teachers who have been on strike for higher wages and improved working conditions since Jan. 5.

Today's Chuckle

From Reuters-AP

NEW DELHI (CP) — Indian official circles today discounted reports of a peace overture from North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh, describing his letter as "routine" and raising no new peace hopes.

A spokesman announced that India replied to Ho's message, one of a series sent to heads of state Jan. 24, by saying it earnestly hoped a basis would be found to bring about a peaceful settlement in Viet Nam.

Indian official circles said the only way in which Ho's letter differed from those sent to other heads of state was in its emphasis on India's role as chairman of the International Control Commission on Viet Nam, set up under the 1954 Geneva agreement. Canada and Poland are the other members of the commission.

Besides explaining North Viet Nam's position on the present conflict in Viet Nam, the message especially expressed hope that India, as chairman of the ICC, would fulfil its obligations under the Geneva agreement.

President Sarvapalli Radhakrishnan assured Ho that India would meticulously do so, the spokesman said.

However, the possibility of a peace feeler from Hanoi shook the New York Stock Exchange. Defence issues were hardest hit in the heaviest trading in months.

Senator J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, said the letter "could be of great significance; if we respond in the right way, it could be helpful." Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield expressed the hope that Ho "intended to open the door to bona fide negotiations."

PEARSON ACTIVE

In Ottawa, Prime Minister Pearson, who also received a letter from Ho, told the House of Commons Tuesday that Canada has been conferring with India and Poland on possible use of the ICC as a possible vehicle for negotiations.

The ICC was created by the 1954 Geneva conference which ended French rule in Indochina and created the separate states of North and South Viet Nam. Informants in Ottawa said the Canadian diplomatic effort was aimed chiefly at reconvening the conference, since it probably offers the only framework for negotiations among all the principals involved.

The Soviet Union repeated its opposition to any peace moves through the United Nations. A commentary in the Communist party newspaper Pravda accused the United States of seeking to kill the Geneva agreements by forcing the Security Council to put Viet Nam on its agenda.

Over Russian objections, the council approved the U.S. request last Wednesday but the debate has been put off indefinitely while private diplomatic consultations continue at UN headquarters in New York.

The current president of the Security Council, Akira Matsui of Japan, met Tuesday with the 10 non-permanent members but they were reported divided on the Viet Nam issue. Matsui will open talks with the five permanent members —including the United States and the Soviet Union—next week if he finds any basis for agreement, but the chances seemed poor.

Ontario Budget to Be Whopper

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's budget will be brought down in the legislature today—and it will be a whopper.

Expenditures for 1966-67 are expected to surpass $1,500,000,000. Yet just three years ago the budget was less than $1,000,000,000.

For the people of Ontario, who number almost 7,000,000, it means increased taxation, most probably in the form of an increase in the three - per - cent sales tax to five per cent.

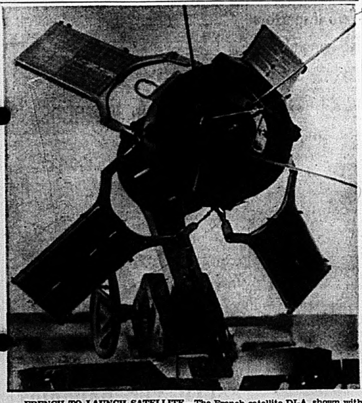
Education will account for about half the province's total expenditures, or more than $800,000,000 — more than the whole budget for the province just 10 years ago.

The government has been known to be considering the idea of designating the sales tax as an education tax, in the same manner as Ontario's amusement tax is called a hospital tax.

Provincial Treasurer James Allan will rise in the legislature shortly after 2 p.m. to deliver the budget address. Reporters given the text of his address beforehand to allow them to prepare advance stories will be locked up under a provincial police guard until 2 p.m.

The increased tax revenues alone will not be enough to make up the increased provincial expenditures.

Corporation tax, sales tax and provincial income tax revenues all are expected to be up over the forecast amounts. And for 1966-67 Ontario's share of the federal income tax collected in this province is to rise, by agreement, to 24 per cent from 21.



FRENCH TO LAUNCH SATELLITE—The French satellite DI-A, shown with its solar batteries unfolded, will be launched this week at the Hammaguir base deep in the Sahara desert in Africa. This third French satellite weighs 42 pounds and will be boosted into orbit by a Diamant rocket. Since the French will give back to Algeria the base at Hammaguir, there will be no more launchings until a new base in the French West Indies is ready two years hence.

Alleged Quantity of Items Taken From Grounded Ship

KINGSTON (CP) — Provincial police continued an investigation today aimed at recovering a quantity of items allegedly removed from the Greek Protostatis while it was aground recently on Wolfe Island.

Det.-Sgt. Lloyd Lyle of Belleville, who heads the recovery operation, today denied earlier reports that more than $15,000 worth of gear was recovered from residents of the island.

"However," Det. - Sgt. Lyle said, "it is true that police are seeking such items as ropes, lanterns, chairs, tarpaulins and radio equipment."

Det. - Sgt. Lyle also denied published reports saying police had asked residents to place items in a conspicuous place for police recovery and that the federal government will be asked for prosecution instructions if anyone is found who knowingly holds the ship property.

The Protostatis ran aground on the nearby island Nov. 16. It was freed last week and towed to Toronto where it will be scraped or repaired by its owners, Ship Repairs and Supplies Ltd.

The company said it acquired rights to the ship after it was abandoned by former owner Marcos Leamos, a native of Greece now living in London.

Rev. J. P. Ryan of the Roman Catholic Sacred Heart Church on Wolfe Island appealed from the pulpit Sunday for islanders to co-operate with

Canada May Be Forced to Import Butter

EDMONTON (CP) — Canada may have to import butter this year, D. B. Goodwillie, director of the federal dairy products division, said Tuesday.

He told the Alberta dairy convention that this country has large enough stocks to meet consumption until the summer period of high production.

But if the present trend in consumption and production continues, it may be necessary to import supplies this fall, he said.

Mr. Goodwillie said butter stocks by April probably will be about 20,000,000 pounds, the lowest since 1953, but sufficient to control the market until at least next fall.

He said Canada's 1966 butter production will be about 336,000,000 pounds, while consumption is estimated at about 356,000,000 pounds.

Mr. Goodwillie said that for many years western provinces have shipped several million pounds of butter to Ontario and Quebec annually.

However, the situation now is reversed and during 1965 nearly 14,000,000 pounds were moved from Ontario and Quebec to the West. Most of this was from Quebec.

South African Worker Not Well Paid

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) The South African worker is worse off than the American and British worker and he pays relatively more in terms of labor for most of the necessities of life, says an analysis by the South African Boiler - Makers' Society.

The general secretary of the society reported:

"Never let anybody tell you that South Africans enjoy a higher standard of living than Britons, because we have higher wages and lower costs.

"With few exceptions most items in South Africa are, in terms of the work required to buy them, more expensive than overseas.

"The British worker pays more income tax and national insurance. But this is more than offset by the higher rents paid in South Africa. If tax and rent are lumped together, the South African works an average of 57½ hours a month to pay for both, the Briton 52½ hours.

Detroit Will Be Huge City

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The Windsor-Detroit area has the greatest potential in the world for the social and economic growth that likely will, by the turn of the century, make it the core of one of the earth's greatest "cities."

The two cities would be the hub of a massive megalopolis—a gigantic urban area—extending through half of Ontario, to Chicago in the west and south to Pittsburgh, said an internationally recognized industrialist here Monday night.

Addressing the annual dinner of the Greater Windsor Foundation, Walker L. Cisler, chairman of the board and chief executive of the Detroit Edison Co., said this massive city, covering some 20,000 square miles would be included at its core three Ontario counties—Essex, Kent and Lambton.

He predicted that the southern Great Lakes region would, between the years 1970 and 2000, catch up with and surpass in size and industrial importance the "megalopolis of the Atlantic east coast which now reaches north of Boston all the way to Norfolk, Va."

"It is urgent that Windsor and Detroit stand close together in planning and development. We now have approved trade agreements which means that the productivity of one area is, to a large extent, interchangeable with the productivity of the other," Mr. Cisler said.

"Without surrendering any of our rights and privileges, or our individual sovreignty, we can and should work together even more closely than we have in the past.

"Here in the Great Lakes region we have an unparalleled opportunity to prove that the cities of men can be made worthy of the spirit of mankind."

The giant city, he told the 600 diners, was already in process of formation. It had a "bright and encouraging future."

The report, drawn from a study undertaken by Detroit Edison in co-operation with Wayne State University and Doxiadis Associates of Athens, Greece, would be published this year and had taken five years to prepare.

Mr. Cisler said beside the three Ontario counties the new city would embrace 35 counties in Michigan and nine in Ohio.

Rotarians Hear Address on Heart Week

TRENTON — Guest speaker at Monday night's meeting of the Trenton Rotary Club was Dr. R. B. Lynn, a heart specialist from Kingston.

Dr. Lynn strongly advised his listeners not to smoke cigarettes. He said that one pack of cigarettes a day put one pound of tar into the system and that even if one stopped smoking it took from six to seven years to get the accumulated tar out of the system. Nicotine constricted the heart valves, the specialist said.

Dr. Lynn advised the Rotarians and their guests to try to keep the weight they had at 18 or 19; to eat a proper diet and get plenty of rest and to exercise every day, (walking is good, he said). Strenuous exercise was advised for once a week.

Dr. Lynn told the audience of "homo - graphs," which means heart valves are taken from those who died from causes other than heart trouble and stored in a "bank" to be inserted in the body of a person suffering from heart disease.

A "pace - maker", designed to stimulate heart action was displayed to the group.

At the end of his address, Dr. Lynn showed a colored film of open heart surgery on a child of six and another operation on a child . . . this time to repair heart damage.

Dr. Lynn was speaking in conection with next week's area drive to raise money for heart research. The Trenton and area chapter of the Ontario Heart Foundation hopes to raise $2,500 this year. More than 300 canvassers will be out in Trenton, Brighton, Batawa, Smithfield, Stockdale, Wooler, Frankford, Middleton Park, Stirling and Bayside next week. General convener of canvassers is Mrs. James MacDonald.

City's Capital Works Program Could Double Debt Payments

Deseronto Man Killed At Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — George Culbertson, 48, of Deseronto, 19 miles east of Belleville, died in hospital Tuesday shortly after he was pinned between a crane and a truck.

Police said Mr. Culbertson, the crane operator, apparently forgot to put on the hand brake when he stepped from the cab. The crane rolled ahead and pinned him against a truck.

Deceased was a son of Mr. and Mrs. George Culbertson, Sr., R.R. 1, Deseronto. He is survived by his wife, the former Hazel Green, and by a son, Russell of Toronto, and three daughters, Marlene, Mrs. Jean Hill, of Deseronto and Mrs. Ellen Cradger and Miss Ann Culbertson, both of Toronto. Two brothers John and Gilbert predeceased him, while two sisters, Mrs. Howard Sager, Laverna, of Cleveland, and Mrs. Garnet Hill, Audrey, of Toronto, survive.

The funeral service will be held on Friday afternoon at 2 p.m. at Christ Church Anglican Church, Deseronto.

Two Safety Features Added To GM Models

OSHAWA (CP)—General Motors of Canada Ltd. announced today it will install collapsible steering columns and dual brake systems as standard safety equipment on its 1967-model passenger cars.

The announcement made no mention of possible price changes because of the extra safety features.

GM said the steering column is designed to give way slowly if a driver is forced into it by a head-on collision. This would help reduce the chance of chest injuries, the company said.

The new brake design incorporates two systems, so if one fails the other could still operate to stop the car.

Belleville tax payers are due for a sharp increase in annual capital works costs if the city's proposed program for the next five years is carried out.

Estimates are that if all proposed works go ahead last year's 3.90 mills for retirement of debenture debt will have increased to 8.69 by 1970. The debenture debt as of January 1st, 1966 (not including $3,041,706 worth of works approved but not debentured) was $9,036,197. By the end of 1970 it is estimated this will have increased to $17,800,637.

The estimated capital works costs for 1966 are given as $2,473,950 and for 1966 $1,973,500.

City council at a special meeting yesterday afternoon went over the proposed capital works program for the next five years and after considerable discussion on certain items informally approved of works expenditures for the next two years.

City manager J. R. Reynolds told council that in his opinion the capital works quotas proposed for each year would be acceptable to the Ontario Municipal Board and while council might wish to amend or delete certain projects, he suggested the quotas not be increased.

WITHIN CITY'S ABILITY

Mr. Reynolds said the proposed program was desirable if the city is to grow and develop. The program was within the ability of the city to undertake, he said.

The capital works program for 1966 and 1967 is expected to be up for formal approval at next week's meeting of council.

In the cards for capital works construction this year are an estimated $325,000 worth of roadway, $302,000 for bridges, $337,000 in local improvements, and $210,000 for a new public school.

In addition the schedule calls for contruction of $325,000 worth of storm sewers, just over a half million dollars for construction of watermain extensions and $50,000 for land purchases for the parking authority.

Also to be debentured this year is an amount of $367,250, the city's share of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission loan of $565,000 toward hospital construction.

TWO ROAD PROJECTS

The two main road construction projects earmarked for this year are Phase II of North Front Street reconstruction, estimated to cost the city $92,000 and the rebuilding of Sidney street from Dundas to Wilson Ave. ,including sewers, estimated at 148,000.

The Sidney street reconstruction would entail opening this artery through the Belleville Fair Grounds.

Also included in this year's total is an amount of $65,000 for the extension of Parker Street through Albert College property to Sidney Street, although City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said there was no thought of construction actually going ahead.

The engineer said the amount was being put in merely to allow negotiations to get underway for land acquisition.

Council was told that Albert College officials were asking that the local planning board take another look at the proposal as extension of Parker Street would cut college property in two.

TO BUILD BRIDGE

An amount of $240,000 is being included this year for construction of a new College Street bridge and another $62,000 to get phase 1 of the proposed Dundas street project underway.

Phase 1 of the Dundas Street project would be to provide an overpass over the CPR railway just west of the Devil's Elbow and to provide approaches from Dundas Street and No. 14 Highway (Bay Bridge Road.)

Aldermen Dr. J. Russell Scott and Arthur Keegan felt that the Dundas Street bridge construction over the Moira River should come ahead of the railway overpass.

City Engineer Purcell explained, however, that this was not feasible in that full use of the bridge would not be possible until the railway overpass was completed.

Final paving of Pinnacle Street after last year's reconstruction is to be done in the spring but the cost of this will be part of last year's works expenditure.

DUNDAS BRIDGE PLANNED

Phase II and Phase III of the Dundas Street project, which includes construction of the Dundas Street bridge, is scheduled for 1967.

Also scheduled for next year is another $100,000 worth of storm sewers for the Alexander-Pine street area, $250,000 for public schools, and an expenditure of $1,100,000 by Belleville Public Utilities Commission for a new water filtration plant extension and for added electrical facilities.

Likewise in the Centennial Year the Corby Public Library is asking for $50,000 for the construction of a new library branch in West Belleville.

Canned Salmon Favorite of Shoplifters

LONDON (CP) — British Columbia salmon has received an unsolicited testimonial from Britain's shoplifters.

Store Detectives Ltd., a private security agency that operates throughout Britain, reports that canned salmon was the article most often picked up by shoplifters in grocery stores during 1965.

"One dear old lady steals a can of salmon regularly every week," said K. C. Bath, national manager of the agency. "Regularly every week the price of the salmon is surreptitiously added to her bill to cover it, so both sides are happy."

A small, 7½-ounce can of salmon costs about 75 cents in Britain, although price varies according to quality. Russian and Scandinvavian salmon competes against the B.C. product.

The detective agency apprehended 1,309 persons for shoplifting last year, with the average theft worth about 15 shillings ($2.25). Almost invariably the thief was carrying enough money to have paid for the items taken.

Agency statistics show that shoplifting is more prevalent in Birmingham and Liverpool than in London—or perhaps only that detectives in the midlands and north are more efficient, or shoplifters there more hamhanded.

A store detective in the Birmingham area catches a thief on the average every three hours, one in Liverpool every 12 hours and in London once every 45 hours.

Kiwanis Club Hears Talk By Governor

The Belleville Kiwanis Club was told yesterday that the meaning of Kiwanis lies in practical terms, rather than in the pat description of a theoretical club philosophy.

Speaking to the weekly dinner-meeting of the club, Lawrence Kells, Lieut.-Governor of Division 6A of Kiwanis International, told those in attendance that the meaning of Kiwanis was "quality service to a community so that each year that community is a little better than it would have been, had that club not been in operation."

He said that such achievements and projects as the Sheltered Workshop exemplify the true purpose of the organization.

"Kiwanians are men of good will and good intent who know that they can serve their community by grouping together. Kiwanis goes out and gets its members, men it thinks have the potential to serve."

Mr. Kells noted that in 1924, 16 clubs were registered at the Kiwanis International Convention, a figure which had grown to more than 5,300 by 1965. As of last year, Kiwanis International had a membership of better than a quarter of a million.

He outlined the organizational set-up of Kiwanis, with its districts and smaller divisions, but emphasized that "the club is the very base of Kiwanis International...the place where the work is done."

Mr. Kells, who was introduced by Club President F. H. Bellstedt, was thanked on behalf of the members by G. A. Wishart.

The annual report of the Sheltered Workshop was given by D. D. Hickson, who announced that last year an amount in excess of $10,000 was distributed to handicapped workers employed in the program. Mr. Dickson revealed that after being involved in the Workshop, "two of the employees have been rehabilitated to industry and are successfully competing with people who have no handicap."

Mayor Addresses Realtors

Belief Industrial Commission Averse to Inviting Big Firms To City "Absolute Fallacy"

Mayor Jack Ellis said today that anyone who felt that the local Industrial Commission has an "aversion" to inviting large firms to the Belleville area is harboring "an absolute fallacy."

Speaking to the annual breakfast meeting of the Belleville and District Real Estate Board at a restaurant in the Plaza, Mayor Ellis outlined the structure of the Commission, formed in 1964, as well as its approach to the problem of getting new industry into Belleville. He said that a major difficulty in the operation of the Commission was that it is "not able to reveal to the public all the facts we know," for fear that prospective new industries for this city would be inundated by requests from other communities also seeking new corporations. He said this was the principal reason for making the Commission a separate corporation, and "removed from the realm of municipal politics".

Mayor Ellis said that although the Commission's activities often must be carried out behind closed doors, this should not be misconstrued to mean that it is not getting anything accomplished. He said the Commission at present had about 50 "leads" for prespective new businesses for the city.

The Commission, which includes in its membership men from a cross-section of activities in the city, has set an annual goal for itself of 50,000 square feet of new or expanded industry. This would mean about 100 new jobs for Belleville every year. If this were achieved, Mayor Ellis felt that the city's population would pass the 50,000 mark by 1972.

The mayor noted that the Commission had found that the direct approach was the best, rather than letter-writing or lobbying prospective groups.

Mayor Ellis asked the realtors if they would forward to the City Council an official letter asking that a minimum bas commission of $250 and acr be given a real estate firm handling the sale of city-owned land. He felt this was in keeping with a practice carried ou in other communities. It is intended to increase a city's industrial prospects.

"Each realtor would, in es sense become a miniature In dustrial Commissioner for Belleville."

The mayor was introduced by Mr. Herb Gawn, and thank ed on the Board's behalf by Mr. Bev. Foster.

Police Seeking Four Armed With Knives

KINGSTON (CP) — Roadblocks have been set up by provincial police along the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway for four men, believed armed with knives, who escaped today from nearby Collins Bay penitentiary.

Police said three of the men are travelling in a taxi stolen from Douglas Billard, 28, of Kingston. The other man is believed on foot near a shopping plaza.

Mr. Billard told police he was driving his car into the plaza when three men came running out of a store, pulled him from his taxi and said "we need this car."

Police identified the men as Thomas Brydes, 21, of Elmira, Ont., John Eaton, 25, of Toronto, Ross Dankwardt, 20, and Thomas Fuhrman, 18, both of Kitchener.

Kingston Man Faces Charge

MONTREAL (CP) — John Northrup, a Kingston auto parts dealer, was freed Tuesday of a charge of conspiring in a stolen car ring here.

Judge Gerard Laganiere decided after a preliminary hearing that the crown had produced inadequate proof.

However, Northrup was sent to trial on a charge of possession of stolen cars valued at $9,000. The amount was reduced to $9,000 from $500,000.

The hearing of Northrup's case included testimony from Benoit Brossard, 28, owner of a suburban scrapyard. Judge Laganiere ordered that the testimony not be made public.

Brossard and three others have been sent to trial on charges in connection with the suspected car-theft ring.

the police and return anything taken from the ship.

Police said investigations began in mid-January after a boy found a quantity of ship's emergency gear on the river ice and turned it over to them.

Edward Phipps-Walker, harbor master, said his department made daily inspections of the vessel except for a few days when ice conditions prevented it. When the inspectors returned, he said, they found the gang plank had been lowered.

Police said one truckload of materials had been recovered, and they are seeking more.

Freezing Rain Makes Driving Very Hazardous

Roadways and sidewalks in Belleville and district were turned briefly into skating rinks this morning as freezing rain put a coating of slippery ice over the district.

Office workers and other personnel on their way downtown were forced to creep their way along the sidewalks with some even taking to the roadway to beat the ice.

County roads were reported a mass of ice but apparently few motor accidents occurred as result of road conditions.

City police reported no accidents while provincial police reported two mishaps of a minor nature with no injuries resulting.

700 Hogs Ranging to Market Weight Perish in Latta Fire

Seven hundred hogs, ranging up to market weight of 200 pounds, were killed in a fire this morning which destroyed the barn and piggery of Henry Vos on the 7th concession of Thurlow township west of Latta.

Cause of the blaze which apparently started in one corner of the barn was not determined.

Mrs. Vos said that her husband and his two helpers had been working in the barn and were on their way to the house for a cup of coffee when they turned around to see the corner of the barn ablaze.

There was no chance to save any of the 700 pigs housed in the barn or two adjoining piggery structures.

Belleville firemen answered the alarm but were held up by ice covered country roads and had no chance to save the barn.

The Vos family had been operating the piggery for the past eight years. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

1964 Car Plates Raise Eyebrows

Pedestrians at the Four Corners did a double-take shortly before noon today. Apparently abandoned on Bridge Street, a few feet from the crosswalk, was a car with 1964 Ontario licence plates.

The explanation is simple. Police had stopped the car, found it unsafe and had removed the 1965 licence plates. Underneath were the 1964 plates, which drew several startled looks before a truck arrived to tow the car away.

'Town Meeting on Rails' Splendid Railway Gesture

Civic, commercial and industrial leaders from Belleville and Trenton were guests of Canadian National Railways at Belleville yesterday as they attended a reception at the CN station.

The guests met with Rideau Area officials, viewed a motion picture showing the major accomplishments of CN during the past year and enjoyed a buffet luncheon.

The "Town Meeting on Rails" was a public relations gesture on the part of the railway to let local civic leaders and industrialists know what CN has to offer in the transportation field and at the same time provide an opportunity of registering complaints or possibly offer any suggestions on how service might be improved.

GUESTS WELCOMED

The guests were welcomed by Rideau Area manager, Harry J. Fast, who introduced Harold Wooten, freight sales manager and Kenneth Fleming, in charge of passenger sales in the Rideau Area.

"Town Meeting on Rails" is an event exclusive to the Rideau Area. This year's tour started Monday at Peterborough with one day stops scheduled at Belleville, Kingston, Brockville and Cornwall before moving on to Ottawa next week.

The color film "Year in Review" shows how CN is refurbishing its passenger train rolling stock and its chains of hotels to provide a better service for the Canadian travelling public, and also illustrates what is being done to improve freight service and the extension of CN lines to assist in the development of Canada's northland.

Kremlin Strategy

It would be naive to suppose that the Soviet Union is not taking advantage of the situation in Rhodesia. The Soviets have suffered a number of ideological reverses in Africa in recent years — for example, in Guinea where a Soviet trade and diplomatic mission was kicked out by a disenchanted African government — but they are insufficient to deter Kremlin strategists.

The ideological war between east and west is like the proverbial iceberg. On the surface it erupts in such conflicts as the one in Viet Nam, and Korea before that. The greater part of it, however, is an ideological battle, and like the iceberg mainly out of sight, beneath the surface.

Thus it comes as no surprise to learn in a report from Salisbury that 24 Africans are on trial on charges of having undergone training in the Soviet Union, China and North Korea as saboteurs in the service of Rhodesia's banned African nationalist parties.

The prosecution says the accused were among 52 black Rhodesians trained in one or another of six courses in guerrilla warfare, the use of explosives and arms, political science, map-reading and radio communication.

Two of the accused claimed in statements read to the court that they were deceived by officials of the banned Zimbabwe African People's Union into thinking they were being sent abroad on educational scholarships.

The Soviet Union, by the simple expedient of backing, in this case, countries like Britain and Canada who are attempting by sanctions to bring the white minority government of Ian Smith to its knees, places itself, for appearances sake at least, on the side of law and order.

In reality, of course, their motives stem from more sinister designs. They want nothing less than revolution throughout Africa, the uprooting of established authority, however shaky or undemocratic — like the government of Rhodesia — and its replacement by governments whose leaders more than likely have had training in Moscow, Peking or some other communist capital.

This was Kremlin strategy at the end of the last war, in 1945. It is Soviet strategy today. It has been pursued relentlessly, in fact, since the revolution of 1917. In the West, we cannot afford to lose sight of Soviet determination to spread communist doctrine throughout the world.

Moon Capers

It seems that nothing is sacred any more. Even the camera can lie — or so the Russians would have us believe.

A top Soviet space official claims the moon pictures as reproduced by Britain's Jodrell Bank radiotelespcope were distorted. Academician Anatoly Blagonravov said the horizontal scale on the British photographs was shrunk by 2½ times.

Blagonravov blamed the observatory for "certain motives of a sensational nature" in releasing the Luna 9 pictures before the Russians made them public.

Certainly the British did indulge in some wild flights of fancy — as when the Soviet space vehicle's batteries suddenly revived and began sending more pictures when transmissions had been reported over. This brought from the Jodrell Bank authorities a suggestion that Luna 9 was moving and might be preparing to return to earth. Even to the layman, this seemed too absurd to be true. Coming from the usually imperturbable British scientists it was all the more so, particularly when it was quickly discovered they were talking through their hats.

Even observatory director Sir Bernard Lovell's description of the moon shots as "sensational" was a letdown considering what finally appeared in the newspapers. If anything they were less interesting than those taken from a distance of two or three thousand miles by American cameras some months ago.

When either the Russians or Americans finally land a man on the moon the public will be hard put to it to stifle a yawn. Such is the degree of boredom that has been induced by the admittedly sensational, but now commonplace, space feats of both nations.

What Price Immigrants!

With Ottawa's announcement that university operating grants will be upped from $40 million to $100 million — and with the certainty that the taxpayers will have to ante up hundreds of millions more for university expansion and operation through their provincial and federal governments — the public should be thankful for the money it has been saved by the arrival here in recent years of so many university-trained immigrants.

The immigration department recently announced that the cost to Canada of training the 1,924 engineers who arrived in the first 11 months of 1965 would have been $17,040,000. In the same vein, a study made for the Economic Council of Canada says that it would have cost Canada $532 million to provide equivalent education for the university graduates who arrived in the 1953-63 period. And of course that is only part of the story. We have also been saved the cost of training hundreds of thousands of nurses, technicians and skilled workers of all types.

And yet some Canadians will tell the opinion polsters that they are against immigration.

Believes Daughter Learned All Needed

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Recently I talked to my 12-year-old daughter about menstruation but I know from past experience that she heard only about half of what I said, understood about a fourth, and in all probability, will forget most of the rest. What do you suggest I do next? — Mrs. E. W.

If she heard half, I congratulate you upon having such an attentive 12-year-old.

For sex education in general, there are lots of arguments as to when it should begin and who should provide it, but I can't help thinking that home is usually the place, and it should progress at the rate at which children show any interest in the subject.

Frank answers to questions, whether direct or implied, probably are the best means. If there are puppies or kittens or baby brothers or sisters (but not in that order of importance) being born, there is some curiosity, even in the very young, and by age 5 to 7 children should absorb the fact that babies form in the mother's tummy. Fantasy about the stork doesn't make any sense to practical children.

As for menstruation, you have a slightly different problem, but some underlying information, included earlier in life, helps.

You must, of course, prepare a girl of that age for the chance that menstruation will start rather soon, and nobody can tell whether it will be at home or in school, or at play.

Your daughter may have not heard half, not understood half of that, and forgotten most of the rest — but the chances are that she will remember, perhaps mostly subconsciously, more than you think. She doesn't need a full biological explanation now. She does need to know that when her first menstrual period starts, it is perfectly normal. If it starts in school, she should not be embarrassed but should ask assistance from a teacher, and the teacher will understand.

After the first period, it is time enough to add other information — and her questions or comments will cue you. She'll also learn that her contemporaries are experiencing the same perfectly normal phenomenon.

Let her know, from the beginning, that she can and should continue activity: Gym, sports, school, play. Physical activity does no harm; rather, it definitely helps prevent discomfort or cramps. A daily bath or shower is good. Don't let her be influenced by the old tale that showers or baths or washing the hair at that time are harmful. And don't use the term "sick time" or anything like that. She is not.

My guess, Mrs. E. W., is that you've done a better job already than you know, and that your daughter has heard and will remember more than either of you now realize, if you've just made clear that what is going to start happening is normal. That's 95 percent of the battle.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 18 and baby-sit for a couple. The man's wife is 30-some years old. She said she was "in love with me" and made advances that I don't think are quite proper but I don't really know what she means. — K. B.

Obviously the woman is abnormal, meaning that she is attracted to her own sex instead of the opposite. Without going into a long discussion about the problem, all I can tell you is to have nothing to do with her. Get a job with someone else.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a ganglion at the base of my finger. It is painful at night and in bad weather. Can anything be done to soften it and get relief from the pain? — B. B.

Are you sure it is a ganglion? If it is, and it bothers you that much, it can be removed surgically.

A ganglion is a cyst-like mass in the fibrous tissue of a joint. Usually some injury precedes its appearance.

Channel Link Decision Due

BBC London Letter

This year, 900 years after Great Britain was invaded by William the Conqueror in 1066, government officials in Britain and France must make a decision about the Channel Tunnel link, which has been a dream since 1802.

The technical green light, in the form of a survey report reached the two governments in December, 1965. Assured of the feasibility of construction, whether a bore or an immersion tube, the second phase of this 19th - century dream will loom in the New Year.

Private enterprise can build it. A public company exists which can finance it, but there are other alternatives. It can be built through a mixed economy, or it can become an Anglo-French government project.

Whatever happens, Britain, through her forward - thinking scientists and civil engineers, will have played a vital role in the exploratory work since 1964, when on - site work began on the geophysical survey.

Seventy bore-holes have been completed across the Channel, while there have also been 17 land bores, 10 on the English coast, and seven on the French side.

This survey, financed equally by the British Government, and the Societe Nationale des Chemins de Fer, on behalf of the French Government, indicates there are no major adverse geological conditions which might impede the construction of the tunnel.

Gift of Gab

Winnipeg Tribune

For a decade or so Canada has held the No. 1 position in the world's telephone ratings. We are the international champs of gab.

Not even the Americans who enjoy a fair reputation for lip can match our garrulity record. We averaged 622.8 calls per person in a year while the Americans registered a mere 591.

The rest of the world got by in a barbarous silence. It seems a quaint custom prevails in some lands where they only pick up the phone when they've got something of value to say.

Help for Needy Child

(Montreal Gazette)

The Canadian Save the Children Fund is currently holding its annual campaign to gain the resources to continue its help to destitute children in 21 countries around the world.

Canadians are well aware of the standards they demand for their own children. And those standards, of health, nutrition and education are deservedly high. The same is true throughout the Western world. Yet Canadians cannot help but know that these standards are not only unobtainable to the many millions of children in the underdeveloped world, but usually even cannot be dreamt of, are not even within reach of the imagination.

The Save the Children Fund tries to help children in less fortunate countries — as well as Indian and Eskimo children in Canada — so that they will have a fighting chance to grow to maturity and live a useful life.

This is a time of famine in several parts of the world, as anyone who reads the news papers must know. Suffering is undoubtedly being experienced by adults as well as children. Yet, in a time of famine, an adult is unlikely to be as defenceless as a child. It is because children are not normally in a position to help themselves that the Save the Children Fund concentrates upon their needs, for food, health, shelter and education.

It is possible to take part in the Fund's work not only by a general donation, but also by sponsoring a child in some needy area, such as Korea or Hong Kong. Down the ages the cry of a child in distress has stirred pity and led to a wish to help; the Canadian Save the Children Fund tries to answer that cry with the help it can give as a result if its annual campaign.

Universities Get With It

Memphs Commercial Appeal

The University of California at Berkeley has put into use its $682,000 physical sciences lecture hall. The building replaces out-moded facilities that had been employed for more than half a century. One interestng feature involves what is familiarly known as "education in the round."

In a sloping, theatre - type room there is a revolving stage. It has three complete laboratories and each of them is equipped to handle almost any experiment in chemistry or physics. As one group moves out and another moves in the stage is turned to the next project which is already set up.

It is easy to see that such a system can save time and also result in a minimum of errors of any sort in preparation. Then there are large television monitor screens that lower automatically from the ceiling and afford close-up viewing throughout the hall. The unit seems likely to be copied in greater or less detail in many other institutions in the land.

Such well-planned efficiency and such extensive use of automated devices are made necessary by great numbers of students, and there has been some complaint about lack of personal attention, etc. For lecturing to big classes, however, the virtues would appear to far outweigh any faults.

A Dictionary of Jargon

(Rochester Democrat and Chronicle

What does an official really mean when he says, "We need a consultant to implement this program," or "Let's expedite this?"

To clear up the mystery, a guide to the jargon of bureaucracy now is being quietly circulated in government and business offices.

According to the bureaucratic lexicographer, expedite really means "to confound confusion with commotion." A consultant is "any ordinary guy with a briefcase more than 50 miles from home."

Other definitions:

We are making a survey: We need more time to think of an answer.

Co-ordinator: The guy who has a desk between two expeditors.

Let's get together on this: I'm assuming you're as confused as I am.

Under consideration: Never heard of it.

Under active consideration: We're looking in the files for it.

Meeting: A mass mulling by masterminds.

Reliable source: The guy you just met.

Informed source: The guy who told the guy you just met.

Unimpeachable source: The guy who started the rumor originally.

Forwarded for your consideration: You hold the bag awhile.

Channels: the trail left by inter-office memos.

Program: Any assignment that can't be completed by one telephone call.

Give us the benefit of your thinking: We'll listen to what you have to say as long as it doesn't interfere with what we have already decided to do.

Note and initial: Let's spread the responsibility: So wrapped up in red tape that the situation is almost hopeless.

Approved, subject to comment. Redraw the damn thing.

Be Discreet On the Phone

Ottawa Journal

Most everyone's done it — put a hand over the mouth of the telephone receiver and said something the person on the other end of the line wasn't supposed to hear.

The disturbing question for today is, did he (or she) actually hear it? It's possible.

Spurred on by a man who said a telephone company employee had warned him against this practice, we carried out brief research on the subject. The results:

Three out of five insults (jokingly) spoken with telephone receiver covered in the usual way were distinctly heard by people on the other end of the line. When care was taken not just to cover but actually squeeze the mouthpiece with the hand, the voice did not carry clearly on the phone. But when the words were spoken near the ear-piece — as is sometimes done by people covering a mouthpiece— the words carried audibly over the line. The listening end of the instrument picked up the sound as well as the talking end.

There's an important lesson here, especially for people with small hands or large spaces between their fingers: be sure the mouthpiece is really sealed, speak softly and keep the ear-piece out of range.

The safest thing to do, of course, is refrain from saying things that might prove embarrassing if heard by the wrong person. But it's probably easier to change telephoning techniques than human nature.

Chess, Music and Prodigies

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

For the third consecutive year, Bobby Fisher has won the National Chess Championship of the U.S. although he is only 22, Bobby has been one of the world's leading players since the age of 14.

It is a singular fact that "prodigies" exist in only three fields: chess, music and mathematics — and all three have an affinity for one another, for they all have to do with subtle relationships in time and space.

There are no prodigies in painting or literature or sculpture or architecture or the physical sciences. These require much more than inborn talent to come to fruiton — years of study and experience and developing judgment.

But a Capablanca at the age of 8 already beat his father (a tournament player) in chess. A Mozart began composing at the age of six. And Pascal, when he was only 12, performed the incredible feat of "inventing" all—the theorems of Euclid, which he had never heard of before

The "sense of number" forms the basis of both music and chess, but in different ways which we do not as yet understand. Einstein, the greatest mathematician of our time, was only a mediocre musician, though he played the violin with passionate dedication.

And Gregor Piatagorsky, one of the finest cellists in memory remained merely a talented amateur in chess, though he was as devoted to the game as Einstein was to music. Apparently, the "sense of number" does not carry over anything like its full power from one field to another.

Even in the field of game theory, there seems to be little correlation between similar talents. Alekhine, for instance, was possibly the most brilliant chess master of the 20th Century. Yet everything he won at chess, he lost back again at bridge: he fancied himself as a tremendous bridge player, but any cardroom professional could beat him.

And, as is well known, there even seems to be no correlation between mathematical powers and the ability to add and subtract. Einstein was notoriously deficient in this area, and the subject of dozens of jokes about his inability to add up a restaurant bill correctly.

In the same way, a number of great writers have been deficient in the mere tools of their trade – in spelling and punctuation and even grammar. As some French critic once said, "Balzac is a terrible writer — all he has is genius!" Much the same has been said about Dickens.

We still know pathetically little about inborn talents and the learning process; about what makes geniuses and — more importantly — what may inhibit their development. It may turn out we are ignoring our human resources as wantonly as we are squandering our physical ones.

centrated on efforts to end the war in Viet Nam and Canada's economic sanctions against the white-supremacy Ian Smith regime in Rhodesia.

Conservative front - benchers continued to question the legality and the desirability of the Rhodesian trade embargoes. External Affairs Minister Martin defended them, saying he believes they will eventually succeed in toppling the Smith regime.

Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) asked "If sanctions fail (in Rhodesia) what course will the government follow?" Mr. Churchill had understood Mr. Martin to say the government would support the use of force if sanctions fail.

"I said we did not believe in the use of force," Mr. Martin replied. He had "never said that we were in favor of the use of force."

"We believe that economic sanctions will work and the British government believes they will work. . . . The course of prudence for us in Canada is to recognize the limitations in a situation like this of the use of force."

Mr. Martin said economic sanctions are much preferable to using force, although the British government had not ruled out the possiblity. But use of force would be looked at with the "greatest care" in view of the dangerous situation that could evolve.

Briefs From Britain

Homework Is Threatening Historic Derby Choir

Homework

APSLEY GUISE, England (CP)—An Edwardian romance may have been nipped in the bud because a postcard mailed in 1910 by a girl in this Bedfordshire town to her sweetheart in Clifton, 15 miles away, has only just arrived. He died 37 years ago. The post office says 56 years for delivery is a record for lost mail.

Study in Church

DERBY, England (CP)—The centuries-old choir at Derby Cathedral is threatened by school homework, since parents are reluctant to allow their boys to enrol. Cathedral authorities have offered to let the boys study in the choir stalls between hymns.

Abolish Fearful 13

WOLVERHAMPTON, England (CP)—The number 13 will vanish from street addresses in this Midlands industrial town because so many superstitious residents have complained to council.

Youth Steps Up

EXETER, England (CP)—Students at Exeter University nominated Wallace Poulter as a candidate for president of the students' union in succession to his father. Said one, "It's time a younger man had the job." Wallace is two years old.

Beatles Get Struck

LONDON (CP)—After medals of Kennedy and Churchill, now it's the Beatles. A London firm has struck 100,000 silver medallions of the heads of the mop-haired foursome, to sell at £3 ($9) each. The Beatles were each presented with a gold medal.

Machine Shells Out

BROMLEY, England (CP)—The town council's computer here had a brainstorm after a temporary drop in the power supply and sent one clerk a pay cheque for £450 ($1,350) for a week's work—£180 more than the prime minister gets.

Engineers to Rescue

STROUD GREEN, England (CP) — An Essex engineering firm has sent the Italian government a plan for saving the Leaning Tower of Pisa, now the object of a world-wide competition. The local firm proposes immobilizing the 167-foot tower as it now is, 17 feet out of the perpendicular.

Wants to Meet Ghost

SLEAFORD, England (CP) — Peter Clawson, a 25-year-old Lincolnshire accountant, is looking for somewhere to "observe ghosts first-hand." He is writing a book on hauntings and hopes "somebody who is hiding a ghost will come forward."

Predator Protected

BEDFORD, England (CP)—Residents of Ampthill Road are being buzzed by an owl whenever they walk along the tree lined avenue, but they can't do anything about it. Owls are protected by law under threat of a £5 ($15) fine.

Needs Gentleness

LONDON (CP)—Keepers at London Zoo's elephant house have been relieved of their worst winter chore, oiling the skins of their huge charges to prevent chilblains. Now the elephants have moved into an air-conditioned house and can bathe themselves in safety.

Needs No Spelling

CHIDDINGLY, England (CP) Andrew Cooke has graduated from Ringmer College here, passing examinations in four subjects without writing a word. Andrew suffers from a muscular disease and recorded his answers on tape at this school for the disabled.

House Unwanted

HESTON, England (CP)—Architects from all over the world praised a $60,000 model home built here in 1963 and honored as the house of the year. But it has taken since then to sell it, and the builders could not get more than $39,000 for it.

Cheer Up the Patients

The Missus Misses You, Cried Through Floor Show

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Remarks that hospital patients get tired of hearing:

"Now remember when we get into Joe's room, no matter how he looks, tell him he looks great."

"Hi, Joe, gee, you're looking great."

"Don't worry about your work. The guy who took it over is doing a great job—handles it between his regular duties and says it's no trouble at all."

"It's time to take your temperature again."

"Wake up. It is almost dawn."

"Well, well, well. And how do we feel this morning? Pretty good, eh? Well, well, well."

"Of course, a few pains are to be expected. After all, as the French say, we can't make an omelette without breaking a few eggs, can we?"

"Well, I guess I won't get to be one of your pallbears this week."

"Just sign here, honey. The lawyer said it was only a formality and a kind of precaution. But, according to him, it is only common sense that every man should make out a last will and testament."

"Joe, you have no idea how much your missus misses you. I saw her at a night club the other night, and she cried all through the floor show. The guy with her had to lend her his handkerchief."

"My cousin had exactly the same kind of operation. That was 12 years ago. He has never been the same since. But, of course, in your case—"

"Well, well, well. I hope we passed a pleasant night. Well, well, well."

"You mean you're paying 35 bucks a day to stay in this dump?"

"Hey, Joe, some dame in a white dress just drove up on a broomstick outside your door. Don't tell me she's your nurse. What does she do between Halloweens?"

"Yeah, before I got this job as intern I used to be a veterinarian in Yugoslavia. But when you come to a new country, you got to earn a living any way you can."

"Hey, Joe, the boss told me to ask you if the doc found anything to remove except swivel-chair splinters."

"Well, well, well. We certainly do feel much better this afternoon, don't we? Well, well, well."

NOTICE

RE: GARBAGE RECEPTACLES

By-Law No. 7921 specifies that polyethelene or paper bags manufactured for use as disposable garbage bags; metal or other suitable watertight containers not larger than 17 gallons in size and equipped with handles and properly fitted covers, shall be used when placing out garbage and rubbish for collection.

The word "suitable" is intended to mean the standard type of receptacle, and all householders are respectfully requested to obtain and use same.

Open hampers, wash tubs, ordinary paper bags, and small five gallon pails, are unsuitable and their use should be discontinued. The Municipal Contractor is not required to collect garbage placed out in this manner.

The various sizes of miscellaneous metal containers with straight sides now being used by some, are in most cases unsuitable. In the near future these containers will be tagged with the request that the standard type of receptacle be obtained and used. The Contractor will continue to collect garbage placed out in these containers, to give time for standard receptacles to be obtained.

BUSINESS IS EXPANDING — Inflation pays off for The Balloon King of Canada, who is actually a queen, Mrs. Constance M. Stewart. She says sales are soaring and the balloon boom is bound to stretch into the Centennial Year. This year she expects to sell at least 3,000,000 Canadian-made balloons. Mrs. Stewart inherited the Toronto business and its commercially-registered title from her husband.

69-year-old Widow Makes Money Out of Balloons

TORONTO (CP)—You might say inflation is her business.

Constance M. Stewart, a 69-year-old widow who was once a song and dance girl in the golden days of burlesque in Toronto theatres, operates a balloon distributing company and says it is thriving.

She expects to sell at least 3,000,000 Canadian - made balloons of all shapes, sizes and colors this year. And she predicts business will flourish through 1967, Canada's centennial year.

"You could say that sales are soaring and business is expanding," she remarked with a twinkle in her eye. "We expect to sell at least a third more balloons this year than we did last year and maybe double that in 1967."

Mrs. Stewart, who inherited the business from her husband when he died in 1965, operates under the trade name of The Balloon King of Canada.

She says she has no idea how balloons are manufactured except that they are made of latex in vats and moulds.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Go, go, go. Wonderful day when your baby takes up creeping. But once he starts this new adventure, there are pertinent things to do:

- Floors should be scanned for pins or any small objects baby might sight and swallow. Iron and toaster cords or drooping plants should not be left dangling.
- Stairs should be sealed off with a folding gate ... baby confined to an area within your eye's reach.
- Overalls are in order to protect tender knees; soft-soled shoes to guard tender toes. Both should have plenty of room so torso and toes can move freely.

Fruit-ful ideas for creepers, lapsitters, or toddlers. Gerber Strained and Junior Fruits are great favourites with babies of all ages. And for good reason. They're flash-cooked in a matter of seconds to preserve the true-to-nature colours and orchard-good flavours that make them so appetizing. Flash-cooking also helps preserve the nutritive values so important to your baby.

Two Gerber Fruit delectables. Bananas with Pineapple, Applesauce-and-Apricots. Both are brimming with the kind of sun-kissed flavour small "fruit fanciers" favour. Strained or junior.

Overall coverage. Corduroy overalls make good creeper outfits because the fabric is so wearable and washable. Upkeep notes: (1) After washing, if you brush corduroy while it's still slightly damp, nap will fluff up nicely. (2) If you buy overalls with patch pockets, you can use pockets as patches when knees wear through.

Talk about teething. Teething time can be troublesome for your wee one. Here's a relief measure that will stand him (or her) in good stead: Gerber Teething Biscuits. Extra-hard and waffle-surfaced, Gerber Teething Biscuits give baby the biting exercise he needs and wants. Their scalloped edges make them easy for little hands to hold. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Congregational Meetings

BRIDGE STREET UNITED CHURCH

The annual congregational meeting of Bridge Street United Church was held February 2nd in the Sunday School auditorium.

The meeting was opened by a brief devotional period led by the pastor, Rev. Harry M. Davis who acted as chairman.

Mr. J. G. Demeza was named secretary of the meeting and a mimeographed report of departmental work was distributed and reviewed in some detail. Mr. Davis read the names of 24 deceased members and adherents followed by a period of silent remembrance and prayer.

The year 1965 saw the reorganization of the committee of Christian Education under the chairmanship of Mr. Douglas Burr and every group had good leaders and teachers. In addition, Mr. Ross Jeffries, had returned once again to take on the work of Christian Education leader, a position carrying with it much responsibility.

Seven staff members representing five departments of the Sunday School, were sent in November to a Christian Education staff weekend training conference held at Five Oaks United Church Training Centre. Specific guidance in the implementation of the new curriculum was given there.

Special appreciation was extended to Mr. Roy Jeffrey for his faithful service as general superintendent of the Sunday School and a sincere welcome extended to Mr. Donald Leslie, the new superintendent.

During the year, Bridge St. congregation was proud to have one of its members, Douglas Heard, graduate and enter the Christian ministry.

The Board of Session expressed grateful thanks to all who had worked so willingly and efficiently in giving leadership and assistance to each department of the church and every facet of its work in the community.

VARIOUS STATISTICS

Total membership revealed 1923 on the roll and pastoral oversight of 3025. Better than $44,200 was raised for the actual operations of the church; $686 for purposes outside the church and $21,000 for the Missionary and Maintenance objective was met. In reviewing the building fund figures, the original debt of $200,000 five years ago, has been reduced to $46,800.

Worthy of special mention was the work of the United Church Women under the leadership of Mrs. Bryson Leslie, which organization did so much work both for the church and world missions.

Newly elected members to the session are: Mr. George Frederick, Mr. John Brown and Mr. Wilbur Fox; to the committee of stewards, Mr. A. D. Cameron and appointed members to the latter committee are Mrs. Harold Mott and Mrs. Gordon Anderson.

EXPRESSES THANKS

Mr. Davis expressed his personal thanks to the Board members leaders and workers for their co-operation and to all for the reverent way in which they came to worship in the House of God on Sundays.

Rev. Canon Wright, Rector of Christ Church sent greetings from his congregation to the meeting.

Mr. Demeza expressed the congregation's appreciation for the minister's unstinting, unselfish and dedicated service to the church, and especially this year, since Mr. Davis is carrying the additional responsibilities connected with being president of the conference.

Bride and Groom At Odds Before Wed

DEAR DORIS: For a long time it has been planned that my little niece — my brother's child — would be my flower girl. Now I am being married, and my fiance insists that his little adopted sister be flower girl.

DORIS CLARK

I don't want to have two. Also, I understand that the bride is supposed to have the say. So I said I'd give up having either to keep peace. But he won't agree to this.

Also, my mother said if I was putting her only grandchild aside for a little adopted girl from (where?) she even dared me that she would not come to the ceremony. She is on my side in agreeing that I have none so as not to hurt anybody's feelings.

Pleayse help me. I am crying all my tears over this and this is no time for tears, don't you think? — IN DISTRESS.

DEAR IN DISTRESS: Oh come, now — would it be so all-fired terrible to have a twice-as-nice procession by having two pretty little girls marching side by side? Remember, this is your wedding, and you have the right and privilege of introducing any picturesque departure from custom you like.

Consideration for the new little family member is important. I am ashamed of your mother's reference to the child's possible origin.

You will be learning a great deal about give-and-take over the next few years. Start developing mature, healing attitudes now. The mistress of a home doesn't weep; she mends other people's feelings.

DEAR DORIS: Do you know the name of the play about the "Armada" of small boats crossing the English Channel to bring off troops trapped in France? The leading male actor was Walter Pidgeon but I cannot recall the name of the actress who played the role of his wife. — HOPING.

DEAR HOPING: It was "Mrs. Minniver"; the actress was Greer Garson. The presentation (several years ago) was imaginative and thrilling.

DEAR DORIS: I will be 12 in June. Every year my aunt, who lives in another city, takes one of us kids in our family down to go to school for a year where she lives. My sister is down there now and there are many complications in our home.

I want to go down to my aunt's place next year but I feel guilty by going when there are so many troubles at home. What I want to know is, should I go down to her place or not? — I like living at my aunt's and at home I cry and keep saying I want to die. Thank you. — FEELS GUILTY.

DEAR FEELS GUILTY: I am so sorry your home is unhappy. Perhaps the change would help, but wouldn't you miss your mother?

I would also like to know whether she needs your help. She is the one to help you decide this. If she does agree to your going to stay with your aunt for a while, there's no reason why you should feel guilty. Mother wants the best for you.

Confidential to PLEASE CONSULT: No dermatologist would even consider what you suggest, since you could do permanent harm to both skin and hair in this way.

The little hairs can be permanently removed by electrolysis at the hands of an expert; or you may use one of several other methods yourself. Write again, enclosing ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and I will send you an excellent leaflet by a beauty expert entitled "Romoving Unwanted Hair."

DEAR DORIS: I have a piano and I would like to learn how to play it at home. I wonder if you could recommend self-taught piano books to me.

I am 30 years old. I just want to learn for my own enjoyment. I wouldn't want to take lessons as I can't find the time.— COUNTRY HOMEMAKER.

DEAR HOMEMAKER: Good for you. I'm glad to hear that at least one piano won't be standing idle.

If you really mean it, you'll set aside a definite time every day to practise and stick with it. This is doing it the hard way, but it can be done, and you'll get a thrill as you gradually improve.

I am sending you the names of three beginner's books. Don't let yourself down. Perhaps after you have made a little progress, you'll find the time to consult a teacher. Even a once-in-a-while lesson could help tremendously.

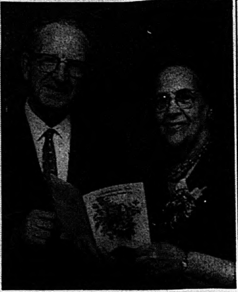
WOMEN MOVE UP

MONTREAL (CP) — Antoinette Faucher says it wouldn't have been worth while for a woman to apply for the assistant directorate of the new planetarium here a few years ago. But nowadays things have changed. bmiss Faucher was appointed to the post in competition with eight men.

NEED NEW KNOW-HOW

CHICAGO (CP)—"Church is big business. We want to help you be good corporate officials," consultant Eugene S. Heckathorn told Lutheran church leaders meeting here. "You men and all the ministers under you need the same top management training that corporations and businesses want."



Rev. T. F. Townsend, Wife Happily Wed 50 Years

The importance of retaining an active interest in affairs even though you have entered formal retirement was stressed yesterday by a local United Church minister who with his wife is today celebrating a half century of marriage.

Going into full retirement after an active life in the ministry is "not so good", Rev. T. F. Townsend, 19 Hillside street, admits.

Mr. Townsend's solution to the inactivity retirement was to become "visiting" minister at Holloway Street United Church where last month he made something over 130 individual visits to congregation members.

In appreciation church members today are sponsoring an anniversary party for Mr. and Mrs. Townsend who are "at home" at the church parlors afternoon and evening.

ORDAINED IN 1920

In his 45 years as a minister Mr. Townsend says he has seen closer association between the various denominations and a greater tolerance of the other person's religious viewpoint.

For himself, he says he is "truly" United. Originally a Methodist, he married the daughter of a Baptist minister, took his theological training partly at Presbyterian colleges and then with church union in 1925 became a United Church minister. He was ordained in 1920.

Mr. and Mrs. Townsend are both natives of the area north of Kingston, Mr. Townsend coming from Harrowsmith and his bride, the former Lucy E. Medcof from nearby Hartingdon. They were married at Kingston.

ENLISTED IN SERVICE

Mr. Townsend commenced his training at the Wesleyan Theological College in Montreal, then when World War I intervened enlisted for overseas service with the field ambulance. Before returning to Canada he studied for a year in Edinburgh.

He commenced his ministry at Westport in the Rideau area and after a series of charges in Eastern Ontario was moved to the Bay of Quinte district serving at Deseronto for six years, Rawdon for four years and at Rednersfille for three years.

Mrs. Townsend is well known as a music teacher and at the time of her retirement two years ago had 45 pupils.

The couple appreciate that travel is broadening and have made two trips overseas, first in the 1930's when Mr. Townsend preached for a month at a Presbyterian church in Scotland, and again in 1958 when they visited the United Kingdos and continental Europe.

WELL REMEMBERED

But Mrs. Townsend admits she is not a good traveller and says she decided not to go along when her husband and their daughter Mrs. William (Pauline) Potts of Belleville, took advantage of a United Church sponsored trip to the Holy Land.

The couple are being well remembered on their anniversary. Golden anniversary gifts have been pouring in and yesterday the postman delivered no less than 125 cards. The couple have six grandchildren.

Avoid Heart Attacks By Choosing Right Wife

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP)—One way to cut your chances of having a heart attack may be to choose the right wife. If she's interested in keeping you alive, she can help control factors which could increase a tendency to heart disease.

You can inherit a tendency to heart disease, and during the forties, men suffer heart attacks about five times as frequently as women. The ratio levels off once women's reproductive years are over.

Dr. John Armstrong, executive director of the Canadian Heart Foundation, says: "You can't choose your parents or your sex. You are left with things you can alter at will, and one of these is diet."

Overweight is known to be a contributing factor, and obviously the woman who prepares most of her family's meals can help to keep their weight in check.

CUT SOME FATS

She can also find ways to cut the use of animal fats in their diet to keep down blood cholesterol level. The foundation recommends, under a physician's guidance, replacing about half the animal fats with unsaturated vegetable fats.

Dr. Armstrong says: "Be sure to talk to your doctor before you make a change in diet. In some instances a diet change can be as important as taking a drug. It is well to get advice."

A foundation release says cigarette smokers suffer an incidence and death rate from coronary heart disease of three times more than non-smokers.

Dr. Armstrong says: "I don't know what a wife can do about cigarette smoking except encourage a husband to stop. She might give him a number of small meals a day. You're less likely to smoke when you're eating.

"It is a habit like any other habit. It can be unlearned. I don't believe in elaborate methods of trying to break the habit, I'm not sure they're necessary. But no one should feel he has to have a cigarette 20 times a day."

ASSESS TOLERANCE

He says he feels more studies need to be done to prove just how important what kind of exercise is for people, and whether sudden violent exercise actually will cause a heart attack.

"I would say you should encourage regular exercise. The thing that is foolish is for someone who has undertaken none suddenly to ski or drag a moose miles through the woods.

"At any age it is unwise to tire yourself completely. Tire yourself a little bit regularly and build a tolerance. The simplest form is walking.

"It's not so much what you do as how you do it. Go at a pile of snow slowly and carefully and it probably won't harm you. Shovel it urgently and you may blow something.

"If you have any suggestion of disability, have a doctor's check before you launch into a program of exercise, and then choose it carefully. Some exercises are designed to give you flexibility rather than endurance, and you may not need flexibility. The enthusiasts say keep fit. The question is, fit for what?"

Dr. Armstrong says the question of stress and heart attacks has no definite answer yet. A U.S. insurance company discovered a higher incidence of heart disease among group policy holders than among individual policy holders — presumably more among blue and white collar workers than among theoretically high pressure executives.

"The evidence is not overwhelming that the aggressive, red-faced man is more liable to heart attacks than the thin, placid man."

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Before her recent marriage, Mrs. A. K. Kuhme, the former Janet Ann Carruthers of Belleville was honored by her coworkers of Queen's University Extension Department with a presentation at the home of Mrs. Olive Higdon, at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Angus Ross and at a pantry shelf shower at the home of Mrs. Hugh Murray.

Morton, teacher, sponsored the program and she and the grade 7 and 8 students were the judges. Contestants were Donnie Campbell, Debra Graff, Rodney Graff, Jeannette Hoard, Byron Hubble, Dennis Hubble, Frank Hubble, Bill McArton, Randy Scott, and Kenneth Sharp.

Winners were Randy Scott, Kenneth Sharp, Bill McArton and Jeannette Hoard.

Two students who were ill and unable to give their senior speeches two weeks before, gave their speeches on this occasion for entertainment. They were Judy Graff and Doreen Hubble.

MR. AND MRS. ARMIN K. KUHME

Kuhme – Carruthers

St. Thomas Church, Belleville, was decorated with pink and white flowers for the double ring ceremony at 12 noon on Saturday, February 5, 1966, which united in marriage Janet Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Carruthers of Belleville and Armin Konrad Kuhme of Kingston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Helmut Richter of Warren, Ontario. Archdeacon A. S. McConnell was the officating clergyman and the wedding music was played by Mr. D. Davenport, organist of the church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a full length pale pink satin backed matelasse gown with lily point sleeves and a train of pink tulle. Her tulle headdress was set on a band of matching pink matelasse and she wore an heirloom gold chain necklace, which formerly belonged to the bridegroom's great-grandmother in Germany. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink Sweetheart roses, white 'mums, ivy and streamers caught with rosebuds and centred with a corsage.

Mrs. Angus Ross of Kingston was matron of honor. She wore a mint green wool crepe street length dress with a fitted Empire bodice and carried a white crescent bouquet of white 'mums and Sweetheart roses.

Mr. Geoffrey Chase of Calgary attended the bridegroom and Mr. Chris Snyder of Kingston ushered the guests.

At the reception, held at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Carruthers received the guests, wearing a forest green Ceil Chapman jacket dress in jacquard self patterned silk and wool, with black accessories and a corsage of green cymbidium orchids. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a light beige wool crepe ensemble with black accessories, a Polar fox stole and a corsage of ivory cymbidium orchids.

For her wedding trip the bride chose a black and white tweed winter suit with fox collar and cuffs, black accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Kuhme will live at 342 Frontenac Street in Kingston until May, after which they will move to Calgary.

Firms Gear Business To the Tastes of Youth

By SALLY RYAN

NEW YORK (AP)—A "youth quake" is shaking U.S. business with granny dresses, folk - rock records, transistor radios and smell - alike steadies.

With a collective $15,000,000,000 a year to spend, 24,000,000 teen - agers in the United States have become the long - haired darlings of businessmen looking for big markets.

From coast to coast teen-agers dress alike, dance alike and buy alike.

Their money goes on snacks, clothes, records, cars, cosmetics, movies, contact lenses, guitars, skindiving equipment and a thousand other items.

The number of firms geared to the demands of the youth market is growing. As Bruce A. Gimbel, New York city department store president, put it:

"We no longer keep up with the Joneses, we keep up with the young."

One Fifth Avenue department store (Lord and Taylor) reports its teen-age business has grown 200 per cent in the last 10 years, and a store official adds he expects it to grow 25 per cent a year for the foreseeable future.

A swank Fifth Avenue store for women (Bergdorf-Goodman) opened a haven for teen - agers this month.

START GRANNY CRAZE

Teen aged girls spend $3,825,000,000 a year on clothes and another $575,000,000 on shoes. They plucked the granny dress off the French Riviera, shifting lines throughout the garment industry. Now they are going for granny boots — laced up the front — granny purses and granny spectacles.

Teen - agers seized the bright mod fashions from Britain and revolutionized the fashion industry. Mod shops are springing up in the department stores, and for the first time they are importing low and medium-priced clothing from London and Paris.

The girls spend $470,000,000 a year on cosmetics, and sales of men's toiletries are soaring, spurred by young buyers.

One reason: instead of just exchanging pins or rings, young couples now wear the same cologne to become smell - alike steadies.

Teen-agers spend nearly $300,000,000 a year on records, accounting for 80 per cent of the single - record sales. They switched from Elvis Presley to the Beatles and Sonny and Cher, and the record companies followed suit.

SHAPING the EARTH
THE BALANCE OF NATURE!
It's important NOT TO UPSET the balance of nature.
Certain INDUSTRIAL WASTES dumped into rivers have KILLED OFF FISH, such as salmon. With the polluted water, BLACK FLIES have increased and plagued other animals. IMPORTING STRANGE ANIMALS can have serious consequences. A typical example was the introduction of RABBITS to Australia. They multiplied so rapidly that they had to be hunted down and kept under control by man.
A good example is that of LICE and LADYBUGS. When there is an abundance of lice, ladybugs feed so well and lay so many eggs, that there develop far more ladybugs than lice to feed them. Then, the ladybugs DIE OFF and the lice begin LAYING MORE EGGS. And so the cycle goes on.

CHRIST CHURCH W. A.

Evening Branch

On Monday evening members of the Evening Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church met for their first business meeting of the new year.

The worship service found in the Living Message was conducted by the president, Mrs. A. Bongard, assisted by Mrs. J. Kilburn, Mrs. E. Smith and Mrs. H. Stevens.

Mrs. L. Williams presided at the piano. The various secretaries read their reports and correspondence was dealt with.

An invitation was received to attend the "Quiet Day" on February 26th at St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill Church. It is to be an all day session with Holy Communion at ten o'clock in the morning.

Thank-you notes were read from those who had received 'get-well' wishes, for gifts sent to mental health patients and greetings from prayer partner Rev. D. Rees and the Rev. James Smith.

The Little Helpers will in future be referred to as Family Life Pre-School.

Membership fees were received and pledge envelopes distributed.

As a centennial project it was agreed to make a presentation of altar candlesticks to St. James' Church at Tweed, an additional sum will go towards a rectory kitchen at Moosonee.

It was decided also to cater, as has been the custom, for the Junior Auxiliary banquet in the spring.

A rummage sale was planned for the near future. Next week's meeting will take the form of a potluck supper followed by entertainment.

Refreshments were served by hostesses Mrs. L. Markel and Mrs. L. Williams.

Antarctica Most Beautiful Part of the World Says 86-year-old Traveller

The first tourist venture into Antarctica has just ended. The oldest of the 57 passengers aboard the Argentine Navy cruise ship Lapataia is 86-year-old Mrs. Bessie Sweeney of Washington, D.C., mother of the president of New York's Explorers Club. One of the Antarctic mountain ranges is named for him. Here she tells what it is like to be a tourist in the frozen continent.

Written for AP

By MRS. BESSIE SWEENEY

ABOARD SS LAPATAIA (AP) I have travelled all over the world and seen many countries, people and customs. But for many vears my dream had been to visit Antarctica, the continent which until now has been open only to the explorer.

My son, Ed Sweeney, who is also the president of the Explorers Club, has a mountain range named after him in Edith Ronne Land.

I am 86 years old and I had resigned myself to never being able to see that icy continent which covers the area around the South Pole. Then I learned that Lars-Eric Lindblad was planning an expedition to Antarctica which would be available to tourists.

I was the first to sign up.

Now we are nearing the end of our Antarctic tourist expedition and I have been able to see some of the most beautiful parts of that frozen continent in all their glory. The ice, the glaciers, the fabulous mountain peaks, penguins, seals and ma Antarctic birds—and even the sea elephants and sea leopards.

I can say without hesitation that Antarctica is the most beautiful part of the world. I can say the trip through the Lemair Channel in splendid sunshine is the highlight of all my travels around the world, and my fellow travellers agree with me on this.

VISIT LANDMARKS

I have been able to go ashore at such famous Antarctic landmarks as Melchior, Almirante Brown, Gourssac, Deception Island, Hope Bay. I can say I navigated the Weddell Sea and stopped over at such places as Potter Cove and Half Moon.

We have had cold days with strong wnds. Thanks to the clothing provided, I have always been warm and have not suffered frostbite or worse things—as did the early Antarctic explorers.

One of the highlights of the trip for me was holding a penguin in my arms, stroking his chest and observing him relax and even enjoy being petted.

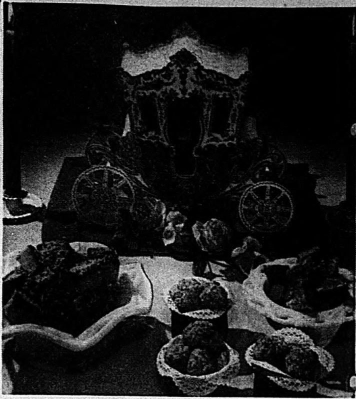
I also rode through the snow and ice on a snowcat at the Argentine Army base at Hope Bay where we also had the opportunity to travel on dogsleds.

I have also been able to see for myself some of the dangers of Antarctic exploration. The pack ice, for example. I watched it close in around our ship in the Antarctic Straits, forcing us to leave immediately or get imprisoned.

Then I saw it again, crowding us threateningly deep in the Weddell Sea, at the edge of the Antarctic Circle, which we could not penetrate because of the dangers it posed.

So at 86 I have seen Antarctica.

Next I will be going to the North Pole, and then I will be back down here—in the Antarctic ice.



Valentine Fudge paradoxically has a sweet-sour flavor, for dairy sour cream is used instead of milk. While the fudge is still warm, you may mark it into squares and top each with a tiny red candy heart. Or wrap each piece of fudge in squares of red cello.

SWEETS FOR VALENTINE'S DAY

For love's sake on Valentines Day I have some come-hither confections.

One is fudge but with a difference. It calls for dairy sour cream which delicately modifies the sugar-sweetness of the candy. The other is an easy-to-make no-cook confection calling for chopped or ground apricots as their basic ingredient.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu by Mary Moore

Beef Heart (see Mon.); Mustard Sauce (see Mon.); Boiled Onions with Cheese Sauce (see Tues.); Buttered Noodles; Lemon Layered Angel Cake; Tea.

SOUR CREAM FUDGE:

3 cups light brown sugar, 1 cup dairy sour cream (½ pint less 2 tablespoons), ⅛ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup water, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup walnut halves or chopped walnuts.

Into a heavy saucepan measure the sugar, sour cream and salt. Stir over high heat until the sugar dissolves. Remove spoon, put in thermometer and boil, without stirring, until temperature reaches 235 deg. Fahr. (no higher — this is soft-soft ball stage). At once remove from heat, slightly stir in butter and vanilla and let cool to 120 deg. Fahr. (you will be able to hold your hand comfortably on outside of pan). Beat until it just begins to lose its gloss (about 1 minute) and begins to show spoon strokes. At once stir in nuts, pour into buttered 8 x 8" pan, smooth top and cool until firm.

NOTES:

1) If desired, to show Valentine theme, before fudge hardens, mark into squares and press tiny red candy heart in centre of each. Or 2) wrap each piece of fudge in square of red cello.

APPRICOT NUGGETS:

2 tablespoons soft butter, ½ cup corn syrup, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup skim milk powder, 2 cups icing sugar, 2 cups finely-chopped or ground dried apricots, 2 cups finely chopped walnuts.

Combine butter, corn syrup, vanilla and salt. Add and mix in thoroughly the skim milk powder and icing sugar. Work in the chopped or ground apricots and chill. Shape into small balls with moistened palms. Roll in chopped walnuts and store in refrigerator.

KICKING THE BONE HABIT

Dear Susanna: What is it with dogs and bones?

I always thought they went together like a horse and carriage . . . but now I've been advised by my friends not to feed my doggie a bone.

Is it really so bad for him? Do you know anyone who can speak with authority on this subject, Susanna? — Herb. V. Ellis

Only a veterinarian or two, Herb. I'm sorry, but the sad word in the bow wow set is, No Bones!

Not only can the minerals obtained by chewing bones be easily supplied from other sources but bones may splinter and tear the canine's tissues when swallowed, or they may cause serious obstruction of the digestive tract.

Poor fellows. Their life is getting to be a dog's life after all. — SUSANNA

PERFECT DRAINER

Dear Susanna: There are only two of us at our house, so when I cook spaghetti I don't need a tremendous quantity. I use a medium size pot into which I first lower my french fry basket.

How simple it is for me to drain the spaghetti when it is cooked. I lift the basket straight up out of the water, and presto, the contents almost drain themselves. — Mrs. Sy Segsworh.

Ann Landers

Housewife Happy To Learn of Worth

DEAR ANN LANDERS: All my married life I've felt like a nobody because I was "only a housewife." My husband made me [illegible] that I should be grateful to him for putting food in my [illegible]th and clothes on my back.

ANN LANDERS

Today I read something that gave me a lift. If you print it I'll bet you'll give thousands of housewives a new lease on life.

The home economics department of our state college published a leaflet in chart form. It shows what a housewife is worth per week in dollars and cents on today's labor market. Here it is:

Cooking, table-setting, serving, at $2.00 an hour	$50.00
Dishwashing, at $1.25 an hour	$17.50
Child care at 50c an hour (ridiculous since this is what most sitters get for just sitting)	$17.50
Routine housework, at $1.25 an hour	$22.50
Laundry, at $1.25 an hour	$6.25
Ironing, at $1.25 an hour	$6.25

The chart suggests adding 25% for miscellaneous work. So the grand total is $150. a week. On a yearly basis a house wife is worth $7,800.

Believe it or not but this leaflet has given me dignity. I no longer feel like a parasite. Tonight when Mr. Greatheart comes home I'm going to greet him like a woman who earns almost $8,000 a year because that's what I am. — ASHAMED NO LONGER.

DEAR ASHAMED NO LONGER: Housewives of America, unite! Clip this column for your husband. And as for you, Mr. Greatheart, take that — and that — and that.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Five years ago I had a baby girl out of wedlock. I saw her while I was in the hospital and then turned her over to an adoption agency.

Since that time I married a wonderful, mature man who has a Ph.D. in education and is now teaching. We have a child and hope to have more. I have not been honest with my husband about my past, and this bothers me terribly. What's more, my feeling of guilt seems to be growing instead of diminishing.

I've been considering checking with the adoption agency to learn if my daughter is happy and if she is being well taken care of. If she is not, I'm sure my husband would help me to regain custody. Wouldn't this be the ideal solution? Advise me, please. — MOTHER OF TWO.

DEAR MOTHER: Ideal for whom? Surely not for the child — or for the adoptive parents.

Tell your husband the truth and get this off your conscience. And forget about trying to locate the child. A legitimate agency will not give you the information, and if you were able to get it by hook or crook, your chances of regaining custody would be zero.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a paper boy who has the usual gripe about people who owe money and don't answer the doorbell when they know I am coming to collect. But that's not what I'm writing about.

I wish you'd print something about people who have nice warm homes but won't ask us in for a few minutes when we are out trying to collect.

Tonight it was below zero and I was freezing. A dozen people handed the money through a crack in the door and then slammed it real fast so they wouldn't let any cold air in the house. Don't they realize the paper boy is out in that cold air for hours?

One word from you could help a lot. Thanks, Ann. — ICICLE IKE.

DEAR READERS WHO LIVE WHERE IT'S COLD: For heaven's sake folks, please invite the paper boy in to thaw out on those freezing nights when he comes to collect. There, son, I said 22 words, and I hope it helps.)

Women's Institutes

MELROSE W.I.

MELROSE — Despite the stormy weather, Melrose Women's Institute proceeded with the regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Roy McLaren with Mrs. Gerald Stratton presiding.

New Year's wishes were received from Sim Yon Soon in Korea and the new provincial president extended her greetings and hopes for a successful year. A delegate to the spring conference at Guelph will be appointed at the next meeting.

Mrs. Roy McLaren and Mrs. Raymond Clarke volunteered to take charge of a euchre party on the first Wednesday in February and Mrs. Clarence Hagerman and Mrs. Leslie McLaren will be hostesses for the next euchre in two weeks time. The leaders for the 4-H Homemaking project "Being Well Dressed and Well Groomed" are Mrs. John McFarlane and Mrs. Jack McLaren with Mrs. Grant McLaren as assistant. Tickets will be sold on a quilt to raise funds for swimming lessons and a quilting will be held at a later date. Mrs. Grant McLaren presented an interesting report of the evening session of the Area convention.

Mrs. Malcolm Lazier introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Donald Chisholm, who gave an inspiring message on Human Relations. Health, work, interest and pursuit of ideal friendships are necessary for a happy life but our first and most important responsibility is our home and family, she said. Mutual understanding creates harmony in home life which determines the course of the children's lives when they leave the nest and follow their chosen careers. Mrs. G. McLaren thanked Mrs. Chisholm, who, is so capably filling her office as district president and presented her with a small remembrance from the Melrose branch.

Mrs. J. McFarlane chose Public Relations as the topic for the evening's program. Mrs. Vincent Pascoe outlined an amusing diet for those who have found their buttons moving further away from their buttonholes since the Christmas feasting season. Mrs. Charles Bates acted as pianist and Mrs. J. McLaren led in the singing of parodies pertaining to the topic.

PREVIEWS EXP. '67

Mrs. Roy Badgley presented a most informative preview of Canada's centennial extravaganza, Expo '67. It is already a beehive of activity as landscaping is being arranged with the planting of 8,000 trees, some of these being shipped from as far away as Vancouver and others being supplied by farmers as close as Wolfe's Island near Kingston. A work stoppage agreement has been established which will prevent strikes during the preparation and the duration of the Fair. There will be 125 buildings erected to shelter the innumerable exhibits, each of these to portray the theme of the entire fair "Man and his World." They will employ 225 bilingual Canadian girls as hostesses while 800 more girls will be needed to assist in the various display booths. Two major problems in Montreal during the Expo '67 season will be traffic and accommodation but methods to solve these worries are being investigated. Traffic will be controlled by a computer system and accommodation will be eased by the construction of a housing unit called "The Habitat". This consists of 3 and 4 roomed cement box-type apartments numbering fifty in all but they are also considering using ocean liners in the harbor for tourist accommodation if necessary. A theme song will be adopted in honor of this forthcoming educational and industrial event which will run from April 28 to October 26 next year. There will be a set price on all products sold on the grounds and passports are now available, so it appears that many millions are waiting in expectation to view man's present and future in this amazing world.

Mrs. Harold McAvoy read a poem and Mrs. J. McFarlane gave a timely reading. Mrs. Hawley Melburn conducted two contests with Mrs. C. Hagerman and Mrs. M. Lazier being the winners. Thanks were expressed to the hostess and her assistants and a social time was enjoyed.

Child of Four Can Solve Trigonometry Problems And Spell Many Words

By JAMES F. KING

LONDON (AP) — Maybelle Thompson, 4, who can solve trigonometry problems and spell hundreds of words, now is going to school.

"I'm not learning anything new," she complains, "my classmates are babies."

School authorities relaxed regulations to admit Maybelle a month ago before she reached the standard age of five.

James Thompson, an American, says school "is a complete waste of time for a child of her ability."

Thompson, 50, who served as adviser in science and mathematics with UNESCO in Formosa and later for the French ministry of education in Paris, disputes suggestions he and his Chinese-born wife may be pushing the girl too fast.

"Naturally we arouse her curiousity in things," he said, "but we don't press her. Most children today are retarded by their parents. Their curiosity is often suppressed or ignored and they are frustrated in their desire to learn."

Maybelle's library ranges from 12 volumes of Cassell's Books of Knowledge to Aesop's Fables and includes several advanced textbooks on mathematics and astronomy.

One of her sketches was on the cover of New Education magazine.

When Maybelle gets home from school in nearby Reading, where the family lives, "she makes a beeline for her books and reads for hours on end," her mother said.

James Lane, her headmaster, said:

"I am not denying that she is an extraordinary girl. But she seems quite content just to play with sand and water like the rest of her classmates, and I don't think it would do her any good if we pushed her too fast at this stage.

"In a few months I shall call in expert opinion to help me judge her capabilities. But for the moment I want her to go on behaving just like any other little girl of her age."

A LONG TRADITION — A sculptor works in wood in an art centre in Quebec that traces its roots back to 17th century France. St. Jean Port Joli on the south shore of the St. Lawrence has become famous for its wood sculpture. Other artisans in the community work with textiles, paint and ceramics. (CP Photo)

Quebec Art Centre's Roots Date Back to 17th Century

By BENOIT HOULE

ST JEAN PORT JOLI, Que. (CP)—This tiny community on the banks of the St. Lawrence River near where it begins to widen toward the sea is a recently-founded Quebec centre of art and handicrafts which has its roots in 17th century Paris.

The nucleus of this arts centre can be traced back through a family tree to three Parisian master sculptors, Pierre, Francois and Alphonse Legros, who came to Canada in the 17th century.

Their descendants settled in St. Jean Port Joli, on the south shore of the St. Lawrence 50 miles northeast of Quebec. Three of those descendants, boys named Medard, Andre and Jean-Julien Bourgault, felt the call of the nearby sea and became sailors, only to have the depression of the 1930s force them back to this community.

Medard became a carpenter and turned to sculpting wood. He was soon joined by his two brothers in this activity and from this seed sprang the movement of Quebec province woodcarving whose reputation has spread throughout the province and beyond.

The artists and artisans of St. Jean, working with mallet and chisel on the shapeless blocks of wood, fashion statues of work weary farmers, straining oxen, massive moose, fleeing deer, the Christ Child and Christ's suffering figure on the cross.

The artist's tradition here is only 35 years old, but St. Jean has 300 years of tradition and religious belief behind it from which the sculptors and other artists can draw their inspiration.

In 1939, the Bourgault brothers began to teach sculpture. The province of Quebec acknowledged their value by authorizing them to open a provincial school in 1959, the year Andre Bourgault was struck and killed by a truck outside his workshop.

Today, despite its population of little more than 3,000, St. Jean can boast of almost 250 artisans.

Almost half of these work with wood, the rest weave, paint or work with ceramics.

The Bourgaults' school gives a two-year course to 25 students from across the province.

The artists' booths, stretched along the side of the road leading to the Gaspe Peninsula, are a large tourist attraction for this community.

But it's not only the tourist who has recognized the quality of the work of these artists. The fruit of their labor has also received some official recognition.

HONORED BY FRANCE

In 1963, France granted them the French National Medal of Merit for having best conserved and spread the traditions which came from France three centuries ago. The medal and an accompanying parchment now hang in the Bourgaults' school.

With some bitterness the artists of the school and this community say they have never been recognized or aided by the government at Ottawa, despite repeated requests.

There is a great demand for their work. Some orders are delayed for several years before they can be filled.

The work goes on 12 months a year in order to fill the demand. The artists produce new works and the artisans make dozens and even hundreds of reproductions of a multitude of different objects. Their work enables them to earn between $3,000 and $6,000 annually.

Jean - Julien Bourgault has sculpted works for Queen Elizabeth, Vincent Auriol, a former French president, Lord Beaverbrook, Camilien Houde, former mayor of Montreal, and Princess Margaret.

His work is found in private and public collections throughout Canada, the United States and Europe and some of his carvings have travelled as far as Africa.

SHOULD ACCEPT FRENCH

MONTREAL (CP) — Industrialists and tradesmen should accept French as the business language in Quebec, Union Nationale Leader Daniel Johnson said Monday night at a service club meeting.

Beckoning Adventure Makes Life Exciting

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—It isn't the things you've done in life that keep you happy—it's the things you still may do.

Achievement often tends to make you smug. It is the beckoning adventure of the unachieved that makes existence interesting and exciting.

It is good for the soul now and then to sit down and make a list of such possibilities, whether you ever really do anything about them. No matter how many things you've done, there are more you haven't.

For example, I know a fellow (my wife is still married to him) who has never:

Stunned an ocotupus with a karate blow.

Eaten beef stew off a gold plate.

Flown in a glider or a space capsule.

Save a lost and half-frozen St. Bernard dog by offering it a drink from a small keg of brandy.

Worn a raccoon coat, a pair of spats, or a duck-tailed haircut.

Been a landlord or a loan shark.

Robbed the rich in order give to the poor.

Beaten up any neighborhood bullies as the result of taking a correspondence course in muscle-building.

Met a maharajah — or a payroll.

Fired a cannon—or an employee.

Refused to sell defence secrets to a beautiful female spy. (She hasn't asked me yet.)

Held off attacking Indians by using my dead horse as a shield.

Launched a battleship or attended the opening of a new delicatessen.

Had a sandwich or a ball park named in my honor.

Been in charge of wardrobes for a burlesque theatre.

Held a flashlight for Dr. Kildare while he performed an emergency appendectomy aboard a destroyer during a typhoon.

Hypnotized an angry cobra by blowing a soothing solo on my old Boy Scout bugle.

Subbed for an ailing high-wire artist at the circus.

Won a game of hopscotch from my daughter.

Broken the bank in a penny-ante poker game.

Rescued a grateful millionaire's daughter from a burning saloon.

Trailed a mermaid across the Sahara Desert.

Gee, when a fellow looks back on al. the things he hasn't done, his life seems kind of empty, doesn't it? But if he's ever going to do them, he can't start sooner than now.

A HISTORY OF WOE — The National Museum of Canada in Ottawa has been in trouble since it was built. The contractor lost his shirt and the walls began to settle in the soggy clay almost as soon as it was finished. The crumbling masonry of the outside walls (right) is repaired on a stop-gap basis and engineers estimate the life of the building, which was completed in 1911, as no longer than 1972. (CP Photo)

National Museum of Canada Fine Edifice Built on Clay

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—"This building hasn't moved appreciably in 40 years," the official of the National Museum of Canada asserted unconvincingly.

But the bizarre history of the poorly-located museum—which settled in its bed of clay so heavily 50 years ago that the front nearly fell off—doesn't inspire confidence.

Sitting in a fourth and top-floor office, an informed visitor was acutely aware that the heavyweight baronial edifice sits on an unreliable foundation of moist clay.

"Public works watches it like a hawk," the official said, trying to reassure a reporter.

But the knowledge that sensitive instruments below the tree-covered grounds keep constantly checked records of the moisture level wasn't reassuring at all.

It raised the vision of suddenly disappearing into 138 feet of clay in a pile of dinosaur bones, stuffed buffalo, wooden Indians, engrossed paleontologists and Nova Scotia limestone slabs.

The Victoria Memorial Museum Building, as it isn't known, has had a history of bad news since it left the drawing boards in 1906.

DEFER REPLACEMENT

The latest chapter came in August, when Prime Minister Pearson announced that a new museum building was one of six federal projects being deferred to ease pressure on the construction industry.

Tenders had been scheduled for this October but museum officials now believe it will be late 1966 before they are called.

The new museum, to cost well upwards of $20,000,000, should provide two to three times as much exhibit space and will include separate planetarium and science buildings.

It will be located next to the National Arts Centre, now under construction, and across from the National Gallery. Parliament Hill is a few blocks away.

Choice of the new Elgin Street location means demolition of the Roxborough Apartments, home for prime ministers and diplomats, and La Touraine restaurant, one of the capital's better eating places.

This has brought further curses upon the museum, which seems to suffer from some kind of malediction.

The unhappy contractor, George Goodwin, who started building it in 1906 on a bid of less than $1,000,000 lost his shirt.

PROTESTED SITE

Going against all geological knowledge, and Mr. Goodwin's protests—the site was chosen after the bid was accepted—government officials insisted the museum be built on a flat cow pasture a mile south of Parliament Hill. The cattle of two Supreme Court justices had formerly grazed there.

Mr. Goodwin brought 300 master stone-cutters and masons from Scotland for the job. They went on strike for a year, adding to his woes.

When completed in 1911, the heavy masonry walls, corner turrets and front tower rested on piles driven into the clay.

They soon began to sink, pulling towers and turrets down and out, lifting floors in the centre, and shearing partitions.

By 1915, the tower began to separate from the building, taking the whole front with it.

"The tower was removed in 1916, giving the building a slightly decapitated appearance," former director Loris Russell says in a history.

"Since that time, no major movement has been observed."

STILL MIGHT SINK

Nevertheless, areas beneath the turrets recently were put out of bounds. The crumbling masonry of the outside walls is being replaced on a stop-gap basis. And public works keeps its hawk-like vigil.

A public works survey found restoration would equal or exceed the original cost, with no guarantee of stability.

An earthquake, traffic vibration or change in the composition of the clay might turn it into the sunken museum of Ottawa, with archeologists digging for the paleontologists and new generations of paleontologists digging for the re-interred dinosaurs.

After the Second World War the building was renovated and the museum set up the striking exhibits that now attract thousands of visitors.

A two-week display of the Dead Sea Scrolls this fall brought a record 50,000 people to the solid-looking structure with the tremulous stairways, buckled walls and hilly floors.

Engineers set its life expectancy at 1972, provided there are no earthquakes. By then, the museum should be elegantly housed in the new building.

That's if the jinx doesn't strike again.

Sewage, Water Distribution Discussed at Council Meeting

NAPANEE — Napanee Town council meeting Monday evening decided to ask for new tenders for the construction of the sewer through Clarkville.

Late last summer Council had agreed that the sewer was necessary, and called for tenders for the job to get an estimate of the costs. The Ontario Water and Resources Commission looked into the matter and found the plan necessary and that the town would be able to handle it financially. Some objection was made on the ground that taxes would be raised, and a public hearing was called in January with the Ontario Municipa. Board. Only at Monday night's meeting was this permission received.

When calling for tenders last summer, Council had expected to begin the project right away, but the delay has been so prolonged that new tenders must now be called for the work to begin in the spring.

Reports were received from the building inspector and assessor, Alvin Wartman, from Fire Chief F. W. Patton, and from Chief of Police Harry Benn.

Council once more joined the Lake Ontario Development Association, the Canadian Institute of Pollution Control, and the Ontario Municipal Association.

Councillor Woodcock brought up the question of installing a higher stack on the incinerator at the town dump to add to its efficiency. After some discussion, Council decided that the builders should first be consulted as to the feasibility of such a step, and this will be looked into.

A letter from the Public School Board requested greater protection for children crossing at Robinson and Graham Streets. The matter was referred to the police committee.

Cable TV Ltd., asked permission to address Council at its next meeting, and this permission was granted.

The Girl Guides received permission to hold a tag day May 7, but the Lennox and Addngton Association for the Mentally Retarded, which asked for permission for a tag day on May 7, was advised to select another date. Permission was granted the VON to hold a tag day in May, and the uual campaign in October.

TAX RATE INCREASED

Reeve Claude Knight, chairman of the finance committee, said that he did not see how an increase in the tax rate could be avoided, since all services were costing more this year, and the hospital debentures must be paid. He anticipated that the increase would not be above three mills, however, and hoped it would be less.

Representative of Branch 137 of the Royal Canadian Legion attended the meeting to ask for consideration of an adjustment of taxes on the Legion Hall. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

In his opening remarks Lorne Smart reported that he had attended the recent meeting when the Ontario Water and Resources authorities gave a report regarding the two possible plans for taking over the distribution of water in this area. No report has yet been received as to the estimated cost per 1,000 gallons, but such a report would in all probability be forthcoming within the next two or three weeks.

A number of citizens were in the audience, including representatives of the Ratepayers' Association. Mr. Ed Hooper brought up the question of the training which had been received by members of the Napanee police force, and suggested that a police commission be set up. Mr. Fenwick Solmes agreed with him that there was too much lobbying. The matter was left to the police committee for further investigation.

All members of the Council were present.

Deseronto Council Debates Costs of Water by Pipeline

DESERONTO — When meeting the Deseronto Council Monday evening, Mayor Gerald Lott requested the various committees to have their preliminary estimates ready by March 1, so that the town budget could be drawn up by the end of the month.

He also reported on the meeting and the brief presented by the Ontario Water Resources Commission, with its proposed plan for furnishing water to this area in two stages, with water available to Deseronto in the near future from the Napanee River, and later from Lake Ontario. Not all the councillors were in favor of using Napanee water, but Mayor Lott pointed out that it would b ea temporary arrangement, and would be better than waiting for ten years for the purer water from the lake. Napanee has a good filtration plant, and there are few complaints about the water now.

A resolution was passed to inquire into the cost per 1,000 gallons before ruling out the idea of a pipeline from Napanee. The vote was 4-2, with Mayor Lott voting in the affirmative.

Reeve Armitage and Councillor Marks were not present at the meeting.

REFUSE PERMISSION FOR SCHOOL DEBENTURES

Council turned down a letter from the Public School Board requesting permission for the Board of Municipal Affairs to raise debentures in the amount of $125,000 for the expansion of the public school. A meeting is to be called to discuss the feasibility of obtaining the money—at least in part, by some other means.

Council approved the resolution of the Lennox and Addington Education Board, that "the Board will require a resolution of the town of Deseronto undertaking the raising of its share of the cost, and requesting the County of Lennox and Addington to raise the total amount of the debentures". This refers to the new addition to the Napanee District Secondary School, attended by students from Deseronto. Deseronto is now a part of this area.

Payment of the membership fee for the Hastings and Prince Edward Firemen's Mutual Aid Association was approved. The Salvation Army was granted $25.

A motion was passed to pay the Napanee Conservation Authority the levy based on the taxable assessment. This levy amounts to $213.17.

Book Drive Over-the-top, Now Closed

NAPANEE — "The book drive is over, but we are still accepting books", announces Ralph E. Dale, head of the English [illegible]partment of the Napanee [illegible]trict Secondary School, and teacher-adviser to the Current Affairs Club of the school.

At first the objective of 5,000 books seemed much too high, but they have gone away over the top with 8,000 books now in and more coming all the time, a large number from the North Fredericksburg one-roomed schools which closed their doors two weeks ago.

Mr. Dale attributes the success of the project to the club president, Allan Baker, and to June Wood project chairman. Both are Grade 13 students. A group of willing helpers assisted them in putting the project over the top.

Work of sorting and packing will probably not be completed until near the close of the school year, Mr. Dale states.

The books are to go to sc[illegible] in developing countries, many of which have no books whatever. Transportation expenses will be paid by the school board.

Town Applies For Loan to Build Plant

CAMPBELLFORD — In regard to proposed sewage disposal in the town applications have been made to Central Mortgage and Housing for a loan of ($329,000), to process the application more information must be supplied, copies, plans and specifications, copies of engineers report information on possession of land and other details. C. M. H. interest rate is now quoted at five and three quarters per cent. There is a forgiveness grant of 25 per cent of loan [illegible] 25 per cent of interest provided the project is completed by March 31, 1967.

The initial details having been completed it now remains to secure permission from the Ontario Municipal Board to allow the project to proceed. Clerk E. M. Ibey outlined four procedures of raising money to operate and pay for the plant, Council decided to adopt the plan which secures the complete revenue by a surcharge on the water bill, thus taking the cost on all water users rather than on property owners only.

COMMUNITY CENTRE

Councillor Torrance reported for Community Centre. The approval had been received f[illegible] O.M.B. to proceed with construction of the centre at a cost of $132,000. Due to the fact after the approved cost had been arrived at, a change in some construction material had been found necessary, and also since the tenders were accepted as of November 1st 1965, building costs had increased, the tender applicants added increases to the extent that the centre committee will have to explore the matter in order to be assured that costs will be covered and the O.M.B. approved cost of $132,000 will stand as it is. It does not appear to be an insurmountable obstacle according to the expressed opinion of those concerned.

Public Aquarium Proposed For Glenora Fish Station

PICTON (Staff) — The Glenora Fisheries Research station at Lake-on-the-Mountain may one day contain a public aquarium. Members of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce are considering this as a tourist attraction. The station at Glenora is operated by the Department of Lands and Forests and according to members of the chamber there is sufficient space in the present building. Another asset to this proposed location is its proximity to the famous Lake-on-the Mountain resort, which already is a major tourists mecca. A resolution is being prepared by committee members President Jay Hepburn, secretary Don Stanton and Jack Evans, to forward to various authorities.

HOG PRODUCERS ELECT OFFICERS

On Friday evening the directors of the Prince Edward Hog Producers met to elect their officers and discuss projects for 1966. All officers were reelected with George Young, R.R. 10, Picton as president; Leonard Bryant, R.R. 2, Bloomfield as vice-president; and Ross Pierson, R.R. 1, Wellington as secretary-treasurer. Projects approved include the sponsorship of the 4-H Swine Club in 1966 and in addition the hog producers agreed to assist with the purchase of weanling purebred pigs by paying $15 to each club member who purchases a pair of pigs for the Swine Club project.

Prospective Swine Club members will be hearing more about the Swine Club project in the near future. Boys who are interested are advised to leave their names at the Ontario Department of Agriculture office. Another project approved for 1966 is the payment of $15 premium on approved boars purchased by Prince Edward County Hog Producers. The Association will pay $15 on an approved boar per breeder during the year. For further details those who are interested are advised to contact the secretary, Ross Pierson, Wellington.

DAIRY OWNERS MEET

Dairy cattle owners are reminded of the second meeting in the winter meeting series to be held in the Bloomfield Town Hall on Thursday. The speaker again this week will be John Dalrymple, Animal Husbandry Division, Kemptville Agricultural School. Mr. Dalrymple will continue the discussion on dairy cattle with emphasis on feeding and management of the cow throughout the lactation period. During recent years considerable emphasis has been placed on making high quality hay and silage and for this reason in many cases there has been a change in the amount of protein and total digestible nutrients that need to be supplied in the form of concentrates and supplements. These matters will be discussed in detail and rations will be worked out which will indicate to the cattle owner how he can work out his feed requirements on his own farm. The necessity for work in this direction has been further brought out as a result of the adverse weather during the past year. In many cases farmers have had to adjust their feeding program to make up for the lack of adequate quantities orf good quality hay.

The annual Quinte District Leadership School will be held in the Sophiasburg Central School, Demorestville on Saturday. The program will start with registration at 10 in the morning and will feature several interesting speakers. During the day's program Rev. Johnston, Trinity United Church, Napanee will speak on "Program Planning." Mrs. Mary Hinan, Peterborough, will lead a discussion on recreation; Capt. Jack Rogers of Picton, Past President of the Prince Edward Historical Society will speak on the "History of the Quinte Area" and Barton McLean, Lennox and Addington County will give an illustrated talk on his overseas trip. In addition to these speakers there will be sing songs and recreation at different periods of the day. There will be a banquet in the Demorestville Hall in the evening and this will be followed by a play, party and dance which will be led by Mrs. Hinan.

From the Canadian Potato Breeding Program at Fredericton, N.B. has come a newly-licensed variety called "Sable." It is a white, smooth, round potato, scab-resistant and very early sizing. Specific gravity is low and so if it has a place in Ontario is most likely only as an early potato. The variety has been tested in Essex, Kent, and Norfolk Counties during 1965 and tests have been promising. Since the variety can be harvested before Irish Cobbler it appears that this variety may fill a need and be useful to our early market gardeners. Market gardeners in the Quinte area may wish to plant a bag of "Sable" as a test plot. It is expected that seed will be quite scarce, but available.

Supreme Court To Hear Appeal Of Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada decided Monday to hear an appeal by Russell Horsburgh against his conviction of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

The former United Church minister now is serving a one-year jail sentence after being found guilty of encouraging sexual intercourse among teenagers in Chatham.

After a two-hour argument by lawyer Charles Dubin of Toronto, who appeared for Mr. Horsburgh, the three justices who heard the motion said they all agreed that the appeal should be heard.

The appeal probably won't come before the Supreme Court until the fall session.

PREFERS FEDERATION

EDMONTON (CP)—The moderator of the 91st assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada says a tightly-knit federation of churches would be preferable to church union. Dr. James A. Munro of Toronto said such a federation would allow each church to retain its identity and "at the same time make its views known in a stronger way."

Wellington Has New Fire Alarm System

PICTON (Staff) — A new fire alarm system has been installed in the village of Wellington. Wellington now, along with the town of Tweed, will have its fire department coordinated from Belleville. Now, to report a fire in the village residents must now call Zenith 9-8830 which is the Belleville fire station. Wellington firemen will now be given the location of their fire from Belleville by radio. Belleville also sounds the fire alarm in Wellington.

In the past when the Wellington fire department number was called it automatically set off the alarm siren. The location of the fire was received at the fire station. This automatic alarm system resulted in more than 100 false alarms in the village last year. "Its no fun to get up at 5 a.m. for a false alarm," said Chief Jack Ogilvie. "With the new system they'll think twice. So far in the first week of the new system two false alarms were turned in by "die-hard pranksters". Cost of the new equipment was expensive, commented Chief Ogilvie, but 45 per cent was paid by federal and provincial grants and the monthly costs are much less than before."

Buckled Tank Causes Council Some Concern

PICTON (Staff) — At the monthly meeting of town council here this week members were again confronted with the sewage problem. The latest report on the situation, a huge buckled tank, a major part of the town's $250,000 water pollution control centre, was submitted by Andrew Jarvis, Chairman of Streets and Property Committee. He said the matter had been referred to the town solicitor R. E. Nourse and that the town's consulting engineering firm of Crysler, Davis and Jorganson is trying to obtain the services of an independent engineering firm to make a thorough study of the tank and report on the cause of the unusual buckling. The huge steel tank buckled mysteriously one night in November and the new plant now in its third month of idleness relies on the old auxiliary system to continue to handle the sewage volume. Council hopes to claim all or part of the costs from one or more of the parties involved in designing or building the tank or the new plant. The incident occured only a few days after the one year guarantee on the project expired. No figure has as yet been published on the cost of repairing the damage or replacing the tank but it is quite clear that a lot of money the town can ill afford would be involved.

Wallbridge

WALLBRIDGE — Wallbridge U.C.W. held their pot-luck dinner on Thursday with a good attendance of adults and school children. After dinner the U.C.W. meeting was held with Mrs. Ted Gaudaur, president, in charge. Mrs. Don Shorey had the program with the theme, "the church in an age of challenge".

Wallbridge L.O.B.A. held a euchre party on Wednesday night with a good attendance.

Mr. George Rikley returned home on Monday from the Belleville General Hospital where he underwent surgery.

Convict Claims Accused Admitted Killing Uncle

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A convict with a long record testified today that Melvin Lane Powers confessed to him in a Houston jail that he killed his multi-millionaire uncle, Jacques Mossler.

"He said he stabbed him," declared the witness, Billy Frank Mulvey.

Mulvey said the incident occurred after Powers' arrest in 1962 when the two men were in the Harris County jail in Houston, where Mulvey was serving a five-year sentence for which he still is detained.

Moments before, Mulvey had startled a packed courtroom with testimony that in 1962 Candace Mossler, Powers' aunt and widow of the slain financier, had given him a $7,000 down-payment to kill her husband, in a deal he said he never carried through.

Mrs. Mossler, clad in a white suit, waved an arm impatiently in the air and cried out:

"I have never seen or heard of this man."

Mrs. Mossler and Powers are on trial for their lives accused of a premeditated design to murder Mossler in furtherance of an illicit affair which the state says existed between them.

Mulvey was the third state sitness in two days to testify that he had been approached by Candace or Powers or both with a proposition to kill Mossler for a price.

The state claims that when these kill - for - hire efforts fell through, Powers undertook the chore himself with Candace's connivance.

Mulvey said he first encountered Mrs. Mossler when he took her some letters from an executed criminal, Howard Stickney, with whom he had served time in a federal penitentiary. The nature of the letters was not explained.

Mulvey testified that he delivered the letters to Mrs. Mossler in the 24 Hour Club in Houston and that she told him at the time that she would like to see him again.

Three or four weeks later, the witness continued, he met Candace alone at the same club.

"She asked me if I wanted to make some money, and I told her I did. She said she thought I could be trusted and she had someone she wanted disposed of right away.

REJECTS ADVANCE MONEY

"She asked how much. I told her that depended on the circumstances of who she wanted hit. I told her it would take 25 grand—10 grand up in advance. She said she would not put up any advance money."

"Did she tell you who it was she wanted killed?" the witness was asked.

"Her husband," Mulvey replied.

Mulvey testified that about a month later he kept a rendezvous with Candace on a private road in the Houston area and he said:

"She gave an envelope. I asked her how much there was in it. She said seven grand. I said that wasn't enough. She said that was all she was putting up."

Mulvey then said he asked Mrs. Mossler for details on her husband's movements, type of car he drove, his description and the like, explaining to the court and jury:

"In this business you can't make a mistake."

Mulvey added:

"I took the money and that was the last I seen of her."

In hard-bitten tones Monday, two ex-convicts etched a chilling picture of Candace and Powers shopping about for two years to hire themselves a killer, raising the fee when it seemed in order.

Income Tax Tips

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

MEDICAL EXPENSES

Many taxpayers are still confused as to what they may claim as medical expenses. It would be impossible for me to list in this short column each individual item that may be claimed. All costs to the taxpayer for himself or dependants due to illness, injury or affliction may be claimed, except those drugs he buys without a doctor's prescription, but here again there are certain drugs that can still be claimed for which no prescription is needed. These include insulin, Vitamin B12 for pernicious anemia and oxygen. Ordinary patent medicines are not allowable.

Other allowable deductions are for artificial limbs, crutches, eye glasses, wheel chairs, spinal braces, a brace for a limb, a truss for hernia, an artificial eye, a laryngeal speaking aid, a hearing aid, etc. The taxpayer is allowed the cost of these items as a medical expense, if for himself, wife or any other dependant

Hospital bills may not be claimed if paid by a Provincial Hospital Services plan to which the taxpayer subscribes. Doctors, dentists and nurses bills if paid by some form of insurance the taxpayer carries, may still be claimed as his personal medical expenses, if the expenses were for himself, wife or dependants.

If the taxpayer, wife or dependants require the services of a full time attendant for a 12 month period due to such person being confined to a bed or wheel chair, then the cost of such attendant may be claimed as a medical expense. This cost would not only include the wages paid but also a reasonable amount for the attendant's board. Any bill of which you are in doubt, consult your nearest income tax office or a letter to me, following the instructions given below, will bring you correct information.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: I live in a small village and have to travel 60 miles each week to consult a medical specialist. Can I add this travelling expense to my medical bills?

Answer: No.

Question 2: My daughter quit work and came home to look after her mother who is confined to bed due to illness. Can I claim the cost of her board and clothes as wages to an attendant?

Answer: No. She probably does other housework besides taking care of her mother.

Typical British Pub to Tour Canadian Cities

LONDON (CP) — A typical British publican will tour several Canadian cities with a typical 17th-century English pub—built in Toronto.

The British Tourist Association announced the "come to Britain" tourist project Monday, preparing a rousing send-off for jovial publican Louis Philip Darby Fisher, 53, and Mrs. Fisher.

In Montreal the Fishers will link up with the 32-foot by 24-foot pub-interior replica constructed by a Toronto firm and begin dispensing British good cheer.

The 2½-ton pub, designed to hold 80 imbibers, will travel westward by CPR train to Vancouver with the Fishers as they angle for tourists. It is one of the biggest projects of its kind undertaken by the association which has the co-operation of Air Canada and BOAC, a spokesman said.

The pub unit, set up in ballrooms, hotels and conference halls, will be seen in Montreal Feb. 28 and later at Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver. The Fishers also will visit several other cities, including Cornwall and Kingston.

An association official said Fisher, host at the Sun Inn at nearby Barnes, is a "good example of the British publican, with a cheery disposition, an alert knowledge of his business and the ability to create a fine atmosphere."

"I was born in a pub, I've been around pubs most of my life, and I may well die in a pub," said Fisher.

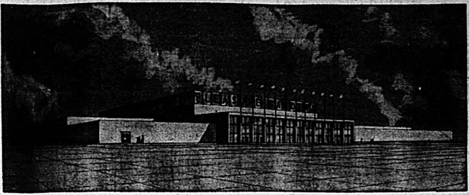
Hastings PLEASURE GARDENS

"ONTARIO'S MOST MODERN AND COMPLETE RECREATION COMPLEX"



An Open Letter To The Citizens of Hastings County & District . . .

We believe "Recreation is ALL that a person or group of persons chooses to do in order to make leisure time more satisfying and enjoyable".

Now that we have defined what Recreation is, let us go on and see just who is responsible for our Recreation. We are naturally entitled to all the assistance we may get from all Government sources, Federal, Provincial and Municipal. But, basically, is it not the responsibility of YOU and me?

Let us repeat what Mr. John Pearson, Community Planning Board, Department of Municipal Affairs, Province of Ontario, stated at a seminar held in North York in August of 1965, sponsored by the Parks and Recreation association of Canada and the Fitness and Amateur Sports Directorate of Canada:

"For our society at large we are told that this era is the beginning of the second great divide in the history of mankind and we are facing a future as different in social significance as the change that occurred when civilization succeeded barbarism. The consequence of this change, which we are just beginning to understand, will place a prodigious burden on those in the field of education and leisure time services".

All of our labor unions and educators are telling us that we must be prepared to work at our jobs less hours and this is very true. We have to accept the fact that 20 years ago we were working 60 hours per week and now we work only 40 hours and some of us less than that. Is it not almost a certainty that in another 20 years we and our children will only be working 20 hours or less? The three day weekend is almost upon us today!

What are we to do with our leisure time? Is it not past the time that we should be planning what to do with it? And is it not our duty to prepare facilities and supervision for our children so they may learn how to use their leisure time?

Our education system in Ontario fills a great need and does one of the best jobs in the world for our children but it does not and can not fill the need of educating people how to best enjoy their leisure time.

The solution must come from some other source. Many communities in Ontario are building arenas, outdoor rinks, playing fields, etc., owned and operated by the municipalities and costing the taxpayer additional tax dollars.

Now, before any community can have recreation it must have facilities. Also we must see whether the facilities the community already has are adequate or are more needed. At the seminar held in Quinte Secondary School, November 6, 1965, the two most outstanding needs for all age groups were:

1) Facilities
2) Supervision

Before you can have supervision you must have facilities and pleasant working conditions for the supervisors who are, generally speaking, of a voluntary nature . . . persons interested in the betterment of sports, recreation and the participants.

What facilities do we have? We will not list them or go into their merits or disadvantages but will rather leave it up to you to THINK of the recreation you are interested in, for yourself and for your children, and then answer the following questions. Are the facilities:

1) Adequate
2) Satisfactory
3) Functional
4) Enjoyable
5) Sufficient in Number

After due consideration we believe your answer, in most cases, will be NO!

How is this situation to be remedied?

We believe we have the answer in the Hastings County Pleasure Gardens!

THIS IS "YOUR" PROJECT!

"A PLACE FOR EVERY FAMILY TO SPEND THEIR LEISURE TIME"

We Need You . . .

We need 2,000 men, women and teenagers to contact 10 people each to make Hastings Pleasure Gardens a reality, which in turn will make our community more attractive to industry and visitors; and will furnish the residents of Hastings County and District with many recreational facilities which are badly needed in this area.

Turkey Assumes Tough, New Pose With Greece and Cyprus

By PETER BUCKLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The tough, new pose adopted by Turkey in its relations with Greece and Cyprus looks like another familiar swing of the pendulum in a situation that has fluctuated between crisis and calm for more than two years.

Turkish Foreign Minister Ihsan Sabri Caglayangil told the Turkish Senate Monday night a joint communique issued by Greeks and GreekCypriots in Athens last week had aggravated the situation and had the "appearance of leading Turkey to a war at a moment she does not wish."

The Athens communique, issued during a visit there by Cyprus President Makarios, renewed their view Enosis—union of Cyprus with Greece—could not be excluded from any potential solution of the Cyprus problem.

The Athens communique and the Ankara response differed little from past statements in both capitals.

SILENCE ENDED

But they reflected a renewed toughness on both sides after a brief period of discreet silence, the result of an agreement reached at a NATO meeting in Paris late last year that neither side would aggravate the situation.

It may not be merely chance that brings a renewal of the verbal war now.

Jose Rolz-Bennett, United Nations undersecretary for special political affairs, arrives in Nicosia this week to begin a series of meetings that will carry him also to Ankara, Athens and London.

The new statements from the antagonists have the effect of making clear, even before the 47-year-old Guatamalan diplomat starts his talks, that neither side is ready to give way.

Turkey wants negotiations with Greece and Britain aimed at safeguarding the minority Turkish community in Cyprus. Greece has joined Makarios in insisting it is for the people of Cyprus—where the Greek-Cypriots outnumber Turks four to one—to decide their own future.

Rolz-Bennett has a two-fold mission: To examine the position of the United Nations' 5,000-man force in Cyprus, and to sound out the positions of the various parties to the dispute.

The UN Security Council will have to decide in six weeks whether to continue to keep the UN force on the island, at a time when UN finances are under continuing pressure.

The Turkish - Cypriots, who say they need the protection of UN troops, have already argued a withdrawal or reduction of UN forces would leave them at the mercy of the powerful Greek-Cypriot army.

Rolz-Bennett has been left with almost no room for manoeuvre. Any action he might recommend now that would change the situation in Cyprus in any way is bound to meet with protests—if not armed resistance—from at least one of the interested parties.

To that extent, the Cyprus issue has changed little since bloody warfare broke out between Greeks and Turks on the island in December, 1963.

A year and a half of relative peace has not lessened the inherent dangers that the Cyprus discord presents, not only for the Cypriots but also for NATO and Western unity.

Canada which first sent troops to Cyprus in March, 1964, now has about 1,000 troops stationed there.

Committed to the island until March 26, they are comprised of the 2nd Battalion, Canadian Guards, a reconnaissance squadron of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, about 25 headquarters personnel and another 100 men assigned to UN force headquarters.

The government has said it will send the 2nd Battalion of the Black Watch and A Squadron, Canadian Hussars, to Cyprus if the UN mandate is extended beyond March.

Oshawa Bursting at Seams With Industry but Tax on Residents Steadily Climbing

OSHAWA (CP) — Cities that wail for industry, in the fond hope greater revenue will ease the tax woes of the citizenry, should take a look at Oshawa.

It's bursting its seams with industry—and its residential tax rate is climbing each year. The rate was 36.5 mills in 1962, 37 in 1963, 38.6 in 1964 and 41.1 in 1965.

Oshawa, 35 miles east of Toronto, is in the news because of a fight by its giant labor unions against use of court injunctions in labor disputes.

There are manufacturing plants in this city that would make city fathers elsewhere envious.

A high-wage industrial magnet, it attracts workers from as far as 50 miles away, with perhaps the major part from the nearby 2,000,000-person Metropolitan Toronto area.

LIVE ELSEWHERE

Thus many who work here live somewhere else. That's the reason for the high ratio of union workers (more than 23,000) to total population (about 75,000).

There are 18 plants which employ 100 or more workers, most of them feeding materials and finished products into the huge General Motors of Canada Ltd. plant which employs 18,000.

The Oshawa Industrial Commission, which supplies these figures, notes one of these industries, Robson-Lang Leathers Ltd., employs 1,250.

Three other factories employ 700 or more. There are also three steel - fabricating plants, an iron works and many smaller industries.

The industrial commission tells of the new $13,000,000 shopping plaza with 60 stores, 53 acres, parking for 4,000 cars—and piped-in music that is piped out again for the benefit of customers in the malls.

MAKE EXCUSES

If you shut your eyes and dive through the glowing adjectives in the official report looking for the reason for those rising taxes, you come up among miscellaneous excuses.

Mostly it's a reason many other cities would like to have—the city is growing so much, so fast and so big the taxes are hard-pressed to provide new sewers, new roads, new schools and other services.

But with a total disposable income (in 1964) of $149,500,000 and a bank-cheque-cashing total the same year of $4,820,000,000, Oshawans think they can make a go of it.

In terms of banking, Oshawa ranks fifth in Ontario, behind Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton and London.

In case you're wondering, Oshawa is Indian for "the crossing of a stream."

Diefenbaker Wants Debates Broadcast

OTTAWA (CP)—Serious consideration should be given to broadcasting parliamentary debates, Conservative Leader Diefenbaker said Tuesday.

He told a Canadian Club luncheon the people are not getting the story of Parliament under the present no - broadcast system.

Mr. Diefenbaker noted that when he was prime minister he had the parliamentary opening televised. "We should expand that," he said.

It is understood that Mr. Diefenbaker had both radio and television coverage in mind.

He also said he is "becoming concerned" that "two or three groups may find themselves in control of radio and television.

"That's a dangerous course for democracy." He did not elaborate on this point.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Parliament's image must be improved. He said that backbenchers do not get the opportunity to be heard by the public.

The Commons continued debate on spending estimates of the external affairs department.

This followed announcement by Prime Minister Pearson that there have been discussions with the Vatican on a peace appeal by the Pope.

The external affairs debate ranged again over Viet Nam and Rhodesia.

New Democrat Leader Douglas said the U.S. soon pass the point of no return in Viet Nam and nuclear war could result.

Jack Bigg (PC—Athabasca) said, the NDP peddles the Communist line.

External Affairs Minister Martin said economic sanctions will bring down the rebel Rhodesian government.

He said the Viet Nam truce commission, on which Canada serves, may yet find a way to open peace negotiations.

A Conservative motion to trim the costs for Canada's truce commission operation in Viet Nam was defeated 74 to 45.

The estimates were finally approved, clearing the way for study of other departments.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported the consumer price index reached a record high of 141.2.

500,000 Shares Of Studebaker May Be Sold

NEW YORK (AP)—An offer to buy 500,000 shares of Studebaker Corp. common shares at $30 a share has been made by a group of investors.

Lehman Brothers and Lazard Freres and Co., New York investment banking houses representing the investors, announced the offer.

A spokesman for Lehman declined to dentify the prospective purchasers.

The 500,000 shares constitute about 18 per cent of Studebaker's outstanding stock. Studebaker auto manufacturing now is centred at Hamilton, Ont.

Byers A. Burlingame, president of Studebaker, in a preliminary statement on earnings issued here Monday, said 1965 earnings are estimated at $10,500,000, up 30 per cent from 1964. In 1963 the company had a deficit.

Studebaker shares were valued at $29.12 Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange.

State Lottery Is Approved In New York

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The New York state assembly voted final legislative approval Tuesday for a measure that would clear the way for establishment of a state lottery.

The assembly action, with 124 voting for the lottery plan and 34 opposing it, sent the question to the voters for a final decision. It will appear on the November election ballot as a proposed amendment to the state constitution.

The plan would funnel all proceeds from a lottery into state aid for public schools.

Estimate of revenue from a state - operated lottery have ranged up to $400,000,000 a year. .

While the lottery measure does not specify what form the lottery would take, supporters of the plan have talked of a sweepstakes, similar to the New Hampshire plan, which is based on horse races.

LONG DROUGHT ENDS

NEW DELHI (AP) — People ran into the streets and began dancing with joy Wednesday as the northern hill city of Simla received a rainfall breaking the prolonged drought. Simla, 170 miles north of New Delhi, usually has considerable snow during the winter months. This winter the hills are bare as that region, like most of India, suffers through the worst drought in 100 years.

Negotiations Resumed in Oshawa Strike

TORONTO (CP)—While members of the striking Oshawa unit of the Toronto Newspaper Guild were supported by labor union members from as far away as Hamilton Tuesday, guild and Oshawa Times representatives held a nine-hour meeting yesterday.

The meeting, seeking agreement in the strike that has stilled the presses of The Times since Jan. 27, was adjourned shortly after midnight and was to resume at 10 a.m. today.

Held in the office of Ontario Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree, it was the first company-union negotiating session since the 36-member guild went on strike.

W. H. Dickie, an industrial relations consultant about to join the provincial labor department as director of conciliation services who is directing the Guild-management negotiations, said "satisfactory progress" was made at the meeting.

Orval McGuire, executive secretary of the Toronto Newspaper Guild (CLC) and chief mediator in the dispute, heads the guild team.

ROBARTS MOVES

The negotiations resulted from a direct intervention Monday by Premier John Robarts and members of the Ontario cabinet. Mr. Robarts has called in officials of the guild, the Oshawa and district labor Council and the Ontario Federation of Labor, and spoke to officials of Thomson Newspapers Ltd.

Following announcement of the meeting, counsel for Thomson newspapers asked for and obtained adjournment of a Toronto court hearing on an application that sought tighter restrictions on picketing at The Times building here.

Adjournment was allowed to next Thursday by chief Justice G. A. Gale of the Ontario Supreme Court.

The newspaper had applied for an order that would bar picketing at the Times building, and authorize peace officers to enforce it.'

An injunction issued Jan. 31 limited pickets to 10, but pickets from non-guild unions have ignored it.

Meanwhile, the Oshawa and District Labor Coukneil was told by council president Clifford Pilkey Tuesday night that settlement of the strike will not slow down organized labor's drive to have the injunction law wiped off the statute books.

May Use Truce Commission To Settle Viet Nam Conflict

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada appears to be working for a new Geneva conference on Viet Nam.

Such a conference, informed sources say, is the only framework in which all the Viet Nam principals are likely to be prepared to negotiate.

The 1954 Geneva conference ended the eight-year war between France and the Communist Viet Minh in Indochina and established the international truce commissions in Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia on which Canada, India and Poland are the members.

Prime Minister Pearson informed the Commons Tuesday that Canada in recent weeks has been conferring with India and Poland on possible use of the commission as a vehicle for negotiations on Viet Nam.

External Affairs Minister Martin has held personal discussions here with representatives of these two countries and of other interested nations. He plans to pursue the matter at the United Nations and in Washington.

The Viet Nam problem now rests in the UN Security Council. The difficulty is, of course, that North Viet Nam, Communist China and South Viet Nam are not UN members. The first two have refused to discuss the issue in the UN.

Thus, informed sources said, Canada's main diplomatic effort is aimed at bridging the gap between the UN and a new Geneva conference.

Mr. Martin told the Commons during a foreign policy debate Tuesday that Canada has no intention of withdrawing from the truce commission in Viet Nam.

He said it is serving an important role and might serve an important "potential purpose"—a reference to possible peace negotiations on Viet Nam.

This is a change from 1964 when Mr. Martin tried to get Japan to take over Canada's membership on the three commissions.

The Liberals and the three small opposition parties combined Tuesday night to defeat 74 to 45 a Conservative motion calling for a $537,000 reduction in the $637,000 cost of the Canadian contingent in Viet Nam in 1964-65.

Mr. Pearson also said Tuesday in reply to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker that Mr. Martin has had discussions with a representative of the Vatican concerning Pope Paul's appeal for neutral-nation mediation in Viet Nam.

It was learned that Mr. Martin conferred Monday with Most Rev. Sergio Pignedoli, apostolic delegate here. Mr. Martin told the Commons he offered thanks to the Pope for his appeal.

Earlier, NDP Leader Douglas said the Honolulu conference of President Johnson and Premier Ky of South Viet Nam will promote further intensification of the war in Viet Nam.

He said Canada should make a strong "last appeal" to the U.S. before the "homicidal madness" of a nuclear war between the U.S. and Russia.

CPR Passenger Operations May Be Subject of Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP)—The controversy on the CPR's passenger services has been referred to the Commons committee on transport and communications.

The motion in the Commons Tuesday night by Transport Minister Pickersgill was passed with his assurance that it won't limit discussion of the CPR's policy during debate on his department's estimates.

The controversy centres around the CPR decision to discontinue transcontinental railway service on the Dominion passenger train.

The decision means the committee may summon witnesses to public hearings on the reason for the railway's discontinuation of the Dominion and the whole scope of CPR passenger operations. These have been the subject of criticism in many areas across the country.

Such an inquiry has been demanded by the opposition.

The CPR applied to the board of transport commissioners to scrap the Dominion, leaving the railway with only one Montreal-Vancouver passenger train a day.

The board granted the permission but withheld a ruling on whether or not the CPR would be required to operate the train during the summer tourist season.

The board announced Tuesday the CPR would not have to do so during the summer of 1966. But it left open the question of whether the railway might be asked to reinstate the train for the summer of 1967, the centennial of Confederation.

Deny Zambia Gives Britain Ultimatum

LONDON (Reuters) — Zambian and British government spokesmen here today discounted a press report that President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia had given Britain an ultimatum to crush Rhodesia within a week.

The London newspaper, The Sun, said that the ultimatum was brought to London Tuesday by Malcolm Macdonald, Britain's special envoy in Africa.

The report said that Kaunda had warned Macdonald in Lusaka that he would give the British government until Tuesday to bring down Ian Smith's Salisbury regime, and then instigate independent action.

A Zambian high commission spokesman said in London: "There is no truth at all in this report. We know nothing of such an ultimatum."

Closing Wage Gap Between Canadian and U.S. Auto Workers Aim of Talks

WASHINGON (CP) — The United Auto Workers will press in 1967 negotiations for complete closing of the wage gap between the Canadian and American auto industry, Vice-President Leonard Woodcock said Tuesday.

The UAW has estimated this would mean about another $89,000,000 because tariffs have members annually.

Woodcock, speaking to a press conference prior to the annual union conference of General Motors membership, said it is up to the Canadians to endorse the concept of a master North American auto industry contract.

He also reiterated the union contention that the big auto makers so far have offered only token price cuts to Canadian consumers in response to getting an annual saving of $50,000,000 because tariffs tave been abolished within the industry.

WANTS GAP CLOSED

Closing the gap was necessary for U.S. job security, Woodcock said.

About 600 unions from General Motors plants in Canada and the U.S. are meeting today and Thursday. The chief aim is to get reaction to the wage-gap move. The union's Canadian membership exceeds 70,000 in auto plants, aerospace workers and farm machinery. There are 25,000 members in five GM plants in Ontario and Quebec.

The U.S. contract with GM expires in September, 1967, and Canada's a month later so the wage-gap issue will be raised first with the American parents of GM, then Ford, Chrysler and American Motors.

By then, said Woodcock, the gap in GM will be about 41-to-42 cents an hour in the U.S. favor, a slight increase over the current spread.

The UAW has calculated that the average U.S. auto production hourly wage in 1964 was $3.31 against the Canadian level of $2.62.

1967 Licence Plates Will Have New Look

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario has redesigned its motor vehicle licence plates to give them a centennial theme in 1967.

Next year's plates will bear the word Confederation at the bottom, separating the numerals of the year 1867. At the top, the word Ontario will be fitted in between the numerals of 1967.

The actual numbers of the licence plate will be separated by a crown in the middle of the plate.

The government displayed prototypes of the new plates at a press conference Tuesday.

The plates will have white lettering and numbering on a blue background — the same as in 1965. They are about to go into production at Millbrook reformatory near Peterborough, where they are manufactured by prisoners.

FIND SWASTIKA SIGNS

LONDON (AP)—Ten swastika signs were found painted on the wall of London's Brixton jail Wednesday. With them were slogans of support for three young men held there for trial on charges of setting fire to two synagogues last July. Tuesday swastikas were daubed on Old Bailey, London's central criminal court where the trial continues.

Consumer Price Index for Jan. Shows Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index for January rose two-fifths of a point to a record 141.2, the bureau of statistics reported Tuesday.

Higher prices for food, housing and tobacco pushed the index up from 140.8 in December, the former record.

The index, based on 1949 consumer prices equalling 100, was 3.1 per cent higher than a year previous when it stood at 136.9. Economists say that, ideally, prices should not rise more than 1½ to two per cent a year.

There was a drop in the index of clothing prices, to 122.7 from 123.8 in December, but the price increases for other goods and services were more than enough to offset this.

DBS has no directly comparable measure of family incomes.

DBS said the food index rose one full point to 140.6 in January from 139.6 in December because of higher prices for beef, pork, fish, chicken, most fruits and vegetables, tea, coffee, butter and shortening.

INCREASES DOMINANT

These more than offset price decreases for eggs, oranges, orange juice, tomatoes, celery, most bakery and cereal products, evaporated milk and turkey.

The housing index, which covers both shelter and household operation expenses, rose half a point to 142.9 from 142.4. Rent and home-ownership costs were up, including mortgage rates and repair prices. Furniture, electricity, household help and some household supplies cost more. These outweighed lower prices for appliances, floor coverings, cotton sheets and soap flakes.

The clothing index declined to 122.7 from 123.8 because of generally lower prices for men's, women's and children's wear. There were higher prices for footwear, men's shirts, boys' trousers and pyjamas, but these were offset by January sale prices for other clothing.

The transportation index rose 149.1 from 148.8. There were some seasonal increases in train fares which outweighed lower prices for new cars.

Higher prices for cigarettes and cigarette tobacco pushed the tobacco and alcohol index to 123.1 from 122.3. The health and personal care index edged up to 178.1 from 177.9 because of higher prices for some personal-care items.

MEASURES CHANGES

The consumer price index measures changes since 1949 in the prices of a selection of goods and services representative of purchases made by families of two to six, living in cities with over 30,000 population, and with annual incomes during 1957 ranging from $2,500 to $7,000.

It is compiled from a survey of prices of approximately 300 goods and services. The survey is conducted late in the month preceding the one for which it applies—in this case, late in December for the January index.

The housing component accounts for 32 per cent of the over-all index, food for 27 per cent.

Retirement pensions and expansion have been threshed out topics of the National Hockey League for some time now The pensions arrived and expansion sits on the threshold of a new era.

But unwittingly or not, the pastured-out knights of King Arthur Campbell's round table, have struck a potential gusher in the oil-field grazing grounds, that could prove a lucrative field for the Rip Van Winkles of the future.

Older hockey fans have long memories. The younger breed may have scoffed at what they read, heard or have been told.

But perhaps the age-old curiosity has caused the "cats" not to die but to go see for themselves how the warhorses of former hockey tournaments did their joustings before the loyal squires, men-at-arms and ladies of their heyday.

Proof of this is seen in the capacity-crowds that greeted the first clashes of the Detroit Oldtimers and their Quebec counterparts.

Over 15,000 habitants, couriers-du-bois plentifully garnished with the frug-watusi-monkey set, crammed the Montreal Forum in the opening tilt of the twin clashes.

Detroit's Olympia borrowed deck chairs for aisle accomodation for 14,500 of the ancient faithful and the modern day curious when the venerables crossed rapiers in the Motor City second hobnobbing.

As one writer puts it:- "The noble experiments in ice programs to recapture the hockey color of earlier days in the NHL; and reunite old friends and rivals in the name of sweet charities; were tonics more potent than the organizers ever dreamed of."

The sensational success of the inaugural series between the Quebec and Detroit Oldtimers could very well be the cornerstone to the building of an "Oldtimers League" that would embrace all six clubs of the National Hockey League.

The waves of nostalgia swept across the nation. As Henry the Eighth remarked to his court after dragging his fifth spouse to the altar. "I think the idea has caught on." Writing is beginning to appear in the date-books of the puck Mephistos.

Out on the Pacific coast where Vancouver puck addicts are beginning to whiff a National Hockey League aroma in the eastern winds sweeping across the Rockies, fans of the older days caught the bug.

Glen Harmon, Rocket Richard, Butch Bouchard, Kenny Mosdell and Dickie Moore the main "props" of the Quebec association, have been invited to join forces with greybeards selected from the other five clubs and play a squad of major league stars now residing out thataway.

So don't be surprised to hear that in the not too distant future Toronto, New York, Boston and Chicago's senior hockey citizens will be applying for a franchise in a new "Oldtimers League".

The bonds that held these former stars of Montreal and Detroit did not snap when individually they walked or skated the last mile and went over Retirement Hill.

The aging Habs clung together through the medium of a golf tournament. Then word came that Detroit oldtimers were hobnobbing in a special room in Olympia called "The Lodge Room". An idea was born. Why not get together - en masse - on the ice?

The result was the home-and-home series that caught the fancy of the fans like a lighted match to gasoline.

So Gordie Howe and his charmed circle of twenty-years service in NHL ranks, may change their minds about bequeathing war accoutrements to a museum. The post-graduation exercises may prove to be not only health-retaining but lucrative as well, although the games to date have been played, as was noted "for sweet charity's sake."

Flyers Shut Out Rangers

Wings Blank Nationals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Theoretically, Hamilton Red Wings didn't even have to come out on to the ice to get their first shutout of the season Tuesday night in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

The first and winning goal was scored by a London Nationals' defenceman into his own net in the first period. Don Giesebrecht was credited with the goal and the Red Wings went on to score two more themselves for a 3-0 win.

The other game between Niagara Fals Flyers and Kitchener Rangers ended 5-0 for the Flyers and the first shutout of the season for goalie Dunc Wilson.

The other Hamilton scorers were Kevin Pettit and Giesebrecht with his second of the night.

The Flyers, playing with four regulars out of the lineup, moved within one point of first-place Peterborough Petes.

Derek Sanderson, with two goals, Jean Pronovost, Steve Atkinson and Ted Snell all scored.

Eight Holding Breath ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Some Decision Today

Expansion Rabbits Are Still In Hat!

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

NEW YORK (CP)—A thick fog of suspense settled over the special meetings of the National Hockey League's board of governors today as the rulers of big-time hockey continued to ponder whom they would allow to join their ranks.

Thirteen groups from eight cities—Vancouver and seven in the United States—have applied for NHL franchises here this week to league president Clarence Campbell and the governors representing Montreal, Toronto, Boston, New York, Detroit and Chicago.

Six new franchises are at stake.

Almost without exception, spokesmen for these groups have voiced optimism. Some, Baltimore and Buffalo in particular, have radiated it.

Hockey broadcaster Foster Hewitt, a member of the Vancouver delegation, said after meeting the NHL governors Tuesday: "It was like looking at a sphinx."

While much of the attention was focused on three bidding cities from the Pacific Coast, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Vancouver, the American Hockey League raised its voice in demands for indemnification when the NHL expands to 12 teams—a move planned for the 1967-68 season.

AHL WANTS MONEY

AHL president Jack Riley of Rochester, N.Y., said Tuesday his nine-team league voted to seek total indemnities of $1,800,000 from any team getting an NHL franchise in a city now a member of the AHL.

Three AHL cities, Buffalo, Baltimore and Pittsburgh, are in the running for NHL franchises. Two groups are in contention from Pittsburgh, the only city besides Los Angeles to be represented by more than one bidder.

FOSTER HEWITT

Some decision about new franchises is expected after the NHL governors end their meetings today. One of the governors, David Molson, president of Montreal Canadiens, said Tuesday: "I would be surprised and disappointed if there were not at least two franchises awarded before we finish our business here."

Hockey observers regard it as virtually certain Los Angeles and San Francisco will be members of the expanded NHL.

In the case of Los Angeles, however, there is a problem of choosing among five separate bidders. The five include Jack Kent Cooke, former owner of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League and now owner of Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association.

VANCOUVER'S INCLUDED

The four other new cities are expected to be chosen among Baltimore and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

A Philadelphia group headed by Jerry Wolman, presidet of the Eagles of the National Football League, has applied for a franchise but is regarded as an outside contender.

The six new teams will comprise a separate NHL division, which will have an interlocking schedule with the older division and will be eligible from the beginning to compete for the Stanley Cup.

Whether or not the new division includes a Canadian city depends entirely on the success of the Vancouver bid. Cyrus McLean, president of the Western Hockey League's Canucks and head of a 12-man syndicate making the NHL bid, told reporters Tuesday: "We spoke our piece. We were well received and we are optimistic. But we realize there is lots of competition."

Hewitt said the NHL governors have indicated in the past they want a Canadian city to be among the new members.

Los Angeles, San Francisco and Vancouver would form a "natural grouping," Hewitt said, and the fact that each of these cities is in the picture should enhance the chances of the other two.

Lions Suspend Veteran

DETROIT (AP) — For the first time in their 31-year history Detroit Lions have suspnded a player.

Veteran end Gail Cogdill was given an indefinite suspension by the National Football League club Tuesday for remarks he was reported to have made about the club's head coach, Harry Gilmer, its management and about other players on the team at a meeting in Flint Mich., last Wednesday.

Cogdill was reported to have said Gilmer "doesn't know how to handle men and he's not ready for a coaching job . . . if Gilmer comes back at all, he might be the only one who does."

He later denied making such statements.

A reporter who attended the Flint meeting quoted other statements by Cogdill about player salaries, controversial halfback Joe Don Looney and Gilmer.

Problem halfback Looney "did not turn out so well as he thought he would. We're taking him back next year on a trial basis. We can't trade him because nobody wants him," Cogdill is quoted as saying.

Regals Nip Athletics

GUELPH (CP) — Terry Oliver's second goal of the night gave Guelph Regals a 5-4 overtime in over Woodstock Athletics in Ontario Hockey Association senior action Tuesday night.

Woodstock forced the overtime by scoring four third-period goals to wipe out a 3-0 lead by the Regals.

The win was Guelph's 20th of the season in 33 starts and increased their first-place hold to eight points over the Athletics.

Other Guelph marksmen were Keith Worrall, Jim Robertson and Bob Pole.

Art Sullivan scored two goals for Woodstock, with Dino Leggio and Tom Wilson getting one each.

TAKE OVER BUSINESS

Horsemen Charge Jockey Club Coercion

TORONTO (CP)—Racing will continue as usual on the three Ontario Jockey Club tracks, the Ontario Harness Horsemen's Association said Tuesday.

But at the same time the association accused the Jockey Club of coercion in attempting to negotiate the 1966 purse schedule with individual horsemen.

Les Ehrlick of Toronto, association president, told a press conference that the company is trying to establish acceptance of stalls by individual members as an agreement to accept the purse schedule offered earlier by the Jockey Club.

Negotiations between the company and the association broke down when the Horsemen demanded half the mutuel handle at the three tracks — Toronto Greenwood, Garden City Raceway in St. Catharines and Mohawk Raceway near Campbelleville, Ont.

The Jockey Club has offered an average of $9,350 in purses for each racing day.

Ehrlick said he hopes a settlement will be reached before the season opens at Greenwood Feb. 26, "but we will not stop the start of the racing season."

In a letter to individual Horsemen Feb. 3, John J. Mooney, executive vice - president of the Jockey Club, said the company considers an acceptance of stalls implies "a willingness to race for the purses which this company is offering."

Owners with horses racing at the tracks must apply for stabling accommodation before the season opens.

The association has sent a letter to its nearly 800 members advising them to disregard Mooney's letter if they have already been granted stalls by the Jockey Club.

He said the $9,350 in daily purse distribution which the Jockey Club is offering is the same amount in dollars which 1965 purses averaged, but is lower than last year's percentage on the company's projected handle for 1966.

Ontario Rinks Eye Curl Title

BRAMPTON (CP) — Eight teams begin play today in the round-robin Ontario Curling Association championships to select a team for the Canadian championships at Halifax March 7 to 11.

Three of the teams, seasoned contestants, are favorites in the competition that ends Friday.

Top favorite is Dixie Curling Club's rink skipped by Joe Gurowka, who has been in three previous provincial finals.

Waterloo Glenbriar Curling Club's rink is led by another three-time provincial skip, Bob Mann, but his team has had fewer chances to play together.

George Parkes, skipping the St. Thomas rink, has been in the provincial finals once before.

Ottawa Curling Club's Gord Brown is expected to provide tough opposition along with Rod Sjoberg of Peterborough Irwin Wallace of Port Carling, E. J. Pierce of Dundas Valley and P. C. Lavier of RCAF Centralia.

Hawks Host Wings In Tie-Breaker

Blues At Leafs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs will be wthout Bob Baun, their chunky defenceman, going into tonight's National Hockey League game, but they must be used to it by now.

Baun has missed half of Toronto's 44 games to date this season due to injuries and his absence tonight against New York Rangers will put him over the top of the 50 per cent mark.

Detroit Red Wings visit Chicago Black Hawks in the only other game tonight. Chicago, Detroit and Montreal Canadiens all share top spot in the league standings with 56 points.

Baun a native of Lanigan, Sask., missed nine weeks with torn knee ligaments.

He returned to the lineup last Thursday against Montreal Canadiens, who defeated the Leafs 5-4, and he played in Saturday's game against the Hawks as the Leafs won 5-2.

However, the hard-hitting defenceman was knocked out of Sunday's game against the Hawks by a solid bodycheck from defenceman Matt Ravlich.

Baun should be back in the lineup for Toronto's weekend games. The Leafs did not say what injury Baun had suffered, only that it wasn't his knee.

PRONOVOST OUT TOO

Teammate Marcel Pronovost is out with stretched knee ligaments. Pronovost, recovering slowly from his injury, may be out another week.

The Leafs called up Duane Rupp, a defenceman from Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League. Rupp, who played two games with Toronto last season, is expected to be with Toronto for the one game only.

Bob Wall of Pittsburgh Hornets, leading scorer among AHL defenceman, was recalled Tuesday by Detroit. Wall has 33 points in 46 games with the Hornets this season.

The Wings will be without defenceman Doug Barkley who suffered a serious eye injury during a game with Chicago Jan. 30. He was reported by doctors Tuesday to be "progressing satisfactorily."

Barkley underwent emergency surgery after being struck in the right eye by a hockey stick during the Wings' 5-1 loss to Chicago.

Doctors at Detroit Osteopathic Hospital said it was still too early to determine whether Barkley would suffer any visual loss.

Spokesmen for the club said they do not know whether Barkley will be able to play again this season.

$125,000 To Mays, Report

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sports columnist Jack Hanley wrote Tuesday that Willie Mays, the most valuable player in the National League last season, has signed his 1966 contract with San Francisco Giants for a record $125,000.

Hanley writes a column for a series of northern California newspapers.

Told of the story, Charles (Chub) Feeney, the Giants vice president, said: "I think the reports is a little premature. We'll have an announcement about that in a few days."

Hanley wrote that Mays signed his contract Monday following a conference with Feeney at Candlestick Park. A $125,000 salary would represent a $20,000 raise for the all-star centre fielder.

Former Boston Red Sox outfielder Ted Williams once got a reported $125,000 for one season, a figure later disputed.

The Handguns

Frank Allin scored 267 to pace the field at the Quinte Marksmen's regular shoot last night.

Other scores were: Reg Spraccsar 246, and Don Parks 248. csar 246, and Don Parks 243.

Tonight, the Marksmen visit Trenton Handgun Club for a National Course competition.

LAW SINGS

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Vernon Law, Pittsburgh Pirates' winningest pitcher last year, has signed his 1966 contract.

Seaboards Wallop Combines

Outscoring the opposition in every period, Picton Seaboards whipped the Kingston-Gananoque Merchants 11-4 in a Lakeshore Intermediate Hockey League game in Gananoque last night.

Picton led 4-2 after one heat and 8-2 after a pair before holding a 3-2 edge in the third.

Roland Berry had a scoring field day in leading Picton's wide-open attack. Berry scored six goals, two in the first, three in the second and a final in the third. He also earned one assist.

Sam Mulholland, Moe Hunter, Schraeder, Leo St. Denis and Jim Guernsey were the other goal-getters. Hunter collected six assists, Guernsey three, Mulholland and White two each, Holding, St. Denis, Kennedy and Schraeder one apiece.

B. Murray was the best of the losers with three goals and an assist on the other one, scored by O'Sullivan. Roantree got two helpers.

Seaboards drew five of seven minor penalties.

Vancouver Walloped By Blades

VANCOUVER (CP) — Last-place Los Angeles Blades spotted Vancouver Canucks an early 1-0 lead and then scored nine goals in a row as they skated to an easy 9-2 win in a Western Hockey League game Tuesday night.

The win moved the Blades to within one point of fifth-place San Francisco Seals.

"Pointers" For Hull

A Record, A Whammy, An Apple

By ELMER BONTER

POINT ANNE — Bobby Hull, the fabulous left winger for the Chicago Black Hawks is going to score 51 goals this year and set a new seasonal scoring record.

That is the impression you get when you visit his birthplace here.

Right now, the 300 cement town residents keep tongues in cheek when queried on the subject. "Mum" seems to be the word.

However, what they're thinking and hoping for is clearly evidenced by the look of confidnece on faces when the subject is mentioned.

Inwardly there is hope and confidence that their idol will become the first to reach the coveted 51-goals plateau in history.

The atmosphere is that of the lull before the storm. You can sense everyone here anticipates their favorite son to come through. Something tells you there is an underground movement to organize a fitting ceremony to record their star's greatest accomplishment.

The conservative attitude is said to be the result of a splurge of enthusiasm last year when Bobby aimed at the record and was 'homing in" on the target.

While hockey fans the country over watched and waited a delegation from Point Anne headed by Hull's first team manager Earle Anderson carried a telegram signed by 450 people to Toronto to wish Bobby good luck. It was presented to him just before the game.

"That was the night Bobby suffered the leg injury that spoiled his big chance that time," said Mr. Anderson. "We don't intend expressing our feelings this time until we know he's got it for sure.

BOBBY HULL

With Bobby seven goals away from the record, his father and mother here find it hard to contain themselves. Mr. Hull firmly believes it will be no problem if the injury possibility can be sidelined. He says omens and luck have no place in Bobby's future.

He feels it is Bobby's edge in skating and shooting that will decide whether he becomes the greatest goal scorer of all time.

Bobby's mother, however, recognizes any sign that will improve her son's endeavor. Her greatest treasure at the moment is a huge blood-red Delicious apple.

"Robert gave it to me the night he scored his first hat trick in Toronto this year," she smiles proudly.

"I remember I kissed it and screamed every time he scored. The way I was going on I supose the people sitting around me figured I was crazy. They would have no way of knowing that I was his mother."

"Afterwards" she continued," I got thinking that maybe the apple was some sort of charm that brought good luck to Robert. So I brought it back with me."

"Since then I've learned to cherish it" she said, "I keep it in the 'frig' wrapped in cellophane and whenever he adds another goal to his total, I take it out and give it another big smack. I've vowed never to take a bite out of it until Robert breaks 50."

She says the magic apple appears more appetizing every time she is called to give it another affectionate peck.

"It could be it's a way of telling me everything's going to be all right for Robert."

Black Muslims Get Cut

Fight, Pay Cheques Guaranteed

CASSIUS CLAY

ERNIE TERRELL

CHICAGO (AP)—Everything has been guaranteed for the world heavyweight boxing championship between Cassius Clay and Ernie Terrell in Chicago's International Amphitheatre March 29.

The fight itself was guaranteed when the Illinois State Athletic Commission formally approved the contract and renewed Clay's Illinois boxing licence.

The billing of "the fight for the undisputed world heavyweight boxing championship" was guaranteed since Clay is generally recognized as the champion and Terrell is the titleholder as far as the World Boxing Association is concerned.

Clay was guaranteed $450,000 from all facets of the 15-round bout.

Terrell will receive 20 per cent across the board with a $50,000 guarantee from the live gate, plus $12,500 training expenses and $100,000 minimum from closed circuit television.

The Black Muslims, an organization to which Clay belongs, were guaranteed, something since the closed - circuit television show is under the auspices of Main Bout, Inc., a five - member group including two Black Muslims.

WANTS SMELL OF SEA

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Although hundreds of miles from salt water, Huibert Sabelis is a collector of seashells. Born on the North Sea coast in Holland, Sabelis discovered "a sort of fever" for the sea too late—after settling in Ontario. He plans to open his collection to schools and individuals in London.

PEP UP AID MEALS

BANGALORE, India (AP)—Free foodstuffs from government and private agencies in North America provide school lunches for children in the Raichur district for less than a penny a serving, but hot seasoning was missed. Now each local child carries a chili pepper and an onion to school.

Ontario Women's Curling

Playoff Decides Title

DUNDAS, Ont. (CP) — The Sarnia rink of Cathleen Baldwin was the spoiler Tuesday night as it handed Joyce Black's Oshawa rink its first loss in the Ontario women's curling championship.

The Baldwin rink, winless before Tuesday's play in the six-rink, round-robin tournament, upset Oshawa 12-7 in the fifth round.

The result forced Oshawa into a playoff today against the Kenora rink skipped by June Shaw. Kenora's only loss was against Oshawa 11-10 in the second round.

Kenora defeated the winless New Liskeard rink 19-8 in fifth-round play while Toronto trounced Ottawa 14-2.

Dogs And Golf

Muzzle 'Em At First Tee

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Golf Association handed down two decisions Tuesday on dogs.

The question of dogs interfering with play was raised by two different golfers and it was important enough that the rules of golf committee felt compelled to render a formal verdict.

The first question:

"A person is putting on the 18th green. While the ball is still rolling, a dog runs out, picks up the ball and runs off with it. What should the player do now: 1—Play the ball from where the dog picked it up, no penalty; or 2—Replay the putt where it was originally played, no penalty?"

Ruling:

"The ball was deliberately interfered with, by an outside agency, and in equity the player must reply the stroke, without penalty."

Question No. 2:

"Player B, in match play, has a putt for a winning four from 15 feet on the 18th green. As his ball nears the hole, a dog runs on the green, nuzzles B's ball while it is still in motion and sends it into the cup. The dog does not pick up the ball in his mouth; he simply pushes it with his nose. Is player B deemed to have boled out in four?"

Ruling:

"Answer No. 1 applies."

Creator of Jake and the Kid Recalls Early Lean Months

By DAN POWERS

HIGH RIVER, Alta. (CP)—W O Mitchell spat chewing tobacco into an empty tomato soup can and reminisced about flat prairie, Jake and the Kid and the long apprenticeship of a fiction author.

"I used to wake up in a sweat and think—I haven't a job. I'm not working. I have a family to support and no money coming in from my writing," Mitchell said in an interview at his bungalow home in this prairie town 30 miles south of Calgary.

Dressed in a brown tweed sports jacket, rose-colored checked sport shirt, slacks and slippers, he stood in front of the fireplace and talked easily. At times he sat down or paced back and forth. Outside a winter sun filtered through grey clouds.

William Osborne Mitchell, 51, was talking about a lean six months in 1945 when he "didn't sell anything." It happened after he had quit jobs as a principal at the small Alberta towns of Castor and New Dayton to take up free-lance writing.

He had found he was "making twice as much money from writing as from teaching," and while on an article assignment for Maclean's magazine he came to High River, a tree-lined cattle ranching and mixed farming community.

FORTUNE LOOKED UP

"Now there's the town," he told his wife, Merna, 45, and in the spring of 1945 the Mitchells and their three-year-old son Ormond moved into a High River home that rented for $40 a month.

But for six months the writer who had created Crocus, Saskatchewan and was to make all the "Jake" characters come to life in the well-known CBC radio series from 1949 to 1957, failed to sell.

"I wrote, oh jeez I wrote. Our funds were running low. Then one day I went down to the mail box and there were $1,700 in acceptance cheques. Later I said to Merna, 'We'll never have to worry again.'"

And they haven't.

The mail box held a $1,000 cheque from Macmillan's of Canada as an advance on his first novel, Who has Seen the Wind, a story about prairie life and called "one of Canada's finest novels," a $500 cheque from New York Liberty for some "Jake" stories, and a $200 cheque from Atlantic Monthly for a short story, Saint Sammy.

With the $1,700, the Mitchells bought a home and over the years built onto it. Except for a period from 1947 to 1951 when Mitchell worked as Maclean's fiction editor in Toronto they have lived in High River since.

WON $5,000 AWARD

Mitchell found the Toronto years "busy but not fertile." He realized his characters were people like "Jake," the all-wise grumpy farm hand, the always-curious "kid" and abused old "Miss Henchbaw"—not the urban people of a Morley Callaghan. he needed the foothills and their "detachment" and in 1951 the Mitchells came back to High River.

In 1953 his second novel, The Alien, was published and won a Macleans best publication award of $5,000. The Devil's Instrument, a novella about Hutterites, was completed in 1948 but not published—Mitchell says he thinks a similar American book was a plagiarism—and the CBC produced it twice for television.

The Kite, a fantasy novel that tells of an old man's struggle to lead a normal life, was published by a Calgary publisher in 1964. Another novella, The Black Bonspiel of Willie McKrimmon, was finished in 1948.

Mitchell now is working on another novel, Roses are Difficult Here.

The one volume of Jake and the Kid contains 13 stories but Mitchell has churned out more than 300 radio scripts on the basic idea. He has conducted a writers' workshop for the Saskatchewan Arts Board and will be running a workshop in the Okanagan area of British Columbia.

A cabin in B.C.'s Shuswap Lakes region, where he has an 18-foot sailing sloop, allows escape from numerous visitors. Should the Mitchells' "pattern of life" change, they might move to B.C. when all their children are grown up.

Ormond, 23, is married and working on a master's degree in English at the Edmonton campus of the University of Alberta where he won a fellowship. Hugh, 20, is a second-year U of A. arts student. Willa, 10, a daughter, lives at home.

W. O. was born March 13, 1914, in Weyburn, Sask.—a town where you can walk to the end of the street and suddenly there's "nothing but open prairie." His father was a pharmacist from Waterdown, Ont., his mother a nurse from Clive, Ont.

He entered the university of Manitoba in 1931 and found acting in the little theatre improved his sense of dialogue. He switched from a pre-med course to philosophy and while still a student hitch-hiked to Montreal and got a job as deckhand on a Greek tramp ship.

A six-month period of travels to England, France and Spain produced a series of diary letters sent home. Later they were published in the university quarterly as Panacea for Pan Handlers.

WRITING TURNED DOWN

Between 1935 and 1941 he was in Seattle and Calgary, working at times as a gardener, a stunt diver for a travelling show and a harvest hand riding the rails with "the winos and the dinos." He was writing all the time and getting a stream of rejection slips

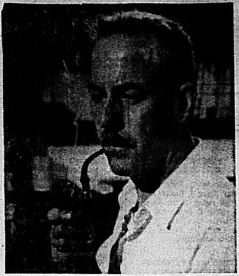
In 1941 he entered the University of Alberta and earned his B A. degree.

A break came when Prof. Salter of the U. of A. English department sold three of his stories, and the first of the Jake series, You Gotta Teeter, was published by Maclean's Aug. 15, 1942. It was the same year the writer and Merna, the daughter of a Baptist minister from Boston, were married.

Today there are few things that make W O. Mitchell angry, although he fumes at the occasional "anti-intellectualism" of Alberta. It was typified, he says, when a provincial minister said J. D. Salinger's Catcher in the Rye was "trash and garbage!"

He resents that the "philistine power of the competent businessman" should dominate the province's social and moral climate and wonders about television, dictated by "agencies, sponsors and ratings."

He likes to sail, fish, rummage around CPR "undamaged and unclaimed auction sales," smoke his pipe, be with his children, raise orchids and most of all, help his readers to the discovery of truth.



THE LEAN YEARS ARE OVER — For six long months after W. O. Mitchell dropped school teaching for full-time free-lance writing he would wake up at night in a sweat. He hadn't made a sale, he had no money coming in and a family to support. But one day the mail arrived with $1,700 in acceptance cheques and he never worried again. Mitchell went on to fame as the author of the radio series Jake and the Kid. He has also written numerous short stories and is now working on another novel. (CP Photo)

We Spend Only 25 Minutes Daily in Articulate Speech

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (CP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Most people can't stay still even while sleeping . . . The average person changes his posture from 40 to 60 times during his eight-hour daily period of shut-eye.

In ancient Rome the patients of most female physicians were slaves.

We spend only about 25 minutes each day in articulated speech . . . The rest of the time we satisfy our needs for communicating with the other fellow by waving, grimacing, grunting, smiling, frowning, shrugging or writing memos.

No other flower is surrounded by more symbolism, superstition and myth than the rose. . . . In some parts of Europe the sight of rose petals falling is an omen of death.

What, no pepper? . . . Storm winds at sea may carry up to 1,000 pounds of salt per cubic mile of air.

Worth remembering: "Flattery is having somebody else tell us the nice things we have always thought about ourselves."

CURE FOR WARTS

Folklore: Wearing an emerald on your forehead will protect you against eye diseases. . . . If a girl is married in a blue dress, her husband will always remain faithful . . . To get rid of warts rub them with a bean, then hide the bean where no one else can find it. . . . If an owl hoots directly over your head someone you love will die within the year.

You're a pretty good student of the Bible if you can name the wood Noah used to build the ark. . . . It was called gopher wood. . . . Most translators interpret this to mean Cypress.

Rembrandt, one of whose paintings was bought by the Metropolitan Museum of Art of New York for $2,300,000, was often financially embarrassed during his lifetime. . . . He had to sell his first wife's grave site to afford to bury his second.

Full moon is the time of the highest tides. . . . Then the sun, moon and earth are in a straight line.

Most of the world's supply of money is supposed to be controlled by women, and the word itself is a tribute to femininity. . . . It comes from Juno Moneta, who in Roman mythology was the wife of Jupiter.

'Ow, Oi Sye, Looke Whut They Did, 'Ere's Aussies With No Blinking Quid

By VINCENT MATTHEWS
Canadian Press Correspondent

MELBOURNE (CP) — "In come the dollars and in come the cents, to replace the pounds and the shillings and the pence. . . ."

This ditty, sung to the tune of the Australian folk song, Click Go the Shears, Boys, has been pounded into Australian ears from radio and television stations night and day for more than nine months.

It is part of the widespread campaign to prepare Australia for the changeover to decimal currency Feb. 14.

The best-known character in the country is called Dollar Bill, a cartoon creation the shape of a dollar sign. He sings the song and other ditties to make people familiar with the new money.

The best-liked girls in the country are called Dollar Jills—29 sweet-voiced girls who sit at the end of telephones in all state capital cities answering questions about decimal currency.

The biggest job in Australian post office history has been delivering 8,000,000 16-page booklets to every household in the country telling them about their new money system. The most secret operation has been the distribution to banks of $160,000,000 in notes and $20,000,000 in coins. One Canadian dollar will be worth roughly 88 cents Australian.

GUARD MONEY

This new money has been taken in trucks carrying armed guards from the mint in Melbourne to 5,000 banks throughout the country. Most of the distribution has gone on in the last 10 weeks when Melbourne has had an average of one armed holdup a week. But the bandits got only pounds; they have so far not got their hands on any of the new cash.

Biggest worry for police is counterfeiters. The danger is that with people unfamiliar with the new currency, forgers could pass fake money in large quantities. But officials say they are confident the real money cannot be really imitated. To beat the forgers, it was made on special paper produced in Britain and has a metallic thread imbedded in it. Through each note is a water mark of Captain Cook, Australia's discoverer.

The new dollar notes are much more colorful than the present £1 and 10s notes, though many disagree with their artistic quality. The Queen's picture appears on all $1 notes and many people have been "shocked" by her stern, grave look.'

DOESN'T SMILE

"Why couldn't she be smiling?" they asked. "Nonsense," replied a government official. "How improper for her majesty to be laughing on a dollar note."

The government has done its best to give all the money an Australian character. On the back of the $1 note is an aboriginal painting and carving. The $2 note has a picture of wool pioneer John Macarthur on the front and wheat pioneer William Fareer on the back. Poet Henry Lawson and air pioneer Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith appear on others.

On the coins are the lizard, echidna (hedgehog), platypus, lyre bird — and sheep, upon whose back, every Australian schoolchild is told umpteen times, Australia lives.

When the government decided in 1963 to bring in decimal currency, Prime Minister Sir Robert Menzies was so carried away by an impending Royal tour that he announced the new currency's main unit would be called a "royal" and the main coin a "crown." There was an uproar throughout the country. He had to give in. And it became the very simple but useful dollar and cent.

AT THE PARK — Working Indoors . . . When Oliver Hardy and Stan Laurel erect a house in one of the sequences of "Laurel and Hardy's Laughing 20's", opening Thursday at the Park Theatre for a four day run, it takes no more than the weight of an alighting bird to have it fall to pieces! AT THE BELLE — Irresistible . . . Innocent Laura Devon succumbs to John Crawford's virile appeal in this scene "Red Line 7000", a drama about three girls in love with race car drivers. Directed and produced by Howard Hawks and filmed in Technicolor, the Paramount picture opens Today at the Belle Theatre. Gail Hire, James Ward, Laura Devon, John Robert Crawford, Marianna Hill, James Caan, Charlene Holt and Norman Alden head the youthful starring cast.

Beach Party Movies Out With 'In' Crowd of Teeners

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Beach party movies are out with the "in" crowd of teen-agers. Protest pictures are in.

The source for this intelligence is Louis M. Heyward of New York, director of motion picture and television development for American International.

"We have left the beach to Universal, Columbia and other studios which won't find much left there," he said. "The beach pictures ran their course. We used them for a voyeuristic approach, though they were perfectly clean—the Legion of Decency never objected to our films.

"But now that type of film has been negated by the plenthora of sex-oriented films like What's New Pussycat? There isn't much farther you can go. Nudies? The teen-agers won't go to them; they're too embarrassed.

"The next big area for teenage films is protest. Teen-agers sympathize with protest, because they are in revolt against their parents.

"Among the movies we are planning for the coming season are subjects about stock - car racing and about the Hell's Angels type of motorcycle club, both of which represent a protest against society.

Drop Scheduled Programs To Bring News on War

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—With Viet Nam, Honolulu, Washington and finally New Delhi all producing news of war and peace, both NBC and CBS dropped scheduled programs Tuesday to examine the tangled web of opinions, statements and even hearsay.

NBC's half-hour special primarily was devoted to summaries of news from the Honolulu conference between President Johnson and South Vietnamese leaders. Then it moved to Washington for highlights from testimony of retired Lt.-Gen. James M. Gavin before the Senate foreign affairs committee.

The CBS news special was a more leisurely and introspective survey.

CBS commentator Eric Sevareid suggested the Senate hearings were important because they were raising questions not only about the conduct of the war "but formally and officially raising doubts about its justification, its legality and its ultimate outcome."

THEY CAN'T WIN

The networks can't win when they pre-empt scheduled entertainment programs for public service shows as they did Tuesday night. Disappointed fans of the omitted shows complain bitterly. But if the networks stick with regular programming, they are belabored by critics for failing in their public service responsibilities.

The big news today at ABC is that Milton Berle, who between 1948 and 1955 was "Mr. Television," will be back next season with a variety show.

Berle's long - term contract with NBC, his old network, was modified recently and since then he has appeared on several shows including ABC's Hollywood Palace.

Recommended tonight:

A Small Rebellion, NBC, 9-10 EST, drama on Bob Hope Theatre with Simone Signoret and George Maharis.

CASEY CHANGES NAME

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor Vince Edwards, television's Dr. Ben Casey, appeared in court Tuesday and had his name changed from Vincent Zoino to Vincent Edwards. Zoino, as he was born 36 years ago, said he has been known as Edwards for 15 years.

Performance Drops With Compression

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

When cylinders lose compression, road pep and smoothness fall off, you can be sure that the engine's gas and oil appetite will increase.

An ordinary compression guage test can quickly reveal any leaky cylinders — but further probing will be needed to determine whether valves, piston rings or possibly a head gasket could be at fault.

Mechanics frequently resort to this double check: they pour about a teaspoonful of engine oil into the bad cylinder (s) to seal the rings, then take a second guage reading.

If it shows no improvement, valve leakage is indicated. But should there be a substantial pressure increase, piston rings are obviously responsible for compression loss.

A defective head gasket is the logical suspect when compression proves abnormally low in two adjacent cylinders.

From J. M: "My automatic transmission makes a noisy whining sound when the car starts off, until it reaches normal road speed. Then the noise seems to diminish to a faint hum."

Sounds like wear on the front oil pump, and a transmission oil pressure test is recommended to confirm — or refute — this.

T. R. writes: "Because there is too much free play in my brake pedal, I've tried to correct it by adjusting the pedal reach. This does not seem to be the answer."

Excessive pedal play can also be caused by a damaged piston spring in the brake master cylinder.

E. D. asks: "On our '64 stick shift compact, the transmission gears clash when the car starts out in the morning. At all other times during the day, however, there's no such noise. Would this be due to winter temperatures?"

Not because of the cold weather, but because the lubricant is too thick for cold weather. A transmission lube changeover should end this trouble.

From H. H.: "The mechanic who test drove our car said we were wrong, but my son and I are both positive that the car tends to pull toward one side. Why wouldn't it be obvious to a mechanic too?"

Perhaps he tested the car while it was cold. Brake drag or grab usually causes this pull, and it's most often due to a grease-soaked or oily brake lining. However, such contaminants may not cause trouble until they are "cooked" by heat developed after the car has been driven a while.

Ontario Budget Increases Taxes

Poor Man Hit, Few Have Praise For Tax Changes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There was hardly a word of approval or support to the broad range of tax increases announced Wednesday in Ontario's 1966-67 budget.

Business, industry and civic officials joined politicians in criticizing the budget for hitting the poor man in the pocketbook.

Mrs. A. F. W. Plumptre, president of the Consumers Association of Canada, said the increase in the provincial sales tax might have a good effect on the economy by reducing consumer spending and relieving inflationary pressures. She said two areas of most concern to women — food and children's clothing—are not taxed.

Trust and insurance company officials generally welcomed the budget announcement of an increase in basic exemptions from Ontario succession duties.

"I think it has largely been a gesture towards redistribution of income and wealth in the community," said William M. Anderson, chairman of North American Life Assurance Co.

SHOW ENTHUSIASM

They also were enthusiastic about the decision to use revenues from the Canada pension plan for the capital cost of education.

But other business and financial leaders aimed their criticism at increases in gasoline, tobacco and sales taxes.

J. O. Goodman, general manager of the Automotive Transport Association of Ontario, described the budget as a $28,000,000 "milk - the - motorist" budget, hitting commercial vehicle operators hardest.

Some auto dealers, service station operators and motoring officials said the increases in gasoline tax and the retail sales tax would mean an extra $40 to $60 on the purchase of a new auto and boost the price of regular gasoline to 45.9 cents a gallon.

In Montreal, John Keith, president of the Imperial Tobacco Co. of Canada Ltd., said the wisdom of the added one-cent tobacco tax is questionable.

"The burden is imposed on smokers who represent a wide cross-section of the population and will rest heaviest on those who are in the lower income brackets and least able to afford it."

HITS POOR

In the legislature, Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson said "it is significant" that the retail sales tax now is Ontario's highest tax which hits the poor and the wealthy with unequal force.

The New Democratic Party described the budget as "once

Political Payoff Charged

By PAUL DUNN

OTTAWA (CP)—The question of a new television channel for Toronto blossomed in the Commons Wednesday, sparking charges that the whole thing amounts to a politcal payoff.

The question of moving Channel 3 to Toronto from Barrie, some 50 miles north, quickly occupied stage centre as the Commons opened debate on the spending estimates for the transport department.

Transport Minister Pickersgill volunteered the information that the three broadcasters who currently have an application in to move the channel are Liberals. He said this shouldn't be held against them.

They are "three citizens of Canada" and their application should be considered only on this basis.

But Reid Scott (NDP—Toronto Danforth) subjected the minister to a withering blast on the application currently before the transport department.

CHARGES PATRONAGE

"The whole thing is surrounded by an air of political intrigue . . . and has all the marks of political patronage."

The whole thing was an attempt to sneak the Barrie station into Toronto by a back door and triple the earnings of the station's backers at one fell swoop, he said.

There was an "aura of secrecy" about the application, said Mr. Scott, and his party was disturbed about "the questions it raises in everybody's

RECORD BUDGET—Provincial Treasurer James Allen of Ontario Wednesday presented a budget showing record expenditures and revenues for the 1966-67 fiscal year. Graph shows gross ordinary revenue and expenditures which do not include capital estimates. Highlights include a two per cent jump in the provincial sales tax to five per cent which will bring forecast revenue from the tax to $383,000,000, compared with an estimated $216,000,000 in the current fiscal year. The government plans to spend $595,737,000 on education, compared with $464,626,000 in the current fiscal year. (CP Wirephoto)

Strong Central Government Essential Says Jas. Allan

TORONTO (CP) — A strong central government is essential if Canada is to meet adequately international challenges and the need to harmonize internal growth policies, the legislature was told Wednesday.

Provincial Treasurer James Allan said in his budget speech that although strong government from Ottawa is necessary "to protect and promote the national interest in both the national and the international economy," provincial governments have jurisdiction over matters "that are also vital to the national interest."

"The importance of these matters is illustrated," Mr. Al-

3 Students Are Killed By Police

From AP-Reuters

SANTO DOMINGO (CP)—Labor leaders threatened a general strike today after seven persons were killed and at least 35 were injured in day-long rioting in the Dominican capital, touched off by the police killing of three student demonstrators.

Two of the dead were policemen—one of them turned into a torch.

Unofficial reports said a 10-year-old boy set fire to a policeman's uniform after an enraged mob had beaten him unconscious Wednesday night.

Another policeman was shot and killed in the rioting and several more were injured.

Labor and political leaders charged the police with brutality in the violence. They also renewed demands for the removal from the country of armed forces leaders who have failed to obey a presidential order assigning them to diplomatic jobs abroad.

The two leading moderate leftist parties, the Revolutionary Social Christians (PRSC) and Juan Bosch's Dominican Revolutionary Party (PRD), were expected to support a strike. Three previous calls for a general strike collapsed because the two parties failed to support it.

Official sources expressed concern that a successful strike would torpedo negotiations under way between President Hector Garcia-Godoy and the

By BOB EXELL

TORONTO (CP)—Across-the-board tax increases — retail sales, gasoline, liquor, cigarettes, and more to boot — were announced by the Ontario government Wednesday in a 1966-67 budget statement that socked the breadwinner in the belly.

Provincial Treasurer James Allan announced that effective April 1:

—The retail sales tax will be increased to five per cent from three percent, a level it has held since it was introduced in September, 1961.

—The tax on gasoline will be increased by a penny to 16 cents. Two years ago, before the 1964 budget increased it was 13 cents.

—The tax on cigarettes will be increased to one-tenth of a cent a cigarette from one-twentieth, meaning an increase of a cent on a package of 20.

—The price of liquor and wine—but not beer—will be increased to an undetermined level. The actual amounts are to be disclosed soon by the Liquor Control Board, perhaps today.

—A five-per-cent tax will be applied to telegrams and long-distance telephone calls.

Other Budget Stories on Front Page, Second Section.

While the government called this an extension of the sales tax, in fact it was regarded as a breakthrough into the service tax field.

—The tax on land transfers will be doubled to two-fifths of one per cent.

—The highway diesel fuel tax will be increased 1½ cents to 22 cents a gallon.

GIVES NO RELIEF

The budget gave no direct relief to the municipal property tax-payer except for a suggestion that the province, by paying more of the costs of education, may reduce the local education tax.

The hard fact of life for the taxpayer was that the government will be lifting an additional $195,000,000 from his pocket in 1966. And coupled with this was a warning that personal income tax could go up in 1967.

For the politician, the fact of life was that there will be no provincial election this year. A spokesman for the Conservative party stated frankly that no government would even consider calling an election in a year of general tax increases. At any rate, the Conservative government does not have to go to the people until 1968.

Ontario government expenditures in the 1966-67 fiscal year beginning April 1 were forecast by Mr. Allan at $1,812,900,000.

Ontario Economy Bustling

TORONTO (CP) — Records were set in every sector of Ontario's economy during 1965 and the gross provincial product increased by about nine per cent, the legislature was told Wednesday.

Provincial treasurer James Allan said in the government's budget for the fiscal year beginning April 1 that "the province's prosperity continued to be so attractive to people from abroad and from other parts of Canada" that Ontario's population rose by 2.2 per cent compared with 1.5 per cent for the rest of the country.

Mr. Allan said the gross provincial product reached a record $20,700,000,000 last year, an increase over the previous year of $1,700,000,000.

"More significant than Ontario's gains in production and employment in 1965 was the increased tendency for our people to invest in future growth by improving the quality of the labor force," Mr. Allan said.

". . . Our young people have become more aware of the need to further their education and we should be as proud of the increasing tendency of our people to invest in their long-run potential as we are satisfied with the expansion of our economy."

NEED WORKERS

The treasurer said that Ontario "could have achieved greater growth (last year) if a larger supply of qualified labor had been available.

"The limiting factor to Ontario's rate of growth in 1965 was not capital," Mr. Allan said, "but qualified managerial, professional and skilled labor."

The treasurer said, however, that "we can find no evidence to support the idea that automation is creating a general unemployment problem in the province.

"In fact, while Ontario is moving rapidly in the process of introducing automation, our unemployment rate is the lowest in Canada."

Mr. Allan predicted another substantial increase in the province's economic production this year.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: The very mild weather will continue today and Friday over all but northwestern sections. Precipitation will spread eastward today. Showers or rain will continue over most of Ontario Thursday with colder temperatures north of Lake Superior resulting in snow by tomorrow.

May Set Up Federal Medicare With Only Three Provinces

TORONTO (CP)—The federal government plans to press ahead with medical care legislation on the basis of agreement with only three provinces, Health Minister MacEachen hinted here Wednesday night.

He told a forum held by the University of Toronto medical society that he hopes all the provinces will have joined in by July 1, 1967, target date for starting federal payments.

Sources said later that the legislation will be introduced in parliament at the current session. It will enable the federal government to make payments toward any provincial medical care plan which meets four conditions outlined in the federal medical care offer of last July.

At that time, the federal government offered to pay half the average national per capita costs of provincial programs, starting July 1, 1967. Mr. MacEachen repeated that the target date remains in effect as far as Ottawa is concerned.

He also repeated — for the third time in two weeks—that the federal government is sticking to the four conditions.

They are that provincial plans insure against the cost of a full range of doctors and specialists services, that benefits be portable from one province to another, that 90 per cent of a province's population be covered from the start rising to 95 per cent within three years, and that plans be administered by the provincial government or a non-profit agent designated by the province.

Mr. MacEachen spoke to an audience of about 250, largely medical students. Other forum speakers were Ontario Health Minister Dymond and Dr. Robert Jones of Halifax, president of the Canadian Medical Association.

He recalled that Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan have accepted the federal medical care offer and that Quebec has endorsed the four conditions.

The band of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police is coming to Belleville next week. Under the direction of Superintendent E. J. Lydall, seen above, the group will give a performance at Belleville Collegiate Wednesday evening, February 16, at 8 p.m.

The visit of the band of some 50 musicians is being sponsored by Belleville Jaycees. Admission is free, but there will be a silver collection.

The Mounties will also give performances at other centres in the Quinte area, including Picton.

White Cane Club Enjoys Recreation

The February recreation meeting of the White Cane Club was held at Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday evening. President Vi Waite welcomed the members and friends.

Mrs. Maude Rollins presided at the piano for the opening songs. Arlie Scott read the names of the members observing birthdays in February.

Several games of bingo played on the special braille bingo boards were enjoyed for the remainder of the evening.

Members of the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary served refreshments for which Vi Waite expressed the appreciation of the club.

Two young women from the Belleville General Hospital school of radiological technology were among the 15 students from five Eastern Ontario Hospitals who received diplomas at the eighth annual graduation exercises held in Kingston on Saturday by the Kingston area section of the Ontario Society of Radiological Technicians.

Graduates from the Belleville hospital were Frances Louise Pitts of Cobourg and Sharon Lynn Wilson of Timmins.

Students from Belleville Hospital, Hotel Dieu Hospital at Kingston, Kingston General Hotel Dieu Hospital at Cornwall and St. Vincent De Paul Hospital at Brockville, received their graduation diplomas at the joint exercises held in the Nursing Education Building at Kingston General Hospital.

Guest speaker for the exercises was Rev. A. M. Laverty, padre at Queen's University, while Miss Sharon Wilson from Belleville was the valedictorian for the graduating class.

Greetings were heard from Dr. P. G. Loder, radiologist at Belleville Hospital and from J. S. Flanagan, R. T. president of the Canadian Society of Radiological Technicians, and E. J. Bennett, R. T., director of the Ontario Society.

Certificates were presented by Dr. D. G. Wollin, M.D., and pins by Mr. James McGraw, chairman of the Eastern Section of the O.S.R.T.

C of C Supports Proposed Bridge to New York State

A proposed International bridge west of Kingston would cut 40 miles off the Belleville to Watertown route.

The bridge, proposed by the Kingston Chamber of Commerce would run from Carruthers Point, to Wolfe Island and then to Cape Vincent, New York. Cost is estimated at $30 million to be shared equally by the State of New York and the province of Ontario.

O. F. Bradley, secretary - manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, attended a meeting at Queen's Park yesterday where the project was proposed to Stanley J. Randall, Ontario Minister of Economics and Development.

Mr. Bradley said, "We are giving our support because such a bridge would provide a considerable increase in traffic in this area resulting in a great boost for tourism and overall economic development in the area.

"The new route would give Belleville industries easier access to the states and might encourage industries to locate here."

Thomas R. Wilcox, Q. C., past president of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce presented the brief to Mr. Randall. The Minister said his department would analyze the submission immediately. He said a feasibility study would be required and then it would have to be processed through the Department of Highways and the Treasury Department. It will take close to a year for the decision to be made.

Also attending the meeting were Syl Apps, M.L.A., Kingston and the Islands, J. R. Simonett M.L.A., Frontenac, Timothy D. O'Shea, reeve, Wolfe Island, Grant Mitchell, executive - secretary 1000 Islands Bridge Authority and Ald. Edwin Watts, Kingston.

Two Doctors Suffer Injury In Car Crash

A freak coincidence sent two district doctors to hospital last night after their cars collided on Highway 14.

Dr. Lily B. Mathieson of Belleville today is in Kingston General Hospital with major scalp lacerations. Dr. William Hipwell, 37, Stirling physician, was released after emergency treatment at Belleville General Hospital for bruised ribs and legs.

Dr. Hipwell's wife, Joan, 32, was admitted to Belleville General Hospital with multiple cuts and a fractured cheek bone, along with the couple's four-year-old son, Scott, who suffered face cuts and possible head injuries.

Provincial Police said Dr. Hipwell was northbound on the highway while Dr. Mathieson was driving on the Foxboro-Frankford county road, when the mishap occurred at the intersection.

Dr. Mathieson's car was a write-off while damage to the Hipwell vehicle was estimated at $1,000.

Man Is Held For Forgery

A 42-year-old Belleville man, arrested yesterday in Lindsay, today was formally charged here with uttering cheques which, police say, will total more than $1,000.

Leslie Potts was taken in custody on a warrant taken out last week after police said they acted on the compliant of an elderly Belleville man.

Potts appeared before Justice of the Peace J. Clair Hayes today and was remanded one week. Mr. Hayes set bail at $1,500 cash or $4,000 property.

Civic Officials Meet Owners On Project

Tenders for Phase 2 of the North Front street re-construction are expected to be called in March with a mid-summer completion date set for the project.

This was told last night to a meeting of North Front Street property owners who met with city officials at the Tops Motor Hotel to hear the procedure to be followed by the city in acquiring the necessary extra right-of-way width for the street re-construction.

Mayor J. R. Ellis told the gathering that by-laws covering the expropriation proceedings for the necessary lands would be brought in to council next Monday, following which tenders for the re-construction would be called early in March. Although expropriation proceedings would be commenced immediately, the mayor said this did not mean that every effort would not be made to negotiate amicable settlements with the various owners.

An eight-foot additional width for most of the length of the street will be necessary to achieve the required 47-foot pavement width it was stated.

No specific figure as to what price the city would offer for the required property was indicated, although the mayor said 50 cents per square foot had been the basis for settlements in property purchases for the section of North Front Street widened last year.

Aproximately 100 persons attended the meeting with a good representation on the part of aldermen and city officials.

Sen. Roebuck Would Change Divorce Laws

OTTAWA (CP) — An impromptu debate on the Senate's handling of divorces ended Wednesday with the chairman of the Senate divorce committee announcing he plans to introduce a bill to broaden the grounds for divorces granted by Parliament.

Senator Arthur Roebuck (L—Ontario), chairman of the committee that processes petitions for divorce from the provinces of Quebec and Newfoundland, began the debate by seeking routine approval of 113 divorce petitions.

He was interrupted by Senator Lionel Choquette (PC—Ontario), who said he understood that the actual work of the divorce committee was being done by its two commissioners and the committee was "only a rubber stamp."

Senator Roebuck agreed there was merit to "throwing all the responsibility" to the commissioners as all cases were disposed of on their recommendation.

It was "perhaps better and proper now if we armed the divorce act and allowed the judges to approve them." It was unfortunate that adultery was the only grounds for granting parliamentary divorce petitions.

"I will introduce a bill to change that . . . before this session comes to an end," Senator Roebuck said.

The Senate approved the 113 petitions and adjourned until Feb. 22.

MRS. JOSEPH EDWARD MARACLE

The Tyendinaga Reserve lost one of its best loved and most highly respected members when Mrs. Joseph Edward Maracle died Sunday in the Belleville General Hospital. She was in her 78th year.

Mrs. Maracle was born on the Tyendinaga Mohawk Reserve, the daughter of Joseph John and his wife, formerly Samantha Brant and lived all her life on the Reserve. Her husband predeceased her by four years, and together they built a home which combined the old and the new, the best features of both Mohawk and English-Canadian cultures. All five of their children who grew to adulthood were educated like their white neighbors, but in the home only the Mohawk language was spoken. She herself was a deft needlewoman and taught her daughters the art. The father kept abreast of modern methods in farming, and his son Clifford who remained at home, is carrying on in the same way. He operates one of thebest farms on the Reserve, with buildings and equipment second to none.

In the household, Mrs. Maracle kept pace with her husband, making butter by hand in the old days, and selling it at top prices, but changing with the times. She kept pace, also, with her white sisters in cookery, while at the same time never abandoning the making of native dishes, such as corn soup and corn bread. And her daughters are following in her footsteps. She loved all that was beautiful and good.

Had Mrs. Maracle lived in the days before the white man influenced Indian culture, she would have been one of the wise mothers of the tribe whose decisions were final, even in the making of war and peace. She was a quiet woman who seldom raised her voice, and who did not express thoughtless opinions.

Mrs. Maracle was a lifelong member of All Saints Church and an active worker in the Ladies' Guild and in the Mohawk Agricultural Society, where she was a consistent prize winner. The Women's Institute, now disbanded on the Reserve did a great deal of war work and she was one of the 35 members who prided themselves on making a quilt per member per year, some for relief but most for overseas. She is one of the last of the famous quilters of that day.

For a generation she has been "Aunt Lizzie" to all her people and all will mourn her.

Elizabeth Ann Maracle is survived by her son Clifford at home; by her daughters, Mrs. Leonard Hill (Dorothy Mae) of Oshawa; Mrs. Ruby Brant, R.R. 1, Shannonville; Mrs. Clinton Maracle (Gladys) R.R. 1, Shannonville; and Mrs. Walter Brant (Beatrice), Shannonville. She was predeceased by one daughter, Helda. She is survived also by 22 grandchildren and 32 great grandchildren.

She rested at the White and Morris Funeral Home in Deseronto for service in All Saints Anglican Church Tuesday. The Rev. Canon J. V. Temple officiated.

The bearers were grandsons: Carl and Harold Maracle, Ronnie, Robert and Glen Brant, and Delbert Hill.

Interment was in All Saints Cemetery.

Faith at Work Conference Plans Made

Last night the Official Board of Bridge Street United Church was given an outline of plans for the forthcoming Faith Work Conference, which is take place in Bridge Street and Tabernacle United Church homes during the last weekend in March.

Rev. Gordon Hume, minister of Zion United Church, Hamilton, is to be director of the Conference. Assisting him will be Mr. Ken Toten of London, who is the director of Faith at Work in Canada. Locally, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Milliken of Bridge Street and Dr. Bob Knox and Mrs. Knox of Tabernacle are the co-ordinators for the weekend. A committee made up of the ministers and members of both churches have been working for several months, and have set up a program which begins with a combined congregational meeting in Tabernacle United Church on Thursday, March 24. On Friday and Saturday, March 25 and 26, a series of small group meetings will be held in the homes of interested persons where Faith at Work team members from out of town will lead discussion sessions. Several other functions for teenagers and adults will be held in the churches.

GIVES OUTLINE

Mr. Hume outlined the concept of the conference — the fact that when small groups of people will sit down and discuss with honesty their successes, problems and fears in living the Christian life in today's busy, secular world, often things are brought into clearer focus, and solutions are found.

He was careful to point out that the home meetings were not to be looked on only as problem-solving sessions, but also as an opportunity of seeing how Jesus Christ and the Christian way of life can be a more gratifying way than the "go-go" life which so many lead.

Mr. Ken Toten explained that the Faith at Work team members who come from out of town are mostly lay church members who have caught something of the vision of the New Testament church. They will come here, not as experts, but as discussion leaders, whose faith has been broadened and deepened by their contacts in small group discussion of Christianity.

Mr. Hume and Mr. Toten answered questions from individual board members. They left to meet with the Faith at Work planning committee.

Control Board Raises Prices On All Liquor

TORONTO (CP)—The Liquor Control Board of Ontario today announced general increases in the sale prices of liquor in the province.

The price increases, predicted in the provincial budget handed down Wednesday, range from 30 cents for higher - priced rye to 40 cents for the less expensive. The new prices are effective April 1.

Under the new price schedule, $5.20 rye whiskey will cost $5.50, and $4.80 brands $5.10, the $4.50 lines $4.80 and the $4.20 brands to $4.60.

Standard - priced Canadian gins, rums and vodkas will be increased 30 cents a bottle and imported spirits including scotch whisky will be advanced by 35 cents a bottle on standard brands.

The board also announced that prices on imported wines will be increased up to 25 cents and that increases in Canadian wine prices will range to 20 cents a bottle depending on the price category.

G. Harry Sheppard, chief commissioner of the liquor board, said no increases were contemplated in the price of beer.

Mr. Sheppard said the prices increases were made "merely because the government requires more ,revenue."

He said that even with the increases Ontario prices will be the lowest in Canada except for British Columbia.

The chief commissioner said the price increases will include the government's proposed increases to five per cent from three in the provincial sales tax It is estimated the additional revenue from the liquor increases, excluding sales, tax, will amount to $10,000,000 in the fiscal year beginning April 1.

Political

mind about a political deal."

He said Ralph Snelgrove, Allen F. Waters and Geoff Stirling, co-owners of television station CKVR-TV at Barrie, had made the transfer application.

Their intention, he said, was to triple their investment without a public hearing. They were trying to make the licence in Barrie portable. "This is nothing but a backdoor method of opening up another Toronto station . . . .How can you make a licence portable?"

Mr. Pickersgill said any Canadian citizen should be entitled to make an application to the transport department. "Surely . . .making an application does not at all equate with the granting of one."

GOES TO BBG

The application must first go before the Board of Broadcast Governors at a public hearing, the minister said, and the board could then make a recommendation to the cabinet.

Mr. Scott said Mr. Snelgrove "discovered what he thought was a very neat loophole." An application was made to authorities in Ottawa "to investigate what they call the technical problems involved. After that was done the period for filing of applications closed as of Jan. 11. So that no one even knew that this was being done."

There were "widespread stories" that a station transfer would blot out two major United States networks broadcasting into the Toronto area. He identified Mr. Snelgrove as "a former Liberal candidate" and called for "completely open public hearings."

Mr. Pickersgill said he was prepared to leave the matter to the Board of Broadcast Governors.

Mr. Pickersgill said his department was informed by the Federal Communications Commission in Washington that a third channel in Toronto would not interfere with Buffalo stations. He thought it reasonable to protect Channel 3 for Canada, the only channel available for a third station in Toronto.

Earlier in the debate on the transport estimates, Deane Gundlock (PC — Lethbridge) said the "slowest movement of grain in history" had cost western wheat farmers $100,000,000.

He asked Mr. Pickersgill to intervene personally to get the grain rolling or to appoint a controller with wide authority at the port of Vancouver.

He said there were half-empty terminals and empty ships at Vancouver, although the railways said thousands of packed boxcars are sitting there waiting to be unloaded.

"Someone is to blame. . . . Everyone is running around saying 'it isn't my fault' and 'It isn't so.'"

His remarks came a short time after Finance Minister Sharp, in reply to an earlier question by New Democratic Leader Douglas, disclosed that boxcar loadings for shipment of western grain to Vancouver from last Aug. 1 to Jan. 20 were 15,191 short of the Canadian wheat board target.

He said 47,502 cars were loaded in the period. The board target was 62,693. The CPR loaded 25,218, which was 8,488 short of target, and the CNR, 22,284, short by 6,703.

Bishop K. Evans Addresses Brotherhood Week Banquet

"Man must live in brotherhood, not by becoming absolutely identical, but by sharing the wealths of our various cultures." Speaking last night to the annual Brotherhood Week banquet, held at St. Margaret's-On-The-Hill hall, the Rt. Rev. Kenneth Evans, Bishop of the Anglican Diocese of Ontario, drew from his many years of experience in the Brotherhood movement to relate some of his thoughts on brotherhood to those in attendance.

Bishop Evans told the group of local laymen and clergy, representing the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths, that "what we can do together requires the laying aside of our pasts. Competition in religion was once an accepted fact, but the time is past for the development of denominations and sects." Making reference to the theory that recession follows a series of historical crises, Bishop Evans said that a "retreat into tribalism and an atmosphere of racial superiority is a danger of our times." He said that the conviction of brotherhood and religion was all that could transcend this "spirit of the ghetto."

He reminded his audience that there could be moral, mental, and spiritual ghettos. "If mankind's experiment is doomed to failure, it will not be because he has not had all of the technological and social advances — but because he has not had the spirit of brotherhood. The term 'brotherhood' has always been taken for granted. But it is necessary, not only for our progress, but for our very existence.' '

The Bishop said that there is an altered climate within the whole field of religion, and he lauded the work of the late Pope John in creating "the spirit of ecumenism" by setting up the first Vatican Council. Bishop Evans said that such acts exemplify the spirit of brotherhood, "to envelope all people of good will, not merely those of similar faiths".

"Such steps as these by the various faiths show that brotherhood is not a unilateral movement", he said, and he quoted the Archbishop of Canterbury:: "The Church that lives to itself will die to itself".

The Bishop stressed "If you're going to go for brotherhood, you have to go all the way".

Bishop Evans was introduced by Jim Ritchie, of St. Margaret's and thanked by Rabbi M. Levison, of Sons of Jacob Synagogue.

Major Jack Ellis congratulated those responsible for the planned Centennial Brotherhood banquet which is to be integrated into Belleville's Centennial Year program.

Fire Chief Reports Loss Of $251,800 Last Year

TRENTON — Total property and content loss in Trenton fires during 1965 was $251,800, according to the report released this week by Fire Chief Cecil Ellis. Total value of the property and contents was $754,690, and in most cases the efficient action of the firefighters accounted for the low loss of the fire victims.

There were six major fires during the year, accounting for a property loss of $210,300. Two of these involved fatalities, (one Water Street child lost her life in a fire and a youth was fatally injured in a car accident, where the department was called out).

The department was called out 328 times during the year, and this figure includes factory alarm tests, hospital alarm tests, emergency calls, mutual aid alarms and minor fires.

The most "popular" month for fires was May, with 43. The fewest calls were received in July and October, (18). Day alarms numbered 204; night alarms, 124; east side calls, 111; west side calls, 217. The department was called into neighboring townships 20 times throughout the year.

Men on the regular force number nine; Cecil Ellis, chief; Gerald Lewis, captain; Gordon Coughlin, lieutenant; Robert Haker, inspector; Francis Coleman, instructor Elmer Stacey, Maurice Mitts, Henry Barre and Dennis Smith, engineers.

18 VOLUNTEERS

Volunteers number 18. They are Sgts. Robert Mitts, James Thompson and Charles Potts who head up the three platoons and volunteers Clarence Pickell, Paul Allore, Lloyd Burke, Donald Barr, Richard Deschenes, Robert Waldron, William DeMille, Archibald McNeill, Joseph Hastings, Bryan Swartman, Harry Rowley, Gerald Chard, Paul Todd, Andrew Dillon and Jerry Payette.

Dennis Smith was hired for the regular force and Jerry Payette for the voluntter force in 1965.

During the year firemen rendered first aid in a number of instances, conducted drills at schools, inspected properties for fire hazards, gave fire prevention lectures and took part in training sessions.

Groups such as Girl Guides and students were taken on tours of the fire hall and lectures were given in schools and stores. Firemen also donated their services in loading equipment for use at blood donor clinics.

One particular point of pride with the Trenton force is attendance at mutual aid meetings and this year, as it has for three out of four years, the Trenton department won the C. K. Orser memorial plaque for best attendance. The plaque was instituted in memory of a former chief, who died of a heart attack at a fire in 1958.

Re-location Of Fire Hall Is Advocated

TRENTON — Fire Chief Cecil Ellis in his eighth annual report to Mayor James MacDonald and members of town council has again advocated the re-location of the fire hall, in a more central place, with easy access to the proposed new town bridge, so that trucks could more easily serve both sides of the river.

The chief said in his report that the old building was structurally unsound and would need a major overhaul should council not deem it expedient to build a new station at this time.

The chief would like to see all of the equipment under one roof. The aerial ladder truck is kept in the town shed on the east side of the river.

One alternative would be to build two smaller halls, one on each side of the river. Another would be to overhaul the present station and extend it at the back to house the aerial ladder truck.

Council's thinking of recent years has been to tear down the old hall and making a parking lot out of the land and its immediate surroundings.

Monday night council agreed to hire an appraiser to evaluate the land with a view to selling it to the Parking Authority for use as a parking area.

Official Fire Inspector for Town Asked

TRENTON — Robert Haker, who has completed and passed a course in fire inspection at the Ontario Fire College recently, has been recommended as official fire inspector for the town by Fire Chief Cecil Ellis.

The chief made the recommendation in his annual report to town council. In the report he also recommends that Frank Coleman be named an instructor for the department, as Mr. Coleman has also tried and passed instructors' examinations at the college.

Chief Ellis recommends that one full - time fireman be hired this year. This addition would enable one man to be put on fire inspections and fire prevention activity on a full - time basis. The fire inspector for the department, (Robert Haker) now spends about 85 per cent of his time relieving for men on holiday or sick leave, the chief said in his report.

Brighton Council Requests Winter Works Subsidy

BRIGHTON — Brighton Council has asked the Ontario Water Resources Commission to apply on Council's behalf for winter works subsidy on the municipality's sewage extension project.

On January 21, when tenders, called by the OWRC, were opened in Toronto, the lowest bid was $50,000, higher than engineering estimates of $88,000. In passing the resolution at its regular meeting Monday night, Council indicated its desire to proceed with the project and since it "will create winter employment," as the resolution states, is urging the OWRC to obtain approval for winter works subsidy payments.

Brighton Council has also joined with Goderich in a resolution urging Provincial and Federal governments to provide not less than 50 per cent of operating and maintenance costs of sewage treatment plants in towns having more than 2,500 population.

Sewage treatment facilities are being installed to halt pollution of streams and rivers feeding into the Great Lakes watershed. The resolution, together with supporting endorsements will be forwarded to the Ontario Mayors and Reeves Association and to Federal and Provincial Members of Parliament and the Ontario Legislature.

Extend Time For Submission Of Tenders

TRENTON — The opening of tenders for a construction contract for Trenton's new bridge, scheduled to be carried out Wednesday has been extended for one week by Department of Highways officials at Downsview.

The postponement will enable contractors who wished to submit bids to complete negotiations for sub-contracts.

Last week, it was announced that Central Bridge of Trenton had been officially awarded the contract for the supply of structural steel at the contract bid of $311,790.

WILL GIVE TALK

Tonight, in the Engineers' Hall on Pine Street in Belleville, Desmond Morton, author of the booklet, "Crisis in Car Insurance," will speak on this subject.

Mr. Morton, along with many members of the NDP party, advocates the Ontario government taking over the selling of insurance, which, they say, would lower the cost to the motorist.

HEES TO BE SPEAKER

George Hees, MP for Northumberland, will be the guest speaker at the Feb. 23 inter service club dinner in the Legion Hall.

This year, Trenton Rotarians will entertain members of the Kiwanis Club, the Lions' Club, the Business and Professional Women's Club, Legion members, civic dignitaries, and it is expected, other MPs from this area.

Police Chief Of Frankford Plans to Retire

TRENTON — Chief Constable "Ed" McGeeachy of the village of Frankford has notified Reeve Ray Moran and the members of his council that he wants to retire after 20 years' service, policing the village single-handed, and lately, with the assistance of his deputy, Wm. Reynolds.

The village clerk, L. E. Turner, had advertised for another chief constable and Chief McGeeachy says he'll continue until a replacement is found.

Reeve Moran past night paid tribute to the outstanding service Chief McGeeachy had given the village over the years and expressed his regret at the chief's impending resignation.

CALLS TENDERS

The Trenton Public Utilities Commission has advertised for tenders for the job of clearing the 35 acre site in Murray Twp., earmarked for the site of a water storage pond. Tenders must be in by Feb. 17.

The $472,200 job of building the pond and a retaining dam should start with the advent of spring.

Honolulu Talks

Whether President Johnson's sudden decision to hold personal talks with South Vietnamese leaders was designed to divert attention from Senate fears that the U.S. is drifting into a bigger and much more dangerous conflict in the Far East, that was the effect of the Honolulu meeting.

That a broadening of the conflict is a premise that must be faced cannot be denied. Even as the president spoke in Honolulu came news that the U.S. is stepping up its war effort in Viet Nam. The number of U.S. troops there now stands at approximately 200,000.

Specific criticism of President Johnson's Viet Nam policy recently has centred around the extent of his powers in the military sphere. The president takes the view he has ample constitutional power as commander-in-chief to order military action as needed. Congressional critics argue that the constitution vested in Congress the power to declare war.

A complicating factor here is that no official declaration of war in Viet Nam has been issued.

Where the president's executive powers are concerned, it is interesting to recall the words of the late President Kennedy during the Cuban crisis.

Mr. Kennedy said in part: "Acting, therefore, in the defence of our own security and the entire western hemisphere, and under the authority entrusted to me under the constitution as directed by the resolution of Congress, I have ordered that the following initial steps be taken..."

Thus President Kennedy acknowledged his dependence on both constitutional authority and the approval of Congress for the actions he was taking.

There is no suggestion President Johnson is acting without such approval. It is clear, however, that there is controversy in U.S. ruling circles as to how far the president's decisions on Viet Nam run the risk of unleashing a conflict much greater in scope than is now being fought.

And yet, as President Johnson points out, the price of weakness and inaction ultimately may be far worse.

"If we allow the Communists to win in Viet Nam, it will become easier and more appetizing for them to take over other countries. We will have to fight some place else — at what cost no one knows..."

That is the crux of the matter. Freedom is at stake here and now. Should Viet Nam fall to the Communists, it would be only a matter of time before all Southeast Asia would come under their aegis. And who knows, eventually, Australia and New Zealand as well.

On the Map

There is nothing like the seal of a fashion house to put a place on the map. In fact, this may well be the one great weapon whose publicity potential has not yet been fully realized.

Public relations men and advertisers have tried everything else. Like golf in Bermuda and Florida, for example, safaris in Africa, geysers and blondes in Iceland, pubs in England, Irish coffee in Ireland, highland games in Scotland and Nova Scotia. And so on.

But how would you go about attracting people to Greenland? Lately, we have been thinking the land of the great ice cap would be an interesting place in which to get away from it all. However, we never see any alluring posters or advertisements for the place and we are wondering if the Danes, who are in charge up there, are missing a chance to earn some tourist dollars.

Anyway, some free publicity has just come their way. It is in the current issue of "The Canadian" magazine and features the adventures of Ottawa-born model Samantha (Sam) Jones on an Arctic safari to display the work of English designers using furs from Canada.

And the background, of course, is Greenland. On the cover there is a picture of the blonde and beautiful Miss Jones, clad in a warm, white, fur coat, standing among a group of bonny Eskimo girls in their multi-colored costumes.

Another picture shows her, gun at the ready, standing on the prow of a boat piloted by a bronzed and bearded fellow who looks like author Farley Mowat. Ice floes and Eskimo kayaks form the background for a third picture.

So we can thank the fashion industry for quickening interest in regions which city dwellers seldom think about, let alone regard as an inviting place for a holiday.

As Helen Meyer, fashion editor of The Canadian, put it: "Erik The Red notwithstanding, Greenland can now be said to have been "discovered." Which no place is, really, until some magazine chooses it as the background for a fashion story. Once this happens, the spot becomes an 'in' place..."

There is a lesson here for Belleville. Just as a spot like Sudbury could become an 'in' place, simply by deploying half-a-dozen models amid the arid landscape of the nickel-mining city, so Belleville, perhaps more liberally endowed with nature's gifts than is Sudbury, could attract tourists in similar fashion.

After wintering in Indian territory Brigham Young's advance party of 148 people reached their destination in July, 1847. Before the railroad reached Utah in 1869, about 80,000 Mormon pioneers crossed the Great Plains to reach their "promised land." Several thousand more died on the way.

Ottawa Offbeat

Cadillacs and Capitalists Adorn Parliament Hill

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — . . . notes off the Parliamentary reportorial cuff . . .

Gobbledegook:

To this Civil Service-oriented Federal Government, cracks former Conservative Labor Minister Mike Starr, "'clarify' means to fill in the background with so many details the foreground goes underground."

"Clarify,' long has been a favorite "in word" with the Bureaucracy.

It is a Federal Government process whereby one unintelligible statement is followed by another even more obtusely complicated declaration to complete the confusion.

TWO DIFFERENT WORLDS

In this Federal-world-apart of the National Capital, jobs as well as words don't necessarily mean the same thing as they do in less bureaucratically - insulated communities across the country.

Here the job of "charman" – meaning cleaner or janitor in other places – can be equated with Cadillacs.

And the designation of "confidential clerk" – a messenger anywhere else – may add up to a bank balance running very comfortably into six figures.

The "charman" with the Cadillac is a long-time House of Commons employee, Donald Gilchrist, who wields a mop and broom in the marble halls of the Centre Block.

Years ago he discovered that the working day being what it is on Parliament Hill, it is entirely possible to make more moonlighting for himself than daylighting for the Government.

But the Caddy?

"A psychological thing with me," he has told curious and admiring MPs, "I'd rather be poor at home than poor on the road."

And the Commons messengers with bank balances running into the hundreds of thousands?

There are three of them.

Each was living on some small ex-urban acreage, raising the family's summer vegetables, running a few chickens and turkeys and growing enough feed for a couple of cows.

Like some other Federal Civil Servants, they were small after-hours farmers.

And then along came the land developers, and the farms were worth a fortune.

So all of an unexpected sudden, you've got an instant $250,000 or so. And what do you do?

"I guess you do what I read most sweepstake winners do," one of them confided the other day as he emerged, stylishly-suited, from a new Mustang, "you spend a little, buy a sporty car for yourself, a station wagon for the wife, a new home, some clothes — then you stash the rest, and keep on at the old job with the old associations for no other reason, maybe, than you're used to it. For it's too late to change, and you don't want to be lonely."

Meanwhile, many of the MPs are finding it just a bit incongruous to be giving orders to these $250,000 "messengers."

TOURIST ATTRACTION

Annually, some three quarters of a million people come to the Capital – to watch the Changing of the Guard on Parliament Hill, take the elevators to the top of the Peace Tower, tour the Royal Mint and the National Gallery, watch the House of Commons at work (and some of the Senate at sleep) and, as it now turns out, to get a first-person peek at Conservative Leader Diefenbaker in the fire-breathing flesh.

Seems you may like or dislike him according to your taste, but ignore him you can't.

Dief, the House of Commons man of 26 unbroken Parliamentary years, has become something of a folk figure.

You come to know just how much of a folk figure when you see him at lunch in the West Block cafeteria, where the MPs herd visiting classes from schools back in their constituencies, and the Centennial Commission feeds the hundreds of students it brings to the Capital.

There the kids queue up to shake Dief's hand, get his autograph and point their cameras at him.

If the Liberals hope to compete for the youth vote, they'd better start thinking about setting up a schedule of "Cafeteria Duty" for Cabinet Ministers.

Nobody else so far has managed to get the kind of attention Dief attracts -- not Paul Martin, Jack Pickersgill, even Judy LaMarsh.

Maybe Prime Minister Pearson could provide a competitive Liberal counter - attraction.

Gastritis Treatment Depends Upon Cause

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain gastritis, its causes, symptoms and treatment. — M. B.

Gastritis is a general term meaning that the gastric area — the stomach — is inflamed.

There may be pain, or there may just be a feeling of fullness or pressure. Headache, nausea, vomiting may follow. Diarrhea is possible.

Treatment depends on the cause. If caused by acids or corrosive chemicals immediate treatment is required to neutralize them as well as to wash them out of the stomach.

Hiatal hernia (which involves a portion of the stomach being forced through an aperture in the diaphragm) causes that portion of the stomach to be subject to irritation and inflammation. That's gastritis of one type.

Food poisoning, spoiled food, or other poisons and irritants can cause gastritis.

Infection, and overproduction of stomach acid are other causes. Alcohol, especially on an empty stomach, is a very common cause. In that case large amounts of Vitamin C have been helpful, although for the most part medicine is not beneficial. Rather, a bland, soft diet usually solves the difficulty in a short time.

The prime question, with gastritis, is "What's inflaming the stomach?" Then the answer is usually readily apparent.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been told that emphysema is the same as silicosis. Enclosed is a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for a copy of your booklet, "How to Control Emphysema." — H. C. P.

They are not identical although there are similarities. Both involve loss of ability by the lungs to absorb enough oxygen. Silicosis and emphysema may be present at the same time, but there are countless emphysema cases which do not involve silicosis. The explanation in the booklet will make this still more clear.

Dear Dr. Molner: Why do they all say "See your doctor; there is so much that can be done for arthritis?" I did and all I could get from him was, "Can't do much for it. Just take aspirin." Does drinking a lot of milk help? — Mrs. C. W.

Who are "they"? But I'll tell you why I say see your doctor. Because there are various kinds of arthritis, and some kinds of pains that seem like arthritis — yet aren't. I've encountered many such instances. The first purpose in seeing your doctor is to find out what you really have. After that, it depends. Some arthritis can be helped to a remarkable degree. Other cases are best handled just by keeping the arthritis from becoming too annoying and keeping it from interfering too much with your activity.

Milk has nothing to do with arthritis.

Aspirin or one of the salicylate derivatives remain an excellent first treatment of many arthritis problems.

Dear Dr. Molner: Will using a transistor hearing device impair the hearing. — H. K.

No. All it does is make sounds louder, just like turning up the volumne of a TV set. Sometimes, I know some people with hearing aids (whether with transistors or other kinds but nearly all are transistor - type now) think hearing aids have harmed them. In such cases, the real story is that their hearing was going downhill anyway.

Role of the Trade Unions in Society

Letters to the Editor

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In reply to the letter from R.O. published in last Saturday's Intelligencer it could be said that the letter would be laughable but for the sad fact, that a good many people seem to have the same opinion.

R.O. apparently thinks that in the U.S.A. one can escape union membership, I am afraid R.O. has not spent much time there or he would be of a different opinion. In fact most large North American unions have their head office in the United States where their largest membership is.

R.O. no doubt enjoys the benefits that were won for labor by the union members' blood, sweat and tears, benefits such as the forty-hour week, decent wages, holidays with pay and it wasn't necessary for R.O. to be a member of a union for some of the benefits won by union members in union shops filter back, after a length of time to non-union shops.

If unions are responsible for the high cost of living, would R.O. please consider these facts: in the United States steel industry just a few short years ago there were 100,000 men employed in the making of steel, today there are about 50,000. Where it used to take eight men one day to make a ton of steel it now takes three, but did the price of steel go down? Did production go down? Absolutely not, it went up. There have been more hikes in the price of steel than there have been raises in pay to the workers, and President Johnson found it necessary to step on them to prevent further hikes.

Now if R.O. will only read the last part of his own letter he will find the answer to high prices, the part where it is mentioned about one corporations profit of 1½ billion gross.

E. Forbes,
66 Gordon Street,
Belleville.

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I would like to make some comment on the letter to the Editor which appeared on Feb. 5, headed "Unions blamed for Cost Spiral".

First I would like to make comment on the fact that it is much easier to criticize, if you do not have the same amount of backbone as the person implies that our Government members should have. (He could have signed his name).

I would like to draw the R.O.'s attention to the fact that even though the system of Unions asking for a deserved share of the profits of their work may appear to him as a vicious circle, I would point out that our standard of living is considered one of the better ones, and is due to no small measure to the working man seeking his fair share.

I am also quite sure that if the person who wrote the letter were asked to live on the minimum wage for a year that he might also find this a very difficult task ($2,000).

I would certainly have to agree with the writer that there is no justification for any corporation to boast of gross profit of $1½ billion. However, I noticed in the paper the other evening that one of the large corporations was one of the first to get over $2. billion for the year. Surely, this would show that there is more to price increases than wage rates.

I would like to close by saying that I am sure industry certainly is pretty well sick of this industrial unheaval and that the general public is pretty well sick of the ever increasing cost of living, but must take exception to the fact that you put the two of these together as you did.

George Dainard,
Belleville.

Strictly Personal

The Boon of Family Life

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Only one thing is more difficult than following a diet or refraining from smoking or any such regimen — and that is to restrain ourselves from trying to impose it upon others at the same time.

Just as each of us falls victim only to certain diseases that are "compatible" with our constitution, so does each of us fall in love only with certain broad types who are compatible with our temperament; and if our temperament is a self-defeating one, our choice of a love-object will invariably be a person who will promote and hasten this self-defeat.

What the poor will never know is that getting a lot of money is only half the battle; the rich are aware that guarding it is even more arduous than acquiring it, and not nearly as pleasant.

The greatest mistake any age can make is to believe that something called a "fact" is necessarily true, while something called a "myth" is necessarily false — for no truth resides in a fact by itself, and the deepest truths can often be revealed only through myths.

"Dirty jokes" are possible only in a society that looks upon sex as dirty; in many primitive societies, a dirty joke is simply incomprehensible.

The therapeutic (and self-renewing) value of family life does not lie in its camaraderie and congeniality, but in the reverse — that it provides an environment in which we may be uncongenial when we like, without suffering the penalty of rejection or retribution.

Young people know less than we do, but they understand more; their perception has not yet been blunted by compromise, fatigue, rationalization, and the mistaking of mere respectability for morality.

Naivete can get people into trouble, but on the other hand it is probable that more people are saved from disaster by their naivete than others are saved by their sophistication.

Ninety percent of what we call "accidents" are not true accidents at all, but the inevitable consequences of carrying a cracked pitcher to the well once too often.

When we win in any contest, we always attribute too much of our success to our skill, and not enough to our opponent's ineptness; only the real expert is aware that most contests are lost by the loser more than they are won by the winner, as in a tennis match, where the number of errors, and not the number of placements, determines victory.

Bridge Across Lake Erie?

(St. Catharines Standard)

We're not alarmed over recent published reports that the state of Ohio is pushing for the construction of a 50-mile bridge across Lake Erie, linking Cleveland and Rondeau Harbor in Ontario.

As things stand now, Cleveland is being bypassed by the bulk of the heavy traffic movement between southern Ontario and the United States. Buffalo, N.Y., and Detroit, Mich., are the ports of entry, and Cleveland, situated on the south shore of Lake Erie midway between the two cities, has long cast an envious eye on their more advantageous position.

The thought behind the new bridge proposition is that a direct highway link across Lake Erie would funnel much of the north - south traffic through Ohio — to the detriment of Buffalo and Detroit. Their loss would be Cleveland's gain.

But a look at a map suggests that the economics of the bridge proposal have not been carefully thought out. Even with a bridge linking Rondeau Harbor on Lake Erie's north shore with Cleveland on the south shore, the bulk of the highway traffic between the densely-populated and heavily-industrialized areas of southern Ontario and the Northern U.S. would continue to use Buffalo and Detroit as ports of entry. Ohioans bound for vacation in Ontario would still find it easier and quicker to drive around the east end than to use the bridge that would take them into the Chatham area.

Hence, it is highly questionable whether the cost of the bridge link — estimated at several hundred million dollars — can be justified. It certainly can't be justified for Ontario, for this province has nothing to gain. Unlike Ohio, Ontario can't be bypassed.

Oshawa Paper Strike Talks Are Continuing

TORONTO (CP) — Overnight bargaining in the Oshawa newspaper strike continued at mid-morning today with no definite word of a break in the stalemate between the Oshawa Times and striking guild employees.

First settlement talks in the strike, in its 15th day today, started at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday and have continued, except for adjournments for lunch and dinner, until today.

A labor department spokesman had said earlier today that a settlement "may be near" but the newspaper and guild apparently ran into later snags. At mid-morning, a government mediator was meeting separately with Times representatives.

FIGHT LASTS LONG

Model knights on the clock at Wells Cathedral, England, have done battle every hour for the last 600 years.

MOIRA AUTHORITY CHAIRMAN James H. Sprackett (centre) checks Authority projects with vice chairman Gerald Irvine, and Graham Bell, chairman of water advisory board.

J. Sprackett, Former Warden, Named Chairman of Authority

Member of the Authority since its inception back in 1947 and former warden of the county Mr. James H. Sprackett of Tudor township was named chairman of the Moira River Conservation Authority at its annual general meeting held Wednesday at Belleville.

Stepping up from the role of vice chairman which he had held for the past three years, Mr. Sprackett succeeds George Wishart of Belleville as the Authority head. Gerald Irvine, Sidney township representative, is the new vice chairman.

Advisory Board chairmen named were: Forestry — James Spry; Conservation Areas — Thomas Armstrong, Water Control — Graham Bell; Education Extension — T. C. Graham, and Fish and Wildlife, a new advisory committee — William Armstrong.

New municipal representatives attending the meeting were Aldermen Donald Joss and George Brown, representing the city of Belleville and John Thompson from Elzevir township.

APPROVE BUDGET

Bruce H. Smith presented the nominating committee report with elections being conducted by A. S. L. Barnes, Chief Conservation Engineer for the Conservation Branch.

The meeting approved the 1966 budget of $101,885 of which $18,000 will be raised by levy against member municipalities, with $70,385 to be received through provincial and federal grants.

Also approved was the presentation of a brief to the Conservation Authorities Branch making application to ARDA for a grant of 90 per cent on all Authority water projects.

Water control projects with an estimated value of $2,857,000 are mentioned for consideration by the Authority. These include storage reservoirs at Deerock Lake on the Skootematta and at Bend Bay on the Upper Moira west of Moira Lake, along with a control dam at Stoco Lake and a river dam at Tweed.

WILL BUILD DAM

Graham Bell, chairman of the Authority water advisory board said, however, that only the Deerock Lake Dam at an estimated cost of $200,000 could be expected to go ahead this year.

Benefits outlined in the brief to be presented to ARDA include additional summer flow, recharging of ground water supplies, control of nuisance flooding, pollution abatement and recreation and conservation.

Mr. Bell stressed that approval of the brief in principle by ARDA does not commit the Moira Authority to carry out the individual projects.

OWN 13,955 ACRES

The Authority was told that during the past year a total of 627 acres of marginal and submarginal land had been acquired bringing the Authority's total forest area under agreement with the Land and Forests to 13,955 acres.

Last spring 184,000 trees were planted on Authority property bringing the number of trees planted to more than two and a quarter million trees.

Mr. Barnes commended Authority officials for carrying on a "very good program" over the years. He said the Moira had the largest forest of any Authority in the province.

In stepping down as chairman, George Wishart admitted disappointment in no longer having an official connection with the Moira Authority but said he would still retain an interest in conservation.

OUTLINES PROJECT

Mr. Wishart outlined projects which he hoped the Moira Authority would carry forward. These included development of the O'Hara Mill area as a pioneer village and also beautification of the river banks through the city of Belleville.

"Belleville," he said "paid 60 per cent of the Authority municipal levy, but actually had received but little direct benefit."

Mr. Wishart also referred to possible acquisition of the Corbyville dam with provision of additional spillways so as to control upstream flooding, and also the proposed establishment of a conservation school, which he said, could take the form of one day outings by school children.

The new Authority chairman James Sprackett said, that as a lumberman, he realized that conservation in the Moira watershed had come 50 years too late.

At the same time, however, he appreciated the good that can be accomplished through a good conservation and reforestation program.

Mrs. Sylvia Logue was named Authority secretary - treasurer during the leave of absence of J. H. McLeod.

He said the increase over spending during the current fiscal year is estimated at $318,800,000. Education and health services is responsible for 73 per cent of this amount.

EDUCATION COSTS HIGH

Combined spending in 1966 by the department of education ($575,500,000), the department of University Affairs ($91,400,000) and the Universities Capital Aid Corp. ($150,000,000) will be $816,900,000, or more than $200,000,000 over 1965.

Department of health spending is forecast at $244,100,000, an increase of $75,800,000 over the current fiscal year. But the province's medical care insurance program, scheduled to start July 1, will account for an estimated $58,900,000 of this amount.

The highways department will spend $373,300,000, up from about $336,800,000 during the fiscal year ending march 31. Mr. Allan forecast that total government spending will fall short of revenues by about $84,900,000, but he regarded this as a reasonable shortfall.

Revenues are estimated at $1,728,000,000, the treasurer said. Without the announced tax increases, he figured the province would be short of meeting this amount by $281,000,000.

Taken into consideration in calculating the 1966-67 budget was the $215,000,000 Ontario expects to receive during the 1966 calendar year from the Canada Pension Plan Fund.

USE PENSION FUNDS

The budget statement announced the government has decided this money will be used "primarily to provide facilities for the development of our human resources, especially the young people of our province."

To this end municipalities will be allowed to float school board debentures for school construction with the provincial government, instead of seeking capital from outside markets.

Any funds not applied to municipal debentures will be made available to the Universities Capital Aid Corp. as part of its proposed $150,000,000 investment in university construction in 1966. This amount will be loaned to universities for repayment over a 30-year term.

Total government aid to municipalities in 1966-67 will be $772,100,000, up $127,100,000 over the current year. Mr. Allan called this an unprecedented increase.

"A primary reason for the rising level of local assistance is the need to help local taxpayers in meeting education costs," he said.

MUNICIPAL AID UP

School grants to municipalities will be $383,400,000, up $52,400,000 from 1965-66. The effect of the increase in grants, and the increase in municipal borrowing power because of the availability of Canada Pension Plan money, should be to ease the load on the local taxpayer.

Directly, however, the budget offers little relief to the taxpayer except for an increase in succession duty tax exemptions. For widows and certain widowers, the exemption will go up to $75,000 from $60,000; for dependent children, $15,000 instead of $10,000, and for orphans, $25,000 instead of $15,000.

The budget warns of a possible increase in personal income tax in 1967. At present Ottawa returns to Ontario 21 per cent of all income taxes collected in Ontario. During 1966 this so-called "abatement" — which actually is an Ontario income tax—will increase to 24 per cent.

Mr. Allan said in 1967 Ontario will need a further four percentage points, putting the abatement at 28 per cent. The province will press for this at the next federal-provincial conference.

If Ottawa doesn't come through with the money, Ontario will have no alternative but to raise the income tax on its own, Mr. Allan said.

The retail sales tax, set at five per cent, will take over from personal income tax as the largest revenue producer. It is extimated at $383,000,000 for 1966-67, compared to $216,000,000 this year.

Strong Central

lan said, "by the fact that in 1964 the provincial and municipal governments together accounted for 81.7 per cent of total capital investment made by all governments in Canada."

During the last year there had been substantial evidence of a "favorable development in federal-provincial relations." Evidence of this was the acceleration of the trend towards more consultation and co-operative study.

The treasurer said, however, that "the process of consultation is far from adequate in view of the substantial areas of overlapping responsibility and concern." He added:

"Policies initiated by the federal government frequently have serious implications for provincial priorities, resources and policies and this is particularly contentious where the jurisdiction involved is a provincial one.

"We would urge the federal government to exercise leadership in the development of machinery, methods and procedures for ensuring full exchange of information and for working towards adequate co-operation and co-ordination in policy formulation and implementation.

"If this leadership is exercised by the federal government, then the federal and provincial governments can be in a position to make satisfactory judgments on over-all prospects and on appropriate short-run and long-run fiscal policies within the areas of their responsibilities.

"We will then be able to fit our efforts to improve our economic potential into a framework of national priorities and objectives."

ANAF Notes

When the Quinte Naval Vets Association disbanded recently, it was a sad and regrettable occasion. However, it was with great delight to see that their members have not entirely given up the ship. Many of them have been active members, in long standing in Unit 201 and are contributing their time and talent, in an official capacity, carrying out the functions and operations of the Unit. Norm Dall, the House and Beverage Room chairman, John Semark, the Membership chairman, to mention two of them and don't forget our president Jack Boyle. So let's get behind these boys and help them to help us make 1966 the banner year.

At a recent executive meeting the president announced that the following members have been appointed for the 1966 season. Associate members representatives C. Featherstone and J. Campbell. Belleville Poppy Fund committee, C. Chapman, N. Mills and M. Dracup. Sgt. at Arms, R. Featherstone.

Saturday afternoon sports events are now in full spring and sports chairman, Russ Blaind, reports that some of the recent winners in the dart tournament were, in the first playdown, Dimp Young and Jess Burley and in the second, Rolly Winstanley and Jack Fitzgerald. Why not join in the fun, see you on Saturday?

Hear that a couple of members have emptied the "pot" again, namely Norm Barriage and Phil Cornell not bad eh fellows, don't forget to register, it could be you!

Susanna's Family Fare

LOOK COOL — BE WARM

Dear Susanna: No wonder skiers can wear stretchy, slim fitting, unlined ski pants and still keep warm. I have just learned why from the owner of a winter sports equipment and accessory shop.

It is not the heaviness of the outside material that is so important, it is what goes next to the skin that counts doubly.

He talked me right out of the more expensive lined ski pants for the youngsters and myself, into the more streamlined, unlined ones . . . plus close fitting thermal underwear with long sleeves and legs. — Sports — One and All.

He's so right. With modern manufacturing techniques and materials, there is no need to be bundled and bulky in order to be warm on the slopes. There's glamor galore in them thar hills! — SUSANNA

CRUNCHY CELERY

Dear Susanna: Celery that has become somewhat limp and dry will take on a new crispness and succulence if left in a container of ice water in the refrigerator overnight. — Mrs. L. H.

NO-LICK STICKER

Dear Susanna: An empty, well washed mucilage bottle, partly filled with water, makes a rather neat envelope and stamp wetter to have in one's desk. — Faithful Reader.

MONTREAL (CP) — Columnist Pat Pearce, in a talk on the effects of television on children, cited a four-year-old acquaintance who was told her grandmother was dead. Replied the young miss: "Oh, who shot her?"

SOUR CREAM DROP COOKIES

This recipe will ingratiate me with you, for it gives you a perfect way to use up your leftover Christmas cake fruits. I used leftover glace cherries, walnuts, citron peel and raisins. You can use them or cocoanut or currants or candied pineapple, or chopped dates, or blanched almonds, or any combination you have leftover.

SOUR CREAM DROP COOKIES (use leftover fruit cake fruits; fifty-eight 2½" cookies):

¼ cup butter, 1½ cups granulated sugar, 2 eggs, 2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon nutmeg (optional), ¾ cup dairy sour cream, ½ cup light sultana raisins (or chopped dates), ½ cup chopped walnuts (or blanched almonds), ½ cup (4-oz. package) chopped glace cherries (or candied pineapple), ½ cup (4-oz. package) citron peel (or other peel or currants).

Cream together well the butter and sugar then beat in the eggs thoroughly. Sift together the sifted flour, salt, baking soda and nutmeg if used. (Note: when it was stirred up I divided the batter and added ½ teaspoon nutmeg to half of it. I liked both variations equally.) Add flour mixture to butter mixture along with the sour cream and all fruits and nuts and mix well. Drop from moistened spoon onto buttered cookie sheets, at least 2" apart, making rounds about 1½" in diameter. (These result in 2½" cookies.) Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 15 minutes until pale gold but be sure to switch pans in oven and that not one of these lovely cookies burns. I had 58 of them. They keep well if stored in tightly covered box or will freeze if wrapped in double plastic bags. If you freeze them put only 1 dozen in each double bag, which simplifies thawing just enough for one plateful.

NOTE:

Obviously you may use only one fruit such as 2 cups sultana or seeded raisins or 2 cups chopped nuts if you wish. The variation using only 2 cups chopped pecans is excellent.

Amateur Art Instructors' Workshop Held Recently

An amateur are instructors' workshop was held recently at the Tops Motel, sponsored by the Community Programs Division of the Ontario Department of Education. Mr. Ralph Allen, director of the Agnes Etherington Art Centre, Queen's University, Kingston, and chief art instructor at the university, was the instructor. Mrs. Hugh Murray of Belleville was in charge of registration.

Mr. Allen gave a most comprehensive lecture, illustrated with slides, on the history of abstract from the 15th century to the present day. He dealt with the growth of artists' ability to create the illusion of the perspective and depth of three dimensions on a two dimensional surface from the flat illustrative religious paintings without form, done under the patronage of the church in the dark ages, through the renaissance and the rediscovery of the ancient Greek theory in the industrial age, to the present space age.

REFLECT SOCIAL STRESSES

"The social stresses of the time are reflected in the art of the time," said Mr. Allen. He told the gathering that the pace of movements or periods in art has accelerated tremendously because of the increase in the speed of communication. Where a period or movement in the renaissance might have lasted 50 to 60 years, at present it would pass in four or five. However, the problems remain much the same, presenting three dimensions on a flat surface.

The remainder of the weekend was divided into three sessions of formal problems in structure, tension, space, proportion and relationship. Saturday morning was spent on a landscape abstract in oils done with a knife. The canvas was divided classicly into sky and land and the students proceeded to an abstract snow scene concentrating on controlled depth and structure.

Saturday afternoon the group delved into the mysteries of a new medium, acrylic paints, and Mr. Allen again directed a problem in abstract composition and design. Sunday morning was spent on an entirely different aspect of the subject, geometric linear design.

This is an exciting, precise art which calls for good eyesight and a steady hand, but the results are enchanting.

This National organization — a Canadian organization —raises and disburses annually over $1,000,000 for education, emergency and disaster relief.

In the field of service the I.O.D.E. continues to make a worthy contribution, both at home and abroad, amounting to approximately half a million dollars annually. The amount of $325,000 is spent on welfare in Canada, and $115,000 on relief supplies to the needy which are shipped to Europe, Africa, Korea, The West Indies, Hong Kong and India. This includes the sponsorship of destitute and refugee children.

SHIP 600 CASES

In the past year 600 cases were shipped to the emerging countries. The contents of the cases represent incalcuable hours of work spent by I.O.D.E. members across Canada. Each province has a workroom, staffed by members who sort and pack the handmade quilts, sweaters, baby clothes, afghans and toys for shipping. Members give countless hours of service to institutions for the Blind, Retarded Children, Cerebral Palsy, work in hospitals, Blood Donor clinics and Canadian Friendship Centres.

Eleven years ago X-ray equipment was provided for the T.B. children in Korea. Each year the supporting supplies such as X-ray developer, film and parts necessary for the maintenance of the unit are sent — the cost amounting to $3,600 annually.

Members again enthusiastically packed Christmas parcels for the Eskimo and Indian children in Community Centres and on reservations in the Far North.

Over $350,000.00 is spent on educational projects by the Order and the work continues to expand.

Sixty-four schools and ten hostels in the Northwest Territories have been adopted by the chapters, as well as thirty-six schools in Northern and Southern Labrador, and eighty-one remote and isolated schools in Newfoundland. The IODE has also adopted secondary schools in The West Indies and British Honduras. School adoption constitutes gifts of new libraries, prize books, records, pianos, geographic slides, projectors, and varied visual aids.

SUPPORT CANADIAN ART

Canadian arts continue to be supported by the IODE in each province. The National Chapter of Canada awarded a third bursary, amounting to $300 to the National Theatre School of Canada. A first IODE grant of $300 was given to the National Youth Orchestra, to supplement the cost of orchestral music scores.

Four students in each of five secondary schools in the Mackenzie Education District received $25 IODE Achievement Awards for a subject on the school curriculum.

The work of the Commonwealth Relations department is done mainly in education. This year, three undergraduate students are studying medicine—two in India and one in Nigeria. A doctor from India is taking post-graduate study in England. Students from Jamaica, British Guiana and Ghana are taking post-graduate courses in Canada.

An amount of $69,400 was awarded from IODE First and Second War Memorial Funds to provide post-graduate scholarships of $2,000 each (in Canada) and, $2,300 each (for overseas); bursaries were awarded to children of Canadian War Veterans to enable them to attend Canadian universities.

The IODE Canadian Centenary Fund has a minimum objective of $50,000. This fund, to which all members have been contributing, will be shared equally by all ten provinces as well as an allocation to the Yukon Territory. Each province has a special educational project to commemorate Canada's Centennial Year, which will be financed from their share of the fund.

The work of the IODE continues to go forward, despite the trials and tribulations of a troubled world. The enthusiasm of the members and, its dedicated role as a force for all that is helpful and good, are all factors that have strengthened the Order in the past and will sustain it in the future.

The local Chapters of the IODE in Belleville are the Argyll Chapter and the St. Julien Chapter. The Argyll is a Military Chapter and wives from the three services are welcome. The objects of these two chapters are similar and both cooperate in entertaining New Canadians following their receipt of Canadian Citizenship Certificates at the County Court. The Chapters also distribute IODE calendars to all the schools.

Needy families are helped at Christmas time and gifts given to the Mental Association. Volunteers assist at Red Cross Clinics and the Cancer Society.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor length bridal gown of lace over taffeta cut on Empire lines iwth slim skirt. The bodice featured a scalloped neckline and pointed sleeves. Her lace bordered veil extended to the hemline, falling from a tiara of fabric flowers She carried a cascade bouquet of deep red roses mingled with lily-of-the-valley.

Sharon Chappelle of Foxboro was maid of honor, Mary Clapp of Belleville and Margaret Kells of Deseronto were the bridesmaids. Marlene Lindsay, cousin of the bride was the demure little flower girl. All wore identical Empire styled gowns featuring velvet tops and long white crepe skirts. Each carried a bouquet of 'mums tinted to match the top of the gown. The maid of honor was in royal blue and the others in deep red and all wore headbands of white fabric flowers.

The bridegroom was attended by Keith Hill and the ushers were Larry Cook and Douglas Maracle, both of Shannonville.

The reception was held in the Legion Hall, Deseronto when the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a pastel pink brocade gown, black accessories and a corsage of pink 'mums. She was assited by the mother of the bridegroom who wore a navy dress with pink accessories and a corsage of white 'mums. Mel Warren was toastmaster at the reception.

Ann Landers

Coffee Table No Place for Piggy Bank

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A couple we know has a three-year-old child. They keep the child's piggy bank in the living room on the coffee table. Whenever they entertain the conversation somehow gets turned to the piggy bank.

ANN LANDERS

The parents tell how much was in the bank when they last opened it and who gave what. They save for different "projects" and open the bank when it gets so full they can't put any more money in.

Right now they are saving for a dance costume. We got all the details last night. My husband put in 50c "to help the cause." I don't care about the 50c but I think it's poor taste to put guests on the spot. My husband says I'm small-minded. Am I? — MODERN MATH.

DEAR MODERN: You can call it a piggy bank if you want to. I call it a collection box — and the living room is no place for it. I'm with you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Yesterday I received an anonymous message in the mail. It read: "Dear Friend. I ran across this bright saying and thought of your husband: "If at first you do succeed, chances are good that it's your father's business."

My husband happens to be in his father's business. It is a large company and a successful one. My husband started at the bottom and has earned the position he now holds. Under his leadership the business has expanded and flourished.

What outsiders don't know about the problems of a family business could fill a library. The pressures are terrific. My husband works harder than anyone I know. It burns me up when people intimate that he was born successful and sits back and rakes in the money.

Thanks for letting me get this off my chest, Ann, I feel better already. — ALSO ANONYMOUS.

DEAR ALSO: It is unfair to assume that every man who is a family business has had success dropped in his lap. Many bright, hard-working men in family business could have made it big somewhere else — and some of them wish they had.

The emotional problems which result from relatives being in business together can be devastating.

Anonymous messages are the handiwork of cowardly malcontents. Forget it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband was never one for hobbies until six months ago. At the age of 55 he suddenly decided to take up the cello.

I don't even care for good cello music so you can imagine what I endure when he screeched away two or three hours a day. Alex is teaching himself with the help of some books. He didn't even know he was supposed to put resin on the bow until I told him.

Our children all studied music when they were young and their practising never bothered me the way this does. Please tell me what to do. I'm getting nervous. — L.C.

DEAR L.C.: Don't complain because your 55-year-old husband is fiddling around. At least Alex has a cello.

Fix up a practice nook for him in the attic, the basement or even the garage. And buy a transistor radio to carry with you as you do your housework. It will help drown out the racket — I mean music.

Woman Owned Taxi Company, Never Drove

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Kathleen O'Brien, who 40 years ago founded Canada's first taxicab company to be owned by a woman but who never learned to drive a car has died at the age of 84.

During the depression she bought two Cadillacs to provide work for her unemployed sons as cab drivers.

"The boys asked me for work to pay off their rent because nobody had jobs then," she once said in an interview. "I couldn't turn them away so we divided up the runs to give everyone a little money."

The two cars soon became 12 and she formed the Crosstown Taxi Co. Until about five years ago, Mrs. O'Brien dispatched the cars from her downtown office. She then joined another firm, but one car retained the Crosstown name.

Besides her own family and some 10 students who boarded in her home, Mrs. O'Brien raised two orphans.

A former vice-president of the American Taxicab Owners Association, Mrs. O'Brien had 14 grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

Visiting Problems In Broken Homes

DEAR DORIS: After putting up with many beatings I went to court to get protection from my husband. As a result he left me.

DORIS CLARK

My husband phones to make arrangements to see our son but is not so anxious to see his daughters. I know it would be more convenient for him to come to our home to visit them but when he did this before, it was very upsetting to everyone to see him leave.

So I think it would be better for him to take the children and visit with them elsewhere.

Is this arrangement fair? The kiddies are confused and I have explained that their daddy was not happy living here and we hope and pray he is happy now. — SEPARATED.

DEAR SEPARATED: It is often done, because of strained relations in the home. In any broken-home situation the children are likely to feel rejected by the parent who has withdrawn from living with them.

Consider how best you can preserve their security. Your explanation for his absence is about as good as you can manage, but since every case is different, some skilled counselling can keep your thinking straight.

In Belleville your resource is the Children's Aid Society, 63 West Moira Street, which counsels on family problems as well as when children are involved.

U.C.W. Meetings

BRIDGE STREET U.C.W.

A sing-song led by Mrs. M. Davidson, with Mrs. T. K. Franklin at the piano, opened the February meeting of the U.C.W. of Bridge Street Church.

Mrs. D. G. Williams, president, welcomed the members sharing with them a message for a "new year of service" from Mrs. F. Smith, immediate past president of the Presbyterial.

An interesting item was the presentation to Mrs. Agnes Curry of a life membership in the U.C.W., by her daughter, Mrs. L. Stirland.

In presenting the certificate and pin Mrs. Williams stated that Mrs. Curry had exemplified, in her service to the church, what a United Church woman should stand for.

The program, arranged by the committee on Christian citizenship and social action, featured a film, "Almost Neighbors."

Mrs. George Greer of Trenton, audio-visual co-ordinator for the Bay of Quinte Conference, introduced the film and distributed questions for a discussion period to follow.

The film was challenging. It depicted a prosperous suburban family faced with the task of understanding the turmoil and unrest of a nearby community, many of whose members differed from it in race and standards of living.

The discussion of the film, carried on in small groups, caused a good deal of self-examination and a clear look at our own community and its needs.

A tape which recorded the familiar story of the Good Samaritan, told in modern idiom and in a present-day setting, brought new understanding to this familiar story.

Mrs. W. Sine expressed the gratitude of the gathering to Mrs. Greer for her presentation.

SHE TAKES THE LIGHT APPROACH — Francoise Lepine of Montreal is the only woman in Canada specializing in architectural lighting. She says the function of light, in any building, home, church or business office, is to make the room and everything in it look as attractive as possible. Her firm, Galer[illegible] and Associates, is one of 13 firms in North America specializing in the field. (CP Photo)

Girl Gives Up School To Enter Lighting Firm

MONTREAL (CP) — Francoise Lepine is a dark-eyed young woman to whom the bright lights constantly beckon —provided they're not too bright, are focused on the right things and make a room and everything in it look as attractive as possible.

A specialist in architectural lighting, Miss Lepine says her philosophy regarding lighting applies to any kind of building —a restaurant, church, home, museum or even a liquor commission office.

Miss Lepine, a member of the fledgling firm of Galemmo and Associates, designed the lighting for the Quebec liquor commission at Place Victoria, one of Montreal's huge new office and store buldings.

In the commission, lighting is focused where she considers it should be—on the bottles and on the work counters where money is exchanged. The ceiling and customer area are shaded because they are of no consequence to the business conducted.

"You have to consider what the function of a place is, what is noteworthy about it and then concentrate on that."

ILLUMINATE CEILING

The same approach was used on the firm's current project—lighting the basilica at Ste. Anne de Beaupre on the outskirts of Quebec City. It was discovered during the inspection tour that the basilica's beautiful mosaic ceiling had been completely neglected.

As a result, light will be used to bring out the beauty of the ceiling as well as the windows and wall niches containing the statuary, Miss Lepine said.

The confessionals will also receive a new look, with light being focused on the floors and the rest of the area in shadowed dimness. "After all, that is no place for spotlights."

A native of Joliette, Que., [illegible] a graduate of College Jesus-Marie in Outremont, Miss Lepine more or less fell into her specialty. She had completed two years of a four-year course in interior decorating at the Institut des Arts Appliques when she applied for a summer job with her present firm.

"He thought I might get so interested in the work that I wouldn't return to school, and he was right," Miss Lepine said of her boss. "It was a big decision to forfeit my diploma, but I think I made the right choice. It is a completely new field and a very exciting one."

Miss Lepine shares in every aspect of the business with her boss—attending meetings with clients, architects, engineers, interior decorators; making presentations of suggested lighting plans to clients; drafting [illegible] technical drawings; and supervising installations on construction sites.

Church Groups

WESLEYAN METHODIST MISSIONARY SOCIETY

The February meeting of the Wesleyan Methodist Missionary Society was under the direction of Mrs. Lil Jeffrey and Mrs. Doris Cummings and held in the church SS auditorium.

Mrs. Lyla Voteary presided over the business at which time the ladies decided to hold a WWF prayer meeting on the second Tuesday of the month and to hold a work meeting the third Thursday. It was passed that the WMS purchase paint and door closers for the kitchen of the church. A letter of appreciation was read from Miss Joan Anglin, missionary to the deaf in Puerto Rico for the Christmas gift.

A quiz was conducted on the missionaries and mission stations on the island of Haiti by Mrs. Doris Cummings. "Around the World in the Magazine" was given by Mrs. Nora Elliott who cited several interesting articles, after which Mrs. Leta Young rendered a solo.

An inspiring message which revealed several personal answers to prayer was brought by Mr. Elmer Voteary who urged the ladies "to never underestimate the power of a mother's prayers".

CHRIST CHURCH CHI RHO FELLOWSHIP

Chi Rho Fellowship started the New Year with the election of its officers for the year 1966. They are as follows: president, Betty Gardiner; vice - president Bruce Ripley; secretary, Joy Butler, treasurer, Ron Green. They were recently installed at an impressive ceremony conducted by Canon Wright during a church service. Executive meetings followed coming up with quite an interesting program for the following weeks.

Last Wednesday, two interesting talks given by Mrs. De Groot and Mrs. Buchan about the Children's Aid Society and the Red Cross Homemakers were thoroughly enjoyed by the group. At the meeting, a sleigh riding party was planned.

Chi Rho Fellowship welcomes interested single and married adults to join the group. Meetings are held every first and third Wednesdays of the month at Christ Church Parish Hall.

Fashion Designer Says Canadian Women Spruce Up In Last Fifteen Years

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP)—Arnold Scaasi, Montreal-born New York fashion designer, says Canadian women have spruced up in the 15 years since he left Montreal.

In a press conference Wednesday, he said: "Canadian women were really quite dowdy, they were afraid to try anything. I think that's changed."

It has changed, he suggested, partly because fashion has become international. But, he said, the best fashion does not follow any trend slavishly. It adapts trends to a woman's individual style.

Mr. Scaasi, who trained in Montreal and Paris, heads a fashion house that caters to individuals. He said his clients include Mrs. Henry Ford, Arlene Francis, and two of 1965's best-dressed list, entertainers Barbra Streisand and Dina Merrill.

"Fashion to me is sense. Whether it be for Sophia Loren, a nun or a fashion reporter, it must make sense for you. When it does, it becomes good fashion. Trends can guide you.

'CREATES CLOTHES'

"I think it is important to create clothes; I don't think you can create clothes on a wooden dummy. You create them for a woman.

"That is why France and Europe continue to be fashion leaders, because they work with women. The French couture is a schoolroom for the U.S. market because they do the testing on their own customers."

Mr. Scaasi said he believes the market for expensive, mass-produced clothes is dying.

"An evening dress that costs $1,200 should be made, not bought in stores. There is a demand for made-to-order clothes from women who are tired of seeing the same dress over and over again on their friends.

"The tradition of couture being for fat old ladies w[illegible] very rich is gone. The day [illegible] fat is over. Women diet and exercise. The average woman today is size eight or 10.

Mr. Scaasi said he doesn't think current styles are drastically youthful or drastically changed from a few years ago.

SEEK YOUTH

"You don't see much change in what the individual wears. And each period has had its own kind of youth movement. Women want to look young. Chanel did it in the 20s, Shiaparelli in the 40s. These clothes were certainly considered kooky at the time.

"The current styles may seem a complete change now, but I wonder if each generation has said the same."

He said he didn't think [illegible]rent styles look masc[illegible] merely suitable for the kind of lives women lead now.

"Women aren't coming into their own, they are in it. You all work and manage your houses. You haven't emasculated the men or changed places.

World Apparently Growing Mellower Toward Second Sex

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Indira Nehru Gandhi's election as India's prime minister is a spectacular example of how far women have come in a world that apparently is growing mellower all the time toward the second sex.

Feminists everywhere are hoping it may usher in a new era of women's advancement. As it is, they already are heartened by these recent events:

—Justice Elizabeth Lane appointed to a high court bench in Britain, first time for a woman.

—Dr. A. A. L. Minkenhof sworn in as first woman solicitor - general in The Netherlands.

—Princess Lalla Aicha of Morocco sent to Britain as her country's first woman ambassador.

—Mrs. Constance Baker Motley named by President Johnson to be the first Negro woman federal judge in the United States.

—Golda Meir, Israel's foreign minister since 1956 and labor minister seven years before that, retiring at age 67, stoutly maintaining that she will keep on working in politics and labor.

The list of important women and their personal achievements goes on, impressively. Room at the top for educated, talented women is expanding all the time.

Uncounted numbers of women around the world, though, still face discrimination in work, pay, educational opportunities. Many are deprived of personal and property rights as soon as they say "I do" in whatever tongue they speak.

HUSBAND IS BOSS

Often the husband has the only say-so about the children. He can legally prevent his wife taking work outside the home. He owns everything. He can divorce her and toss her out without support, keeping the children.

For 20 years the UN commission on the status of women has worked hard to help point out a more fair and humane way to the nations in which these rules of family life exist. But it is frequently a slippery balancing-act to keep peace in the family of nations when proposed changes to improve women's lot run counter to age-old traditions.

The commission believes in the right of people to choose their own spouses, in monogamy, in equal right to dissolution of marriage, in widows getting custody of their own children. It wants the practice of bride price and child marriages abolished.

Slowly some nations are coming around. The biggest hassle at the moment seems to be over the UN recommendation of age 15 as the world-wide minimum age for girls to marry. Opposition is serious, and at least one delegate argues that in many tropical countries girls are mature at 12 or 13.

In the big cities of the world women may be independent, sophisticated, emancipated. But in the rural areas old customs die slowly.

In Japan, for example, where women now have virtually the same rights as their North American sisters—at least on paper—the country wife is still subservient to the husband.

LACK FREEDOM

In remote Yemen, women work hard, enjoy no freedoms, often share the household with second and third wives, are given little medical attention because it's not seemly to remove their veils for examination.

Yet looking over legislation enacted in just the last decade you can't deny progress, even where practice lags behind law. Here are just a few, picked at random:

Guatemala — 1956, women given the right of access to public employment.

Italy—1956, women given the right to serve as jurors.

Belgium — 1958, married women allowed to open savings accounts in their own names an dispose of the funds.

Federal Republic of Germany—1958, married women allowed to engage in independent work outside the home without needing husbands' consent.

The Netherlands—1958, women civil servants and public school teachers given the right to continue in their posts after marriage.

Sweden — 1959, women given the right to occupy all religious posts in the state church on equal terms with men.

Korea—1960, widows given the right to become guardians of their children without requiring consent of the family council.

Pakistan—1961, minimum age of marriage for girls raised to 16 from 14.

India — 1961, dowry practice abolished.

Guinea—1962, married women given the right to administer and dispose of their personal property and earnings.

MAKE PROGRESS

In political rights women may be making the most progress.

The United Nations lists 112 countries in which women may vote in all elections and run for office on an equal basis with men. About 80 of these gave the franchise to women after 1945.

A few have educational requirements for women not asked of men, but only nine countries give women no voting rights at all.

More and more women are being elected to their parliaments and appointed to high administrative posts.

A recent UN survey, in which 54 governments reported, showed that 47 of the countries had had women elected to the national Parliament; 23 had held ministers' posts—often of social welfare and housing; 14 had judges of high courts, 14 had women ambassadors.

As for women prime ministers, Mrs. Gandhi is the second in modern times. The first, Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike, took over in Ceylon as a politically inexperienced widow succeeding her husband. After five years' rule she resigned when her Freedom party was defeated last March.

Probably the only woman parliamentary president, Mrs. Istvan Voss, 49, of Hungary undermines that comfortable persuasion of the homebody that serving in high public offices makes a woman unfeminine. Mrs. Voss has a weakness for clothes and beauty shops as well as hard work.

In other areas of achievement, ardent feminists always mention that in the Soviet Union 75 per cent of all medical doctors are women. The Russians have other recent figures: Of every 100 workers in industry, 46 are women; in education and culture it's 62; in public health, 86.

In the world as a whole 27 out of 100 women work outside the home. One-third of the world's labor force is made up of women. Married women represent more than half of all women in the labor force. .

Once past the statistics there is a dark side.

The UN commission on the status of women reported last year that while there were encouraging developments generally ". . . in most countries progress toward equal pay remained disappointingly slow and the general level of women's wages remained low in comparison with that of men's wages; in some countries the position was even deteriorating."

Some Council Members Disappointed at Interim Report on Annexation

PICTON (Staff) — At least some members of Picton's Town Council expressed disappointment in the interim report on annexation received from representatives of Proctor, Redfern, Bousfield and Bacon.

Although the plan provided by the consulting engineering firm was similar to that originated by the Central Prince Edward Planning Board in that major expansion would move north, west and east, the figures were different. The planning board recommended an area for annexation of about 3,000 acres or three and-one-half times the town's present size. The Toronto firm, retained by the town to complete an annexation study, suggested about 800 to 1,000 acres.

The experts predicted a two percent population growth for Picton over the next 20 years. They also predicted that the business section would expand toward King Street rather than extend much more along Main Street.

The firm also stated they did not recommend taking in certain strip development areas as these continue to stretch out and are hard to service. They also suggested an alternative method of handling sewage from the northern end of town, which would eliminate both the present Hill and Bridge street pumping station and allow a gravity feed into the sewage plant. However, it would require a new main network.

Reeve Bernard Hepburn, commenting on the firm's proposals said, "I'm disappointed in the size. He also expressed concern about the proposed bypass around the north east edge of town for heavy traffic.

Planning chairman Robert Walmsley suggested the committee hold another meeting to give the report further study and to use it as a basis for another meeting with Hallowell Township officials in the near future.

Junior Farmers To Hold School On Leadership

PICTON (Staff) — Barton MacLean of Napanee, last year's winner of the junior farmers' travelling scholarship to Great Britain, will show slides of his recent trip at the annual junior farmers' leadership school, which will be he[illegible] ear at Sophiasburgh Ce[illegible] ool by the Prince Edw[illegible] County Group. Members from Hastings, Lennox and Addington, and Frontenac Counties will attend the conference scheduled for Feb. 12.

Included in the day long program to promote leadership are group discussions on program planning, recreation in the community, Quinte area history, and district centennial projects.

Local members will entertain their guests at a party and dance following the conference, which will be held at Sophiasburgh Central School beginning at 10 a.m.

STATE WANTED SHARE

Windows, chimneys, newspapers, tombstones and wigs have all been taxed at one time or another.

Kiwanis Club Votes $1,200 To Program

PICTON (Staff) — Town councillor Dr. Lionel Dockrill, past president of the Picton Kiwanis Club, and recently voted Picton's Man-of-the-Year by Picton Jaycees announced to council this week that his club has voted to his committee the sum of $1,200 to cover the entire estimated cost of the summer playground program for this year. Kiwanis Club of Picton has sponsored the operation of Benson Park, in the heart of the town, for some time. Kiwanis Club and Picton Recreation Committee will be supervising its operation this year.

again a confused, disorganized, timorous and ultra - Conservative response to the dynamic challenges of the 1960s."

In Ottawa, federal officials said the increase in sales and excise taxes came as no surprise, and were not out of line with rates in other provinces.

Reactions from automotive and general manufacturing industries was of concern and "wait-and-see" in most cases, but civic leaders were more pointed in their criticisms.

They said there is no sign in the budget that the province is ready to modernize provincial-municipal relations by taking over a greater share of the costs of welfare, education and the administration of justice.

Reeve Albert Campbell of the Toronto suburb of Scarborough, president of the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves, described the budget as all take and no give.

HITS POOREST

Bruce Magnuson, Ontario leader of the Communist party, said the sales tax increase will hit hardest those least able to pay.

"In our opinion, it would be much more sensible to consider a tax on capital gains in this period of phenomenal earnings and high profits."

Spokesmen for General Motors of Canada Ltd. in Oshawa said "like anyone we do not want to see taxes going up . . . in our area of business an increase in cost simply limits the market a bit more."

Donald H. E. Carlson, secretary of Ford of Canada Ltd. at Oakville, said Ontario auto purchases represent about 40 per cent of the total Canadian automotive market.

"Our industry will watch the effect of the increase in tax closely to see whether . . . the momentum of growing auto sales . . . will be impeded."

In Windsor, a Chrysler of Canada Ltd. spokesman said: "We will have to study what effect there will be on business before commenting further."

M. V. Vichnich, chairman of the Ontario division, Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said he feels the sales tax is the lesser of two evils.

"If the government must have more funds, it is better to get them through the retail sales tax rather than from increased personal and corporation income taxes," he said.

D. W. Rolling, general manager of the Retail Merchants Association, said Ontario shoppers may substantially curtail purchases of major appliances and luxury products because of the sales tax increase.

He expected a shoppers boom until the time the sale tax goes into effect April 1.

Donna Bartlett Awarded Top Sportsman's Trophy

NAPANEE — At the meeting of the Napanee Recreational Committee Tuesday evening, Miss Donna Bartlett, R.R. 5, Napanee, top sportsman of the year for the area, received the trophy from the hands of the donor himself, president Grant Clark. The Grant Clark trophy is awarded for outstanding contribution of time and effort in the furthering of sport in the district, not for participation. Miss Bartlett had been especially active in the church league in baseball.

The annual convention of the Ontario Recreation Association to be held at Chalk River, May 5 to 7 inclusive, came up for discussion at the meeting. At least two delegates will go from Napanee. One of the outstanding events of the convention will be a tour of the atomic plant at Chalk River, it was stated.

Mayor Lorne Smart reported that the $1,800 budget of the committee had been tentatively accepted by the Town Council at its meeting the previous evening, and that the matter of hiring a permanent recreational director had been discussed. Other communities had found that such a director was necessary if recreation were to be supplied for all people of all ages, from small children to the elderly and in between. He advised the committee to make a formal request to the council for the appointment of such a person.

SCHOOL FACILITIES "SECOND TO NONE"

There was a general discussion regarding the recreational facilities which will be available in the Napanee District Secondary School, once the extensions to the school and to the playing field are completed. The discussion was led by Lorne Verabioff, head of the physical training department of the school. Once the additions have been completed and the new equipment has been installed, this school will be second to none in Canada in this respect, Mr. Verabioff stated. All these facilities will be available for public recreation when not in use for school purposes, he added.

The question of some form of recreation for older people came up near the close of the meeting, and it was moved by Mr. Clark, seconded by Mr. Verabioff, and carried, that an advertisement be inserted in the local paper requesting senior citizens who would like to have an opportunity to meet each other socially to get in touch with Mr. Clark and discuss the matter with him. (Phone 354-4528).

LAUDS CRAFT TEACHER

Mayor Smart paid a glowing tribute to Mrs. Margaret Murphy for the wonderful work she is doing for public school children each Saturday morning. "She is a very valuable person to have in the town and what she is doing is not properly appreciated. She should receive more publicity," Mayor Smart stated.

Mrs. Murphy teaches arts and crafts to children who are not particularly interested in such things as hockey.

"Not everybody is interested in athletics", the mayor added," and it is up to us to teach such children to make use of their talents. Mrs. Murphy is doing this for us."

Water Sharing Scheme Is Deseronto's Decision: Mayor

NAPANEE — When asked his opinion regarding the reported attitude of some Deseronto councillors regarding the proposal to pipe Napanee water into the neighboring town, Napanee's Mayor Lorne Smart remarked "Napanee has plenty of water for itself and for Deseronto, but it is a matter for Deseronto alone to decide. We are not prompting anything, but we are willing to share our plenty with our neighbors if we can help. We will co-operate with anyone who needs help. If Deseronto wants to use Deseronto water, it is up to them. If they want to use Napanee water, it is here for them to use. That is all there is to it," he added.

"Before we built our new filtration plant, everybody complained about the taste of the water and with good cause. But since the new plant has been in use, there are far fewer complaints, and many of these are just from habit. The water in every town tastes different," Mayor Smart continued. "As far as we are concerned, Napanee water is good water now."

"After all, all we are doing is discussing proposals made by the Ontario Water Resources Commission, and they know what they are talking about," he went on. "Now we are just waiting to see how much it will cost us per 1,000 gallons. So far nothing that has been done has cost us a cent."

armed forces leaders on conditions for their departure.

Garcia - Godoy ordered top rebel military leaders and three of the four top men in the armed forces out of the country Jan. 6 in an effort to ease bitter dissension between the two factions. The rebels have complied.

Authorities said one of the victims, Jacinto Caamano, was a cousin of the former rebel chieftain, Col Francisco Caamano Deno, who was sent to London as a military attache by Garcia-Godoy.

The disorders, which lasted far into the night, began when some 600 teen - age students marched on the national palace during the morning, demanding restoration of financial assistance to universities which t[illegible] government recently cut while investigating charges of misappropriations of university funds.

The police said that after they had prevented a student leader from speaking at the demonstration they were fired on from the roof of a building near the palace.

Eyewitnesses said, however, that they heard no shots until the police fired on the demonstrators.

BULLETS BOUNCED

Some of the police shot into the air but others were seen to fire into the ground, and ricocheting bullets were believed to have killed two students. The third died in hospital.

When reports that three students had been killed began to spread, crowds gathered throughout the city blocki[illegible] streets and stoning many v[illegible] hicles.

During the rioting a car from the United States embassy and two from the Canadian embassy were set afire. Bursts of machine-gun fire could be heard throughout the city.

U.S. paratroopers of the Inter-American Peace Force evacuated U.S. Information Service and Canadian embassy personnel from their downtown office.

Campbellford Council Briefs

CAMPBELLFORD — Two new flags have been placed in the Municipal Council rooms, one the Canadian Maple Leaf and the other the Union Jack. It is about a year since the Canadian flag was first flown and questions were being asked why one was not in the municipal building

A resolution was received from the Goderich Municipal Council stating that as a number of Municipalities are in the process of establishing, or have completed sewage disposal plants to lessen pollution in the Great Lakes and smaller lakes and river, and as this is a benefit to the province of Ontario and Canada as a whole therefore the provincial government and Federal government be asked to contribute 50 per cent of the cost of sewage disposal on any lake or river. This resolution was endorsed by the Municipal Council.

A request from Campbellford Lions Club to hold a carnival on the municipal parking lot on July 14, 15 and 16 was granted.

The appointment of D. R. Maybee to L.O.D.A. as a Chamber of Commerce representative was approved by Council.

Mr. Wrightly of Port Hope paid an unofficial visit to Council and outlined the system of telephone connections in private homes of firemen as a means of alerting firemen to a fire. He stated this system had been in Port Hope for about 17 years and had proved satisfactory. Former Reeve Arthur Brown had tried to have this system installed in Campbellford in 1965, failing to get support. Reeve Brown asked for a new siren to be bought as firemen were not hearing the present one. F. G. DeCarroll on instructions from Council has a new siren on order.

W. R. Nicholas, welfare chairman objected to welfare expense in some individual cases. He was also opposed to the limited financial assistance being given to the Campbellford Senior Citizens Club. He felt the club should be self supporting. Clerk E. M. Ibey explained that the Senior Citizens Club was under the Recreation Department and a government grant was received.

Mayor M. Tanner stated he had attended a meeting of the Ontario Mayors and Reeves in North Bay. He said it was a nice trip, the snow precipitation about the same as here and the weather was bright. One matter of discussion was the possible union of two corresponding organizations, the Ontario Mayors and Reeves and the Ontario Municipal Association.

Mr. J. R. Connor interviewed council in respect to a sewer connection to a lot on Cromwell St. He stated the Connor firm would assume the cost of any digging or back filling. Council granted the request with the rider that the corporation not to become involved in any way in any future water or sewer construction in that particular area.

Mr. Connor, newly-elected president of the Chamber of Commerce stated that the chamber had elected a centennial committee and would like to work with a similar committee appointed by council for centennial celebrations in 1967. Clerk E. M. Ibey basing his remarks on experience gained from the Old Home week celebrations, stated a small committee capable of making direct decisions and with stability to have them carried out could accomplish better results. Council agreed to make initial plans.

A report was received from the County Engineer concerning the bridge in Campbellford whether it would be feasible to repair the present structure or replace with a new one. As the report was lengthy, copies were allotted to Council members to allow time for perusal. It is presupposed a new bridge will be built by 1967, the county has to take the initiative. The provincial government would pay a subsidy to the United Counties of 80 per cent of the balance of cost left after the $200,000 contributed by the Dominion department of Transport. This would leave a balance to the United Counties of about $60,000. It was left to the next meeting for discussion.

Some discussion took place concerning the burned buildings on Front Street. It was the opinion of the majority of Council members that the buildings would be replaced by others which would meet Council approval.

Sophie Tucker Dies of Chronic Lung Ailment

NEW YORK (AP) — Sophie Tucker, 78, last of the red-hot mamas, died Wednesday night in her swank Park Avenue apartment of a chronic lung ailment and kidney failure. She had spent 62 years on the stage.

Her last appearance was at the Latin Quarter just before she became ill. She had signed for a four-week engagement, but was able to appear only two nights, and on both nights it was clear that she was in poor health.

She spent several weeks at Mount Sinai Hospital for treatment of what her physician described as an intestinal inflammation. She returned to her apartment where she was reported recovering.

It was 50 years ago that, as a favor to her maid, Sophie sat down and listened to a song written by a porter.

At first she tried to put if off —"they were writing more songs than I had time to listen to"—but she gave in and listened to the tune by Sheldon Brooks.

"I knew that Some of These Days was the song for me," she said. "It has been ever since and always will be."

The people in the cabarets and nightclubs loved it and the song became her trademark. Big, brassy - voiced Sophie belted out the song at every performance. It didn't matter if she was doing the blues, jazz or swing.

WORKED WITH STARS

Sophie worked with the top stars of several generations—Will Rogers, W. C. Fields, Eddie Cantor, Al Jolson, Jack Benny, Fannie Brice, Judy Garland, Jimmy Durante and Toronto-born Bea Lillie, now Lady Peel, among others. On learning of her death Jack Benny said:

"I remember playing on the same bills with her in vaudeville. This goes back 45 years."

She never hesitated to talk about herself — and never minded being kidded about her 192-pound bulk—but her age remained a bit of a mystery.

Sophie was born in Russia as her parents were making their way to the United States via Poland. The date was Jan. 13 and the year is believed to be 1888. But some sources list it as 1884 or 1887.

Her first royal command performance was in 1936. Her third and last came at the Palladium in 1962 and she stole the show with Life Begins At 40, After You've Gone, and the inevitable Some of These Days.

At that first command performance she waved to King George V and Queen Mary and shouted, "hi-ya, king!"

A funeral service will be held at 1:30 p.m. Sunday at the Weinstein Mortuary in Hartford. Burial will be in Emanu-El Cemetery, Wethersfield, Conn.

New Safety Items on Cars To Be Added

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three of Canada's top four auto manufacturers have announced that collapsible steering wheels will be standard equipment on all 1967 passenger cars.

General Motors of Canada Ltd., Chrysler Canada Ltd. and American Motors (Canada) Ltd. made the announcements Wednesday. A spokesman for the Ford Co. of Canada said only that its models would be "in the forefront" of safety devices.

Chrysler and GM also announced their cars will have dual braking systems as standard equipment on all 1967 models. American Motors has had dual braking systems as standard equipment since 1960.

None of the companies indicated whether prices would be raised to cover the new safety items.

GM said its steering column is designed to give way slowly if a driver is forced into it by a head-on collision. This would reduce the chance of chest injuries, the company said.

In Ottawa, the Canadian Highway Safety Council described the development as a major safety break - through. It said in a statement that many of the more serious in-car accidents have involved contact with the steering column.

UNION DUES

It is only that portion of the fees paid into a labor union that is used for carrying on the union's ordinary business that is deductible for income tax purposes. Any fees paid to the union for initiation, sick or death benefits or for a strike fund are not deductible. Most union secretaries are aware of this and issue members a special receipt to be used for income tax purpose.

Some unions have a pension plan for the members, and if such plan has been accepted for income tax purposes then the part of the fees that is charged the members for pension purposes is deductible under "Pension Contributions" and not as union dues. A separate receipt for this should be attached to the return.

Most white collar workers in large offices have their own staff associations which operate along similar lines to the local labor union. The annual dues they pay to such a staff association are deductible for income tax purposes. The rules are the same as for a labor union; that is, it is only the portion of the fees paid, used for the association business that is deductible. Assessments made for any special fund are not to be included in the deductible amount.

Employed professional workers, where their employer requires they maintain membership in an association or society of similar workers, may deduct for income tax purposes any amount paid to maintain their membership.

Following a recent change in the Income Tax Act, for 1965 and subsequent years you can now deduct union and professional dues in addition to the standard deduction of $100. Prior to this change any union or professional dues were considered to be covered by the standard deduction of $100.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: Our union members were assessed one dollar per month this year for a strike fund to assist the members of another local who were on strike. If we cannot deduct this amount as union dues, can we claim it as a charitable donation?

Answer: No.

Question 2: I am compelled to belong to a union to hold my job. The initiation fees were $20. If I cannot claim it as part of my union dues, can I claim it under "Other Deductions" as being an outlay to earn income?

Answer: No.

Details of Reorganization On Works Dept. Made Public

OTTAWA (CP)—Details of a major reorganization of the public works department incorporating many of the decentralizing principles recommended by the Glassco royal commission on government organization were made public Wednesday.

The reorganization plan, already approved in principle by the treasury board, calls for establishment of six regional areas: Atlantic, Quebec, Ontario, the national capital, Prairie and western.

The plan, if fully carried out, will alter the basic role of the department as well as its organization and operating systems. Instead of acting as a control agency as it now does, the department will be a service agency, carrying out the needs of other federal departments rather than initiating projects of its own.

The reorganization was mapped by Ottawa consultants Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co., engaged a year ago.

Key proposals in the Glassco commission report were that the public works department be reshaped as the central body in charge of property and that a department of purchasing and supply be fashioned out of the defence production department.

Lucien Lalonde, deputy works minister, said at a press conference that the increasing work load of the department made the regional planning necessary.

The reorganization would allow regional directors "much greater authority than has ever been given to a field unit by any other department in the past," Mr. Lalonde said.

Regional directors will call for tenders and award contracts in their regions. At present, all tenders for federal government projects are called in Ottawa.

The extent of the financial authority to be delegated under the plan is still under consideration by the treasury board. The consultants recommended the deputy minister be empowered to initiate projects costing up to $200,000. His present authority is $50,000. Regional heads now have authority to projects under $5,000.

In charge of putting the reorganization into effect is Gerald Williams, 52, of Winnipeg, new assistant deputy minister—in charge of operations.

Mr. Lalonde said it is hoped some components of the plan can go into effect at national headquarters in six months. All regions should be operating in two years.

Doctor Cleared

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Aaron N. Horwitz Wednesday was acquitted of a charge of indecently assaulting a woman patient during a post-natal examination last December. Magistrate James Rennicks said he felt that the woman "imagined something that didn't happen."

Canada, France Resume Talks On Uranium

PARIS (CP-Reuters) — Canada and France resumed talks Wednesday for the possible sale of Canadian uranium to the French Atomic Energy Commission.

Canadian Trade Minister Robert Winters and Alan Peyrefitte, French minister for scientific research and atomic affairs, discussed the possible supply of Canadian uranium to France's nuclear power program.

A statement issued after a one-hour meeting between the ministers said they also discussed a wide range of subjects including scientific and technical co-operation and France's participation in the 1967 world's fair in Montreal.

It was the first formal government-to-government contact since talks for an $800,000,000 contract for 50,000 tons of uranium oxide broke down last year over a Canadian government "control clause" for international inspection.

Canada has insisted on maintaining certain standards of safeguards to ensure that uranium exports will be used only for peaceful purposes.

Fear American-Chinese Clash If Viet Nam War Is Escalated

By BORIS MISKEW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

There is growing concern in the United States that the escalation of the Vietnamese war may touch off an American-Chinese clash in Southeast Asia. There also is fear such a clash would not be confined to the Vietnamese theatre, but might rekindle the Korean War.

The undercurrent of anxiety over the risk of a Chinese-American conflict was indicated in the current U.S. senate foreign relations committee hearings in Washington, where Senator J. W. Fulbright, chairman, sought clarification of over-all American objectives in Asia, particularly long-range future policy toward China.

There are "rumors of drastic action" against China and, said Fulbright, "I don't know what the real policy is. That overshadows the whole thing."

Talk at United Nations headquarters has been that U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk is convinced that Chinese expansion in Asia must be stopped—and the sooner the better—even at the expense of open warfare. This could be one source of the rumors disturbing Fulbright.

But Fulbright is not the only one disturbed. Committee members revealed by their questions that their dominant concern about the war in Viet Nam was the possibility of Chinese intervention, with the likelihood of a land war and perhaps the use of nuclear weapons.

Lt.-Gen. James M. Gavin, who advised President Eisenhower in 1954 against U.S. military intervention in support of the beleaguered French forces in Indochina, told the committee heavily-increased American military strength in Viet Nam might involve the risk of war with China.

The retired general, a former ambassador to France, said he expects additional U.S. troops in Viet Nam would be matched by the rebel Viet Cong as well as troops from North Viet Nam, with the possibility of reinforcements coming from China.

Gavin suggested that the Chinese, if they decided to intervene, might not confine themselves to Viet Nam but might reopen the Korean front. He also warned the Soviet Union might get involved.

But, despite the concern about the risk of an American-Chinese war, President Johnson is expected to continue to increase the U.S. strength in South Viet Nam as attempts are made to initiate peace talks through UN Security Council efforts and by other parties.

The U.S. has committed itself to keep South Viet Nam from being overrun by the pro-Communist guerrillas, and South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky reminded Johnson of this commitment during their meeting in Honolulu.

This reminder came at a time when the U.S. appeared ready to agree to having the Viet Cong's political body—the National Liberation Front—sit as an independent group at a peace conference.

Ky said, however, he would not recognize the Viet Cong at any peace talks and urged the U.S. to increase the bombing of North Viet Nam as a means of bringing victory to his government.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 9, 1966

A row on a proposed television channel for Toronto blew up as the Commons discussed transport department estimates.

Reid Scott (NDP—Toronto Danforth) said the move smacked of "political intrigue" and "Liberal patronage."

Transport Minister Pickersgill said the application should not be prejudiced because the three broadcasters concerned are Liberals.

Senator Arthur Roebuck (L—Ontario) said he plans to introduce a bill widening the grounds for divorce cases before Parliament.

THURSDAY, Feb. 10

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to continue study of transport department estimates. The Senate stands adjourned until Feb. 22.

Raymond Denis Committed to Stand Trial

OTTAWA (CP) — Carleton County grand jury decided Wednesday that former ministerial aide Raymond Denis should stand trial on two charges arising from the Dorion inquiry into the Lucien Rivard bail affair.

The seven-member jury reached its decision too late in the day to bring it before Judge C. C. Gibson, but it will be reported to the judge when court opens today.

Crown Attorney John Cassels would say only that the jury had considered the matter and would be making its report to the judge. Such reports are confidential until presented in court, he said.

The hearings, which began Monday, have been held in secret.

Denis, former executive assistant to then Immigration Minister Rene Tremblay, was charged with attempted bribery and obstructing justice after Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of Quebec brought down his report.

The Crown alleges that Denis offered a $20,000 bribe in attempts to get Rivard out of Montreal's Bordeaux jail on bail.

Guelph Tabloid Paper Ceases Publication

GUELPH (CP) — Guelph's morning newspaper, The Guardian, ceased publication Wednesday.

The Tabloid paper, printed by the Web offset process, started as a weekly in December, 1959, and became a daily in September 1961—the first offset daily in Canada.

The owners were three Burnett brothers, Ian, George and Lynn, former publishers of the daily Charlottetown Guardian.

Ian Burnett said today that financial difficulties forced the paper to cease publication. It once had a circulation of about 5,000 and was printed on 16 pages. Monday it was down to a circulation of 2,700 and eight pages, Mr. Burnett said.

Tax Load Up $28 Per Capita In New Budget

TORONTO (CP)—The annual tax load on Ontario residents will rise by about $28 per capita as a result of tax changes proposed Wednesday by the provincial government.

The tax rate changes will increase the flow of money into government coffers by about $195,000,000 a year—a 14-per-cent increase, bringing annual provincial tax costs to about $225 a person.

The added cost to a family could be as low as $44, but only if spending is cut to the bone. Those who buy a house or car could pay as much as $100 more under the new taxes.

In sales taxes, the average married man with two children and an annual income of $5,200 will probably pay about $85 in the new five-per-cent sales tax. This is up $34 from the $51 estimated as the annual payment under the former three-per-cent tax.

The one cent a gallon added to gasoline taxes will probably amount to $5 a year for a man who drives 10,000 miles a year.

Smokers will pay about $3.65 a year more with the new one-cent addition to a package of 20 cigarettes. A subscriber spends $25 a year on long distance telephone calls, his tax payment will be $1.25 under the five-per-cent tax, 50 cents more than under the old rate.

Sales tax on a $3,000 car is up $60 to $150.

One of the stiffest tax increases in the budget is the tax on land transfers, which is doubled to two-fifths of one per cent from one-fifth. The tax, which must be paid by a home-buyer when a deed is registered, will be $80 for a $20,000 house, compared with $40 for the same house under the old tax schedule.

Judge Frees Teacher on Two Charges

KINGSTON (CP) — Gerald Ivan Bildson, 33, principal of Macdonald public school here, was acquitted Wednesday on two of four charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency through an act of indecent assault.

Judge F. C. Hayes of Toronto said there was insufficient evidence to convict Bildson on either charge. He said the Crown's only witness, a 13-year-old girl, was "inclined to be a little off-handed."

Another girl, 14, a classmate of the one who said she had been assaulted, testified the girl told her she was telling a lie but she "wouldn't admit it to anyone."

Bildson was convicted of the charges in November and sentenced to six months definite and three months indefinite. But last month, the Ontario Court of Appeal quashed the conviction and ordered a new trial.

The trial continues today on the other two charges.

Pension Plan Contributions To Be Invested in Education

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario will earmark the entire proceeds of Canada Pension Plan Contributions for investment in educational facilities, Provincial Treasurer James Allan announced today.

Reading the fiscal portion of his budget speech in the legislature, Mr. Allan said the government feels these funds should be used primarily to provide facilities for the development of our human resources."

This year Ontario expects to receive $215,000,000 for investment purposes from the fund being built up by Canada Pension Plan contributions.

This will be loaned to municipalities for school board debentures, meaning they will be able to float issues with the province rather than turning to other markets. Capital borrowing by municipalities for other works thus should be eased.

Part of the fund will be turned over to the universities capital aid corporation. Mr. Allan announced that $150,000,000 will be provided to the corporation in the fiscal year beginning April 1 to loan to universities for construction purposes.

During 1965 the gross provincial product rose by nine per cent to $20,700,000,000, up $1,700,000,000 over the previous year. Mr. Allan said a further substantial increase is anticipated in 1966.

Outlining spending for the fourthcoming fiscal year, Mr. Allan said education alone will take up $816,900,000, broken down as follows: Education $575,500,000; university affairs $91,400,000; and university capital aid corporation $150,000,000.

ENSURES PROGRESS

Education spending is up $200,000,000 over last year and equals the province's total budget 10 years ago.

"This continuing and growing investment in our young people represents one of our best hopes for ensuring Ontario's future prosperity and progress," said the budget statement.

Spending by the department of health will total an estimated $244,000,000 during the year, of which $58,900,000 is earmarked for the province's medical insurance plan scheduled to start July 1.

Mr. Allan announced the enrolment period for the medical care plan will be from March 1 to May 1. Also in the medical field the government plans to extend undergraduate medical and dental bursaries to post-graduate studies.

$373,300,000 FOR HIGHWAYS

Highways spending this year will be $373,300,000, of which $265,400,000 will be for construction. Municipalities will gain $119,800,000 in road subsidies from the province.

The total aid to local authorities, Mr. Allan said, will be $772,100,000 from all provincial government departments. This is an increase of $127,100,000 over 1965.

Growing provincial and municipal spending means the junior governments must have new revenue sources, the budget statement said. "It is becoming increasingly clear that the combined total of provincial and municipal expenditures will continue to grow at a much more rapid rate than the corresponding federal commitments.

Defendant in Florida Murder Case Said Venomous and Quick With Knife

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Melvin Lane Powers has been described as quick with a knife and possessed a venomous nature—two traits the state hopes may help brand him the slayer of multi-millionaire Jacques Mossler.

One witness, Earl G. Martin, a solid 196 pounds with a gold tooth in front, said he came once upon Powers thrusting a sharp letter opener into a table.

"He say if he had his way, and nobody would find out, he take that knife and jug (stab) and jug and jug him until he was dead."

Martin, a repairman who worked for Powers, said Powers was talking about the 69-year-old Mossler. The date, Martin said, was seven months before Mossler was slain in his Key Biscayne apartment, June 30, 1964. The victim died after being bludgeoned and then stabbed 39 times with a sharp slender instrument.

Powers' trial with his aunt, Candace Mossler, widow of the slain victim, resumes today. The state said it plans to offer further testimony about an alleged love affair between aunt and nephew. State Attorney Richard Gerstein said in court Wednesday that this "underlies the entire case."

Powers is a tall, dark-haired 29, while his aunt is a small chic blonde, who gives her age as 39. They are accused of plotting the slaying of her husband, who headed a $33,000,000 banking and loan empire, while engaged in a love affair. The state says powers was the actual killer, with his aunt's connivance.

Several witnesses from Houston, Tex., home town of Powers and base of the Mossler financial empire, testified Wednesday that Powers passed his aunt Candace as his wife. The witnesses had been friends or prospective customers at Powers' trailer sales firm in the Houston area. They said he displayed to them snap shots of the attractive Mrs. Mossler, described her as his wife—this some months before her marriage to Mossler ended with his violent death.

George Nize, who rented an apartment to Powers in Houston, and who commented when the nephew displayed his aunt's photograph as that of his wife:

"I said she looked kind of old. He said 'when you are in love, age means no difference,' and of course I agreed."

Mrs. Mossler is sensitive about her age, which the state thinks is 47.

The state wound up the 20th day since the trial began Jan. 18 with Martin on the witness stand.

Martin's witness-stand narrative led him to an incident in October 1963 He said the company's light had been shut off because Powers was behind on his bill. Martin asked Powers how he was going to raise the money.

Martin then said Powers described in detail how he made love to women in an unusual way. And after such attention the defendant was quoted as saying "you can get anything you want out of them."

The witness didn't believe it. So, he said, Powers rang Candace on the phone while Martin listened in and had her confirm their method of sexual gratification.

"Next day the lights were on," Martin said.

Martin testified that in November 1963, Powers asked him if he liked to make some money by killing Mossler.

"I said, 'no sir, get yourself another boy,'" the witness went on. "I said 'what would Mrs. Mossler say.' He said she knew about it."

MUSHMOUTH REPORTS:

Dear Boss:—

There are sinister rumors rumbling in the clam and eel ghettos of the water front. I hear from a good underwater authority that Bobby Hull may be the innocent instigator of the first war on the Lake Ontario waterlines since the good guys of the law blasted One-Slug Rooney's liquor-smuggling gang.

Mushmouth

I hear the North Cement Nam is thinking of opening hostilities on South Cement Nam.

The North Cementnamese with headquarters in Point Anne charge the South Cementnamese who roam the Prince Edward county jungles with native larceny.

The North charges the South with alienation of affection, theft of birthright and intent to prevent their Golden Jet of the Black Hawks from equalling or breaking his fifty-goals-per-season record.

A report from North Cement Nam states and admits they unwittingly put the "whammy" on Hull last year when they presented him with a telegram signed by 450 well-wishers before a game. Hull received an injured knee that put a stop to record-making. The North is refraining from a repetition.

Its underground reports South Cement Nam ready to imitate their caper — and will make all efforts to stop it, if it means mobilizing the Limekiln Navy and calling out well-armed Mohawk guerrillas from the Reservation.

"We'll do it," threatened a grim-lipped North Cement Conger, "if we have to bottle up the Murray Canal, take over the ferries, halt all waterborne traffic and cut 'em off from the mainland."

And, boss, the South Cementnamese claim that since Mr. Hull is a bonafide resident of their territory, owns large gobs of property over thataway and has a herd of Herefords and Shorthorns which if laid nose-to-tail would stretch from here to Chicago, is theirs by right of adoption, and residence.

"If it's war they want, they'll get it," chortled a Hull-happy South Cementnamese official. "We are ready for 'em. We'll meet 'em in the air, on the water or battle 'em shovel to shovel in their kilns."

"We'll instal machine guns on the fighters of the flying club. We'll commandeer the Adolphustown ferries as carriers and call out the battle-scarred Waupoos Island Fusiliers, the Point Traverse Toreadors and if necessary Jack Ogilvy and his well-trained Wellington Dukes Flame-Throwers Brigade.

"We'll even put warheads on those daring submarine fighters, the muskies of Muscote Bay."

"And, boss, if the rumor is true that Major General Mac Far Lane will take over command of the South Cementnamese, the North may be in for trouble. He could arm his batteries of bulldozers and diggers with tank artillery and if the worst comes to the worst could conduct a pincer movement with a rearguard action from his Foxboro camp.

All of this, boss, as you know, is pure rumor and the figment of the imagination of some poor nut who has a general grudge against all Cementnamese since the day, when half stoned, he put cement in the Sunday dinner gravy instead of flour and gave his mother-in-law permanent hardening of the arteries.

Sherman was right. War is Hull.

Ontario Women's Curling

Kenora Rink Champions

DUNDAS, Ont. (CP)—A Kenora rink skipped by June Shaw won the Ontario women's curling championship Wednesday by defeating Joyce Black of Oshawa 10-9 in a playoff.

Both rinks finished the six-rink, round-robin championship Tuesday with 4-1 records.

Mrs. Shaw, who had Shirley Wiebe at third, Dorothy Holmgren at second and Joan Lecain at lead, will represent Ontario at the Canadian women's championships at Vancouver Feb. 28 to March 4.

The Kenora rink's only loss in the Ontario finals was to Oshawa in the second round, but in the playoff they turned the tables.

Down 9 - 8 to Oshawa going into the 10th end, the Kenora skip drew both her rocks into the four-foot circle to count two and win 10-9. Mrs. Black missed a wide-open takeout with her last rock to give Mrs. Shaw the opening.

Charges Expansion 'Cooked-Up' Deal

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

NEW YORK (CP)—The National Hockey League expanded across the United States Wednesday, spreading happiness and bitterness as it went.

Men from five U.S. metropolitan areas were given NHL franchises and told to have teams on the ice by October, 1967. A sixth franchise was awarded to St. Louis, a city the NHL wants whether or not it wants the NHL.

The six new members, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Minneapolis-St. Paul, are to operate in a new division, beginning in the 1967-68 season.

The Los Angeles franchise went to former Toronto businessman Jack Kent Cooke.

Part of the bitterness arose from the fact that the NHL did not spread across Canada at the same time. An application from Vancouver was rejected by the governors from the six present NHL cities, Montreal, Toronto, Boston, New York, Detroit and Chicago.

The new franchises were announced by NHL president Clarence Campbell after he and the league governors spent three days listening to 13 applicants from eight cities.

NOT REPRESENTED

One of the successful cities, St. Louis, was not among those applicants. But Campbell admitted the NHL is so anxious to have St. Louis it gave the place a franchise anyway, and hopes a suitable group will apply for it by April 5.

If this hope proves vain, the franchise will be shifted to a group that applied from Baltimore, Campbell said.

As matters stand, there were three unsuccessful bidding cities: Vancouver, Buffalo and Baltimore.

Campbell was asked repeatedly at a press conference why these places were rejected. There was considerable surprise among U.S. hocky men and reporters here over the rejection of Vancouver in particular. They tended to think of a 12-team NHL without at least three Canadian cities as almost inconceivable.

Campbell said there was no case of the governors objecting to any of the applications. It was always a matter of preferring somebody else.

A 12-man group had sought a franchise for Vancouver. It was represented here by Cyrus McLean, president of Vancouver Canucks of the Western League, and hockey broadcaster Foster Hewitt.

COOKED-UP DEAL'

McLean told a Vancouver newspaper by telephone the rejection of his group was "a cooked-up deal". He said "the question of new franchises was settled long before the meetings with Campbell and the governors."

A spokesman for the Buffalo applicants, bankers Seymour and Northrop Knox, described them as "bitterly disappointed."

Five different groups or individuals sought the Los Angeles franchise awarded to Cooke, the only individual awarded a franchise, who told the governors he plans a 16,000-seat stadium for his team.

Crooner Bing Crosby, George Flaherty, part-owner of the figure-skating show Ice Follies, and lawyer Barry Van Gerbig make up the San Francisco group. They expect to use the Alameda Coliseum, now under construcion in the neighboring city of Oakland.

The Philadelphia franchise went to a four - man syndicate headed by banker William Putnam and includes Jerry Wolman, president of Philadelphia Eagles ot the National Football League. They told the NHL they will have a new 15,000 - seat arena ready by the fall of 1967.

Jack McGregor, a Pennsylvania state senator, and Art Rooney, owner of Pittsburgh Steelers of the NFL, head a 31-man group that got the Pittsburgh franchise. They plan to use the rink now used by the American League's Hornets, adding 2,10 seats to boost capacity to 12,800.

EIGHT-MAN GROUP

The Minneapolis-St. Paul club will be operated by an eight-man group, four from each city whose leading members are Walter Bush, a lawyer, and Gordon Ritz and Bob Ridder, television station owners. Ridder has been manager of severa U.S. Olympic hockey teams.

The tardy St. Louis application is expected to come from a 16-man syndicate headed by former baseball star Stan Musial and his restaurant partner, Biggie Garagnani. They had no representatives here, but a report from St. Louis Wednesday afternoon said this group is interested in operating an NHL team.

The NHL has given the St. Louis Arena its seal of approval but the arena is owned by Arthur Wirtz and James Norris of Chicago Black Hawks, and league bylaws say no man can have an interest in more than one NHL team. Campbell said Norris assured his fellow governors that he will be able to sell the rink.

Besides, Norris, the league governors are Bruce Norris of Detroit, Weston Adams of Boston, David Molson of Montreal, Stafford Smythe of Toronto and Bill Jennings of New York.

Campbell said their decisions about the new franchises were unanimous.

He said nothing has been decided about the playoff structure, which will be revised to permit the new division to compete for the Stanley Cup, and the details of a plan enabling the existing clubs to supply the new ones with some players remain to be worked out.

TO MEET AGAIN

The NHL governors would meet in New York again April 5 to delve into the problems posed by expansion.

Each new club must pay the NHL $2,000,000 for its franchise and the 20 players it will get from the six existing clubs and their farm system. It must also post a $500,000 bond before it is in business, although no deadline for this posting has been set.

Campbell said the new clubs must also be prepared to handle any territorial claims raised by minor pro leagues now operating in their respective areas. Los Angeles and San Francisco are in the Western League, Minneapolis-St. Paul and St. Louis in the Central League, and Pittsburgh in the American League. Philadelphia has no professional team.

President Jack Riley of the AHL said earlier this week his nine-team league plans to demand total indemnities of $1,800,000 from any NHL club taking over a member city.

74-GAME SCHEDULE

The 12-team, two-division NHL will have a 74-game schedule. Campbell said each team will play 50 games in its own division and 24 against teams in the other division.

The new franchises expand the NHL to record size. It reached a previous peak of 10 teams in 1926, but weaker members gradually fell by the wayside. The six-team setup known to the present generation of hockey followers has existed since Brooklyn Americans disbanded at the end of the 1941-42 season.

The NHL was organized Nov. 22, 1917, with four teams, Montreal Canadiens, Montreal Wanderers, Toronto Arenas (now Maple Leafs) and Ottawa Senators and went through many team changes between then and 1942.

Boston, in 1924, was the frst U.S. city to join. Chicago, Detroit and New York were admitted in 1926.

Hawks Clip Wings; Leafs Zero Blues

Hull Scoreless

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Veteran Terry Sawchuk picked up his 98th shutout as New York Rangers went down scoreless for the second game in a row and Chicago's Bobby Hull was held off the scoresheet by Detroit Red Wings in National Hockey League action Wednesday night.

TERRY SAWCHUK

Sawchuk, showing brilliant goaltending, led Toronto Maple Leafs to a 3-0 victory over New York and Chicago Black Hawks took over sole possession of first place by edging the Red Wings 2-1.

Bob Pulford, Dave Keon and Ron Ellis scored the Toronto goals. It was Pulford's 21st marker of the year. Ellis got his 10th and Keon his 17th.

Pulford gave the Leafs all the scoring they needed at 6:47 of the second period after the two teams had battled scoreless in the first.

Sawchuk made several great saves in the Toronto nets, despite the fact that the Leafs outshot the Rangers 34-29 in the game.

Ed Giacomin also made some great saves in the Ranger nets, particularly in the first period.

DOUGLAS HURT

Rookie Al Hamilton, up from Edmonton Oil Kings of the Central Alberta League, belted Leaf defenceman Kent Douglas against the boards midway through the third period, and Douglas had to be helped from the ice.

Douglas returned for one shift, but left immediately. Extent of his injuries was not revealed.

CHICO MAKI

A goal by Chico Maki early in the third period gave the Black Hawks their slim victory and put them two points ahead of the Wings and the idle Montreal Canadiens. Chicago now has beaten Detroit eight times and tied the Wings once in 10 meetings.

Kenny Wharram with his 17th of the year, scored the other Chicago goal.

Gordie Howe scored the lone Detroit goal, his 21st of the year.

The game featured a couple of slugging matches, both involving Detroit defenceman Gary Bergman.

BATTLED WHARRAM

The Red Wing rearguard squared off with Wharram at 6:45 of the second period and drew minors for roughing and fighting, while Wharram was given only two minutes for roughing.

Then, at 11:43 of the same period, Bergman and Hull exchanged several punches near the Hawks' goal. Both were given five-minute majors for fighting.

Hull was blanked for the third game in a row in his bid to become the first man in league history to score more than 50 goals. He has scored 44 goals in 44 games and still has 22 regular season games left in which to break the record.

Two games are scheduled in the NHL tonight. The Canadiens will be in Boston for a game with the Bruins and the Rangers meet the Red Wings in Detroit.

TURIN, Italy (CP-AP) Finland defeated University of Manitoba Bisons 8-3 Wednesday. It was the second straight defeat for the Canadian entry in the World University Winter Games hockey tournament.

Although the Canadians had been defeated by Russia, 6-2, Tuesday night, their loss to the Finns was a surprise. The game was rough.

Trot Body Offers To Mediate

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Trotting Association offered to mediate in the purse dispute between the Ontario Harness Horsemen's Association and Jockey Club.

Allan Dickenson, president of the CTA, and Gordon Findlay, secretary - treasurer, said they are willing to serve as mediators.

Dickenson and Findlay recently brought Horsemen and track management together at Windsor Raceway where a three-year contract was signed.

Negotiations between the OHHA and the Jockey Club—owner of the Greenwood track in Toronto, Garden City Raceway in St. Catharines and Mohawk Raceway near Campbellville, Ont. — broke down last week.

The Horsemen demanded half the mutuel handle at the three tracks while the Jockey Club offered an average of $9,350 in purses for each racing day. Last year the Horsemen got 45.7 per cent.

Les Ehrlick, president of the 800-member OHHA, said his organization is ready to accept arbitration by the Ontario Racing Commission or the CTA.

John J. Mooney, executive vice - president of the Jockey Club, said:

"We intend to race on Feb. 26 at Greenwood and we would be glad to meet with the Horsemen and settle."

The Handguns

The Quinte Marksmen, of Belleville, scored their second consecutive National Course shoot win over the Trenton Handgun Club, in Trenton, last night.

Led by Frank Allin, the Marksmen defeated Trenton 1162 to 1143.

Allin had the high score, 261 while other Belleville scores were: Reg Sprackett 254, Jack Brasford 236, Bert Water 214 and Charles Thorn 197.

Vic Park had Trenton's high mark, 235, and others were: Tad Petrus 233, Ken Armstrong 229, Ralph Barnes 226 and Ed Knight 220.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Arnold Palmer was the man to beat as the $60,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament opened today over a soggy Arizona Country Club Course.

Palmer, who has a first, two seconds and a third in four starts this year, won the Phoenix event in 1961, 1962 and 1963.

Palmer and the rest of the field, which includes all five 1966 champions, were keeping an eye on the sky. Rain and hail forced cancellation of Wednesday's pro-am competition midway through the round.

ARNOLD PALMER

Ken Venturi, the 1964 U.S. Open champ, was one of those most concerned with the cold. His hands, operated on last summer for circulatory problems, are easily numbed by chilly weather, and he must use gloves and hand-warmers on brisk days.

Venturi, who captured the Lucky International title last month in San Francisco, played in what there was of Wednesday's pro-am and appeared to have little difficulty with the cold.

Venturi and Palmer, who won the Los Angeles Open, join Doug Sanders, the Bob Hope Classic champ; Billy Casper, the San Diego Open winner, and Bing Crosby titlist Don Massengale in the field.

FAVORS HITTERS

The rain-soaked rye grass fairways of the 6,765-yard, par-71 course were playing long, favoring the big hitters like Palmer.

Arnie's army, swelled by the presence of entertainer Bob Hope in Palmer's pro-am foursome, looked more like Arnie's navy when the showers struck Wednesday.

Rod Funseth, the defending Phoenix champion, used the tourney as a springboard to his best season ever—$30,647 in official money—last year. Funseth's closing rounds of 68-66 were the best in last week's Bob Hope event.

Only a handful of pros finished before rain washed out Wednesday's activity. Of those who did, George Knudson of Toronto and Randy Glover had the best scores with 69s.

City OMHA Teams Win Squeakers

Belleville OMHA teams won three close decisions last night. Rollins peewees edged Trenton 3-2, Riteway novices shaded Wellington 4-3 and the Kinsmen bantams defeated Trenton 3-1.

All three teams, along with the Western Tire midgets, will start OMHA playdowns within the next week. Riteways meet Trenton in a goals-to-count series while the other three clubs clash with Kingston in two-of-three sets.

Rollins scored a goal per period while both Trenton goals came in the middle frame. Rick Meagher scored the first and third goals, sandwiched around one by Brian Cousins. Robert Foster, David Smith and John Mulvihill had assists.

Bob Olson and David Westfall scored for Trenton. Ron Ferguson got one helper. The losers drew three of five minor penalties.

Riteways led 2-1 in the first and 3-1 after two heats while Wellington enjoyed a 2-1 margin in the third. Grant Goegan, Wally Dainard, Mark Coates and Peter Smrke scored for Belleville. Martin Thistle and Andy Ricketts each had two assists, Dainard, Smrke and Coates one apiece.

Michael Lavender potted a pair and helped on the other, by Ken Holmes, for Wellington. Larry McQuaid also got one assist. Riteways took two of three minor penalties.

The bantam game was scoreless after one period but Kinsmen led 2-0 after two and split a pair in the third. Bill Bunnet netted Belleville's last two goals after Mario Venutti got the first. Allan Genereaux had two assists, Terry Meagher and Coughlin one each.

Teeple was the Trenton marksman, aided by Ferguson. The winners had three minor penalties and Trenton took a pair.

Minor Hockey

Deuces were running wild in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's tyke division last night.

All three winning teams scored a pair of goals.

Rangers nipped the Bruins 2-1, Leafs blanked the Hawks 2-0 and Wings shaded the Canadiens 2-1.

Goalie Steven London chalked up the shutout for Leafs as all the netminders enjoyed a good night. Tony Bennett and Mark Walmsley were the Leaf goal-getters.

Gord Male and Michael Crawford hit the hemp for the Rangers. David Elmy was the Bruin marksman.

Larry Waite scored both goals for the Wings. Kelvin Pope triggered the Canadiens' goal.

Big Seven

Gordie Howe was the only player within the top seven to pickup any points following two National Hockey League games played Wednesday night.

Howe, Detroit Red Wings' big right winger who is playing in his 20th NHL season, scored one goal against Chicago Black Hawks, giving him 21 so far this season and boosting his points total to 51, good enough for fourth place in the individual scoring race.

Bobby Hull, Chicago Black Hawks powerful left winger, was held off the scoresheet Wednesday but continues to hold a comfortable 16-point lead over teammate Stan Mikita.

Hull, who leads the league in goals with 44, has 22 games remaining to score seven goals to break the record of 50 goals in a season. He shares the mark with Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion, two former Montreal Canadiens players.

Mikita, scoring champion for the last two years, leads the league in assists with 33.

Three Rinks Unbeaten In Two

BRAMPTON CP—Three rinks tied for the lead after the opening two rounds of the Ontario Curling championships Wednesday.

The eight-rink, round - robin event continues with three rounds today starting at 9:30 a.m., 2:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. EST. The bonspiel ends Friday and if there is a tie after seven rounds of regulation play, a playoff will take place Friday night.

Emerging undefeated after two rounds were Joe Gurowka of Dixie, Sgt. Presley Lavier of RCAF Centralia and George Parkes of St. Thomas.

Bob Mann of Waterloo Glenbriar, a co-favorite with Gurowka to take the title, won his opening match but lost in the second round. Mann twice skipped a rink from Hanover to the Ontario title and a berth in the Canadian Curling Championships.

Tied with Mann for fourth place was Gord Brown of Ottawa with a 1-1 record. Two-game losers were Jasper (Jab) Pierce of Dundas, Rod Sjoberg of Peterborough and Irwin Wallace of Port Carling.

Seven of the eight matches curled Wednesday went down to last rock and one of them went an extra end.

GAMES CLOSE

Play last night saw Gurowka down Pierce 9-6, Lavier win 9-7 over Sjoberg; Parkes trip Mann 12-9, and Brown edge Wallace 9-8.

In opening-round action, Gurowka defeated Pierce 7-6 on an extra end; Lavier, a resident of Brockville who is stationed at the Centralia station near London, Ont., downed Sjoberg 9-7; Parkes nipped Brown 8-6, and Mann beat Wallace 9-7.

Parkes used perfect final shots for both his victories. He made a takeout on the 12th end to count two for his winning margin over Brown and knocked out Mann's shot rock with his final stone to avert an extra end in the second round.

Mann, appearing in his third Ontario final, had trouble getting past Wallace in the first round and was plagued by erratic shooting against Parkes in the second round.

Wallace lost both his matches when opposing skips counted with their final rocks.

Sjoberg followed his extra-end loss to Gurowka with another close loss to Lavier. A measure on the 12th end cut Sjoberg out of the shot he needed to tie the match and force an extra end.

Buffalo Bull Named Bobby Hull

MILTON, Ont. (CP) — A Buffalo bull named Bobby Hull will roam this summer through the nearby 75-acre Nassagaweya Canyon.

The bull is one of five bison obtained from federal park officials by the Halton Conservation Authority which owns the canyon, a beautiful rock gorge in the limestone Niagara Escarpment.

It was named by the authority's caretaker, Ed Zurcher of Mountsberg, after his favorite hockey player.

The bison were brought from Elk Island National Park in Alberta last October.

Menzies' Successor Capable But Lacks Magnetic Appeal

By VINCENT MATTHEWS
Canadian Press Correspondent

MELBOURNE (CP) — Sir Robert Menzies, who has just retired after 16 years as Australian prime minister, has dominated politics as no other man has done in the country's history.

The excitement about Menzies' going, simmering for months, became intense in October when he bought a house in a Melbourne suburb, a two-storey, seven-room dwelling in a leafy garden setting. He bought it to retire to, he admitted, offering the first tangible evidence that he really would one day quit the heights of national and international political life for the quiet of a suburb street.

He had talked about it before. He had given hints. But half of Australia's population is under 30. And few of those millions could ever remember any prime minister but Menzies. So it seemed he would go on forever.

He was 71 Dec. 20 last. And last July, on his return from his yearly world trip, he said: "Any self-respecting man of my age must give thought to his future and his duties. I am doing that."

A travel-weary Menzies went into hospital for a check-up, came out bright and perky, said, "I feel perfectly well," and scoffed at reports that he was going to give up political life immediately.

But when the federal Parliament rose before Christmas, he gave a hint that it might be his last as government leader.

The man who had been waiting in the wings for nearly 17 years while Menzies ruled supreme was Harold Holt, 57, federal treasurer since 1958 and a faithful Menzies ally.

Holt, who succeeded Menzies as prime minister, marked his 30th year as a member of Parliament last year. He is suave, capable, energetic, an efficient political machine. He has none of the magnetic Menzies appeal—but neither has any other Australian politician.

ENOUGH FOR AN IMAGE

Still, the public relations men have plenty to work on in Holt. He is a smooth public school product, has a happy family life, is seen often with his two small grandchildren at his beachside home at Portsea, 60 miles south of Melbourne, and has a wife, Zara, who is successful in her own right as a leading Australian dress-designer. Holt is a keen skindiver and water skier—sports that go down well with sea-loving Australians.

Politically, Holt has had some hectic moments as the man responsible for the nation's economy, though in fact no decision of his could ever have been implemented without Menzies' approval.

When the government brought in credit restrictions in 1960 to put the brake on a galloping economy heading for inflation, Holt took the blame. That blame is a political burden he will carry for a long time. The restrictions and their consequences of unemployment and bankruptcy for small firms made Holt unpopular and nearly toppled the government in 1961.

Holt is a vigorous supporter of overseas — especially American—investment in Australia. Last July, Menzies sent him on a mission to the United States in an attempt to persuade Washington to modify its restrictions on the flow of capital to Australia. When he returned, apparently satisfied with the mission, he said that projects essential for the development of Australia's natural resources would be beyond the scope of the nation's financial resources unless money was taken from defence and other purposes.

But it is on this question that Holt could meet his biggest political difficulties. The Australian government is a coalition of Liberal and Country parties. The Liberal party is the bigger of the partners and represents the powerful city industrialists. But the Country party has an influence much greater than its small numbers suggest. It represents the primary producers, still the backbone of the nation's economy.

LEADER POPULAR

Leading the Country party is John McEwen, 65, who has wide popular appeal far outside the ranks of his own party. And he has many times publicly criticized the extent of the takeover of Australia's resources by overseas investors.

Bickering and jealousies between the two coalition parties were kept firmly under control during the Menzies reign. The less-dominating Holt could find himself in trouble.

There will be a federal election this year, but the possibility of a change of government is remote, even though the loss of Menzies will be felt keenly in the ranks of government supporters.

Australia is enjoying economic prosperity and, despite a few sombre warnings, there are no apparent signs of anything to upset it. If things keep ticking along as they are, Holt should be able to lead his coalition to a comfortable electoral victory.

BEATS OUT BLUES

Bob Crane of TV's Hogan's Heroes keeps a snare drum in his dressing room and beats out rhythms to beat tension.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Most weeks, NBC's Bob Hope Theatre is a sleek, well produced and thoroughly forgettable hour's diversion. But Wednesday night's A Small Rebellion was unforgettable.

It was essentially a dialogue between a man and a woman, full of implied promise and suggestion, that quenched the fire of a young writer. The script by S. Lee Pogostin was less a drama than an account of the corruption of a young man by an older, worldly woman. And the parts were magnificently handled by Simone Signoret and George Maharis.

Maharis played a tough-talking, angry man of 25 who had spilled out his bitterness in a play about which we only received hints. Miss Signoret was the great actress on whose acceptance of the central role hung the success of the production.

The woman saw that the role was a perceptive revelation of herself and that one of the characters was a self-portrait of the writer.

The entire action took place on the stage and in the seats of a vast, empty theatre as Miss Signoret, softly and subtly, persuaded the young man to change the brutal climax of his work so that the woman would be spared rather than destroyed.

It was quiet, gripping and impressive. Miss Signoret was superb. Maharis had a tendency to hop and stride with a little too much adolescent fervor but in general provided an excellent foil.

But for one Small Rebellion there are endless hours of tripe which one must sit through. Earlier in the evening, for instance, the plot of Lost In Space, on CBS concerned a well-programmed robot who became jealous of a rival robot and tried to commit suicide by short-circuiting its memory banks.

Recommended tonight:

The Dean Martin Show, NBC, 10-11 p.m. EST, with guest stars Lucille Ball, Bill Cosby, Kate Smith and the comedy team of Rowan and Martin.

Adam West in 'Batman' Gets Deserved Exposure

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Man riding a tiger: Adam West.

He's Batman. Holy Residuals! You know what that means: He's going to be rich. He also may be branded for life with a bat emblem on his chest. Is he worried? Not our hero.

"I was worried at first," admitted TV's foe of wrongdoers. "I was afraid that my own identity might be submerged in the trappings of a freak in tights. But then I realized I should be able to make the craze work to my advantage.

"Before, I was limited to playing leads in low-budget movies. The series has given me the exposure — God knows — so that perhaps I would now be considered for important pictures, which is what I'm after.

"Unless the think of the major producers has become senile, they can perceive that I'm not batman."

Indeed he is not. Batman is the square's square; Adam West is hip. Batman lives in a manor that looks like a left over from a George Arliss movie; Adam West has a pad at Malibu Beach. Batman spends most of his time in the company of his ward Robin. When not working, Adam West is often accompanied by a local chick.

VETERAN SMASH

West terms himself "an overnight smash after 12 years." He started as a television announcer in Sacramento after leaving Stanford University, had been a writer, milkman, cowboy and actor. His most notable achievement heretofore was playing a secondary banana to Robert Taylor in The Detectives series.

Following breakup of his marriage—he has two young children—he went to Italy in an attempt to break out of the B-picture rut.

He was making progress as an American actor abroad when Batman signalled his return.

West approached the goal with the same cogitation of Laurence Olivier planning Othello. Well, almost.

"Batman must be played with utter conviction," he reasons. "There is a main line which I must follow, between satirizing the character and playing it dead serious. Since we are playing to a multi-level audience, the role must be played on all levels."

"That helmet," West remarked. "The worst thing for an actor is to hear his own voice. The helmet echoes all my words, and I try to tune them out. And the suit. It's hit as hell under the lights and picks up all the cold at night.

"But I'm content with my lot. I may have talked myself into a gigantic rationale, but as of now, I think Batman is good for me."

AT THE BELLE — James Ward heads a talented cast in Howard Hawks' "Red Line 7,000", auto thrill action picture, in color. Showing Today through Saturday at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

2ND THURLOW — Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Boldrick, Nancy and Maureen. Mrs. Donald Mitchell, Mrs. Harry Grills, Jr., Mrs. Jim McCormack, Mrs. Ronald Atkins and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Grills were among those who attended the Ice Capades in Toronto on Wednesday.

He Is Rich - - Maybe

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Six-year-old Michael Deane stands to inherit £30,000 ($90,000) in 21 years under his uncle's will — on the following conditions:

1. That none of his cousins gains an honors degree at Oxford, Cambridge or London University. If this happens the money will go to the cousin.
2. That Michael does not become a Communist or Socialist and refrains from marrying one.
3. That his bride be of English, Scottish, Irish, Welsh, North American or West European descent.

The will was made by Michael's uncle Cecil Deane, a doctor of philosophy who died in Britain in August.

Michael is the son of a British Army captain.

His mother, who objects to the political and marriage restrictions, is thinking of contesting the will. She said Michael's uncle had also left valuable books to Cambridge University on the condition they were not read by Communists, Socialists or Africans.

She said he also left a big sum to the South African government—on the condition it does not give up apartheid.

Whoa, Joe's Not Joe

OTTAWA (CP) — Joe Greene is not Joe Greene after all. He's John James Greene.

But call him Joe anyway. Everybody else has since grade school when the new agriculture minister picked up the tag.

The question of Mr. Green's real name arose when his department put out an official biography calling him John Joseph Greene.

"It's one of those darn things,' 'a department official said. Mr. Greene was among those who approved the biography.

Mr. Greene, 46, an Ottawa Valley lawyer who got the agriculture portfolio in December, says the nickname arose from a comic strip character named Joe Green.

He's been Joe ever since, even during his Second World War flying days, to intimates and others.

Anyway, the biography mistake was caught and now it's John James Joe Greene.

Friend of Wolves

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's wolves have a friend in Elmer Sopha (L-Sudbury.)

Mr. Sopha told the legislature's public accounts committee Tuesday that he will ask the lands and forests minister whether his department pays bounties on wolves shot from airplanes. Those who hunt that way shouldn't be rewarded, he said.

"That is the inedible being pursued by the unspeakable. I'm for the wolves."

NOTICE

RE: GARBAGE RECEPTACLES

By-Law No. 7921 specifies that polyethelene or paper bags manufactured for use as disposable garbage bags; metal or other suitable watertight containers not larger than 17 gallons in size and equipped with handles and properly fitted covers, shall be used when placing out garbage and rubbish for collection.

The word "suitable" is intended to mean the standard type of receptacle, and all householders are respectfully requested to obtain and use same.

Open hampers, wash tubs, ordinary paper bags, and small five gallon pails, are unsuitable and their use should be discontinued. The Municipal Contractor is not required to collect garbage placed out in this manner.

The various sizes of miscellaneous metal containers with straight sides now being used by some, are in most cases unsuitable. In the near future these containers will be tagged with the request that the standard type of receptacle be obtained and used. The Contractor will continue to collect garbage placed out in these containers, to give time for standard receptacles to be obtained.

AIR CANADA'S NEW DC-9 JET

...it's the shape of things to come – and go in – quickly, quietly.

With the addition of the remarkably quick, quiet DC-9 Jet to its all-turbine fleet, Air Canada strengthens its position as one of the largest and most modern airlines in the world. It also assures an ever-increasing frequency of jet service, as well as the convenience of fan jet flight, for more Canadian air travellers, especially on busy, inter-city routes across Canada. Later, by early '67, a number of cities in Canada not presently served by jet will be added to the DC-9 travel map.

Although smaller than its big brother, the DC-8, the DC-9 maintains the family tradition for speed, cruising as it does at 555 mph. The twin Pratt & Whitney rear-mounted engines make sure of that and, at the same time, leave the sound of jet travel 'way behind to give you a quieter ride.

Eighteen of these short-to-medium range DC-9 Jets will join Air Canada's fleet over the next 18 months. The first group of these to be delivered will begin service this Spring on several inter-city routes.

And so, Air Canada—one of the first airlines in the world to order the DC-9—continues to add to the jet character of its fleet and to your air travel comfort and convenience. That's why you fly the finest—always—when you fly Air Canada.

Expert On Reds Urges U.S. Cut Viet Nam Losses

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—George F. Kennan, a respected American authority on communism, advised the United States Thursday to cut its losses and leave Viet Nam as soon as it can without "precipitate or disorderly" retreat.

The rising United States military intervention holds the seeds of global conflict and is damaging more important relations with Russia, Kennan told the Senate foreign relations committee.

Halt the military escalation, he advised, but stick.

"If they cannot dislodge us, they will have to talk to us because they want us to get out."

But Kennan, father of the cold-war plan of containment of Soviet Russia and former ambassador to Moscow and Yugoslavia, said he sees no prospects now of negotiations and "no happy way out of this conflict."

He also warned that the high-level conference at Honolulu between President Johnson and the South Vietnamese regime may have created extra obstacles to the prospect of negotiations by its expression of solidarity.

The southern regime opposes any negotiations, Kennan said, which is hard to reconcile with the U.S. request at the United Nations for further peace initiatives.

STRAINS RESOURCES

Kennan called Viet Nam a "remote and secondary theatre" distorting U.S. policy and straining its resources unduly in terms of its importance. The U.S. could not police the world.

Kennan, now with the Institute of Advanced studies at Princeton University, was the latest witness before the Senate foreign relations committee in its scrutiny of the entire Viet Nam issue.

The inquiry itself, as well as the deep reservations being expressed by many of the 19 senators, is at odds with President Johnson's wishes and much of his Vietnamese policy. It is being televised nationally.

Next week, the committee intends to hear the Johnson administration's view by calling State Secretary Dean Rusk as well as Maxwell Taylor, former U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam who helped plan the rising U.S. military involvement begun a year ago.

Far greater U. S. priority should be attached to relations with the Soviet Union which has been forced into an anti-American contest with an "almost hysterical" China, Kennan said.

"The greatest dangers to peace still lie within our relations with the Soviets," he said, listing disarmament, nuclear proliferation and particularly the German question. He said this is "potentially more explosive year to year as the military strength of Germany increases."

OUTLINES VIEWS

Kennan gave these other views:

The rift between Russia and China might lead to Russian resurrection of Berlin and other issues for which U.S. military resources would be strained.

China's baby nuclear might was a striking and serious

Station Transfer Attacked

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker charged in the Commons Thursday that the attempt to switch television Channel 3 to Toronto from Barrie "has all the appearances of a plan to make millions under the cover of secrecy and concealment."

"It is so smelly it requires no olfactory excellence to understand it," Mr. Diefenbaker said in a slashing attack directed mainly at Transport Minister Pickersgill.

The Commons spent a second day in arm - waving, finger-pointing argument concerning the application of Ralph Snelgrove, Geoff Stirling and Allan F. Waters, co-owners of CKVR-TV at Barrie, to transfer their channel 50 miles south to the Toronto area.

Mr. Pickersgill has identified all three men as Liberals. Mr. Snelgrove was defeated as a Liberal candidate in Simcoe North in 1963.

Mr. Pickersgill said Mr. Diefenbaker "can find a secret in a Coca-Cola advertisement." He could understand this after the former prime minister's relations with his cabinet.

CAN'T INTERFERE

Mr. Pickersgill said the application of Ralph Snelgrove Ltd. will be dealt with by the Board of Broadcast Governors and that he could in no way interfere with the board.

Mr. Diefenbaker said this was a "transparent cover-up" for a matter which could not be justified.

The "secret plans and manipulations" for transfer of the channel without permitting any other applications to establish a Toronto station had an "odoriferous aroma."

"The whole thing is surrounded by mystery and subterfuge," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Mr. Snelgrove had come to Ottawa last September, saying he was going to look after broadcasting for the Liberals and see that they got a fair shake on the CBC.

Ken Soble, owner of television station CHCH-TV in Hamilton, had sent out a letter to all TV stations telling them as a "public service" how to obtain film clips of Liberal cabinet ministers making speeches during the Nov. 8 election campaign.

DIEF CONCERNED

Mr. Diefenbaker said he is becoming concerned at the degree to which various groups are getting control of television and radio outlets across Canada.

"Men politically activated and active politically are getting control of the means of communications in this nation. What's going to happen? Will they be considerate of those with whom they disagree?"

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Snelgrove is using the Barrie station to get into Toronto. He had been told the Barrie station

Arrest Two Truckers; Sabotage Is Reported

TORONTO (CP)—Two striking members of the independent Teamsters Union were arrested early today outside a Toronto restaurant after a trailer unit slipped off the truck that was pulling it.

Police said the pin connecting the cab to the trailer had been removed.

Robert Campbell, 28, of Toronto was arrested on a charge of possession of a dangerous weapon and Albert Murphy was charged with drinking under age and driving while his licence was suspended.

The arrests followed a wave of damage Thursday at 14 trucking companies in the Toronto area. Police said windows were smashed and arson attempted at two yards.

Ray Greene, trustee of union local 938, said there was no union connection with the outbreaks of vandalism.

Earlier reports of similar damage at a trucking terminal in Brantford were denied by police there.

In one incident, three owner-drivers of Trans - Provincial Freight Carriers Ltd. had their vehicles attacked as they drove north on Highway 27 from Toronto to Sault Ste. Marie.

Two men standing on an overpass bridge hurled full soft-drink bottles through the windshield as Melvin Harrington, 29, of Thessalon, drove his truck below.

The double windshield shattered, showering Mr. Harrington with glass, but he was able to bring the truck to a safe halt. The men on the bridge then threw pop bottles at a following truck driven by Roger Coventry, 25, also of Thessalon, but missed. Mr. Coventry said he saw the men run to a car and drive away.

The third truck, driven by Charles Ambeault, 31, of Sault Ste. Marie, lost its trailer just before the bridge because the pin holding it to the cab had been pulled.

The air hose lashed back after parting and smashed the rear window showering Mr. Ambeault with glass.

None of the drivers was hurt.

The trucks had stopped shortly before at a restaurant. One of the drivers said:

"This is an attempt to kill. It is the most cowardly and despicable thing I know of."

The drivers said they would travel in groups until the trucking dispute ends and would seek police protection at overpasses.

At Active Cartage in suburban Rexdale, several office windows were broken and a highway flare was thrown into an office. It landed in a large ashtray and did no damage.

The chain moorings on four loads of pipe on trailers in the yard of Active Cartage were removed, making the loads unsafe for transport.

Officials at Square Deal Cartage in Toronto reported windshields of two trucks smashed in the company yard.

J. D. Smith and Sons reported that pins connecting tractors and trailers were pulled on three trucks parked in the city.

At Taggart Service Ltd. windows were smashed.

The Teamsters Union calls the motor bureau shutdown a lockout but the bureau terms it a strike. About 8,500 teamsters are out of work in the dispute.

Belgian Government Quits In Squabble with Doctors

From AP-Reuters

BRUSSELS (CP) — King Baudouin today accepted the resignation of the coalition government of Premier Pierre Harmel.

He asked Harmel and his six-month-old cabinet to remain in office on a caretaker basis until a new government can be formed. This is likely to be a long process, and new elections may be necessary.

The King and Queen Fabiola returned from a three-day state visit to Denmark and shortly after the monarch received Harmel. The Catholic premier handed over his resignation for the second time within a week, and this time Baudouin accepted it.

The government's resignation came after the Socialists broke with Harmel's Social Christian Party, depriving the premier of his majority in Parliament.

Twelve Socialist members pulled out of the 27-man cabinet, refusing to bow to demands by the country's 9,000 doctors that free hospital treatment should be banned.

The doctors threaten a nationwide strike if their demands are not met.

The deep split in the coalition over the doctors' demands also led to Harmel's offer to resign last week.

Flood Danger Warning Issued By Authorities

TORONTO (CP) — A flood danger warning was issued today by the conservation authorities branch of the provincial government, because of a thaw that set high temperatures records in some Ontario communities Thursday.

The rivers and streams of southern and southwestern Ontario will show a general rise today and Saturday, a spokesman for the branch said. Rain and the runoff from melting snow are swelling water courses.

On larger streams, the possibility of ice jams is serious, the spokesman said. He warned that a careful watch should be maintained on "all the usually affected areas."

There has already been some flooding on the Beaver River at Clarksburg, near Owen Sound and there is serious danger of ice jams at various places along the Credit River.

Kingston Convicts Leave Kidnapped Woman At Barrie

TORONTO (CP) — Shotgun-armed police have launched a province-wide search for three convicts wanted for the kidnapping Thursday of a suburban Scarborough woman.

Mrs. Eveline Forsyth, 40, was forced off the road at gunpoint as she drove to a high school to pick up her son.

The men, John Eaton, 25, of Moose Jaw, Sask., Harold Dankwardt, 20, of Kitchener, and Thomas Brydges, 21, of Elmira, Ont., crashed out of Collins Bay penitentiary in a panel truck Wednesday.

Mrs. Forsyth was found in a hotel room north of Barrie, dressed in a slip, gagged and tied to a chair with torn bedsheets. She had managed to remove the gag and scream for help.

Police say the woman was forced off the road shortly before noon and two men carrying rifles ordered her to follow their companion in another car.

ABANDON CAR

They drove to Thornhill, north of Toronto, where the first car, stolen Thursday near Peterborough, was abandoned.

Charles Yeoman, 53, of Owen Sound, a safety instructor for the department of highways, heard Mrs. Forsyth's screams in the hotel shortly after 11 p.m.

"It sounded like a cat," he said. "I didn't pay much attention."

"But the cries got louder. She must have worked the gag loose," he said.

Mr. Yeoman dressed and wakened a companion, James Dubbin, 49, of Toronto, another highways department employee and former RCMP officer.

Mrs. Forsyth was taken to hospital in Barrie and put under sedation. Several hours later, before police could question her fully, her husband brought her back to Toronto.

Police say the three men stole Mrs. Forsyth's car and now have abandoned it.

They are known to be armed with rifles and shotguns.

Police radio broadcasts are warning officers that the men "will probably shoot it out with police if cornered." All police in the Barrie area have been issued shotguns and warned not to take any chances with the men.

Eaton was serving six years for possessing a deadly weapon and obstructing police, Brydges four years for auto theft and Dankwardt 30 months for auto theft.

The three men escaped with a fourth man, Thomas William Fuhrman, 18, of Kitchener.

Fuhrman, serving 26 months on three charges of breaking and entering and theft, was recaptured Wednesday.

Oshawa Strike Settled

OSHAWA (CP)—Striking members of the Oshawa unit of the Toronto Newspaper Guild (CLC) Thursday, ratified an agreement reached earlier in the day by union and management negotiators, ending a strike that has prevented publication of the Oshawa Times since January 27.

The Times' general manager, R. C. Rooke, said he hoped the evening daily would publish Saturday.

Negotiators reached agreement Thursday afternoon after 28 hours of continual mediation and negotiation in the strike which was dominated by the issue of mass picketing and company injunctions limiting numbers of pickets.

Some 40 top leaders of Canadian and international unions were to meet today in Oshawa to plan ways to continue the campaign against the use of injunctions which limit picketing at strike-bound plants.

The agreement, which will give the guild its second contract with the newspaper, owned by Thomson Newspapers Ltd., granted $15-a-week raises across-the-board to the 36-member guild unit which bargains for 50 employees at The Times, Oshawa's only daily.

RAISE DATES BACK

The first $5 is retroactive to last July, the second $5 will be paid starting next July and the third $5 in July, 1967. The contract expires July 2, 1968.

Under the old contract, reporters made $50 a week to start and could reach a top minimum of $100 after six years' experience.

Clerks started at $43 a week and could go to $52.50 or $55 in three years.

The guild wanted a starting salary of $70 a week for reporters, with a top minimum of $120, and a scale for clerks ranging from $53 to $70 or $75.

A job-security clause was negotiated Wednesday.

Orville McGuire, executive secretary of the guild, said the membership gave the compromise agreement overwhelming approval.

He said the team that negotiated the contract was "very happy" with it. "I think it's a good contract and a major improvement."

Tension over the injunction issue rose during the strike as mass picketing by other Oshawa unions continued after the Thomson company obtained an injunction Jan. 31 ordering there be no more than 10 pickets at the plant. Pickets from several other unions often numbered 150. Typographers and pressmen did not cross the picket lines.

TO FORCE ISSUE

Labor leaders declared they intended to force a showdown on the injunction issue, while Thomson Newspapers applied for an Ontario Supreme Court writ ordering enforcement of

Medicare Debate Tangled

TORONTO (CP) — The two-week - old debate on medical care insurance was again in the forefront of the legislature's business Thursday.

But the legislature also:

—Heard Robert Dixon (L—Brant) call for a reduction in the voting age to 18;

—Learned of an investigation into milk deliveries in parts of eastern Ontario where some dairy farm families are under scarlet fever quarantine;

—Got a hint the government might tighten provisions in the municipal act on conduct of local elected officials.

Speaker Donald Morrow invited leaders and whips of the three parties to meet with him and lay down rules for the remainder of the medical care debate.

This followed an hour of wrangling over whether Premier John Robarts, or any other member, could take part in the debate after Health Minister Matthew Dymond had made a statement.

NEED CLEARING

Dr. Dymond said there are a number of issues which need to be clarified before Ontario agrees to take part in the federal government's medical care scheme. He also outlined the scope of the province's own medical care legislation.

Mr. Nixon said that the active idealism of young persons in the province has grown so in recent years that the voting age should be reduced to 18.

He said youths are far more informed politically today than when he was a teen-ager and added: "I'm glad they've broken out of their shell."

Mr. Nixon also called for a permanent voters' list, use of public money by bona fide candidates in election campaigns, and the printing of party affiliations on ballot papers.

Dr. Dymond said he has asked for a thorough investigation into milk deliveries in areas of eastern Ontario where members of some dairy farm families are under quarantine because of scarlet fever.

HAS BEEN ASKED

He said he has asked for the specific reason why the medical officer of health in Pittsburgh Township in Frontenac County had refused to allow milk pick-ups from some farms.

Municipal Affairs Minister Wilfrid Spooner hinted the government may tighten up provisions of the Municipal Act relating to conduct of local elected officials.

He said he had not seen a brief on municipal ethics drawn up by Reeve James Service of the Toronto suburb of North York. But he said the section of the act dealing with the code of ethics is under review and amendments likely will be brought before the house later this session.

Humphrey's 'Copter Guarded By Two 'Gunships' at Saigon

SAIGON (Reuters) — U.S. Vice - President Hubert Humphrey today visited the war-torn outskirts of Saigon, escorted by two rocket-firing helicopters and heavily guarded by security agents.

An American spokesman said Humphrey, who inspected two resettlement housing projects outside the south Vietnamese capital, flew in a helicopter flanked by "gunships."

There were two guards aboard the vice-president's helicopter and one man on each of the escorting attack helicopters, the spokesman said.

At the Phu Tho Hoa housing project, where about 10,000 refugees have been resettled during the last three months, Humphrey joked with residents and sang with local schoolchildren.

Humphrey arrived in South Viet Nam Thursday for a 48-hour visit as part of an extensive far eastern tour which includes Laos, Cambodia, thailand, India and Pakistan.

Today he paid formal calls on South Vietnamese government leaders, including Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and the head of state, Lt. - Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu.

Humphrey accompanied Thieu and Ky back from their Honolulu talks with President Johnson.

He pledged the U.S. to an economic revolution in South Viet Nam which, he said, would provide a dynamic and lasting answer to communism.

On the fighting front, an apparent lull in ground action continued today. American and allied troops who have been combing the An Lao valley, 280 miles from Saigon, for several days still found no trace of a Viet Cong force believed to have taken refuge there.

Strike Grips Santo Domingo After Two Days of Fighting

SANTO DOMINGO (Reuters) A general strike paralysed the Dominican capital today as shaken inhabitants took stock of two days of bloody street-fighting.

A self-appointed strike committee called for a nationwide stoppage as a protest against ugly clashes between police and populace which caused the death of at least nine persons and left 60 more injured.

Violence erupted wednesday after police opened fire on a student demonstration outside the presidential palace, killing at least two of the students.

Enraged citizens who attacked the police bludgeoned one to death and hammered another unconscious to be burned alive by a 10-year-old child.

Thursday, a mob stabbed and clubbed a police sergeant to death, then scattered. an 18-year-old youth was killed by a policeman in a gun fight.

Police reinforcements turned back another mob, armed with clubs and rocks, as it marched on a police station. Young gangs attacked police in three cities in the interior.

The strike committee also demanded President Hector Garcia-Godoy force all right wing military leaders to leave the country.

Leftwing military chiefs, who fought the right wingers in last year's four-month civil war, already have obeyed Garcia Godoy's orders to take up diplomatic posts abroad.

But righting officers have defied his order, issued at the beginning of last month.

Suggests That All Traffic Stop For Pedestrians at Walk Lights

Are the traffic light 'walk" signals at the corner of Front and Bridge streets timed in favor of the motorists with the result that pedestrians have to wait too long before getting the signal to cross the street?

It seems that not a few pedestrians and at least two city aldermen think this is the case.

Also absence of traffic lights at the corner of Dundas and Pinnacle streets is claimed to be making things tough for northbound motorists wishing to turn right onto Dundas street.

And at the same time the stopped traffic on Pinnacle is said to be blocking a service station entrance and slowly driving the operator out of business.

All the above observations were heard at the last regular meeting of city council, the questions being raised by the two newest aldermen at city hall.

Alderman Dr. J. Russell Scott felt that the "walk" lights at the four corners should be re-phased so that all vehicular traffic is brought to a halt simultaneously thus allowing pedestrians to cross all at the same time.

He said this type of "walk" light operation was in use in some other Ontario centres where it was claimed to be working out very satisfactorily.

But Mayor J. R. Ellis didn't agree.

He said the type of "walk" signal suggested by Dr. Scott had been considered before the Belleville installation was made and had been decided against.

Alderman Arthur Keegan brought up the Dundas-Pinnacle street traffic question claiming that the removal of lights at this intersection had made it difficult for traffic from south of the tracks to get onto Dundas street.

Big trucks waiting for entry onto Dundas street were blocking entrance to a nearby service station which he said was rapidly losing business.

Funeral

WILMOT H. ALKENBRACH

STIRLING — The funeral of Wilmot Henry Alkenbrach of R.R. 2 Stirling was held on Wednesday from the Duffin-Hogle Funeral Home, Stirling, to Moira United Church where Rev. J. Bruce Small of St. Paul's United Church officiated.

The bearers were John Lanigan, Rayburn Wood, Clifford Heath, Gordon Burrell, Elmer Wilson and Oliver Stapley. Interment was in Moira Cemetery.

NDP Favors Govt.-run Car Insurance Plan

Desmond Morton, assistant provincial secretary for the New Democratic Party of Ontario, and author of the Woodsworth Foundation booklet, "Crisis in Car Insurance," outlined a proposed government-run car insurance plan to the members of the South Hastings NDP Association at a meeting in the Engineers' Hall on Pine Street in Belleville, last night.

Under the proposed plan, all drivers would be insured and the policy would be sold with the licence plates. Maximum cost would be $83 annually and "bad" drivers would pay a surcharge of $5 per demerit.

The plan would provide $100,000 for personal liability; $5,000 for property damage, ($100 deductible) and $10,000 for death or personal injury. Mr. Morton said private insurance companies now only provide $2,000 for death or injury.

If the plan were run by the government, it would do away with high administrative costs, company profits and agents' commissions, Mr. Morton said, and would leave an extra 15 per cent of the funds to be applied to insurance claims.

Mr. Morton said that last year's 1,500 deaths and 35,000 injuries on Ontario highways were not liable to be decreased until more safety factors were incorporated into standard model cars. He blamed accidents on speeds of 60 mph or more, rather than on drunk drivers or adverse weather and road conditions.

Ian Reilly, president of the South Hastings NDP association, reported that a campaign in this area to double membership was well underway and said the campaign would swing into full action by March 1.

Mr. Reilly also said a South Hastings NDP Youth Party would become a reality in the near future and announced the association would shortly start to publish its own monthly newspaper.

Mr. Morton commended the local association on its activity and said that the provincial plan to double membership to 35,000 by this fall would be helped considerably by local groups displaying this sort of initiative.

The next monthly meeting of the association will be held on March 10, (place to be announced later) and an executive meeting will be held on Feb. 27.

Garbage Can's Lament

Re: Standard Garbage Holders.

I am a lowly sani-can,
Why do I sit and mope?
My fair city has progressed,
My sides, they do not slope.

I started with the Joneses,
Before young John was born,
And Fred and Jill and Trudy,
So I've a right to mourn.

It's true they've had the odd new car,
I've done my job with trust,
Bumped and thumped and jumped upon,
My bruises do not rust.

They're going to the hardware store,
To get a "regulation",
Slanted sides and fitted lids,
I'm soon to lose my station.

I ask you, City Fathers,
Do you know if there are places,
Where relic sani cans can go
To rest and lift their faces?

Excuse me Mr. Engineer,
Right now I have to dash,
Young John is here with both arms full,
What can it be but trash.

With due respect to those trying to update our disposal system.

Anne Whitten.

Retaining Wall and New Walk For East Side of Pinnacle St.

Pedestrians and motorists are both going to get a well deserved break as result of re - construction works currently underway on Pinnacle Street north of Victoria.

When the road building program in this area is completed northbound pedestrians on the east side of Pinnacle will have a new sidewalk and motorists will have more convenience in parking their cars and depositing their money in the parking meters.

In the street widening process part of the embankment of St. Michael's Convent is disappearing, a number of trees are coming down and the one time spring and old pump house at the side of the street is gone.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell says a new seven - foot retaining wall and a concrete sidewalk will be constructed. And motorists who park their cars in the area will be able to alight onto the sidewalk instead of having to get in and out of their vehicles on the traffic side.

Forms for the new retaining wall are now going in, but it is not expected the sidewalk will be poured until all danger of freezing is past.

The new retaining wall and sidewalk installation is all part of the Pinnacle street re - paving program scheduled for completion in the spring.

the injunction. The company also sought another injunction to ban all picketing.

The union leaders said they would go to jail if necessary in a campaign to end the use of injunctions to limit picketing.

The application for the writ never was heard in court. The hearing was to be held last Tuesday but was postponed after Premier John Robarts and Labor Minister Lesie Rowntree arranged a conciliation meeting of both sides that day. When agreement was reached Thursday, the company said it would ask the court to allow the application to be withdrawn.

In Toronto today, Chief Justice G. A. Gale of the High Court of Justice permitted the company to withdraw the application. There was no objection from lawyers for the guild and the Ontario attorney - general's department.

Negotiations continued from 10 a.m. Wednesday to after 2 p.m. Thursday with only two breaks for meals. After the dinner break Wednesday, talks continued non-stop into Thursday afternoon.

Benefits under the new contract besides wage increases and job security include:

—A provision that all new employees must join the guild within 30 days;

—Three weeks' vacation after 10 years' service;

—Time and one-half for overtime or equivalent time off at company option within 60 days;

—Company payment of 60 per cent of costs of present premiums for hospital, medical and life insurance benefits, up from 50 per cent under the old contract;

—A limit of 50 split shifts a year for editorial employees.

Mass picketing at the plant ended with the settlement Thursday but labor leaders said mass picketing might be copied in other labor disputes. They said there could be no let-up of organized labor's drive against the use of injunctions in labor disputes.

threat which preferably should be handled by leaving China alone, striving to settle Viet Nam and then working with Russia, France and others to cast world opinion against China on this issue.

The U.S. war in Viet Nam was damaging relations with nations normally friendly, particularly Japan, the "greatest Asian asset we have or could have."

A U.S. withdrawal in Viet Nam, while definitely not to be precipitate, would hand North Viet Nam and China a propaganda victory, but today's events moved so quickly such advantage was temporary.

There will be "violence of all sorts for many years to come in underdeveloped nations" and regrettably, the U.S. did not appear to be planning policies to meet the violence.

When containment of Russia had been outlined, the U.S.S.R. was the only communist power in the world and containment worked because Europeans made it work.

Today, in Asia and Africa, newly - emergent nations and peoples lacked the awareness of what freedom meant in the Western sense and thus had less cause to regard communism as undesirable.

Gem, Mineral Club Is Told About Fossils

The Quinte Gem and Mineral Club met Wednesday evening at the Entomology Laboratory for its February meeting. President Perc. Pickering covered the business part of the meeting which included plans for forthcoming field trips, and arrangements for a display of members' work in the April Hobby Show.

The program for the evening was presented jointly by club members Ian Heales and Doug. Livingstone, who gave an introductory outline on palaeontology, which is the study of fossils.

Mr. Heales described himself as a student of palaeontology who had studied the subject in England before coming to Canada, and he told those present how fossils were formed, and how important they were not only to the geologist and palaeontologist, but also to industries of many kinds. Fossils show us the remains of prehistoric life and provide evidence of the varieties and forms of plants and animals and their evolution. Although life is presumed to have started in some forms about two and one half billion years ago, the first good specimens of fossilized remains originated during the Cambrian period between 500 and 600 million years ago.

The vast majority of fossils had a marine origin and many limestone rocks are composed almost entirely of a multitude of fossilized remains of primitive creatures which once lived in the ancient seas.

Although fossils are found almost wholly in rocks and other hard substances, a few interesting exceptions are known. These include the well-preserved remains of animals and birds in the tar pits of California, and the remains of the hairy mammoths which were preserved in the ice of Siberia.

Mr. Heales explained about the complete families of fossils, from the simple single-celled creatures from earliest times through to the complex types of the present. Creatures which evolved rapidly and were completely changed from their original form,, serve the geologist with an index with which to measure the ages of rocks and other parts of the earth's crust.

Doug. Livingstone dealt with local fossils which abound in the limestones of the Quinte region. These rocks were formed during the Devonian era about 400 million years ago. Local cement plants utilize fossiliferous rocks which have an extremely high calcium content. Elsewhere, the oil fields of the world were formed from ancient plants and animals.

Mr. Livingstone recommended fossil collecting as a fascinating and interesting hobby, and one which goes well with other types of rock and mineral collecting. He explained that there was little danger of running short of varieties to collect, since some of the types of fossils had at least 30,000 different forms.

Engineers Hear Address on 'Cryogenics'

Following a pleasant reception and an excellent dinner last evening in the Prince Edward [illegible]ite of the Hotel Quinte, the [illegible]uinte Chapter of the Professional Engineers of Ontario listened to a most interesting and informative address on Cryogenics

The speaker, Mr. David L. McLeish, P. Eng., a cryogenics specialist with the Gas Products operating group of Union Carbide Canada Limited, prefaced his remarks with a brief explanation of the derivation of the word cryogenics, saying that it came from the Greek word "kryos" meaning icy cold, and involved the science of utilizing the very low temperatures associated with such gases as Oxygen, Nitrogen, Helium and Argon. He pointed out that there are three ways to cool these gases, namely, by a heat exchanger, by expansion, and by having them do work.

TRANSPORT DISCUSSED

The methods of storing and transporting these gases in con[illegible]iners called dewars was discussed and well illustrated with slides which showed details of this equipment as well as the flow diagrams and piping arrangements needed to use them. As a point of general interest, the speaker mentioned that Nitrogen, when used from its liquid form as a gas expands in volume seven hundred times. Several experiments were performed to show the effect of liquid Nitrogen on various materials and to emphasize the importance of the materials of construction used in storing and handling these gases.

Again using slides, Mr. McLeish next discussed at more length and detail, a number of industrial and other applications of this science, including such fields as cryosurgery, the storage of biologicals, the transportation of perishable foods, and other materials, and the industrial applications of lasers, masers, and infra-red detectors.

The many questions and length of the discussion period following Mr. McLeish's talk attested to its excellence. The speaker was introduced by W. L. Canniff, manager of Union Carbide's Belleville plant and thanked by A. D. Revill, president of Electronic Controls Ltd., Belleville.

'Arkie' Vaughan Is Not Dead As Reported

MONTREAL (CP) — For Ralph T. Vaughan Thursday could have been a satisfying day after the announcement of his promotion to a vice - presidency in Canadian National Railways. But he spent a good part of the day on the phone denying that he was dead.

It was a news - agency error. The vigorous, 46-year-old rail executive, known as "Arkie" around the news-room of the old Halifax Herald where he was a reporter and city editor in the late 1940s, took it calmly. He dispatched it with the remark: "These things can happen."

What happened was that The Canadian Press erroneously inserted his name in a list of prominent persons who had died Wednesday. They included Baroness Ravensdale and theatre greats Billy Rose and Sophie Tucker.

The list went only to Ontario newspapers. But soon the wires began humming with inquiries from high places in Ottawa to CNR headquarters in Montreal.

After it was straightened out, a CNR spokesman said the Halifax - born lawyer's concern was whether the erroneous report had been transmitted to the Maritime provinces where he has relatives.

No Intention Of Changing Regulations

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson repeated Thursday that Canada has no intention of changing its regulations concerning uranium sales to other countries.

The regulations ensure that purchasing countries must use the uranium for peaceful purposes only.

Mr. Pearson said in a Commons reply to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker there has been no conversation with France or any other government to indicate any change in Canada's position.

He added that Canada is concentrating at the Geneva disarmament conference on trying to get a treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear arms.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Blonde Candace Mossler's trial in the slaying of her husband was recessed for the weekend today, after she became ill during the night and was unable to appear in court.

Dr. Edward W. St. Mary, under questioning on the witness stand by Circuit Judge George Schulz, testified he treated Mrs. Mossler for migraine headaches and nausea, a combination that has affected her twice before during her trial with Melvin Lane Powers on charges of murdering multi-millionaire Jacques Mossler.

Dr. St. Mary also testified that Mrs. Mossler complained of severe chest pains, "which she also has had before."

"I did not think there was any heart disturbance," the physician continued. "I thought it was engendered by tension."

"Do you have an opinion?" Judge Schulz asked, "as to whether Mrs. Mossler is malingering?"

"I don't believe so," the doctor said.

Just before the recess, Assistant State Attorney Arthur Huttoe informed Judge Schulz that the state expected to rest its case by the middle of next week.

FLAUNTED AFFAIR

A stream of state witnesses testified Thursday that Melvin Lane Powers, Mrs. Mossler's nephew and co - defendant, flaunted a blazing love affair with Mrs. Mossler before business clients, employees, handymen and jailbirds.

The latest sensation in the bizarre trial of Powers and Mrs. Mossler for the murder of her multi-millionaire husband was provided by a witness who said Powers boasted that he had made Mrs. Mossler pregnant.

Asked how her 69-year-old husband would take this, Powers was quoted in reply: 'Well, the old S.O.B. will pop out his chest at having a kid at his age.' "

Outside of court, Mrs. Mossler said she had been unable to conceive since an operation some years ago.

The trial began Jan. 18.

TWO FACE CHARGE

Mrs. Mossler, small and attractive, simply but expensively dressed, who says she will be 40 next week, is on trial for her life with Powers, 29, a darkly handsome six-foot-three.

The state accuses them of plotting the bludgeoning and stabbing of her husband, Jacques, for the twin motives of illicit love and money. The defence maintains that Mossler, head of a $33,000,000 banking and loan empire, made innumerable enemies, any one of whom could have plunged a knife into him 39 times on June 30, 1964, in his Key Biscayne apartment.

Mrs. Mossler was put at the time, and Powers is depicted by the state as the actual killer.

To U.S. at Knifepoint

Charge Tweed Teen-agers Kidnap Kingston Cabbie

Two Tweed district teenage cousins face charges of kidnapping here after a cab driver was forced at knifepoint to drive from downtown Kingston to Alexandria Bay, N.Y.

In custody of Kingston police are Gordon T. Wood, 16, and Linda M. Thompson, 17, both of R.R. 3 Tweed.

An 11-year-old Kingston girl also was picked up by police when U.S. police were alerted by cab driver Austin Corcoran after he dropped three passengers across the border.

Corcoran picked up his passengers about 6.30 p.m. Wednesday in downtown Kingston.

As the taxi crossed the LaSalle Causeway in the city's east end Corcoran said one of the passengers pulled a knife. He was ordered to drive to the United States.

The vehicle was allowed through border checkpoints at the Thousand Islands International Bridge without incident, although Corcoran said he was unable to attract the attention of border guards.

He dropped the trio in Alexandria Bay and immediately drove to a service station where he called police.

The three persons were picked up about 8 p.m. by Alexandria police and returned to Kingston.

Kingston police said Wood and the Thompson girl lived with the same grandparents in the Tweed area.

They were remanded in court yesterday until February 15.

Sharp Replies Sharply to Ont. Treasurer

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Sharp told the Ontario government Thursday that the provinces cannot expect the federal government to reduce federal personal income taxes year after year to make it "less painful" for the provinces to increase theirs.

Mr. Sharp, replying to Ontario Treasurer James Allan's demand for a larger federal income tax abatement in 1967, said in a statement there is nothing to stop a province increasing its income taxes beyond the amount of the federal abatement.

Mr. Allan said Ontario will want 28 per cent of income taxes collected in the province in 1967, compared to the 24 per cent it will get this year.

Trade Minister Discusses Sale Of Uranium

PARIS (Reuters) — Canada's Trade Minister, Robert Winters, here to discuss possible sales of uranium to France, Thursday called on France and Canada to exploit to the full their growing opportunities for greater trade.

The minister was the luncheon guest of the France-Canada Chamber of Commerce on the third day of his current visit to Paris.

Winters said the present level of trade between France and Canada is disappointing. He said:

"It is almost incredible, but true, that while you are the fourth leading trading nation and we are the sixth, our bilateral trade accounts for only one per cent of our world trade."

Winters said Canada would also welcome an increase in French investment in Canadian industry.

RATES OBJECTIVES

Winters, who conferred with Alain Peyrefitte, French minister for scientific research and atomic affairs Wednesday night, told a press conference Thursday the objective was to keep open the channels and contacts between the two countries on uranium.

"I have not come here to negotiate, nor have I negotiated, nor will I negotiate," he said. "We reviewed our countries' respective positions. We agreed there was no change since last June but that we will maintain contact from time to time."

Wednesday night's meeting between the two ministers was the first formal government-to-government contact since talks for an $800,000,000 contract for the delivery to France during the next 25 years of 50,000 tons of uranium oxide broke down because Canada insisted on international inspection to ensure the uranium was not put to military use.

The Canadian government's policy on uranium exports continues unchanged and the French government refuses to accept any control.

HENRY STUBBINS

United Appeal Annual Meeting Next Tuesday

Speaker at the annual meeting of the Belleville United-Appeal next Tuesday evening, February 15, will be Mr. Henry Stubbins, newly appointed executive secretary of the Community Funds and Councils Division of the Canadian Welfare Council, Ottawa.

On the first of this year, Mr. Stubbins, well qualified, well known and well thought of, returned to the Council, where he had previously served, virtually ten years to the day from when he left to become the executive director of the Ottawa and District United Appeal.

A graduate of the universities of Toronto and Chicago and with a background of practical social work with youth organizations, campaign planning and fund raising, as well as fund organization and direction, his broad experience is certain to provide a most interesting and informative talk.

This year's meeting will be held in the auditorium of the Ontario Hydro, 420 Dundas St. East, at 8.00 p.m.

Several Belleville firms and individuals will be honored by the presentation of special community awards for their outstanding contributions in the success of the recent United Appeal drive. For the first time in 8 - year history of the United Appeal receipts topped $100,000.

United Appeal president, Gerald F. Cunningham has extended an invitation to the entire community to attend. "Each and every person who made a donation to the United Appeal is automatically a member and is entitled to attend", he said, "and we invite, not only our members, but the public at large".

Driver of the car was identified as Dorothy Mowers, 25 Tripp Avenue.

Speakers Win Judges' Plaudits In Competition

BRIGHTON — Twenty-four public and secondary school students who competed in four classes at the annual public speaking contest sponsored by Brighton Royal Canadian Legion Branch 100 Thursday night won plaudits from the spokesman for a trio of judges for their efforts.

"We were deeply impressed with the thought, talent and preparation," said Bryan McCormack of East Northumberland Secondary High School English Department.

In his comments Mr. McCormack cautioned against over emphasis on memorization which he said results in "a tendency to think mainly of the words rather than the ideas being transmitted to the audience. Gestures give a speech feeling," he told the youthful orators. "If the material is related to personal experience you are sure of what you are speaking about. Language and literary form were excellent. Preparation was immaculate," he said.

Senior group winner Bruce Haynes with his topic of "What Do You Do On A Date," illustrated Mr. McCormack's observations in delivering a talk on the do's and dont's of dating. "A honk on the horn is no substitute for a handshake with parents in the living room," he advised. "Get your date home a little on the early side (ahead of curfew), the first time." He concluded with a warning: "Don't be mistaken. The first date doesn't have to end in a big clinch. Girls don't like a grabber."

There were three contestants in the senior high school group; four junior high school speakers; nine senior elementary and eight junior elementary contestants.

Winners in each group were: Senior, Bruce Haynes; Junior High, Mary Eaton, who spoke on "Tuning in on Tomorrow;" Rhonda Forbes in the Grade 7 and Grade 8 class whose topic was "Ballet" and Margaret Eaton whose talk on the late U.S. President John F. Kennedy received top points from the judges.

Judges were: Mr. McCormack, Miss Doreen Bell and Miss Carol Godart.

Debate on another television channel for Toronto again took the spotlight as the Commons studied transport department estimates.

Transport Minister Pickersgill was the target of criticism by opposition Leader Diefenbaker and New Democrats.

He protested everything was normal in the application by three Liberal broadcasters to move channel 3 from Barrie, Ont., to Toronto.

"This means of making a fortune by an under-the-table arrangement cannot be accepted," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Reid Scott (NDP—Toronto Danforth) said a back - door method was being tried to get a new channel in Toronto.

Justice Minister Cardin announced a three-lawyer committee will make recommendations for Bankruptcy Act revisions.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported unemployment at 359,000 in January, up 107,000 from December.

Several MPs continued criticism of the railways for what they maintain is slow shipment of wheat to terminals.

The CPR also came in for more criticism about its moves to trim passenger service.

FRIDAY, Feb. 11

The Commons meets at 11 a.m. to continue study of transport department spending. The Senate stands adjourned until Feb. 22.

Chambers Will Hold Course on Hospitality

TRENTON — At a meeting in the Trenton Chamber of Commerce office yesterday, it was decided to cancel a Department of Tourism "Hospitality Conference," scheduled to be held in Trenton March 31 and to join with the Belleville Chamber at a conference in that city, March 30. It was thought one meeting would draw the necessary crowd, while two might be badly attended.

The conference is designed to teach motel owners, store personnel and public officials how to attract tourists and make them want to return to the area the next year.

A representation from the Trenton and Belleville retail merchants' groups, motel owners, store personnel and a representation from the two communities' police force will be asked to attend a pre-conference meeting on Feb. 21.

Present at yesterday's meeting were Nostrand Sprague, Trenton Chamber manager; O. R. Bardley, Belleville Chamber manager; Bill Wingate, Douglas Robinson and Mary McKinnon from the Department of Tourism.

Heavy Tax Burden

The price of almost everything in Ontario is going up. That, briefly and bluntly, is the message of the hour as it affects the citizehs of this province.

Ontario is the wealthiest, the most progressive, most heavily industrialized province in the country. It may be said, without fear of contradiction ,that it is one of the most highly developed and advanced regions on this continent.

And it is still growing, still developing. Progress is the order of the day. Nothing barring a recession can stop this province from reaching new heights of prosperity. Not a day passes that some new enterprise is not begun, whether it is an industry or a school or a municipal facility of one kind or another.

And all this costs money. So, as we move into an era of new and unprecedented prosperity the burden of taxation is being raised. The measures that have been announced are far-ranging, involving increases in the price of gasoline, cigarets, liquor and houses, long-distance phone calls and telegrams, not to mention sales tax.

In all, the taxes are expected to swell the government coffers by almost $200 million, and represent an extra $28 per capita.

If the increases had been expected, some may be considered as ill-advised. Why the blow at home-owners for example? The tax on land transfers is to be doubled from one-fifth to two-fifths of one per cent. Yet corporation tax has been left untouched, on the premise (according to Provincial Treasurer James Allan) that "a change would be unwise because it might dissuade industry from locating in Ontario."

The net result is that the people of this province ,the consumers, are bearing the main burden of this increased taxation.

A Consumers' Association official says the taxes may act as a salutary curb on spending at a time of inflationary pressure. At the same time, coming on top of the recent boosts in food prices and a general upward trend in the cost-of-living index, they represent a heavy strain on family budgets. Yet this is the price of progress.

Communist Subversion

The long arm of the communist conspiracy to conquer the world involves not only open conflict as in Viet Nam, but propaganda and subversion on a big scale.

Through agents and fellow-travellers around the world, including the United States itself, the communists spread their evil doctrine. Their tactics include attempts to demoralize the American fighting man in Viet Nam through what is known there as "mud mail."

Soldiers have been receiving letters from communist-front organizations in the States with names like the Viet Nam Day committee. In one was a folder inscribed with the words, "Peace on Earth," and averring: "Wouldn't it be better to let the Vietnamese people decide what form of government they want — even if it is communist — and stop this needless killing of peasants and GIs?"

Others are more blunt, like mail saying: "Dear Soldier — Get out of Viet Nam."

That this kind of mail is having a demoralizing effect on some of the younger, more impressionable men, is inevitable. Hate letters to wives and families in the States are also said to be increasing steadily.

At the same time as Saigon issues reports on this new communist tactic, comes word from Los Angeles about anti-war radio tapes being broadcast to U.S. troops in South Viet Nam over the Viet Cong station in Hanoi.

Evidently Canadians are among those involved in disseminating the tapes, for Ronald Ramsey, 27, a self-styled "freedom-fighter" was quoted in Los Angeles as saying that he and his staff of "more than 20" made the tapes in his home and shipped them to Hanoi via contacts in Quebec, London and Prague.

The tapes, according to Ramsey, are designed to convince the American GI in Viet Nam that he is fighting an illegal war.

This, then, is one of the ways in which communism makes its gains — through agents, let us note again, in places like Quebec and Prague, capital of communist Czechoslovakia. Their operations are largely clandestine and difficult to detect. But their one aim is the undermining of democracy and freedom as we know it.

University Expands

Carleton University is building a second Arts building. Costing $7, the building is scheduled for completion by fall of 1967. The nine-storey structure on the Rideau campus consists of four towers, three for faculty offices and one for social science research.

The expansion at Carleton and other universities bears out the recent comment by the publication, Canadian Forum ,that "their vast building programs make the universities the leading patrons of public architecture in this decade."

Refreezing of Food Can Prove Dangerous

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My mother recently set out some frozen chicken broth, let it thaw completely, then changed her mind and put it back in the freezer to use some other time.

I tried to explain that the frozen broth would not be safe but she only argued that she does this with frozen foods all the time and nothing happens. What are the facts? — Mrs. S.J.

Regardless of what she thinks she is running a risk. It may be that nothing has happened. Or something may have happened but she didn't know the cause. But something could happen, and you are quite right in saying that thawing and refreezing food can be dangerous.

Freezing can prevent germs from multiplying, yet many germs merely hibernate and become active again when temperature rises. Each thawing—and subsequently until the food is solidly frozen clear through — allows that much more time for germs to increase.

With repeated thawing and refreezing, food can, indeed, spoil. It spoils a little at a time, but it is still spoilage. (It also tends to lose flavor, but that's beside the point, I suppose.)

Most commercial frozen foods carry a warning not to thaw and then refreeze. This warning is given because there's a reason.

Periodically we read about a meal or picnic at which people are taken ill with "ptomaine" or food poisoning. In most cases this is traced to food that was allowed to stand — and germs had time to multiply. It happens most readily in warm weather but it can happen any time.

Thawing and refreezing is the same as letting food stand. It may take several thawings to be the equivalent of standing overnight, but the same total risk exists.

The safe rule with any food is to keep it hot or keep it cold or not keep it.

The best rule is to cook frozen foods the first time they are thawed. Standing for a reasonable length of time between thawing and cooking is all right.

By the way hasn't your mother ever encountered meat, particularly chicken, that has been thawed and refrozen? The surface gets a sort of silvery appearance, and it often feels wet and slippery as it thaws again. What causes this? Bacteria have been active during the thawed period.

Certainly it is possible to thaw and refreeze without having trouble — some of the time. People violate speed laws and other safety regulations and get away with it — sometimes. Other times they pay the penalty.

It's the same way with food. Maybe nothing happens a hundred times. On the 101st, trouble may result. It may not be a full-blown case of food poisoning. It may be milder. Just cramps, or diarrhea. But who wants these? I'd rather follow the rules.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the best advice for people over 50 who have lived in Florida for 10 years but intend to take a trip north? Our blood is thin. How do we get it back to normal? — B. L. S.

Blood doesn't get "thin" from living in a warm climate, although that belief is hard to dispel. There is nothing you need to do in advance. You just have to get used to the colder climate when you get there.

Loophole In Tax Lag

(Globe and Mail)

The Government has been guilty of a strange piece of discrimination in its budget. All of the new taxes announced will take effect, not at midnight of budget night as is the usual and just procedure, but on April 1. This means that those with money will have seven weeks in which to stock up on all manner of merchandise and avoid the new taxes, while those without money — the poor and those who find it necessary to live from day to day — will be unable to avoid the increases. For those who can afford it, there are 44 shopping days till Doomsday.

Her Cards Went Astray

Mrs. G. Jones in letter to Hamilton Spectator

While the postal authorities are busy patting themselves on the back for the wonderful job they did during the Christmas rush, many people like myself are still wondering what ever became of our many cards we look forward to receiving every year from friends and relatives.

I have between 50 and 70 known cards I did not receive which I presume was because the name of our street had been changed.

One card mailed first class from Vancouver had marked on it "No such address" and mailed back to sender.

I guess it is much easier to toss these cards in the dead letter box than look up an address. It appears that when the mail is cleared away (no matter where to) they think they are doing an efficient job.

CYC Body Is Flagging

Hamilton Spectator

After 10 months of existence, there is no life in the Company of Young Canadians, Canada's version of the U.S. Peace Corps.

Despite the fact that there have been 1,398 inquiries since last April when the plan was born with a blaze of publicity, "there has been no call for applicants and no application forms have been distributed," according to Prime Minister Pearson's office.

Even though no volunteers have been accepted, the CYC has a presumably alive staff of 13.

How alive the stiff is, no one can safely say, for so far no detailed planning has been done on any of the hundreds of pilot projects suggested.

Young people are going to work with the under-privileged, it seems, but no one is sure how or in what country.

Meanwhile, the Peace Corps is going on five years, and it's big for its age. Thousands of young Americans are helping bring aid to underdeveloped countries all over the world. Thousands more are doing work at home.

By the time the Peace Corps was a year old, 700 volunteers were already overseas, the government had been asked to approve a budget of $63 million for the second year's work, and the corps' director, Sargent Shriver, was planning on training 10,000 more volunteers.

Hunters Can Be Careless

(Ottawa Journal)

The time is past when a boy—or a man—in settled Ontario can safely be given a rifle and allowed to go hunting with no check on his qualifications. Coroner's inquests prove that an ignorant hunter is as dangerous as an unqualified driver on a highway.

There's an inborn conviction among some fathers raised in the country that their sons have an inborn Canadian right to a rifle or shotgun without any palaver about tests. Such a father deserves sympathy but also needs to be reminded that the country now has far more people moving about who run th risk of being shot. He must also remember that as Canada has become more and more a country of city dwellers it has become harder for the average boy to see demonstrated by practical use around a farm just how deadly firearms can be in killing animals with more bone and muscle than man.

And it is not only boys who need training and retraining in the use of firearms. Last year a hunter in Ontario was prohibited from hunting for five years because he shot another hunter in a boat, under the impression he was firing at a swimming deer!

Pollution Problem 'Urgent'

Windsor Star

The International Joint Commission, in a report to Ottawa and Washington, urges immediate action to cleanse our Great Lakes and their connecting streams. The most urgent areas are Lakes Erie and Ontario and the seaway portion of the St. Lawrence River.

We in this district are right in the midst of this nasty situation. We help cause it, as many of the pollutants entering the Great Lakes system originate in this vicinity.. We also suffer from the results of it, as any glance at our waterfront will show.

The Detroit River serves as an open sewer. Lake Erie, especially the westerly end of it, is a huge cesspool. This is so true that Lake Erie has been described as a dying lake.

There are two principal sources of pollution. Communities on both sides of the border have been using these international waters as a sewer for the effluents of humans. Industries have been using them as a free disposal plant for their wastes. (Added to these are the deposits from shipping.)

There must be a halt to this. All communities, large and small, must be compelled to have modern sewage disposal plants so that sewage is properly treated before entering the water.

All industries,. large and small, must be made to quit disposing of their wastes into the waters. They cannot be allowed any longer to despoil our lakes and streams. Some industrial wastes, because f their chemical content, are particularly harmful.

This will cost the communities much. It will cost the industries considerable. These costs no longer can suffice as an excuse for an intolerable condition. The communities and industries have been using these waters, for free, far too long.

Windsor now has one modern disposal plant. A second system is being constructed, to be completed in a few years.

But all, on both sides of the border, must be forced to act. Even if the action commences at once it will be several years before the job is finished. It then will take several more years before the harm already done to our lakes and streams can be undone.

There should be no ifs, ands or buts about this. The time is long gone for procastination. All governments on all levels in both the United States and Canaada must get busy.

The Great Lakes system is one of the wonders of the world. It was put here for man's enjoyment and use. We have used it — and abused it.

The pollution of these waters is an offence against nature. It is an offence by mankind against mankind. We have been destroying one of this continent's greatest assets. We must stop doing so and now.

Control Over Own Economy

(Montreal Gazette)

The address by Hon. Eric Kierans in Toronto has presented a very real problem: the problem that U.S. subsidiaries in Canada may follow guidelines laid down by the Government in Washington — guidelines that may be as much against the economic interests of Canada as they would be favorable to those of the United States.

What is needed is the serious adoption by Canada of some guidelines of its own. And these would be the sort of guidelines for government policy: guidelines that would realize this country needs the sort of policies — especially the sort of tax policies — that would powerfully favor the accumulation of capital and would make unusually attractive its ready investment in Canadian enterprises.

If Canadians really wish to have a larger control over their own economy than they have today they will have to be ready to give a far higher priority to saving and investment, and they will have to give a far higher priority to economic co-operation for the national good. Are they ready?

Times Good in Saskatchewan

Winnipeg Tribune

Saskatchewan isn't exactly Canada's Mary Poppins province.

Life is real and life is earnest on the great plains. In fact, to hear dyed-in-the-wool Saskans talk, life is a perpetual cliff-hanger. It's too hot or too cold, too wet or too dry, too sunny or too cloudy. And if there is enough winter snow, a dry spell for seeding, spring rains for germination, and sunshine for growth — watch out. There are bound to be weeds, or rust, or grasshoppers, or hail, or frost.

From all this it's a safe bet that when representative Saskans begin to say that things are booming, the province must be glowing with prosperity. Premier Ross Thatcher is now boasting that personal income in Saskatchewan in 1965 was 20 per cent higher than in 1964. Per capita personal income was expected to average out at $2,002 — the national average was $1,956.

The gross value of agricultural production is fixed at about $1 billion. Farm cash income is expected to reach a record $860 billion — more than 40 per cent above the 1961-64 average. And of course there is potash and oil and a government surplus of $14 million.

Manitobans rejoice that Saskans are having it so good — and rejoice even more to hear Saskans admit, perhaps for the first time in recorded history, that things are booming.

Strictly Personal

"To Thine Own Self Be True"

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A glance at the calendar reminds me that next week I enter my 23rd year of writing a daily column. In looking back over the nearly 6,000 columns I have written in this time, one lesson seems to stand out:

I must write only to please myself: it is my approval that counts, not the approval of anyone else, pleasant and desirable though that may be.

It is true that one writes for an audience, and that audience must be satisfied. But the ultimate aim of the writer must not be to please his audience — for then he becomes merely an entertainer, and is cast aside as soon as the public tires of his tricks.

The ultimate aim of the writer must be to express his views as honestly and forcefully and attractively as he knows how; to live up to his own private standards of professionalism; to meet his own canons of taste; and to let neither praise nor scorn swerve him from what he truly believes.

This is not an arrogant attitude, but a humble one. It is the entertainers, the crowd-pleasers, who are really arrogant — for they regard the public as a "mass" to be manipulated, and to be milked. They think the public is not good enough, or smart enough, to deserve the highest and best they can give.

But the writer who aims only to please himself is saying, in effect: 'here is what I am and what I think, without reservation and without compromise; I hope you find my views worth listening to, and I hope you agree with me; but even if you disagree, I will not change my basic viewpoint to curry favor with anyone."

The concert pianist who refuses to "play down" to the crowd, for instance, is assuming that every human being has the latent capacity to "listen up" to him. He has a deep faith that if the public is often enough exposed to good things, it will naturally come to prefer the better product to the worse.

Every artist, every professional man, has a duty to give the public not what it may think it wants, but what he feels is proper for free and intelligent human beings. The doctor who tells his patients what they would like to hear is betraying his profession as well as their trust.

If I have developed over these 22 years, it was because I responded to promptings from the inside, not to proddings from the outside. This needs to be said, not as autobiographical material, but because so many people in the world today believe that "you must give the people what they want." But the difference between a chef and a short-order cook is that the former educates the palates of his patrons, while the latter merely caters to their tastes.

Station

now was worth about $2,500,000. The moment Channel 3 was switched to Toronto it would be worth $6,000,000 or $7,000,000.

"I would have thought the prime minister would have said that this thing can't go on," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

"This thing is wrong. This thing is improper. This thing can't be justified."

THINK IT OVER

"Think this over," he told Mr. Pickersgill. "Don't pretend it can be brushed aside. It can't. It has an atmosphere which is a denial of every democratic principle this country stands for. . . .

"This means of making a fortune by an under-the-table arrangement cannot be accepted by this House."

Mr. Pickersgill said he agrees with much that Mr. Diefenbaker had said about the concentration in the communications field.

But Mr. Diefenbaker hadn't taken the same view when John Bassett, publisher of the Toronto Telegram, and Joel Aldred were applying for a television channel in Toronto.

Mr. Pickersgill said nothing can be done about the Snelgrove application by the government without it going before the Board of Broadcast Governors.

He said Mr. Diefenbaker is suggesting that because the three men involved are Liberals they should be denied rights others receive.

Reid Scott (NDP — Toronto Danforth), who opened the subject Wednesday, said Mr. Pickersgill had offered no reasonable reply to the main point. He had been specious and roundabout.

The main point was that a "back - door, behind - the-scenes" method was being used to open up a new channel in Toronto without any public

CAN'T COMPETE

Nobody except Snelgrove and his associates was being allowed to compete for this "melon or smelon or whatever you call it."

But Mr. pickersgill, whose department received broadcasting applications, refused to take any responsibilty for this "back-room deal."

"I don't like the looks of the deal," Mr. Scott said.

Mr. Pickersgill said there had been no deal of any description. All that had been done was to apply for a channel transfer.

He said he has received a telegram from Mr. Aldred, who ran against Prime Minister Pearson in Algoma East in the last election for the Conservatives, asking how to apply for a Toronto channel. He had also received a letter from CFRB Toronto on the same subject.

Mr. Pickersgill said he is confident the BBG will hear every interested party.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the board exists in name but not in personnel. There were unfilled vacancies on the board.

Mr. Pickersgill noted later in the debate that the board has only one full-time member — Dr. Andrew Stewart, the chairman—instead of the three it normally has.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Pickersgill had referred to the "technical qualifications" of the Snelgrove group.

"They certainly have the political ones," he added.

WILL SAY MORE

Before he sat down, Mr. Diefenbaker said: "I'll have more to say later."

Outling his position, as the Commons debated transport spending estimates, Mr. Pickersgill said a three-point application for TV channel allocations was submitted by Ralph Snelgrove Ltd. and he had not reached any decision on it.

Mr. Snelgrove was Liberal candidate for Simcoe North in the federal elections of 1953 and 1963 and lost both times.

The minister said the Snelgrove firm wrote twice to his department before the Nov. 8 election last year to serve notice about the application.

A "technical brief" was submitted Oct. 8 to the department's telecommunications and electronics branch about a proposed new station on Channel 3 in Toronto.

RECEIVES SUBMISSION

On Nov. 3, another submission had been received saying other applications were being drafted to transfer the Barrie station to Channel 5 from 3 and to transfer a Haliburton TV Satellite station to Channel 4 from 5.

On Nov. 10, the transport department informed the opposite telecommunications agency in the United States of the Snelgrove bids to prevent U.S. stations from moving into the same coverage area.

Further technical briefs had been received in Ottawa Nov. 22 and the formal three-point application had been received Jan. 10.

Mr. Scott asked whether the public was informed then that a new channel was available in Toronto and being sought by one firm.

Mr. Pickersgill said this was not the function of his department. It studied TV applications to look for any technical problems or obstacles.

The technical review of the Snelgrove applications by the transport department was well advanced but not completed. Such applications were normally made public only after they had been cleared by the transport department and passed on the the BBG.

WILL DECIDE

Mr. Pickersgill said he will have to decide later whether to relay the Snelgrove bid to the BBG.

Mr. Diefenbaker and David Lewis, NDP deputy house leader, said the deadline has passed for filing applications to be heard at the BBG's hearing April 22 and this would leave the Snelgrove firm a clear field for the Toronto channel.

They called for a postponement of the April 22 hearing to permit other interested parties to prepare applications.

Mr. Pickersgill said he would not want to interfere with the BBG or prejudice its decisions in any way. It would be inconvenient to other applicants to postpone the hearing and the BBG did not automatically have to allocate the Toronto channel simply because there was only one application.

Mr. Lewis said he was "struck by this very self-righteous homily" since Mr. Pickersgill had said the transfer of the Barrie channel to Toronto would be a good thing.

The minister said this was an accidental misrepresentation of his words. He had not advocated the transfer but had pointed out that the third Toronto channel could be wiped out by a new American station and it would be wise to retain the channel for a Canadian station. He had been told that the Barrie station is the only one that technically could be transferred to Toronto.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) didn't think the BBG was different from other boards "in that if they have a nice, quiet, little, unopposed application they'll deal with it in a nice, quiet, little, summary way."

Mr. Pickersgill should have announced that the Barrie application was the only one received. The minister had said "in tones almost too pious for words" that it would be improper for him to interfere with the board.

"How is the public to be represented if the minister sits mute and says: 'I'm not interested. I have only technical interests.'"

Mr. Pickersgill said he thought the House was showing "rather little confidence in the fairness and capacity of the Board of Broadcast Governors."

Surveys! Ugh

I never did trust surveys.

They aren't reliable.

Why not? Because people aren't reliable.

No, I don't have anything against people, after all, I am a people myself — I think. It's just that people, all people, tend to think of themselves as being a little better than they are and when asked questions they tend to give the answers that would be expected of them.

For instance, if someone asked you if you were running around with someone else you probably would not admit it for fear the word might get out.

Yet surveys ask questions like that. Some even more personal and some people put great stock in the answers received.

A survey in the Toronto Star illustrates the point.

Sociologists of the University of Chicago's National Opinion Research Centre were commissioned by the Columbia Broadcasting System to do a study on teenagers.

The sociologists interviewed nearly all the 688 teenagers in Webster Groves, Missouri, a representative middle-class suburb.

According to the findings, 75 per cent said they do not drink or smoke. Fifty-one per cent say they never go anywhere to neck.

As for dating, only 25 per cent say they dated as much as twice a week (probably the same 25 per cent honest enough to admit taking a drink and puffing on a cigarette) and 71 per cent said they dated once each week.

Almost without exception, the teenagers interviewed said they were not rebellious. Seventy-five per cent said they never disagree with their parents on sex and 62 per cent never disagree on politics.

The Star says, "In general, the youngsters painted an almost puritanical picture of themselves. They indicated that they are obsessed with the effort to get good grades, get into college and get good jobs."

In Missouri, 16 is the minimum age for granting a driver's licence and 81 per cent of those interviewed said they drive cars. They said a driver's licence means "maturity, responsibility" — rather than "independence and fun."

Sounds suspect don't you think.

According to the survey, the highly touted new morality apparently has missed out in Webster Groves. Only eight per cent of those interviewed said sexual intercourse is acceptable, if one is engaged. More surprising, only 40 per cent say petting is acceptable, if one is engaged.

Four per cent of the teenagers felt sexual intercourse is acceptable for people who are going steady and all but two per cent said a goodnight kiss is okay if you're engaged or going steady.

A bit much.

The survey also went into money matters and here the teenagers showed some signs of being human, though certainly not typical.

That's another thing I don't believe in . . . a typical teenager, a typical parent or a typical anything.

But that is another subject.

Meanwhile, back at Webster Groves, 78 per cent of the teens said they have their own bank accounts and 55 per cent said they can use their parents' charge accounts.

Must be nice.

Forty-one per cent get a regular allowance; 17 per cent get a regular allowance, plus money whenever they need it.

How great it is.

Thirty-two per cent don't get a regular allowance but simply get money when they need it.

The CBC picked Webster Groves because they felt it was a representative middle-class suburb. Could be, but I need more convincing.

It seems to me the teenagers there, just as people everywhere do, gave the answers expected from "good" kids from "good" homes.

Most of the questions put forth can be answered easily with any number of age-old moral blockbusters.

I'm not suggesting the teenagers of Webster Groves are corrupt.

I'm not suggesting anyone is corrupt.

But I am saying that the teenagers of Webster Groves are human beings subject to the same emotions and errors in judgment as anybody else.

It's just a coincidence this survey refers to teenagers. My feelings on the subject are not limited to teenagers or to any particular age group, but include everyone.

People want other people to think well of them. That's a pretty tough thing to instill if you readily admit your moral shortcomings to anyone who asks.

Mass Picketing Promised at Peterborough

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Clifford Pilkey, president of the Oshawa labor council, offered Thursday to place the council's 23,000 members at the disposal of strikers at the Tilco Plastic Ltd. plant here.

In a telegram, read to a rally supporting striking members of the Textile Workers of America (CLC), Mr. Pilkey pledged full support in the union's two-month dispute with the company.

Davie B. Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor, told the rally that "mass picketing such as demonstrated at The Oshawa Times, is a new method in settling union disputes over court injunctions obtained by management."

Tilco obtained an injunction two weeks after the strike began Dec. 14, barring pickets for 48 hours and then limiting pickets to 10.

"Peterborough will have the same traumatic experience with mass picketing as Oshawa," Mr. Archer said, "if the strike here does not soon come to an end.

More than 30 union members walked off their jobs in a dispute with Tilco over wages and union security. Spokesmen said the workers are seeking a 10-cent-an-hour increase over the present $1.12 an hour.

Two Crown Attorneys Say Chief Able

HULL, Que. (CP) — Two crown attorneys Thursday told a Quebec Superior Court hearing they believed suspended Police Chief Roger Boucher of Aylmer, Que., was competent in his job.

The testimony came at a special court hearing into the Aylmer Council's attempt last fall to demote Chief Boucher to sergeant.

Mayor Eric Acland said last week be suspended Mr. Boucher for failure to act promptly in the disappearance of four-year-old Donald Gauthier, who has been missing from his foster parents' home for two weeks.

The boy still is missing and police now think he may have been taken by his father, recently released from prison.

The crown attorneys, Marcel Beaudry and Maurice Chevalier, said they always have found Mr. Boucher's work excellent.

Alderman Frank Lynch, one of the council members who voted for Chief Boucher's demotion, said he questioned the competence of the chief from the date of his appointment. He had even resigned from council at one point in the dispute over the appointment.

Judge Sheehan said at the closing of the day's hearing that he did not want any more information about Mr. Boucher's character. When the hearing resumed today, he wanted only facts to show whether the council move was legal.

Tyendinaga Couple Wed In Hamilton Hospital

It was a normal wedding, reports the Hamilton Spectator, except that the bridegroom was 75 and the bride was 64 and it took place in the Hamilton General Hospital.

Nelson Maracle and Alice Agusta John were married by Rev. Donald Taylor of Holy Trinity Church. They had known each other since childhood on the Tyendinaga Reserve near Deseronto.

Mr. Maracle was a widower, but Miss John had never been married before.

A cluster of nurses and patients — wearing pyjamas and robes — watched the quiet ceremony in Ward 25 of the hospital at 7.15 in the evening.

The witnesses were the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Susie Lynch of 358 Hunter Street West, Hamilton and an old friend, Wilfred Fountain of 98 Victoria Avenue North, Hamilton.

Both the bride and bridegroom normally reside at 212 York Street in Hamilton.

The bridegroom has had half his right foot amputated since he entered hospital two months ago. A log fell on his foot and gangrene set in.

Miss John, who has been in the hospital for more than four months with a broken hip, wore a black dress, yellow sweater and had a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums.

The couple sat hand in hand, their voices cracking as Father Taylor had them repeat the vows. It took only minutes to perform the ceremony, and when it was over the couple appeared not to believe it.

Father Taylor said "That's it you're married."

The nurses threw confetti over the couple after the ceremony.

A small party was held after the wedidng and then the bride and bridegroom returned to their separate rooms.

Valentine Day Theme For St. Andrew's Tea

On Wednesday afternoon the ladies of the Afternoon Auxiliary sponsored a Valentine tea in the church hall, gaily decorated for the occasion with red hearts and cupids; also pretty white trees adorned with red hearts of all sizes, making an attractive background.

The tea table was attractive with its lace cloth and centred with a crystal bowl containing red tulips, white sprays of baby 'mums, snapdragons and flanked by silver candelabra with tall red tapers. Scattered around the table were small red hearts and cupids.

Receiving the guests at the door were Mrs. L. Sutherland, wife of the minister, and Mrs. H. Elvidge, president of the W.M.S.

Those presiding at the tea table were Miss Freida Matthews, Mrs. R. Strachan, president of the Women's Guild, Mrs. J. Craig, Mrs. G. Miller, president of the Evening Auxiliary.

Mrs. V. Weir and Mrs. W. Mantle invited the guests to the tea room.

Treasurers for the afternoon were Mrs. G. Bennett and Mrs. G. Miller.

The Explorers group was in charge of the candy table and was convened by Mrs. Bob Sine and Mrs. Frazer when many pretty Valentine boxes of candy were sold.

The home baking table was convened by Mrs. D. Kane, Mrs. H. York, Mrs. J. Miller and Mrs. O. J. Reed. Many pies, cakes, cookies, rolls, jams and pickles made an enticing display and were quickly sold to the many customers.

Mrs. W. J. Mills and Mrs. Ivan Rollins convened the "white elephant" table and did a brisk business selling costume jewelry, aprons, stuffed dolls and many other miscellaneous items.

Mrs. J. Robertson and helper, Mrs. F. Arbuthnott sold colorful pot holders, some with matching towels, which sold readily.

Although the weather was not too co-operative until the afternoon, the tea was well patronized and most successful. The tea conveners were Mrs. W. M. Barlow and Mrs. W. Mantle.

Readers' Friday Column

QUESTION:

Would you be kind enough to send me the recipe for Hungarian Drum Cake? . . . Chas. F. G.

ANSWER:

. . . We like receiving letters from masculine cooks. This Hungarian Drum Cake recipe is similar to the Greek Nut Cake I gave here on January 24th but calls for a smaller quantity of nuts and more eggs. I am glad to give it, for letters are arriving telling me how much our readers liked the Greek Nut Cake.

Jr. Horticultural Society Views Fine Demonstration

Floral arrangements with a Valentine theme was the highlight for the Junior Horticultural February meeting.

Special guest for the evening was Mrs. R. Hayes who demonstrated a lovely table centrepiece of red and white mums and little red hearts.

Mrs. Hayes showed the members how to make corsages and the use of different containers for floral arrangements.

Ellen Pugh thanked Mrs. Hayes on behalf of the Junior members.

Plans were made to visit Mr. Barber's greenhouse in March.

Tulips and hyacinth planted by the members some months ago were taken home after the meeting.

Has Motherly Touch But Short on Glamor

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS: I'm a girl of 16; not too pretty and a little on the overweight side. It seems I have the motherly touch as well as an understanding way with me because I'm the type that can listen and give pretty good advice about the puppy-lovers of our community, but I'm sure no good for myself.

My problem is since 11 years old I have only liked one guy. To me he's anybody's Prince Charming and so far I have kept it a pretty good secret. I can't let him or anyone else know because I'm not pretty and haven't a figure and he needs someone that he can be proud to show off to. He likes the town flirt and he comes to me with his problems. What can I do? I can't let him see I like him and I can't let him get really hurt. I'd gladly give up all my hopes and dreams if I knew someone else was for him.

When I begin to feel I'm falling harder I blow up at him and then I'm really sorry. He'll come over and help with my homework and as he leaves he asks me to kiss and make up because I mean too much to him!

He isn't the type that could understand it very easily if I ever dared to talk to him about how I feel, because he thinks I'm just a friend and I don't count to be liked in a special way for even a short time. — MY ONE DREAM.

DEAR DREAM: You're selling yourself short. Time's not far off when even your glamor boy will know that friendship and helpfulness rate higher than mere looks. A boy may flirt with a flirt, but he'll marry a gal who seems a likely mother for his children.

Meanwhile, must you stay overweight? Is your figure deformed? My guess is there's nothing amiss that can't be remodelled by diet, drill and determination. Ugly duckling can become graceful swan if she wants to. But don't lose the motherly touch. It's by far the harder to acquire.

DEAR DORIS: There is a silver wedding anniversary this summer. The best man was not married at the time of the wedding but is now. Should his wife sit with him and wedding party, or should she be left out in the crowd?

I really enjoy your helpful hints. Please print this in the paper as it may help someone else. I have often wondered about things and found the answer in your column. — A FAITHFUL READER.

DEAR FAITHFUL: She sits with him. This time the party is for fun. He has no official duties which would separate them. And he wants to share his friends and his fun with his favorite partner.

Confidential to FORTYISH: You've hit the doldrums. You see youth vanishing and you worry as to whether you can hold your husband's love. It complicates things when he shows symptoms of the same uncertainty. When he is gallant to other women and wants you to run after him a little bit this is his way of asking for reassurance that he is still worth running after.

Build up his ego with praise and affection. Build up your own by prettying up. Love, the lifetime kind, is well worth it.

MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH PETER HARVEY

Harvey — Genereaux

Rev. A. J. Appleton officiated at the wedding ceremony in St. Peter's rectory, Trenton, when Mary Patricia Genereaux, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Genereaux, Belleville R.R. 3 was united in marriage to Joseph Peter Harvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Harvey, Pringle Drive.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a waltz-length gown of pure white silk with short leaves and long matching mitts. The bodice was enhanced with a scooped neckline and adorned with lace appliques with similar appliques adorning the full fold hooped skirt. An elbow-length veil flowed from a double crown of seed pearls. She carried a white Bible crested with pink roses.

Mrs. Lyle Thompson, sister of the bride was matron of honor and wore a street-length dress of blue chiffon over taffeta with short sleeves and scooped neckline with bell shaped skirt. A matching head piece completed her ensemble and she carried a bouquet of white 'mums and red roses.

Mr. Leonard Harvey, brother of the bridegroom was groomsman.

For the reception at Johnny's Restaurant, Belleville where dinner was served to approximately 50 guests, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a beige lace over taffeta sheath with matching jacket, beige and brown accessories and a corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a gold brocade viscose dress, gold velvet hat, brown accessories and a corsage of bronze 'mums.

The bride donned a powder blue long sleeved A-line dress blue coat with grey trim, black accessories and a corsage of pink roses for the honeymoon trip to points east.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey will reside at Belleville R.R. 3.

Susanna's Family Fare

FOR FRIENDSHIP'S SAKE

Dear Susanna: Keep that used 1965 day to day calendar or diary in a handy spot where it can be referred to for at least another year.

A few or even ten months from now you may be planning a large cocktal party or an at home, and you will probably be greatly surprised when you look back, at the number of informal invitations you received during the previous year that you have completely forgotten about.

You may have thoroughly enjoyed yourself and been grateful at the time to be invited — but because you haven't had occasion to see these people since, you would have missed this ideal opportunity of inviting them back. — Mr. and Mrs. [illegible]y.

You may also find a message about whom not to invite! — SUSANNA

PERFECT PANCAKES

Dear Susanna: Want to treat the family to a really scrumptious breakfast of pancakes and sausages tomorrow?

Add a teaspoonful of syrup for each cup of flour used in makng the batter. Gives the pancakes an absolutely delicious flavor and they brown so nicely. — Mrs. G. Renfrew.

ANCHOR A - WEIGHT!

Dear Susanna: Install a row of metal weights — or even better, a row of magnets along the bottom hem of your stall shower curtain if you are having trouble with it swishing into the shower spray, instead of staying protectively in place. — George L.

(If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems—write to Susanna, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope when requesting pamphlets.)

Hardware Man Says Firm Really Charity

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Hardware stores should be subsidized by the Community Chest because they are non-profit organizations that perform a vital community service. I know because I own one.

Every day dozens of people come in and ask for "just one washer" or a couple of bolts for the baby's high chair." They ask for a few nails or a couple of picture hooks and are sure I have them lying around in the odds and ends drawer.

You'd be surprised how many people come in to borrow things they should own — things like hammers, screw drivers, step ladders, and monkey wrenches. They say they are moving out and that they only need these items for "half an hour."

Please, Ann, print this letter. Millions of people learn from your column and it would help us hardware store folks a lot if the public learned something about this subject. — DAILY READER.

DEAR DAILY: The hardware store is the nearest thing to the old cracker barrel family style grocery store left in American.

People think of the small independent hardware dealer as a friend. They forget he's in business. So, folks — this is to remind you that your Uncle Joe may be a doll of a guy but he's gotta make a living, so buy something from him. Will you please?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have six children from three years of age to 15 years of age. They are growing up without a father. No, my husband is not dead, and we are not divorced, but we might as well be for all the help I get from him.

It is hard to believe that a man would pay more attention to his dog than he does to his own kids but that's the way it is at our house. My husband walks the dog every night and takes him hunting, but he never takes his kids any place.

My 15-year-old son is 6' 1" and I have to stand on a chair to hit him. When I tell his father to discipline the boy he says, "When I come home from work I want peace and quiet. I don't want to punish the kids for things they did when I wasn't even there."

Can you say something so my husband will see that he is not living up to his responsibilities? He thinks he is a good father because he pays the bills and doesn't run around all night. I need your help. — MARRIED WIDOW.

DEAR MARRIED: There is more to being a father than biology. Men who ignore their children not only fail them but they cheat themselves. In later life when your husband would like a little attention from his children they will ignore him.

Be fair but firm with your children and do your best without the help you should be getting. If it's any comfort I can tell you are not alone living with your problem.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My son and his wife are very much in love but they can't seem to get along. Last year Melvin left his wife and came home six times. After a few days they make up and he goes back to her.

Melvin is spoiled but I am the one who spoiled him, which is why I let him come home whenever he feels like it. I want their marriage to work, Ann. What should I do? — MOTHER WHO CAN'T SAY NO.

DEAR MOTHER: Stop making it so convenient for Melvin to flee from his responsibilities. If he didn't have mama to run to he'd stay home and solve his problems like a man.

Open Door Policy for married children is one reason for the high divorce rate. Parents who provide an escape hatch for their kids do them no favor.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Women Said Confused by Terms Used

MONTREAL (CP)—Do you know the difference between a home economist and a dietitian, or how they differ again from the nutritionist?

The Canadian Sugar Institute, with headquarters here, felt most women were confused about the meaning of the three terms, and asked a member of the Canadian Home Economics Association to explain them.

The member explained that "home economics" is a general term, while "dietitian" and "nutritionist" are specialized terms. The following definitions of the terms were given:

A home economist is a person who holds a university degree in home economics and applies this knowledge in the fields of education, dietetics, nutrition, interior decorating, family living, business, communications or research.

She may therefore be a homemaker, a food editor, a food technologist, dietitian or nutritionist. She or he may work in food companies, hospitals, utility companies, universities, welfare agencies, in government departments of health and welfare or agriculture or with the armed forces.

A dietitian is a specialized home economist whose main concern is the actual preparation of food for well or sick people. The feeding of large numbers of persons is their specialty.

The nutritionist is an educationist. Nutritionists inform people what should be eaten for balanced diets, and explain the chemistry of food and its workings in the body. They promote good health through good eating.

U.C.W. Meetings

MARSH HILL U.C.W.

MARSH HILL — The February meeting of Marsh Hill United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Albert Clare. Before the meeting a pot-luck supper was enjoyed by the members.

Mrs. Ivan Clare, president, opened the meeting and called on Mrs. Gerald Swan of Gilead to preside over the worship service and program.

The theme of the worship service was, "Preparing ourselves to work in the Master's Vineyard," with Mrs. Harold Detlor reading the Scripture.

Mrs. Ivan Clare sang a solo and readings were given by Mrs. Harry Coulter, Mrs. Leslie Finkle and Mrs. Albert Clare.

Mrs. Swan spoke on the subject, "Where is the church?" In this unsettled world the redemptive love of our Lord remains the same, she said. The challenge of world missions is brotherhood. The hunger of the world is for food and also for the word of God.

The members reported having made three house calls and three hospital visits and sending 34 cards and six letters.

The members were reminded of the World's Day of Prayer to be held Feb. 25 in Foxboro Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Ivan Clare, delegate to Belleville Presbyterial annual meeting gave her report.

CHRIST CHURCH PARISH GUILD

The regular meeting of Christ Church Parish Guild was held on Tuesday afternoon in the parish hall. Mrs. J. M. Cousins, president, welcomed the large gathering and took charge of the business portion of the meeting.

A large amount of correspondence was read, including letters from the Anglican Women's Training College, from the Lord Bishop, and from several absent members and shut-in parishioners. From St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill came an invitation for members to attend a one day retreat or "quiet day" on February 26th. The treasurer's report showed a large balance, much of which will be used this year for renovations at the rectory. Members were asked to volunteer their services at the Cancer clinic on Monday next at two p.m.

Considerable discussion took place regarding the rectory renovations and also regarding replacement of various items in the church kitchen. A "clean-up brigade" will house clean the brigade' 'will houseclean the June 8th will be the date for the Guild's annual Blossom Tea and Sale and members were urged to begin working for this big event.

Mrs. Earl Hickey presented the devotional for the day, taking for her theme "Our New World - Is it worth the cost?"

The Guild members will attend Corporate Communion on Ash Wednesday as a fitting beginning for Lent. The March meeting will take the form of an auction sale.

Tea was served by Mrs. Ostrom and Mrs. Ashton, hostesses for the afternoon.

New Gymnastic Exercises Emphasize Grace, Rhythm

MONTREAL (CP) — If physical education instructor Gisele Zahradnitzki has her way, no more young girls will develop square shoulders and muscled legs in gymnastic classes.

Mrs. Zahradnitzki, a Hungarian who came to Canada with her Austrian husband seven years ago, is an enthusiastic proponent of a gymnastic exercise which emphasizes rhythm and grace along with co-ordination.

She introduced it at her school in suburban Rosemount this year, but the exercise has been included in the curriculum of German schools for 30 years.

"It was developed by a German couple, Hendrik and Santa Medau, and it is called the Medau system," she explained in an interview.

Mrs. Zahradnitzki studied it while in school and has since taken two additional courses—one under Mrs. Medau and the other with one of her representatives.

Briefly, the Medau system is a rhythmic exercise. It uses a specially designed ball that is too large to grasp in one hand and so has to be controlled by balance; hoops that are twisted and turned to encourage stretching movements; and clubs, which help to give the pupil a feeling for the large "whole body swing" in which every muscle plays its part harmoniously.

TECHNIQUES CHALLENGE

"There are hundreds of movements, all done to music especially composed by Mr. Medau," she said. "It is terribly challenging, much more so than jumping over a box or hanging from bars.

"Several basic movements must be mastered first—walking, running, feathering (bouncing), and moving from right to left."

It is not until one sees a demonstration of the system, however, that one realizes how difficult the techniques are. Three of her students, each with a figure like a ballet dancer, twisted and turned in what looked like impossible gyrations, all the while looking graceful as swans.

Mary Ann, a student who teaches folk-dance, stressed the creativity of the exercise: "You can make up variations as you go along."

The rhythm appealed most to Lillian. And Diane praised the femininity of it. "I used to be clumsy and not know what to do with my hands—now I'm graceful as can be," she laughed as she glided across the room.

At present, Mrs. Zahradnitzki's school is the only one under the jurisdiction of the English-Catholic school board to use the system. A few Protestant schools have adopted it, and it is quite popular in the United States and other parts of the world, Mrs. Zahradnitzki said.

"There aren't enough physical education instructors these days, she said. "We hope to encourage more young people to go into it."

Interesting Book Subject At Study Guild Meet

A recent meeting of the Belleville Women's Study Guild held at the home of Mrs. M. P. Buck, Chatham street, attracted a large attendance of members to enjoy a presentation by Mrs. D. J. Gill and Mrs. E. A. Orr, of Dr. John A. Schlinder's book, "How to Live 365 Days a Year".

Guild president, Mrs. R. H. Roulet, welcomed members to this first meeting of the year, and expressed the pleasure of members felt to once again have Mrs. Usher with them, as well as a new member, Mrs. W. G. Monk. Mrs. H. C. Seldon suggested that nylon stockings for Korea and used stamps for lepers be collected within the group ,and this idea was enthusiastically received. Mrs. Seldon undertook to look after this project.

Mrs. S. C. Else took the worship service with the theme "Christian living 365 days a year", underlining the Christian responsibility of stewardship.

Mrs. Gill began the evening's presentation by echoing Dr. Schlinder's question — "How were your last 365 days?" Were they a series of gloriously alive moments, or were you, much of the time, worried, frustrated and perturbed? Mrs. Gill presented the first half of the book, dealing with the theme, "How your emotions make you ill". A great majority of people, it would seem, are never really happy, or courageous, or enthusiastic. As a result of this unhappiness and muddling through, many people endure physical symptoms which are really emotionally induced illnesses. Virtually everyone suffers emotionally induced illness at one time or another — it is nothing to be ashamed of, or to feel guilty about — but if one can recognize these illnesses for what they are. and change the habits which help produce them, then one will be on the way to a fuller, happier living.

Dr. Hans Selye, of Montreal, pioneered experiments on the results of stress on animals, and applied the knowledge gained to human reaction to stress, and this work has been followed up by many people since. While stressing emotions can make people actually ill, healthy emotions are the greatest power for good health.

Fortunate is the person of a a cheerful disposition and the ability to meet a wide variety of situations with good emotions. This is maturity, and it is something that can be learned. It is an exhilarating experience to rid oneself of stress and substitute a healthy outlook for an unhealthy one. A sense of humor, a calm outlook, pleasure experienced for simple things, hobbies, the enjoyment of work, can all contribute to physical and emotional health.

Mrs. Orr presented the second half of the book, which deals with "How to cure your emotionally induced illness". The attaining of maturity is a big step in the right direction. A determination to remain calm, cheerful and pleasant, especially in family situations, is an effective beginning of mature happiness for all family members, and one can be of great help to another. The reader is advised to avoid always watching for " a knock in your motor", to learn to meet problems with decision, to be satisfied with situations that cannot be changed, to plan pleasant activities for the future, while striving to make the present moment a success.

The importance of the family as a centre of happy living and mutual support for maturity and good emotional health is vital. Sexual maturity in marriage is dependent on development of these qualities. Stresses resulting from employment can be counteracted by "Sneaking enjoyment in through the back door"; and the stresses felt by the older person will be balanced out for the good by healthy emotional attitudes learned in youth, or if it is too late for this, by a cheerful, flexible, outward-looking attitude which can be adopted even when one is aged.

The six basic psychological needs — affection, security, creative expression, recognition, new experience and self-esteem, can all be acquired — often by giving rather than expecting to be given, and sometimes by a simple "get-up-and-go". Each person must make the choice — to limp through year after year of troubled misery — or to stride along with calmness, determination and courage.

The latter course seemed much the better, and not so very difficult after the book's understanding and humorous presentation by Mrs. Orr, and Mrs. Gill, and the hour of discussion and sharing of experiences which followed, over a cup of, tea and refreshments served by the hostesses for the evening — Mrs. J. Cochrane and Mrs. N. J. Meldrum.

Flying Bank Finances Ranches On Trackless Colombian Plains

By CANADIAN PRESS CORRESPONDENT

BOGOTA, Colombia (CP) — Capt. Fabio Ramirez has unusual landing instructions as an air force transport pilot:

Don't break the bank.

The instructions make sense. He flies a bank—the recently-inaugurated Aerobanco, an offshoot of the Bank of Bogota.

Aerobanco is bringing banking facilities to a 270,000-square-mile area of trackless cattle plains and jungle east of the Colombian Andes.

The vast territory, comprising 56.6 per cent of the land area of this country, but home to only 2.6 per cent of its 18,000,000 population, has been described by President Jorge Mejia Salazar of the Bank of Bogota as "economically still in the 18th century."

Until a few months ago it was terra incognita to bankers.

In a bucket-seat C-47 leased from the transport arm of the Colombian Air Force, Aerobanco now lands once a week at each of 10 far-flung cowtowns on the horizon-to-horizon llanos, as the plains are termed in Spanish.

The bank proper consists of a leather case about 12 by 12 by 18 inches, with a pouch on the end for a pistol.

KEEP FORTUNES HIDDEN

Before each day's flying the aeroteller loads the case with the account records of every client in the towns to be visited that day, all documents necessary for opening accounts, plus chequebooks and cash sufficient to meet anticipated demands.

Coaxing llaneros, as the riders of the unfenced plains are called, into the chequebook era is a multifaceted task.

One facet: the schoolteacher in several lonely llano towns is conducting after-hours adult classes in name-writing.

The Aerobanco has had several cases of clients coming to deposit 20,000 pesos or more yet scarcely able to fashion their signature on the documents. (Official rate for the peso is nine to the United States dollar. Free rate is about 18.50.)

A prime incentive for the Aerobanco is the number of hoards of up to 500,000 pesos in cash which not a few llaneros are known to have stashed away in a trunk on their hacienda, where distances are not measured in miles but in horseback-days.

The Aerobanco wants to get this money back into national circulation.

In addition to all orthodox banking services, Aerobanco will fetch and carry for its clients. This includes such chores as buying a spare part for a piece of farm machinery in Bogota, and delivering it on the next weekly flight; or taking out a newspaper subscription, or providing the services of an agronomist or veterinarian.

HONESTY PREVAILS

The llaneros are still pretty much in the 18th century in their herd and crop techniques, as well as their banking.

One service offered by Aerobanco remains conspicuously ignored—the joint account.

The llanos remain, as they always have been, a man's country.

If and when the Aerobanco prices loose those 500,000-peso nesteggs it will not be because their hacienda owners feel apprehensive.

Provided you can accept cattle rustling as a peccadillo rather than a misdeed, llaneros have a name for honesty compared to which the noblest TV western hero shapes up as a card-sharp.

The whereabouts of several of the 500,000-peso fortunes has long been common knowledge. No robber has tried to touch them.

Life on the llanos give singular aspects to the new banking operator.

Cattlemen and their cowboys ride together, sharing work and weather, the same cowponies and the same range rig—sandalled feet in conquisador-pattern stirrups, pants rolled pirate-high on the calf, open shirt, a black stetson and often a black gunbelt and packed holster.

When such a range-dusty group canters up to the table where the aeroteller has set his case there is no way for a stranger to tell who has the big deposit wadded in his belt and who are the cowboys with no more business in mind than to tether their horses outside the bar.

OPERATES IN BAR

In Orocue, on the River Meta, such divergence of purpose does not split the party.

The Aerobanco sets up shop in a river-front bar.

Big city bankers striving in their marble halls for a more relaxed image to coax new clients have a lot to learn from Orocue.

Though Aerobanco's llanos operation started only in late October, before Christmas cheques were making their appearance in cattle-buying negotiations which for centuries had been based on barter, cash or a llanero's word.

And Aerobanco had collected nearly 3,000,000 pesos in deposits.

Now the service is being expanded to the jungle region which extends from the edge of the llanos to the Amazon.

Cattle observe no weekend. Neither does the flying bank.

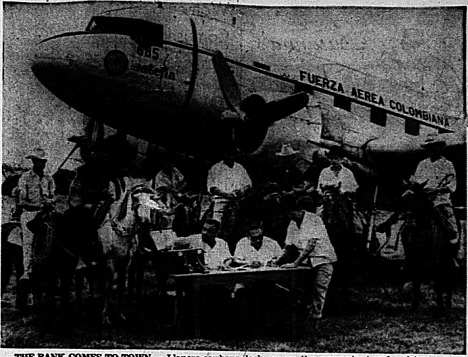
In Cravo Norte, a sun-scorched cluster of about 50 buildings which lacks even a road leading out of town, the aeroteller can be found Sundays. He does business amid the sacks of coffee and corn, and the dangling bridles, in the riverfront general store.

If the day's schedule has involved an early takeoff, his assistant manager may be found waist-deep in the river out front, shaving.

Nor does Aerobanco open for business with the hushed parting of brassbound portals. Ramirez sets the mangoes to shaking with a treetop pass over town, and the bank is open to its clients in just the time it takes him to circle and alight on the adjacent llanos.

Aerobanco is unusual in another way.

Is there another bank whose success depend on the staff taking off with the money?



THE BANK COMES TO TOWN — Llanero cowboys look on as the accountant and assistant manager sign up a new client for Columbia's unique flying bank. The aircraft brings weekly banking service scattered towns in Colombia's vast inland cattle plains. The llanero on horseback immediately below the propellor spinner startled the aerobankers by fishing out a wad of 20,000 pesos for deposit. (CP Photo)

Income Tax Tips

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By D. W. DAVIES C.A.,

STANDARD DEDUCTION OF $100

Every taxpayer may deduct $100 from the net income when he makes no claim for charitable donations or medical expenses. The taxpayer should use whatever gives the greater deduction. If he has some medical expenses but no donations, and the net medical expense after the deduction of 3 per cent of his income is less than the $100, he should then claim the standard deduction of $100 and not the medical expenses. You cannot claim both.

I still find taxpayers who want to argue that the $100 applies to both donations and medical expenses. They will insist on claiming the $100 for medical expenses, when their church donations claimed exceed that amount. The taxpayer can make any claim he likes on his return but he should be aware of the fact that the Income Tax Department is the arbiter, and the assessor will delete any claim that is not in order.

If the taxpayer has not resided in Canada for the full 12 months of the taxation year, he may only claim that portion of the standard deduction of $100 that applies to his period of residence. The same applies when a taxpayer is leaving Canada for permanent residence in another country.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: My church donations are $80 and my union dues $60, what can I claim?

Answer: Claim $160, i.e. the standard deduction of $100 plus your union dues of $60.

Question 2: My total medical expenses are $140 but after deducting the 3 percent, I have nothing left. If I take the standard deduction of $100, can I use the medical receipts next year?

Answer: Medical expenses may be claimed for any 12 month period ending in the taxation year. You will have to determine if you have a claim next year.

Anglo-Soviet Summit Meet Will Not Produce Solution

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin appears to be playing a special game of his own in the Viet Nam war, dimming hope that the Anglo-Soviet summit meeting, to open in Moscow Feb. 21, can produce any solution to a crisis that has split the West and turned the fires of public criticism against President Johnson.

Kosygin frequently has been portrayed by knowledgeable Western diplomats as a quiet technician, who privately wants to see the Viet Nam war ended in a way that would not antagonize North Viet Nam or bring the wrath of China on his head.

Thus it would seem that Prime Minister Wilson would have grounds for hope that his first summit with Kosygin might open some fresh fields for harvest. Britain and the Soviet Union are co-chairmen of the 1954 Geneva conference on an Indochina settlement.

SEE LITTLE JOY

But the summit, as seen from London, is without vision or joy. Wilson intends to climb gently and prod softly, thankful that the meeting can take place at all, in view of the Viet Nam paralysis, and aware that Kosygin has no intention at this stage to pressure Hanoi into any political compromise.

Moscow's main intentions appears to be one of trying to entice Hanoi away from Peking's arms, more because of Soviet ambitions to extend its influence in Asia than to end the conflict with the United States.

To the exxtent that the U.S. exhausts its strength in the Vietnamese jungles and rice paddies and splits its political structure at home, the American military threat to Moscow will be reduced.

FEAR ESCALATION

The only major danger for the Soviet Union is that the U.S., angered by its losses and its frustration, may gradually enlarge the conflict into a massive war that could bring a nuclear engagement into play.

Thus the Soviet Union might find it profitable to dampen the struggle when it gets a bit out of hand, but allow it to continue within acceptable geographic limits.

Wilson's support of Johnson's Viet Nam policies gives Kosygin ground for challenging Britain's objectivity. The Wilson statement that he would not support any extension of American bombing to Hanoi and Haiphong would seem at first a slight offering to Moscow, but it has been ignored.

Moscow has adopted an air of passive resistance as though saying that under the circumstances Wilson should be thankful that Kosygin is willing to see him at all, and to expect nothing more.

SPORT SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

A consensus of telephone calls and many conversations with well-known hockey men of the city indicates that the National Hockey League gubernatorial "birds in a gilded cage" sold Vancouver "down the river".

Practically all agreed with Jim Kearney of the Vancouver Sun who wrote, "Vancouver drew a blank from a stacked deck".

Mammon, it would appear has cast a sinister yellowish glow over sport in many phases. Literally, it has entered the greatest golden era since Adam committed the first error and was tossed out of Eden Gardens.

Television, that great lover of shekels, give and take, has espoused professional sport. It announced the engagement back in 1956 when CBS paid the Green Bay Packers $35,000 for a year's rights to their games.

The groom's wedding present to the football bride was made in 1962-63 with the gift of $9,300,000 for a two-year contract. The loving hubby upped this to $28,200.00 for 1964 and 1965 and capped it with the 1966-67 gift of $37,600,000.

Mammon's golden aura reached out and encompassed star players of college football teams. Bonuses suddenly attained gigantic proportions. The football world gasped when the story broke that Johnny Natham received a $400,000 gift. It reeled last year with the word that Don Anderson had turned down an $880,090 offer for a mere pittance of $400,000.

Now, it is stated in some quarters, the golden tentacles of the television octupus has encircled the already gilded cage of the National Hockey League powers-that-be.

NHL president Clarence Campbell frankly admits that a U.S. television network contract was the goal of the league.

"Of course" he said "television is the new box office for every sport. In the NHL we are in a tighter strait jacket than most sports because we can't sell more tickets. Last year we played to 93 per cent of capacity in the league's six cities. That leaves us with a problem of where to get additional revenue. Expansion is not going to sell more tickets because we do not have more tickets to sell."

"I have yet to hear" said one hockey man with whom I spoke "of the possibility of the NHL going broke. Salaries have doubled and tripled during the last few years (with no increase in arena revenue). Bonuses were upped. Contributions were made to the new pension plan. All this was done without benefit of television revenue."

"I do not like the looks of things" said another. "That crack "Sold To America" may have more truth in it than some people think. Vancouver was given the rude heave-ho. St. Louis has not got an arena and was given a franchise on the strength of it getting one. Of course the fact that Norris of the Red Wings and Weiss of Chicago own the only building which could be converted into an area, had nothing to do with the granting of the franchise."

"To the laymen," ventured another, "the coast set-up of Los Angeles, San Francisco and Vancouver appeared to be the proper thing out that way. But here again the ogre of TV raises its head. To me it looks like the American networks played the fiddle and the NHL danced. Sponsors that pay $51,000 for minute commercials must have some say in the matter. They know where the rating potentials are, and are in a position to do some dictating."

"What I'm concerned about" said another telephone talker, "is how is this going to affect the NHL as far as Canada is concerned? It is already rumored the NHL may move its headquarters to New York City. Under the new setup Americans sitting on the board of governors hold a 10-2 majority vote potential. This may sound crazy but some people I have talked with seem to think that within ten or fifteen years the NHL will be an all-American affair wih the Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens franchise moved south of the border to satisfy the gold-greed of those in the seats of the mighty."

Hamilton Red Wings

Join Intercounty League

WATERLOO (CP)—The Inter-County Senior Baseball League will be strengthened in season by the addition of milton Red Wings, reigning senior champions of the Ontario Baseball Association.

The Wings, who played last year in the Halton County League, were officially admitted to the inter-county circuit at a league meeting here Wednesday night.

The addition of Hamilton increases the composition of the league to eight teams consisting of Kitchener-Waterloo, Guelph, Galt, Stratford, Brantford, London and Listowel.

The executive decided on a 28-game schedule for each team with six clubs qualifying for playoff competition. Target opening date is May 28.

The league decided to limit each club to three imports with the exception of Listowel, which ll be allowed four. However, ario-born players from outde the inter-county boundaries will no longer be classed as imports.

BAUGH JOINS LIONS

DETROIT (AP) — Sammy Baugh, one of professional football's great passers, joined Detroit lions of the National Football league as backfield coach Thursday and indicated one of his first aims will be to beef up the team's running attack.

Hull May Miss Vital Game

Bobby Hull may be out of the Black Hawks lineup against Montreal tomorrow night.

He is nursing a swollen hand injured in a fight Wednesday night with Detroit's Gary Bergman.

"We won't know until the swelling goes down if he'll be able to play or not says Chicago coach Billy Reay.

"They say the chance is 50-50" says publicity man Don Murphy.

An X-ray of the injury showed no bones broken, but Hull will stay off skates until tomorrow night.

The injury is on the knuckles of his right hand and they had started to swell before he left the stadium Wednesday night.

Bruins Finally Reach Street Level

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a long, hard climb for Boston Bruins, but they finally made it out of the National Hockey League cellar.

The Bruins haven't won a championship by any means. In fact, they haven't even clinched a playoff spot. But at least they can look back and see another team behind them instead of looking back and seeing nothing.

Eddie Johnston Thursday night registered his first shutout of the season as Boston blanked Montreal Canadiens 2-0 in one of two scheduled games.

Detroit Red Wings whipped New York Rangers 6-2 in the other game, allowing the Bruins to move one point ahead of the last-place Rangers.

ED JOHNSTON

Detroit's victory moved them back into a first-place tie with idle Chicago Black Hawks.

ED's 11TH SHUTOUT

Boston, last for the last five years, received some standout netminding from Johnston as he kicked out 30 shots for his 11th NHL shutout.

The closest the Canadiens came to scoring was in the third period when a shot rolled along the pipe at the top of the net while Johnston lay flat on his back.

On another occasion with Johnston lying on the ice, Montreal had three rebound tries but Johnston kicked out two and defenceman Al Langlois stopped the third.

Boston started rolling to its 13th victory of the year when Johnny Bucyk finished off a two-on-one rush at 15:48 of the first period.

The Bruins couldn't score again until 13:42 of the third period when Bob Dillabough grabbed a rebound off the boards and pushed it under the pads of sprawled Montreal goalie Lorne Worsley.

Worsley made two spectacular saves in the third period—one a deflected slap shot from the point and another on a screened rebound try by Ron Stewart.

JUST ONE PENALTY

The game was marked by just one penalty, called on Beliveau at 1:21 of the first period for cross-checking.

Detroit scored two goals in each period to defeat the Rangers.

Ron Murphy scored a power play goal at 12:45 of the third period and Bryan Watson notched another Detroit goal 30 seconds later to cap the Red Wings' scoring.

Norm Ullman and Gordie Howe scored Detroit's first period markers while Alex Delvecchio and Floyd Smith scored in the middle period.

Ullman's goal, his 25th of the season, was his first in 10 games.

Vic Hadfield scored for New York late in the first period and Rod Seiling scored the second Ranger goal with less than five minutes remaining in the game.

Rookie defenceman Bert Marshall set up three of Detroit's goals, including Delvecchio's winner at the 21-second mark of the second period.

Even Dief, Pearson Agree

Parliament Blasts NHL Action

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Perhaps the most withering comment on the National Hockey League's all-American expansion program came from Speaker Lucien Lamoureux when the matter was raised Thursday in the House of Commons.

He suggested that the House should get on to more important business.

In and out of the Commons, there were plenty of Canadian voices raised in condemnation of the NHL for denying Vancouver a franchise in its new six-team division. But the Speaker was almost alone in labelling the issue as unimportant.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker drew applause from all sections of the House when he said Vancouver's exclusion would have "a detrimental effect on young Canadians."

Robert Prittie, a New Democrat from the Vancouver-area constituency of Burnaby-Richmond, asked the government to launch an inquiry under the Combines Act. Creditiste Gilles Gregoire, noting the NHL had also ruled out Quebec City as a new member, sought some kind of remedial legislation.

DECLINED INVITATION

Prime Minister Pearson deplored the league's failure to include Canadian representation in its new division, scheduled to begin operating in the 1967-68 season, but declined the MPs' invitation to take governmental action.

"I have a good many problems facing me," he said. "I hope I don't have to take on those of the NHL."

Meanwhile, the post-mortems continued to roll in from participants in the NHL's three-day expansion meeting in New York city that resulted in the award of franchises Wednesday to Los Angeles, St. Louis, San Francisco - Oakland, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

NHL President Clarence Campbell said in Montreal that the Vancouver bid "just wasn't good enough."

"We gave them plenty of time to get ready but far better offers showed up."

Two NHL governors, David Molson, president of Montreal Canadiens, and Bill Jennings, owner of New York Rangers, said they were disappointed that oilman Frank McMahon and newspaper publisher Max Bell were not represented in the Vancouver group. Cyrus McLean was the Vancouver spokesman at the meeting.

DENIES CHARGES

Stafford Smythe, president of Toronto Maple Leafs, who was accused by some Vancouver sources of playing a major part in frustrating the city's NHL bid, denied responsibility.

"I didn't even open my mouth," he said. "The city wasn't even mentioned when we got around to discussing the cities that should come in."

Smythe said the Vancouver group had not acted on the governors' suggestion of a merger with the rival group headed by McMahon and Bell, had failed to guarantee that a rink would be available and represented the city with the smallest population of all the applicants.

"We wanted a Canadian entry in the league," the Toronto president added. "Right now, American clubs can outvote us 4 to 2. Now it will be 10 to 2. Don't you think we would have preferred a Canadian club?"

Toronto broadcaster Foster Hewitt, who was associated with the Vancouver bid, said it appeared to have been doomed from the start. The governors "moved so fast you'd have to think they knew where they were going before the meeting opened.

"I thought Mr. McLean stated our case well," he continued. "They asked us very few questons. . . . Now when I look back on the situation, maybe questions weren't necessary because our chances were so poor."

Vancouver Spurn Draws Writers' Fire

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

"The spurning of Vancouver has touched off a wave of resentment in British Columbia of almost Quebecian intensity," was the comment of one sports columnist writing on the National Hockey League's decision to expand to 12 teams from six.

Bob Pennington of the Toronto Telegram made the statement and added:

They (British Columbians) are saying the National Hockey League has put the American dollar first and Canada second. This resentment is so deep it could cause disruption in other sports.

Vancouver had every right to expect to be in a special position. The question is why early NHL encouragement for this city was not followed through.

Comments by other sports writers included:

Dick Beddoes, Toronto Globe and Mail: Expansion was achieved, apparently against the dragging and kicking of James D. Norris, co-owner of Chicago Black Hawks.

"Okay, Norris said finally. I'll go along. But keep St. Louis open for a franchise.'

That was the tip, if one were needed, that the NHL still has the look of a Norris house league.

One wonders what chance St. Louis would have had if big Jim wasn't calling the tune.

Hal Pawson, Edmonton Journal: The decision proved NHL disregard for Canada in the unbelievable treatment of Vancouver which had for years been assured it would become Canada's third NHL city.

The decision is a final, harsh reminder that Canada's game is no longer Canada's, that it has been Sold, America.

The addition of six major teams is great for boys who want, and can make, a career in hockey. The NHL controls every boy in Canadian hockey yet little of this vast development system is paid for by the NHL.

Hal Walker, Calgary Herald: The decision by the National Hockey League to embrace six United States cities has a happy omen for scores of hockey players now in the minor leagues or down on the junior farm. This means that a lot of skaters who had little or no chance of making the current six-team NHL will be absorbed by the new teams and their salaries will be at major league level. Despite the NHL's insistence that spreading hockey players over 12 teams will not result in a watered down product, you have to believe that it will. However, baseball in its constant carpet-bagging and expansion lived through a similar period.

Don Pilling, Lethbridge Herald: You can chalk down cold, hard business logic as the key to the Vancouver rejection. Television is the big thing in the expansion program and the big money is in the United States, not Canada, and in particular, not Vancouver.

It is inevitable that the entire setup will be dominated by American interests. And if the almighty dollar is to be the dictating force, then let's get the job done.

Why not move the Toronto and Montreal franchises to Miami and Houston, or some other such places, and be done with it? After all, who cares about Canadian hockey fans, whether they be in Vancouver or Oxbow, Sask?

Bob Briscoe, Moose Jaw Times - Herald: Unfortunately, for the people of British Columbia, Vancouver and even Western Canada, the National Hockey League is business and big business. It appears as though the main reason for the exclusion of Vancouver from the expansion plan is lack of a lucrative television territory. But it's all in the game. There were more bidders than franchise available and somebody had to lose.

Dink Carroll, Montreal Gazette: The calibre of play in the NHL will undoubtedly suffer for a time, but with twice as many jobs available more youngsters may decide to make hockey a career.

Some of them are sure to develop into what is known in the trade as National Leaguers and, even if the calibre of play isn't up to the present standard for a while, it still will be the best there is.

Red Fisher, Montreal Star: The Knox brothers (Seymour and Northrop, who were seeking a franchise in Buffalo), who are worth millions and who can produce a 16,000-seat arena for professional hockey were turned down by the NHL owners.

If you are wondering how something like this is allowed to happen, you should be told that the City of St. Louis has a hockey arena and the owners of that arena are Jim Norris and Arthur Wirtz. The city of St. Louis, which did not apply for a franchise, was granted one because Jim Norris and Arthur Wirtz own Chicago Black Hawks and if somebody in St. Louis wants the franchise, all they have to do is buy the hockey arena from Jim Norris and Arthur Wirtz.

It's too bad Jim Norris and Arthur Wirtz don't own the hockey arena in Buffalo, because if they did, the Knox brothers would have their franchise.

Marcel Desjardins, Montreal La Presse: What crippled Vancouver's chances was the friction between the various groups who fought over the franchise, which led to the withdrawal of those best able to finance such a project."

The sportsmen of this Canadian city had been invited for a long time to unite their efforts in a common cause. Apparently, there were certain rivalries.

If those who were behind the Buffalo bid had represented Vancouver, it would have been a shoo-in, some people tell us. Some see also the influence of Toronto Maple Leafs, but this is only speculation.

Bill Westwick, Ottawa Journal: There won't be any letters from Quebec on this hockey situation. Any provincial letters of protest now may be forthcoming from British Columbia where Vancouver folks feel they've been handed the queen of spades.

It still will be the National Hockey League, but a rather far cry from what impelled the Canadian organizers of the world's leading hockey circuit to give it this name back in 1917.

Jack Kinsella, Ottawa Citizen: The National Hockey League, for more than four decades the absolute master of its own house, has relinquished authority to a servant. No matter how vigorously they may deny it, the NHL has sold its soul to television in exchange for the silver of expediency.

There is little question in my mind that the location of the six new franchises was dictated by the television networks, or perhaps one in particular, and that is why certain applicants and certain cities had less chance of entering the charmed circle than Ottawa has of settling the Viet Nam crisis.

Jacques Revelin, sports editor of Quebec L'Action: It was "incredible" that Vancouver will be outside the framework of the new section of the NHL.

Of 12 major clubs playing the national sport of Canadians, 10 will therefore be representing American cities. Such an annexation of a sports inheritance is pure colonialism being accomplished under the empire of the dollar, with revolting contempt for the people of a country from which one will remove its best athletes.

To sell oneself to others in this way is true prostitution.

Roland Sabourin, Quebec L'Evenement: People have been saying for years that the Norris family plays too big a role in the NHL.

This influence is even more evident in the decision made yesterday.

Claude Larochelle, Quebec Le Soleil: Vancouver was rudely refused and the decisions were made before the meeting in New York. One also asks what role Stafford Smythe could have played in refusing the franchise to this Canadian city. The magnates were looking for United States territory where the invasion of hockey by television will assure extraordinary revenues.

Denny Boyd, Vancouver Sun: You remember that when he (Stafford Smythe) was out here looking for a land grab, he was as nice and sugary as a marshmallow? Said Vancouver was a genuine big-league town and if we would just slip the deed for that land, everything would be peachy?

Suddenly you feel like the whole two years we have been hoping for a big league franchise was nothing but a put-on and the NHL really never did intend to pass us the gravy boat.

Clancy Loranger, Vancouver Province: The NHL governors obviously knew what they wanted and you could have marched 7,600 trombones through the hotel lobby and they wouldn't have twitched. They wanted six cities that would make up a cosy television package and they got that with two cities in the East, two in the Midwest and two on the West Coast. As Smythe, the friendly hatchetman, pointed out, Vancouver would contribute nothing to the TV setup—the market here is already fully exploited with games from Toronto and Montreal.

Jim Kearney, Vancouver Sun: It's as much the Norris house league as ever it was. Expansion has proven that. It is quite obvious now that the NHL owners started to discount Vancouver on the day that Frank McMahon - Max Bell group dropped out of competition to buy the (Vancouver) Canucks. McMahon and Bell are the guys they wanted. They have made that patently obvious. Short of bringing in a signed and sealed NBC contract for the national televising of hockey, there was no way the (Cy) McLean group could get into the Norris league.

Paul-Emile Theriault, Moncton L'Evangeline: Giving the United States a 10-2 edge in representation in the NHL [illegible] a tour de force by league president Clarence Campbell, for which he deserves the Lester Patrick Trophy, awarded each year to the person who does most for hockey in the United States. . . .

The meeting held in New York this week was nothing but a formality. If the professional circuit was formerly considered the 'National Canadian League,' it certainly is not today, as only two teams of 12 represent our country.

Rollins Jrs. Host Oshawa Tonight

Oshawa Crushmen will supply the opposition for Rollins Construction in tonight's important OHA Eastern Junior "B" fixture here. Game time is nine o'clock.

The game is a big one for Rollins. The Belleville club trails Peterborough by one point in their battle for third place while Trenton is just three back. And Trenton plays host to Kingston in another key game tonight.

Rollins must be at their best to give the strong Oshawa club a battle and the Crushmen also need a win to keep pace with Kingston in their fight for first.

Coach Gordie Bell hopes to ice close to a full lineup but Grant Hagerman's injured knee is still a long way from 100 per cent. The hard working left winger may be the key to a playoff spot but he was able to make only a token appearance the other night and may [illegible] missing tonight.

Rollins face a tough game in Kingston on Sunday night, then meet Trenton twice in a showdown series next week. They play in Trenton Wednesday and back here next Friday. The Apple Kings visit Oshawa Saturday afternoon.

Crowds have been good here but could improve and should since every game is a life or death affair as far as playoff positions are concerned.

Game time, once again, is 9.00 p.m.

Red Wings Defeat Petes 7-4

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton Red Wings Thursday night strengthened their hold on fourth place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings by defeating the first-place Peterborough Petes 7-4 before 2,673 fans.

It was a come-from-behind win for Hamilton, who spotted the Petes two first-period goals and then fought back to tie the score 3-3 going into the third period.

Seven players — Bart Crashley, Don Giesebrecht, Kevin Pettit, Sandy Snow, Jim Young, Nick Libett and Freddie Speck —shared the winners' goals.

Leading scorer Andre Lacroix counted two goals and an assist for Peterborough. John Vanderberg and Mickey Redmond added a goal each.

Phoenix Opener Washout

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Rain washed out the first round of the $60,000 Phoenix Open golf tournament Thursday with most of the players in the club house.

All scores were erased. The field will make another start today, weather permitting.

Tommy Aaron was the leader with a three-under par 68 when the cancellation was announced.

One stroke behind at 69 was Bobby Nichols. Claude King, Mike Souchak and Chuck Courtney were tied at 70.

Jack McGowan, Julius Boros, Bob Goalby, Jack Rule, Rex Baxter, Harold Kneece and Joe Taylor had even par 71s.

Arnold Palmer was one of seven players tied at 72.

Before washng out the opening round at the Phoenix Country Club, the wet, cold weather caused 1964 U.S. Open champ Ken Venturi to quit the tournament.

Venturi, troubled by circulatory problems in his hands, hit some practice shots and decided he could not play.

TURIN, Italy (CP)—University of Manitoba Bisons scored a 5-3 victory over Czechoslovakia Thursday night in the six-nation World University Games Hockey tournament.

The victory was Canada's first in the tournament, which saw the Soviet Union take the lead with six points after a 9-6 victory over Romania earlier Thursday.

With two days left in the six-team round-robin tournament, Finland and Czechoslovakia are tied for second place with four points each, Canada and Romania have two each and Italy trails with none.

Hornets Sting Aces 5-4

QUEBEC (CP) — Pittsburgh Hornets scored four goals in the first two periods and held off a third-period Quebec rally to defeat the Aces 5-4 in an American Hockey League game before 4,443 spectators Thursday night.

Pittsburgh's win was its second in a row over the Aces and marked the first time this season the Quebec club has lost two games to a visiting team.

Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Norm Ullman, Gordie Howe and Alex Delvecchio all figured in Detroit Red Wings' scoring against New York Rangers Thursday night, but the top seven positions in the National Hockey League individual scoring race remained unchanged.

Bobby Hull, who leads the league in goals with 44, holds down first place in the scoring with 73 points. Hull, Chicago Black Hawks' star left winger, has 22 games remaining to score seven goals to break the record of 50 goals in a season. He shares the record with Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, two former Montreal Canadien players.

Stan Mikita, also of Chicago, holds down second place with 57 points, including a league-leading 33 assists.

Ullman scored a goal against the Rangers Thursday, giving him 56 points for the season, followed by teammate Howe with 54 points. Howe scored one goal and picked up two assists.

Delvecchio also scored a goal against New York and moved into a tie for fifth place with Bobby Rousseau of Montreal. Both have 50 points. Jean Beliveau of Montreal rounds out the top seven with 47 points.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.
Hull, Chicago	44	29	73
Mikita, Chicago	24	33	57
Ullman, Detroit	25	31	56
Howe, Detroit	22	32	54

The Trots

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Payoffs reached record proportions Thursday night at Windsor Raceway when longshots came home in the quinella and daily double.

The double returned $481, second - largest since the track opened last October, when Dick Hither, a 22-to-1 outsider, won the first race and Smart Passer, at 27 to 1, took the second.

The quinella in the fifth race paid $268.80, a track record, when June Abbe finished first and Luella Scott second.

The featured Jim Campbell pace was won by Rendezvous Boy, owned by Jim Donnelly of Goderich, Ont., and driven by Ronnie Feagan, also of Goderich. Feagan last year won more races than any Canadian harness driver in history—211.

By JACK BRAUCKMANN

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) Skating buffs attending the Canadian junior figure skating championships here say the British Columbia team has a good chance of bettering the 1965 performance when it took home three of the four junior trophies.

B.C. skaters Thursday took the lead in three events, won a second and third place in two finals and finished just out of the running in another. Competition ends Saturday.

Joe Summerfield of Vancouver led the junior men after compulsory figures Thursday and team-mate David Killin was second. David McGillivray of Toronto was third.

Ruth Hutchinson of Vancouver took the figures lead in novice women's skating and another Vancouver girl, Benita Cave, was second. Mary Lynne Petrie of Ottawa was in third place after school figures.

Miss Cave teamed with Barry Soper of Vancouver to finish a close second to Edmonton's Lynn Peckinpaugh and Michael Kostynuk in the novice dance finals. Beth Ann Ralbosky of Toronto and Rick Dowding of Oakville, Ont., were third.

HAS STRONG LEAD

Vancouver's Jim Reid had a commanding lead in the novice men's event as competitors prepared for free skating, which counts for 40 per cent of the total mark. Trailing Reid by 23 points was Bill Foster of Oakville while Ronald Shaver of Hamilton was third.

Helen and Richard Askew of Kamloops, B.C., tied down third place in the junior pair finals won by Anna Forder and Richard Stephens of Port Perry, Ont. Nancy and Steven Dover of Hamilton were a strong second.

Maureen Walker and Richard Sledowski of Toronto edged Mary Jane Oke and Victor Irving of Unionville, Ont. by two-tenths of a point in the novice pair final—the only event of the day in which a West Coast entry failed to gain a place in the top three.

Third in novice pairs were Mary Lynne Petrie and Bob McAvoy of Ottawa. Sherry Biagioni and Ted Price of Kamloops, B.C., were fifth in the event, only 1.8 points out of third place.

NHL Puts PR Man In New York

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Hockey League, in its drive to improve the image of hockey in the United States, is to have a public relations man in New York, an NHL spokesman said Thursday.

The NHL spokesman said "the public relations man will handle 'image-building' as opposed to publicity."

Creation of the new post goes along with the opening of a new NHL office in New York city.

The league announced in New York Wednesday that six new franchises have been granted to United States cities. They are Los Angeles-Oakland, San Francisco, Philadelphia, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Pittsburgh and St. Louis.

E. MacDonald Rolls 401

Earl MacDonald, of the Major "A" five-pin league, rolled a 916 triple, including a big 401 single, at the Bowl-O-Drome last night.

It was the second 400-or-better score at the lanes this season. Art Butler had a 420 earlier.

MacDonald had 212, 303 and 401 while pacing Seeley's Clippers to a sparkling 1,472 in his 401 string. Other scores for that game were: Jack Moon 228, Russ Jones 267, Joe Allen 333 and Graham Seeley 243. The team total bettered the league's previous high for the year, 1,437, rolled by Stewart's Signs.

Meanwhile, Jim Semark also topped the 900 mark in the International Hardware Mixed League, a 903, including singles of 260, 367 and 276.

Ontario Curling

Dixie, St. Thomas Unbeaten

BRAMPTON (CP) — Rinks skipped by Joe Gurowka of Dixie and George Parkes of St. Thomas were the only two in contention as the Ontario curling championships headed into the final two rounds today.

Both rinks had identical 5-0 won-lost records in the eight-team, round-robin bonspiel and the luck of the draw matched them against each other in the seventh and final round at 2:30 p.m., following sixth-round matches at 9 a.m.

If a tie-breaking playoff is necessary, it will be held tonight.

The Ottawa rink skipped by Gordon Brown and Waterloo, skipped by Bob Mann, were tied for third place with 3-2 records and out of the chase for a berth in this year's canadian curling championships later this month a' Halifax.

Presley Lavier of Centralia followed with two wins and three losses, while rinks skipped by Rod Sjoberg of Peterborough and Irvin Wallace of Port Carling were tied for sixth place with 1-4 records.

The Dundas rink skipped by Jab Pierce was winless in five starts

HAVE TOUGH TIME

Gurowka, making his fourth appearance in the Ontario championships, and Parkes both had their anxious moments in winning all three 12-end games Thursday.

Gurowka, with lead Don Mackey, second Tom Howat and third Ken Ingo, took advantage of the last rock in the final end of his third - round match to collect one and defeat Mann 8-6.

The Dixie foursome was forced to an extra end before winning 11-9 over Brown in the fourth round.

But they made no mistake in the day's final round, defeating Wallace 13-2 in eight ends of the regulation 12-end match.

Meanwhile Parkes, with lead with Jim Waite, second Bill Oliver and third Dr. Don Gilbert, won a third - round battle 6-5 against Pierce before taking a comparatively easy 8-5 victory over Sjoberg in the fourth round.

Turn Back Picton Teams

Quinte Has Triple Win

By ROBERT SNEFJELLA

Quinte Seniors pushed their way into first place in the Bay of Quinte High School Basketball league last night as they defeated a stubborn Picton team 55-49.

The juniors evened their season - record at three wins against as many setbacks with a hard fought 38-30 decision, while the bantams trounced a mediocre Picton squad 49-16.

The seniors' win gives them a record of five wins in six starts. B.C.I., in second place momentarily with a 4-1 record, could even up matters with a victory over Picton tonight.

Throughout the senior tussle Quinte led by a very slim margin. It was in the dying seconds of the game that the winners pulled away to a safe lead.

A 30 point performance by Tony Meddings of Quinte boosted the visitors to their win. Meddings scored well from both outside and off the boards, and at the same time rebounded well. Jack Reppard and Max Valyear also turned in fine efforts.

Davidson was Picton's key man, picking up 19 points. Murphy hooped 12.

As the score indicates, Quinte had to step lively to avoid being caught from behind in the Junior contest.

Ernie Sharpe played a fine game in directing Picton to a near - win. The losers inability to score from outside with any degree of success proved fatal.

The sloppy nature of the game with countless throw-aways and broken plays, kept the score low.

Paul Goodfellow scored eight points to head the winners. Dave Middleton and Larry Seeley added seven each.

Jack Miller, Dan Dulmage and Ernie Sharpe led Picton offensively.

Peter Middleton led the Bantams to their fifth win of the season. Middleton hooped 14 points. and Burt led the losers with eight.

Senior game: Quinte (55) — Meddings 30, Reppard 14, Moon 5, Taylor 4, Valyear 2.

Picton (49) — Davidson 19, Murphy 12, Bently 7, Hobson 7, Arnaud 4.

World Titles On Line

NEW YORK (AP) — Emile Griffith, world welterweight champion, will try to win the world middleweight crown from Dick Tiger of Nigeria Monday, April 25, at Madison Square Garden — a feat accomplished by only two boxers in modern ring history.

Tiger will receive 40 per cent of the receipts and television revenues as the titleholder in this match of champions. Griffith, the challenger in the 160-pound division, settled for 20 per cent of the cash.

Harry Markson, boxing director of the Garden, said the 15-round match will be televised nationally under the banner of the newly - organized Madison Square Garden Attractions, Inc., in conjunction with RKO.

Many welter champs have tried to win the heavier division title while they still held the 147-pound crown. Sugar Ray Robinson, who stopped Jake Lamotta in 1951, and Carmen Basilio, who edged Robinson in 1955, were the only fighters to succeed.

Under New York rules, as outlined by chairman Melvin Krulewitch, Griffith automatically will vacate the welter title if he beats Tiger.

What's In A Name? 43 Goals

CORNWALL (CP) — Sometimes it just doesn't pay to make a change.

Last place Hawkesbury Lions took a new name—the junior Meteors—and new uniforms into a Central Junior Hockey League game here Thursday.

But Cornwall Royals didn't have time to notice any difference.

They were too busy scoring goals.

By the time the game was over they had shot 43 pucks into the Hawkesbury net and won a 43-0 victory.

Goalie Francois Dallaire, a spare goalie for the juvenile club, managed to stop 34 of 77 shots.

Most of his saves were the first two periods when he held Cornwall to a 1-0 score.

Dave's Hideaway

By

Dave Charles

Something new and exciting has come to Belleville! ! ! Mod Music Makers are now organized with an executive of 10 responsible teens. Bravo, bravo . . . This group is completely self-governing and capable of programing various teen functions for their own crowd. The Belleville Arena has been turned over to the teens through the help of the recreation commission. You can be proud of this progressive group which has your interest at heart, and has bent over sideways to help you in your social endeavors. Norm Carter has truly earned the gratitude of the teens through his hard work to get something under way now, instead of just talking about it. Norm is Batman to the rescue.

According to early reports, all systems are go and it looks like this city will start to move for teens. The committee plans to fix up a spot inside the arena, courtesy of arena manager Bob Burrows. Also many other interested adults have expressed their support.

Parents, you should voice your support of these plans; you play a big part in their success.

This group will be completely self-sufficient as far as the financing of their proposed facilities are concerned. All the money made over and above expenses will go into a bank account and be re-invested back into the organization. Inside the arena, the teens have plans for fixing up a coffee-shop for after school. All the work in fixing this place up will be accomplished by work committees. The teens will also run the coffee shop. When the ice comes out of the arena in early April, phase two of the club will begin. Big Teen Gigs are planned for Saturday nights with all profits used for future ventures planned by the club. So you lucky people, good luck with your new business and may it be ever successful. Support is needed by every teenager of this city. You have a hard-working committee and now it's your job to support them. Don't let this city go to the dogs as far as social functions are concerned. Let's show other cities what can be done.

Friday on the "Why Not Call" show, I was surprised at the two callers who thought I was against their Coffee House, by not listening to their plans at last Thursday's meeting at the Recreation Centre. . . . You couldn't be more wrong . . . I am not against your plans. However, I understand you had planned on opening a Coffee House before the Teen meeting was called Thursday and you thought that the Recreation Centre was stealing your idea by suggesting the arena have a coffee house. Before you even thought of your coffee house I had announced a month ago that a certain party from out of town was going to establish a coffee house in Belleville. This party is not convinced that this city would support this venture year round so he is still withholding settingup. So, I can say that you lifted the idea of your coffee house from the "Hideaway" or "The Very Bottom" of last summer. Stop and think for just a minute. When you brought the subject of another coffee house up at the meeting Thursday, it had nothing to do with the topic up for discussion. If you want to open up a coffee house that's fine. Belleville can support three coffee houses with no trouble. Coffee houses are never big inside and they are not meant to be. So not every teen will be able to crowd into just one coffee house; agreed.

PART TWO

Britain may have its Mod and Rockers, but Belleville is not to be outdone. Yes it's true, the "Greases" and the "Non Greases" are two new rival teen groups that do battle where and when it's possible. I hope you don't get carried away (Ha Ha.) To the "Greases" I say remember one slip and Zap . . . a new tube of greasy kids stuff goes down the drain. To the Non-Greases I say, don't let anyone tell you to dry up, instead use water. Gee, and I thought Mod Music Makers were wingy.

It's time to explore Dave's Cave, so let's go. If I may say so it looks like a big year for mod music. Bob Lind, a new face to the pop scene has a big, big hit . . . "The Illusive Butterfly."

I predict the "Exciters" will rise clean up the File with "A Little Bit of Soap." Two great Canadian releases have received good response on the Voice Your Choice bit . . . Dee and the Yeomen with "A Love Like Mine" . . . By the way the Yeomen had quite a spread in a Toronto newspaper last week . . . did you catch it? They'll be coming to Belleville March 18th. The "Guess Who (???) Group" from Manitoba have the sound called "Believe Me." This will receive great response in the States and could be the big record of the year, in all markets. We add another animal to the fold called The Sheep as they play "Hide and Seek"; the spy of the week. "I Confess" the new Coloney Six have a hit. "Sonny and Cher'" have hit again with "What Now My Love." The Folk Rock of the high flying Byrds is here again with "It Won't Be Wrong." J. B. and the Playboys are still popular with number five on the file, "Poor Ann" . . . They will be appearing at Teen Club 106 in Trenton tonight along with me, Dave Charles and Sounds Incorp.", get there early if you want to get in. It promises to be one of the biggest dances of the year. The Mod concert is cancelled for tomorrow night at BCI because the admission regulations are not practical for the Key Club of B.C.I.V.S. to make any money on this venture. Don't worry, the concert will be held, but at a later date; O.K.

Before closing, the newly formed Teen Organization is looking for a groovy name for this city-wide club. Are you holding within your brain the name that will set hearts afire with excitement and heads spinning with joy? Why wait for Spring, submit it now. Write out that name on a piece of paper and forward it to me, Dave Charles, care of CJBQ Radio, Belleville.

The only name I can think of now is . . .
Shangri-La.

P.S.: That means see you next week in the Hideaway.

P.S.S.: No kidding.

Moira Orators Display Talent At Assembly

Wednesday, February 9, the potential orators of Moira Secondary School displayed their several abilities in an interesting program of prepared and impromptu speeches. The student body, of course, always welcomes any assembly program that goes beyond the half hour set aside for this purpose.

Gordon Thompson, a student in Grade XI, started things off with his humorous, prepared dissertation on school drop-outs. In complete contrast was Leslie Genejas serious, sincere discussion of the problem of world peace. Leslie, also a Grade XI student, won first prize in the prepared speech division.

Then followed a series of six three to five minutes in length, given by a group of students who had been frantically assembling nervous thoughts in the library. The wit, humour, and organization which resulted from such minimal preparation were quite amazing. Gordon Thompson, obviously a bear for punishment, pitched into the impromptu division with ready wit and will and emerged the winner.

Cash awards donated by the student Parliament were then presented to the two happy winners by Tawni Meades. Their next task is to polish their speaking up for the Trustees and Ratepayers Association Competition which begins locally at Albert College. The public speaking in the school has been in the capable hands of Mr. Holland — to him a thank you from all of us.

Coming Events At Moira

*Tonight is the exciting Sadie Hawkins' Dance at Moira sponsored by the Radio Club. It is in the form of a hard times dance with admission geared to waist (or is it waste?) measurement. Fun and games for all!

* On Friday and Saturday, February 18 and 19, the famous annual show, Moirantics, takes place at Moira Secondary School. Practices are becoming frantic and nerves frayed as opening night draws near. The usual extravaganza of student talent sprinkled here and there with teacher talent will provide two evenings of hilarity and surprises for all those wise enough to attend. Tickets are on sale now at the school and will be on sale at the door on both nights.

* Next Wednesday, February 16, the Belle Theatre, at the request of the high schools, will be showing the thrilling technicolor film, MACBETH, starring Maurice Evans and Judith Anderson, world famous Shakespearian actors. Do not miss this event. See for yourself the action - packed scenes you have been studying in school. Take your drama "live"!

* Coming Soon to the Belleville schools: The Easter Examinations! Why wait for spring: study now!

PATIENTS MOVE IN

MONTREAL (CP)—The first patients have moved into the new Montreal Heart Institute from Maisonneuve Hospital. The new institute, which cost $5,000,000, has 111 beds and a waiting list of 350.

Daddy-o on the Raddy-o Enjoys Work as D. J.

"Dave Charles is not Dave"
"Well, who is Dave Charles?"
"Dave Charles, of course, silly."
"But you said . . ."
"What did I say?"
"You said Dave Charles is the D.J. in the Quinte area, chosen number three D.J. in Canada by RPM magazine the Canadian Music Industry's magazine. He's CJBQ's Daddy-o on the Raddy-o."

If this is confusing, don't worry. Dave's business is a hectic one.

His real name isn't Dave Charles, but he's not telling. "Only Batman knows for sure," he said.

Dave was born in Moncton, New Brunswick, 20 years ago. He moved to Hamilton at the age of two and lived there nearly 17 years.

STARTED BY CHANCE

"I started in the radio business by chance," he said. "When I was in Grade 10, I wandered down to a "Y" dance on the invitation of a friend who I had met while working part time in a drug store.

"I liked the dance and so I kept coming back every Saturday. One Saturday my friend couldn't make it so I was asked to spin the discs for him. I did and I loved it.

"My confidence really grew at those dances. I started practicing at home, making up commercials, pretending I was doing newscasts.

"Eventually I formed a group called "The Classicals." It consisted of myself and an operator. We kept ourselves busy doing school dances in Hamilton."

When Dave was in Grade 11, he obtained a job as public address announcer for public skating at Hamilton's Forum. "It was at the Forum I met Bill Sterrup of CHML, Hamilton. He really helped me a lot. Eventually I ended up doing the public address announcing at Jr. A and Jr. B hockey games in Hamilton."

Soon Dave was covering soccer games at Civic Stadium and doing many stringing jobs for station CHML.

BECAME STRINGER

In his last year of high school, Grade 12, Dave was a stringer for CHML. "I made a demonstration tape there and sent it to six stations," he said. "I received replies from CFOR, Orillia, CHOK, Sarnia, and CJBQ, Belleville.

"I was hired by CJBQ August 10, 1964.

"I haven't had any formal training in radio. It's just something I loved so much I wanted to do it. I thought I could make it on my own without the regular formal three-year course at Ryerson. Anyway, I didn't want to wait three years to get into the business."

Dave Charles puts in an average of 12 horus per day working at his job, six days each week. "Even on my days off I'm working, usually in Toronto lining up dance bands; getting the lowdown on Canadian records coming up; and talking to other people in the trade."

PROMOTES CANADIANS

Dave's main objective is to promote the Canadian music industry. "I want to give it the recognition it deserves. One plan I have is a series of shows featuring Canadian artists, to be available on an exchange basis with Britain, U.S. and other world markets."

Dave remembers the bewilderment which overcame him when he first came to Belleville. "When I got off the CNR here I saw a row of buildings and I thought that was Belleville. I never lived in a smaller centre before and I didn't have any conception on what to expect.

"I was impressed with CJBQ right from the start — with the pride of the station. I was impressed by the fact that the station commanded so much respect from the people of Belleville."

Dave started in the news department but found it hard going. "I couldn't adapt myself to writing news," he said. "I wanted to announce.

"I got my chance when I started to do the "Night Shift." That's where I learned to make all my mistakes.

"There was little or no teen music on CJBQ when I first started here. Ken Finley and I started to build up a teen show a year ago and things have been getting better for the teens every day. They are getting more air time, they have their high school radio clubs, and best of all, teens are now listening to CJBQ.

MUST KEEP UP

"When doing a teen show you have to be aware of the changes taking place in their world. If you fall behind, they'll listen to someone else. If they get the entertainment and the news they want to hear, they'll listen."

Dave said he still likes to get back to the big cities to keep in touch with what's happening.

"I'm impressed with the pace here," he said. "There is no real rush, rush. It's a lot easier to exist and do a good job in a place where you aren't rushed all the time.

"Belleville is a perfect spot to break into radio. CJBQ's new facilities are like working in a palace. Not too many stations can compare."

One of the main reasons Dave loves his job so much is that he likes talking to people and working with people. "I want to see people happy. I think recreation and having a good time are important parts of life. They're vital.

"In smaller areas like Belleville, teens have a great feeling of loyalty towards a show because of the personal contact. Here I am able to meet the teens and talk with them. I feel a big part of my job is getting out to meet them. Then and only then can a trust be set up between the teens and myself."

Dave says he gets a kick out of playing a record as loud as he can.

What type of music does he like best?

"Jazz, man."

Dave's favorite male singer is Tony Bennett, his favorite female singer is Nancy Wilson; he likes the Oscar Peterson Trio as a group and Jimmy Smith on the organ is his top instrumentalist.

Who is his favorite rock and roll group? "Why The Beatles, of course," he said. "Nobody else comes close."

Dave also loves the "Motown Sound" and good rhythm and blues.

"My favorite classical work is The Planets by Gustav Holtz."

How's that shake you mod music makers? Gustav Holtz!

In his spare time, Dave likes swimming, horseback riding, golf, hockey (he played Jr. C in Hamilton) and football.

As for Belleville's teens, he said, "About 90 per cent of them are great. I'd go to bat for them anytime. But the other 10 per cent are a lazy bunch of slobs.

CAN RUN OWN SHOW

"Now the teens have been given a chance to do something for themselves, thanks to the recreation commission. Their new arrangement at the Arena will be run by the teens for the teens, something I'v been working towards for a long time.

"The hit-and-run dances we've had in the past didn't fill the need at all. They were only an appeasement.

"Juvenile delinquency is amazingly low in Belleville. I think it's a credit to them. They deserve some good times and I want to see them enjoy life socially in the proper atmosphere and the proper place and with all the trimmings they deserve.

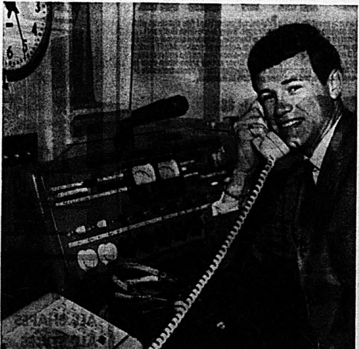
"Belleville isn't out in the sticks. We're close to the big centres.

"Belleville is on the highways and byways of entertainment. The big bands are available for the teens to see, so why not."

Dave Charles is a good D.J. He's interested in his job and in his audience. He actually enjoys what he's doing. That's part of the reason he's doing doing such a good job.

He says his closing remark on his radio show and in his Youth Page column means, "I wish the best to you in whatever you do. Until next time."

And so, as the man says, "Shangri-La."



CJBQ'S DAVE CHARLES AT WORK

Says Canada Needs Changes In Govt.

By LINDA KERR (BCI)

Canada has no chance for success — unless there are some immediate changes in her government. I realize of course, that democracy is by no means a perfect form of government and thus can never be expected to run smoothly sans any type of flaw, but, our present form of government is a farce, hindering all Canada's hopes of moving ahead. The leaders of the two main parties are men who are not one but two generations behind the times. They are self-centred senile men who sit back making no drastic moves lest they should lose their high place to the opposition. They bicker back and forth like schoolboys and run the country in much the same manner. Behind the scenes of both parties sit well - qualified men who must wait until the old fools have stepped down or have been carried of to "Their final reward."

Then there is the question of parties. As things stand now, there are barely enough issues in Canada for two parties let alone four or five. These weaker parties gather up votes from undecided voters and gain enough seats, thus influencing the government drastically. They float their loyalty back and forth from one party to another. How much more practical it would be to have two strong opposing parties with all of Canada behind them.

In Ottawa we have a body which is called the Senate. One could just as appropriately call it "A Home for Aged and Fatihful Politicians" for this is precisely what it is. They do almost nothing and get their salary as a substantial cut for the taxpayers' money. This money could be invested in Canadian industry where it would work and give returns to the people.

Just as the American form of government can not be adapted to Canada, likewise we can neither hope to adopt the British ways and have them succeed. Britain has had her glory, U.S.A. is in the midst of hers but Canada's is yet to come. But it is only possible if we discard the old decayed ways and take on a new form of government suitable to Canada alone.

PRAIRIES DRINK MORE

WINNIPEG (CP) — Licensed hotels in Manitoba took in $30,459,000 from liquor sales in 1964, according to statistics from the provincial alcohol education service. This was $11,437,000 more than in 1959.

Chastity Old-fashioned Southern Germans Say

MUNICH (Reuters) — Quick-witted girls are out, domestically-minded types are in, and chastity is an old-fashioned notion, says teen-age opinion in southern Germany.

A survey among 15- to 17-year-old Bavarian vocational and high school pupils of both sexes carried out by the Munich Teachers' College showed that any girl wishing to measure up to Miss Ideal would have to be a good housewife, attractive and have a good figure—in that order.

Surprisingly, the ideal of a girl with housewifely interests attracts more male than female pupils, and twice as many in towns as in the countryside.

Although beauty and a good figure were voted by teen-agers of both sexes as the second most important feminine attribute, girl pupils seemed less figure-conscious than their mothers were or than their masculine classmates would like them to be.

In their eyes, girls with Hollywood measurements are definitely out. But they believed that a motherly nature and love of children was important and, accordingly, placed these third on their list of priorities.

DON'T NEED THRIFT

Faithfulness, tolerance, thrift and perseverance were not demanded from today's "ideal woman." And only four per cent of all interviewed male pupils thought chastity worth a mention. Girls considered it "a quite unimportant attribute."

Good manners, pleasant and friendly personality, intelligence, feminine charm and a natural behavior were, however, still expected of the modern women.

At the bottom of the list of womanly virtues were demureness, religious tendencies and musical interests. Quick-witted girls, too, were found to be unpopular.

The dream mate of Bavarian girls, according to the survey, would first of all have to have good manners. About two-thirds of all provincial and 39 per cent of town high school girls wanted their future husbands to be "well behaved."

In the eyes of today's West German teen - age girl, Mr. Ideal's second characteristic is steadfastness, accompanied by intelligence, honesty and an open nature. To be eligible, he should also be ambitious, helpful and sporting.

HELP!

We need help.
The Youth Page that is.
Contributions from Belleville's high school students have been slacking off lately.

Surely you have an idea for a story. Do you know somebody with an interesting hobby? Have you a complaint about the school system? Does Viet Nam upset you? Have you ever had an off-beat job? What do you think of the future?

Come on now, get that noggin of yours working and pound out a story for the Youth Page.

It's your page. Make use of it.

The Deathwatch

By N. D. Morrison (B.C.I.)

The lingering sun had seemed to settle sweetly on,
Then softly slipped beneath
Earth's cold grey sill.
And in those final sullen rays
The world paraded home — and all was still.

They saw, but seeing, didn't care.
They knew as well as I
That she soon would quietly withdraw
To where the clocks are numberless,
Time being unreconciled dark—
But this sad parting was no concern of theirs.

Is this life's goal,
To dissolve in our own bitter
tears?
Then hear my cries—and death
be sudden!

Hold off! How odd that this, the greatest injustice
Seems now the welcomest of havens.
I know it's wrong for her,
That in her radiant youth she should be plucked
From me this way,
For with her goes the essence of my life —
Her smile divine, her touch of love —
And stays, an empty world of towering vanities.
The dying should comfort the living.

The moon! Ducking behind a cloud!
Then the Gatherer is near!
One moment more — to kiss
that sad smile there.

Now I am silent.
My only protest will be the thickening of my blood,
The trembling of my heart,
The soft appeals of my soul.
I'll sit and watch — like the gods.

Why are her tired fingers
Lightly tapping, tapping,
tap- . : .
Death's horrid shadow passes over her,
And pauses, and moves on.
And softly, softly comes the dawn.

Clint Eastwood Takes Offer As a Lark, Now a Star

By BOB THOMAS

AT THE PARK — Shapely Sue Ann Langdon plays the chorus girl who slaps a breach of promise suit on Harve Presnell in MGM's song-and-dance-filled musical, "When the Boys Meet the Girls," showing at the Park today, Saturday and Sunday, in which Presnell stars with Connie Francis. On the same program "Laurel and Hardy's Laughing 20's". Tonight complete shows 7.00 and 8.50. Saturday continuous show from 12.30 p.m. Doors open at 12.15 p.m.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Clint Eastwood obviously wasn't concerned about his image when he ordered hot tea.

The sight of a television cowpoke ordering tea instead of red-eye on the rocks would ordinarily be enough to make a horse opera fan head for the hills. But Eastwood is no longer a TV cowpoke, Rawhide having suffered a midseason demise after eight years on the range.

He now is an international film star.

Eastwood is a fortunate fellow. The Hollywoods are full of saddle-weary stars of fefunct TV westerns. Eastwood is signed to star in a European-made western at a salary of $250,000 plus 10 per cent of the Western Hemisphere profits.

"Two years ago, I got an offer to do a western for an Italian company in Spain during my vacation from Rawhide, he said. "I figured it would be a lark—a way to get a change of scenery. I was paid $15,000 for 11 weeks' work and the whole picture cost $225,000.

A TOUCH OF SATIRE

"The director, Sergio Leone, injected enough satire to interest the intelligent moviegoer, but not enough to scare off western fans. I figured the picture would either hit or miss—nothing in-between."

It hit and Eastwood said that the film, entitled For A Fistful Of Dollars, drew more money in Italy than any western in history, and that includes Shane and High Noon. It also did smash business in Spain and Germany.

Eastwood went back to Europe to film a sequel, For A Few Dollars More, at a salary of $50,000. He has heard that the film is outdrawing Thunderball in Italy. The result has been his inflated salary for the next film by Leone, tentatively entitled Magnificent Vagabonds.

Before that one, he will co-star with Silvana Mangano in an episodic film The Witches, to be directed by Vittorio de Sica.

A survey of Canadian youth reveals that the adult they have admired most in their lifetimes is the late Pope John, says Jack Hutton.

Pope John Tops List Of Idols of Teen-agers

By JACK HUTTON

Who are the idols of Canada's new generation — the adults they would most like to imitate?

I'm amazed by letters that have poured into ths column since I suggested my own list several weeks ago (John F. Kennedy and Winston Churchill were on my list.)

Nine out of 10 adults would guess that rock 'n roll singers, movie stars or folk singers would top the idol polls of their high school or college age offspring.

You'll be intrigued, therefore, to hear that one man was named ahead of any other in the first hundred letters that I received: the late Pope John.

"If there is anyone I hope I can be like, it is Pope John," wrote Jean M. of Edmonton, Alta. "I'm glad that someone finally punched a hole in the silly idea that we go around snapping our fingers or staring at pictures of guitar-players."

"Pope John had a sense of humility, a concern for others that showed on his face, a wonderful sense of humor that was always directed at himself — never others — and an extremely active mind that stayed abreast of the times."

"And," Jean added, "in case you're wondering, I am not a Catholic. This is strictly the opinion of one reader who admired and loved Pope John as a human being."

Sixty-four out of 106 letters, which came from every part of Canada, mentioned Pope John as someone they respected and admired as an adult model.

ADMIRE ANNE FRANK

Fifty of the letters included a girl who died at the age of 15 a someone who still inspired them: Anne Frank, who wrote the diary that still ranks as one of the finest pieces of writing in this century.

"I know Anne was not an adult, if you're limiting the list to people over 21," wrote Joanne Marshall of Halifax, N.S. "But it's impossible to read her diary without feeling that there's a standard you must meet."

"Anyone who can read Anne without being changed for life is simply not a feeling person in my opinion."

Almost exactly the same number of readers included the late John F. Kennedy on their list. And the same sentence cropped up in most of their letters: "He spoke for our generation."

A surprise nominee (maybe I shouldn't have been surprised) was Prof. Staughton Lynd, the Yale professor who defied the U.S. State Department weeks ago by visiting Hanoi and who has spearheaded a campus movement against the Vietnam war.

INCLUDE PROF. LYND

Thirteen letters, all from readers of college age, included Prof. Lynd on their lists. Two included him as their lone nomination.

Who were others included on the lists? The Beatles were included in 20 letters (I have a feeling this would have been higher one year ago.) Bobby Curtola was named in 15. Eddie Shack, the rambunctious hockey player, was included in 10.

I'd expected these people who figure very prominenty in the public eye every week. But there were others who surprised me.

Gov-General and Mrs. Vanier (they were on my original list); Dr. Albert Schweitzer; author Morley Callaghan; Bruce Kidd; U Thant; Prime Minister Lester Pearson and Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker (they were also on my list); singer Marion Anderson; Frank Sinatra.

As you've already noticed, Canadians figure prominently in the lists. Readers didn't seem to be hypnotized by the appeal of public figures below the border.

I'm sorry to report that not one Canadian clergyman was on the list. But I was warmed by the dozens who came to the end of their nominees and added — "my folks too, of course."

Three Networks Scrapping 30 Shows at End of Year

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The three major television networks are scrapping about 30 shows to make room for new ones in the new season starting September.

NBC expects to have its schedule ready by the end of next week and CBS a short time later. ABC hopes to keep its plans secret until the end of March, but they probably will leak out in advance.

ABC is firmly committed to an anthology series called ABC '66. Its new Milton Berle variety hour probably will precede Lawrence Welk Saturday nights.

NBC's almost - definite prospects include Tarzan, The Girl from U.N.C.L.E., a suspense series entitled T.H.E. Cat, which is the hero's name, and a police series called "My 15 Blocks" starring Dean Jones.

A new CBS show for Garry Moore seems likely.

What of the likely candidates for network oblivion?

CBS already has lost Dick Van Dyke to movies and Jackie Gleason to a sabbatical year. Lucille Ball still is resisting the prospect of another season with her series. There is doubt whether Hazel will continue because star Shirley Booth has not been in the best of health.

Almost certainly, there will be no return for Perry Mason, The Smothers Brothers Show, The Liner and Hollywood Talent Scouts. Secret Agent also may go. Status of both The Munsters and My Favorite Martian is unsettled.

NBC probably will drop Wackiest Ship in the Army, Dr. Kildare, The John Forsythe Show, Hullabaloo, My Mother, the Car, Please Don't Eat the Daisies, Camp Runamuck, Hank and Mr. Roberts.

ABC, which already has dispatched Ben Casey and The Jimmy Dean Show, is not expected to renew The Patty Duke Show, Gidget, The Flintstones, Tammy, Honey West, The Donna Reed Show, and The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet.

Batman, of course, stays put.

AT THE BELLE — Starting Sunday — Richard Chamberlain, (T.V.'s Dr. Kildare), baby in arms, joins wife Yvette Mimieux as they prepare to drive away to a new life in a scene from "Joy in the Morning", showing Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the Belle Theatre. The heart-warming story of the struggles of a young couple to make their marriage a success is based on Betty Smith's best-selling novel. Arthur Kennedy and Oscar Homolka co-star in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer attraction.

AT THE PARK — Opps! . . . Oliver Hardy and Stan Laurel teeter on the brink of doom twenty stories above the street in a breath-taking moment from "Laurel and Hardy's Laughing 20's", showing at the Park Today, Saturday and Sunday, that mixes thrills with the usual Laurel and Hardy brand of timeless laughter. The M.G.M. presentation offers the best work of the immortal team made during the golden era of comedy. On the same program "When The Boys Meet The Girls", in color starring Connie Francis and Harve Pressnell. Tonight complete shows 7.00 and 8.50. Saturday continuous show from 12.30 p.m. Doors open at 12.15.

Hold Inquest Into Car-train Fatalities

NAPANEE—Dr. Brant Bergstrome will conduct an inquest in the court house in Napanee at 2:00 p.m., February 16, concerning the deaths of Gordon Faulkner, 46, and his 18-year-old daughter Patricia, killed December 26 on the outskirts of Napanee.

Father and daughter were making a quick trip to Toronto to see Mr. Faulkner's mother, who was ill, when their small car crashed through the warning gates at what is known as the Belleville Road crossing on Highway 502, and was demolished by a CNR train. Both were instantly killed.

Church Groups

ANGLICAN YOUNG PEOPLE

NAPANEE — The young people of St. Mary Magdalene's Anglican Church attended the regular evening service last Sunday and afterwards held their own meeting in the parish hall.

The rector, the Rev. Canon W. S. Simmons, was in charge of the service, and was assisted by the Rev. A. F. Dowdell of Deseronto, who read the lesson. The Rev. Douglas Dunning of Adolphustown preached the sermon.

A number of Deseronto young people joined their Napanee friends to hear Miss Hazel Sanderson and John Thompson of St. Thomas' Church in Kingston. These two young people were delegates from the diocese of Ontario to attend the joint convention of Anglican and United Church young people held last August at the University in Saskatoon. They gave an interesting talk on the highlights of the conference, and showed slides they had taken on their way there, and during the conference itself. Afterwards they talked in general terms about youth work and answered questions.

Refreshments were served, to bring an interesting and a profitable evening to a close.

OFFICERS LISTED

Geoff Smith is the president of the group and Brenda Van-Volkenburgh is vice-president. Judy Dale is secretary and Terry Peters is treasurer. Nancy Owen and Dale Beale arrange the programs.

The young people are looking forward to two other events. February 27 a communion breakfast will be held, with all the young folk taking early communion at eight o'clock and then breakfasting together in the parish hall.

Friday about 15 young people are leaving for Camp Iawah for a weekend of interschool Christian fellowship. It will be a mingling of worship, Bible study and sport, principally skiing and skating. Groups of university students enjoyed a similar weekend late in January.

These young folk meet weekly at the home of Ralph Brown, a theological student at Queen's University, where he and Miss Lily Jane Rombough lead discussions on various topics of interest to young people.

Mother Says March of Dimes Unites People of Community

DESERONTO — Deseronto will go over the top in its objective of $500 for the March of Dimes, the chief marching mother, Mrs. Charles Cole, predicts.

"It is a wonderful story," she says. "There is nothing like it to tie a community together. Churches, schools, industries, business men, service clubs, the mothers and grandmothers, and the little children, all have had a part in the March of Dimes."

The campaign seems to appeal most strongly to the children, perhaps because it is principally the children who are helped. Every school in the district has made a contribution, some little folk enclosing letters with their contributions. One Mohawk girl of 11 explained that her $1.12 represented what she herself was giving "and what I have collected from the neighbors."

Deseronto public school and the Quinte-Mohawk school have both doubled their contribution of last year, Mrs. Cole stated. She was especially touched by the enthusiasm shown by Central Mohawk school, Its 22 pupils in Grades 1, 2 and 3, from six to eight years, had filled a card, a total of $4.80. Their teacher is Mrs. Borden Elliott.

Operation Crossroads Africa Topic of Address by Student

NAPANEE—"You will leave Africa, but Africa will not leave you." This was the warning given to Miss Elizabeth Love, an undergraduate of Queen's University, before she went to Kisii, near Niorobe, to spend two months with Operation Crossroads.

The words were only too true, Miss Love told the Business and Professional Women's Club when speaking at their dinner meeting early this week. She was one of a group of 25 Canadian students who joined 175 students from the United States to live among African natives, work with them, teach them, and get to know them. One thing she did not expect. She got to love them, their generosity and kindness and hospitality. The children, she said, were adorable.

LIVING PRIMITIVE

Life was very primitive. The people lived in grass huts, with the simplest of furnishings, and the students lived in what seemed to be a hall of some sort, with no beds and no sanitary facilities. But they were glad of the warmth of their sleeping bags, even though they were not far south of the equator. They were up 6,000 feet. Every day, promptly at 4.15 p.m. there was a deluge which stopped in 15 minutes as suddenly as it began. Then it got cold. Such conditions led to luxuriant growth and the country was beautiful.

The most important thing of all, Miss Love said, was the opportunity to learn to know men and women of other races. The students were divided into work groups of 10, and in her group were Negroes and Indians.

Miss Love was the speaker on International Night in the club. A candlelighting ceremony preceded the address, with Mrs. James White lighting the candles and Mrs. Yvonne Wilson reading the text.

Members of the club were impressed not only by the speaker's words and the beautiful pictures which illustrated her address, but also by her charms. They marvelled too, at the self-possession of one so youthful.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

CUB SLEIGH RIDE

NAPANEE — The 3rd Napanee Cubs went back to the days of their grandfathers Wednesday evening and had a real ride in a sleigh behind real horses with real jingle bells making music all the way. The snow was deep and white, the air was still and the stars never seemed brighter.

There were 39 of them altogether, including Akele Eleanor Tack and Balloo Dorothy Dibb, and only one boy had ever been in a sleigh. Douglas Davy, Don McCabe, Doug Asselstine, Fred Dibb, Allan Crouse and Harold Wayte were the fathers who drove them to Earl Nugent's Riding Stables at Camden East, and waited there until the two sleighloads of excited cubs came back after more than an hour of thrills. Best of all, the trail led, not on the humdrum roads, but through the fields and the woods, uphill and down. The 37 small tikes will never forget this experience.

Then back to Trinity Church in Napanee, where there was all the hot chocolate they wanted, and an abundance of sandwiches and cookies, enough to fill up even hungry cubs. Three of the mothers, Mrs. Doug Topping, Mrs. Fred Holmes, and Mrs. Ray Hicks looked after this part of an unforgettable evening.

BLOOM FOR CENTURIES

The oldest botanical garden in the western hemisphere was founded in 1765 on the West Indian island of St. Vincent.

Swimming Committee Plans Future

NAPANEE — Lennox and Addington Swimming and Water Safety Committee, meeting Wednesday evening in the t[illegible] hall, appointed Grant Clark, [illegible] Napanee as chairman, Mrs. Donald Cudney of Odessa as vice-chairman, Warren Finley of Strathcona as treasurer, and Mrs. Allan Cockburn of Napanee as secretary.

It was decided that all moneys collected this year should be handed over to Carson Graham, town clerk, to administer.

It was agreed, also, that next year the county council be asked to set up a committee to administer grants from the government.

As the committee operated at a loss last year, it will solicit help from as many sources of revenue as possible for this year's operation. It is hoped that support can be obtained from service clubs, industries, and many other organizations and businesses, and from interested private citizens.

RED CROSS SUPPLIES INSTRUCTORS

The Red Cross supplies the fully qualified instructors for the swimming and water safety classes, but has no funds with which to pay them, nor to pay for transporting the children. The committee is responsible for all finances. It is a county-wide organization, with Mrs. H. H. Langford representing the Red Cross Society, and Grant Clark the Recreation Committee. Among other active members are Mrs. Wesley Alkenbrack and Mrs. Ed. Hooper.

Three classes are conducted each year. During July the classes are held near the mouth of the Napanee River along the River Road. Children are transported by bus. During August classes are held at Lake Ontario near Bath each morning, and [illegible] Beaver Lake each aftern[illegible] Proficiency tests are made [illegible] an outside examiner at the close of the classes, and credits are given.

Each child pays a small fee, but it is not sufficient to pay instructors and transportation.

Scoharie

SCOHARIE — Mr. and Mrs. Ross Foster, Elizabeth, Thomas and Terry and Mrs. Harry Foster were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kerr, Big Island, on the occasion of Mrs. Kerr's birthday.

A community shower was held in Orser Hall on Friday evening for Mr. and Mrs. George Foster who were married recently. The young couple received many gifts [illegible] which they thanked ever[illegible] graciously.

Mrs. Leonard Marlieb of Toronto was a weekend guest of her sister, Mrs. Arnold Greaves, Mr. Greaves and family.

Mrs. Arnold Cunningham spent a few days at Oshawa last week with her daughter, Mrs. Windatt, Mr Windatt and new daughter, Ellen.

Carman Hobson is confined to bed at his home after suffering a heart attack on Thursday.

OTTAWA (CP)—Gerard Pelletier, Liberal MP for Montreal Hochelaga, said Wednesday Confederation is being destroyed by provinces that delegate their powers to Ottawa and not by Quebec. He told an Ottawa social club that opting-out plans as proposed in Quebec give the province nothing that is not currently within the area of provincial jurisdiction, under the Canadian constitution.

Sunday School Lesson

The Freedom of Man

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

There are two great ideas about man current in the world today. One is that man is a creature of the state. He has no rights or privileges except those the state gives him, and what the state gives it can also take away. This idea is based on the belief that man's life depends completely on the life of the body, and when the body dies, the entire person dies, and becomes extinct forever. This, of course, is the communist view of man.

The other idea is that every person is a child of God. God created him. God loves him. A part of him is spirit just as God is spirit. Therefore when the body dies, the spiritual part of him lives on in another realm of life. This means the state has no right to take away certain rights from men (such as the right to believe in God) for the state didn't give it in the first place. God granted it when He made man in His own image (Gen. 2:7) This, of course, is the teaching of the Bible, and is the view of man on which all true democracy is based.

This view of man runs all through the Bible. God not only made man, as Genesis insists, but made him "little less than God." (Psalm 8:5 RSV) That is, God gave him intelligence, and implanted in him something of His own divine nature so man can feel, and love, and aspire after God-likeness.

> The Uniform Sunday School lesson for February 13: "Man Is A Person," Genesis 1:26-31; Psalm 8; Matthew 12:1-14; 18:1-14; Acts 10:34-35; Hebrews 2:5-9.

If man is a child of God, then he should be treated as one. Jesus said, "Whosoever shall say to his brother, Raca, shall be in danger of the council." (Matthew 5:22 KJV) The pronunciation of the word, "Raca" sounds as if one is clearing his throat. It is as if Jesus said, "Whoever spits on another's personality, that is, holds it in contempt, is in danger of God's judgment."

Dr. E. Stanley Jones says there are three levels at which we can relate ourselves to others. One can say, "I am my brother's superior. I must keep him in his place." The world has been cursed by this prevalent attitude. One can say, "I am my brother's keeper." But one can help to keep another, and still not love him. Or one can say, "I am my brother's brother. The same God made us both. I will try to understand him, and treat him as I would want him to treat me." (Matthew 7:12)

This means, Jesus insisted, that institutions are made to further the welfare of people. (Matthew 12:1-5; Mark 2:27) People were not created so churches can exist) churches were created to serve the spiritual needs of people. People were not made so governments could exploit them. Governments were made so human rights could be respected and protected. Therefore, as Abraham Lincoln said, governments should be "of the people, by the people, and for the people."

FLY IN THE OINTMENT

But there is a fly in the ointment. Psalm 8 said of man, "Thou hast given him dominion over the works of thy hands; thou hast put all things under his feet." (Psalm 8:6 RSV) But when the author of Hebrews looked at this Psalm and then at life, he was forced to admit, "As it is, we do not yet see everything in subjection to him." (Hebr. 2:8 RSV) Capable of acting God-like, men often end up acting like beasts. They have trouble controlling their own passions. The Apostle Peter was led by a dream to swallow his racial pride and say, "I perceive that God shows no partiality, but in every nation any one who fears Him and does what is right is acceptable to Him." (Acts 10(34-35 RSV) But the world is a long way from catching up to Peter in this regard. Race prejudice almost seems to be the rule rather than the exception.

But the Bible points to a wonderful guide. After admitting man's failure to control himself, the author of Hebrews says "But we see Jesus." (Hebrews 2:9) This author would say that in Jesus we see one to whom race and class made no difference. He saw worth and dignity in a publican as well as a Pharisee, in a Samaritan as well as a Jew. In Him, we see what men are meant to be, what they can be with God's help.

If men are children of God, no one has the right to enslave them. They must have freedom, not to sin, though some will use is that way, but to measure up to the qualities God has placed within them.

Landing Planes on Carrier Called Perfectionist Flying

By DAL WARRINGTON

ABOARD HMCS BONAVENTURE AT SEA (CP)—Landing planes on the tiny, heaving deck of an aircraft carrier is called "perfectionist flying" by an eight-year veteran of the precise art.

Lt.-Cmdr. Albert (Whitey) Williamson, 37, of Sarnia, Ont., and Dartmouth, N.S., is deputy commander of a squadron aboard this carrier, now in southern waters on a 74-day cruise. As she headed down from Halifax on the 13,000-mile cruise, he talked of flying navy Trackers.

Some branches of the navy say the aviators are the glamor boys of the fleet, but he disagrees: "There's no glory in this business, but there is a lot of satisfaction."

"It takes the combined effort of a lot of people to do the things we do," he said. "The men on the flight deck and on the bridge and in a lot of places are just as essential as we are."

However, he admits it's still something special when a navy pilot brings his Tracker in for a landing at 87 knots, picks up the "meatball" — an orange guide light reflected in a mirror on the flight deck—keeps that light centred in the curved mirror until he hits the deck and feels the arresting gear take hold.

MANY WANT TO FLY

He says about 90 per cent of would-be navy fliers nowadays join up with that career in mind. Some transfer from other branches. Lt.-Cmdr. Williamson is one of these.

He enlisted as an ordinary seaman at 17 and became a radio mechanic. A junior officer training plan gave him the chance to train for aircrew.

After courses on Chipmunk planes at Centralia, Ont., Harvards at Claresholm, Alta., and B-25 Mitchells at Saskatoon he got his pilot's wings in 1958.

"I've been flying Trackers since 1959 aboard Bonaventure and at Shearwater. I've made about 250 landings on the carrier, 70 of them at night."

Before he tries take-off or landing on the ship he must do at least 50 daytime airport landings at Debert, N.S., under simulated carrier conditions and do night landings too. To qualify on the carrier he must do three touch-and-go landings and six arrested landings day and night. In touch-and-go, the pilot sets his plane down in the correct position but immediately takes off again.

There is plenty of chance for practice on this trip. Bonaventure and her 1,300 men, in company with 13 other surface ships and submarines, are going as far as Uruguay in the lower part of South America and there will be a steady fare of manoeuvres.

For pilots of the helicopters and Tracker anti-submarine aircraft aboard Bonaventure, there are practice takeoffs and landings and exercises with other ships and planes.

Out of the 74 days, 23 will be in port. There will be five days each in Port of Spain, Trinidad; Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, and Montevideo, Uruguay, and four days each in Bahia, Brazil, and San Juan, Puerto Rico.

RE: GARBAGE RECEPTACLES

By-Law No. 7921 specifies that polyethelene or paper bags manufactured for use as disposable garbage bags; metal or other suitable watertight containers not larger than 17 gallons in size and equipped with handles and properly fitted covers, shall be used when placing out garbage and rubbish for collection.

The word "suitable" is intended to mean the standard type of receptacle, and all householders are respectfully requested to obtain and use same.

Open hampers, wash tubs, ordinary paper bags, and small five gallon pails, are unsuitable and their use should be discontinued. The Municipal Contractor is not required to collect garbage placed out in this manner.

The various sizes of miscellaneous metal containers with straight sides now being used by some, are in most cases unsuitable. In the near future these containers will be tagged with the request that the standard type of receptacle be obtained and used. The Contractor will continue to collect garbage placed out in these containers, to give time for standard receptacles to be obtained.

Park Dale Residents "Storming" Over Lack Of Storm Sewers

By HARRY MULHALL

CITY COUNCILLOR Dr. Russell Scott hears complaints of Parkdale resident Mrs. Ken MacDonald.

There's another flood on Belleville's Parkdale Drive but householders have kept their fighting powder dry — and they're fighting mad.

Yesterday they were gunning for city hall.

"I'd like to go down and wring a few necks there," one housewife shouted from her front steps as water lapped across her lawn.

Her bluntness summed up feelings along the whole street — running east off Sidney Street in the Park Dale subdivision.

For the past three years residents have been paying a special tax for local improvements — including storm sewers.

So far the sewers have not materialized — and absence of the service comes graphically to attention about this time of year when the first thaw melts the snows of winter.

Yesterday's balmy weather precipitated such an instance.

Water flowed into the street, making a wading pool at its Sidney Street intersection and flooding open drainage ditches in front of each house.

The pool was an inconvenience; the flooded ditches a danger to child safety as far as residents are concerned.

One man claimed water was up to five feet deep in the ditches before a city work crew opened up a runoff channel on Sidney to drain the area later in the day.

"A kid could drown down there," he charged.

The hazard is compounded by the nearness of public school reached by its more than 250 pupils by way of Park dale Drive.

Yesterday, city police despatched a wagon to the scene and helped ferry the children through the flood.

Johnson Says People, Congress Back Policies

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson says the American people and the U.S. Congress overwhelmingly support his policies in Viet Nam and that no one has presented "a clear alternative to recommend itself in preference to what we are doing.

"Most people wish we weren't out there, most people wish we didn't have a war, most people don't want to escalate it, and most people don't want to get out," Johnson told a surprise press conference in his White House office Friday.

The president said more U.S. troops will be sent to South Viet Nam to bolster some 200,000 already there.

Although "a good many people in the country . . . are troubled about Viet Nam and wish we could find some way to negotiate," Johnson told reporters, "I think the country overwhelmingly supports the position that we have taken. I believe that the members of the House (of representatives) and the Senate do likewise."

While there seemed little question that the president's course has the support of a majority of both houses, the preponderance of mail to some senators indicates there may be a large body of dissent within the United States.

OPPOSE POLICY

The mail to such senators as J. W. Fulbright (Dem. Ark.), chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, who has questioned Johnson's Viet Nam policies, was running overwhelmingly against the administration.

The proportion of adverse mail was nearly as large to such supporters of presidential policy as Senator Hugh Scott (Rep. Pa.).

As for the testimony at a congressional hearing of retired Lt.-Gen. James M. Gavin and former diplomat George F. Kennan, Johnson said "I don't see that they have done any harm to anybody."

Although he hasn't read the transcript of their testimony, Johnson said "I gather from what Gen. Gavin said in summary there is not a great deal of difference between what he and Kennan are saying and what the government is doing.

"No one wants to escalate the war and no one wants to lose any more men than is necessary. No one wants to surrender and get out. At least no one admits they do. So I don't see that there is any great difference of opinion."

Johnson said Gavin and Kennan were "the only two experts that I have seen put on" and that Gavin "said he didn't want to get out. He said he didn't want to escalate. That is the way we feel about it."

As for Kennan, former U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia, Johnson said he didn't want to escalate, but that he didn't want to pick up and run out.

Medicare Bill Is Approved

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts said Friday his government's third medical care bill in four years may not be the final answer to medical insurance because it is but one part of an over-all health services program.

The government gave second reading, approval in principle, to a bill amending the Medical Insurance Act. The vote was 55 to 23, with Liberals and New Democrats opposing the Con[illegible]tives.

The premier told the legislature that the Conservative government makes no apologies for the broad changes made this year to legislation first introduced in 1963 and finally passed through the house last year.

"We said last year we did not think it was the final answer and I doubt whether the bill in its present form is the final answer."

Yet, the premier said, at least the bill would guarantee a government-operated medical plan would go into effect July 1.

The Liberals proposed an amendment that would stall introduction of the plan for a couple of years.

DERIDES LIBERALS

In a rare partisan outburst, Mr. Robarts derided the Liberal motion, describing it as "the most ridiculous amendment [illegible]ever read in my life." He [illegible] it would do nothing for the people of Ontario within the foreseeable future.

Passage of second reading automatically defeated the Liberal motion.

Mr. Robarts said the bill will move on to the next legislative stage—committee of the whole house—Monday, when it will receive detailed clause-by-clause consideration.

The legislation promises to make medical insurance, covering physicians', surgeons' and some specialists' care at home, office or hospital, available to any individual who wants to buy it for $60 a year.

The cost to a couple will be $120 and to a family of three or more $150. Subsidies of $30 for an individual and $60 for famil[illegible] will be offered to those in [illegible]ncome brackets.

OUTLINE PLAN

The government also plans to enrol at no cost all persons in Ontario now receiving welfare aid or old age assistance. Medical insurance also will be free for those with no taxable income.

Mr. Robarts said the training of medical personnel is considered as one of the province's

CF-5 Training Simulator Contract Is Cancelled

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department has suddenly cancelled plans to obtain a CF-5 fighter-bomber training simulator after authorizing the defence production department to enter into a contract for one with Canadian Aviation Electronics Ltd. of Montreal, informed sources here have disclosed.

Defence department officials said the simulator, which enables a pilot to undergo flight training on the ground, was ordered in error and that the RCAF had decided it didn't need one.

But other sources said the cancellation was ordered soon after the U.S. defence department decided to purchase the U.S. Ling-Temco-Vought A-7 attack plane for the U.S. Air Force and not the American Northrop F-5 Freedom fighter.

Canada had hoped to sell F-5 simulators to other countries as well as the F-5 itself (C is for Canadian in CF-5).

The "letter of intent" with the Montreal firm had specified development of F-5 simulators in both the Canadian and American versions of the plane.

Officials said Friday it is expected the government will have to pay Canadian Aviation Electronics a small amount for what in effect is breach of contract.

The CF-5 will be the only RCAF combat plane without a training ground simulator. Officials said this will increase the cost of pilot training, which will have to be conducted entirely in the air.

Informants said there was a momentary panic in the aircraft industry when the simulator was scrapped because it was feared the entire CF-5 program would end up on the junk heap.

However, officials said the program to acquire up to 125 CF-5s at a cost of $215,000,000 is going ahead. The first plane is expected to come off the Canadair Ltd. assembly line at Montreal next year.

A U.S. congressional committee on tactical air support reported Feb. 1:

"The (U.S.) air force also has the mission of providing close air support for our army on the ground. It has never developed one plane for this particular purpose. It is not developing one today."

The A-7 now on order for the U.S. Air Force originally was built for the U.S. Navy.

Railway Services Debated

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — It was all aboard the CPR's Dominion for the second day in the Commons Friday as MPs continued their beef against the privately-owned railway's cutting of passenger train services.

Davie Fulton, former Conservative justice minister and member for Kamloops, said the CPR has thrown away the goodwill it has enjoyed for years by deliberately making train travel as unpleasant as possible.

Mr. Fulton joined other MPs in demanding the CPR restore the cross - country Dominion passenger train which went into mothballs after the board of transport commissioners approved its demise last fall.

Mr. Fulton said the CPR is making "enormous profits" out of the land grants and mineral rights it was given by Parliament to build the national service. The company is under a moral, if not legal, obligation to restore the Dominion, he said.

Norman Fawcett (NDP—Nickel Belt), a former CPR conductor and a veteran of 25 years in the railway business, said the CPR apparently is pricing itself out of the passenger business.

Mr. Fawcett said in its sub-

Capture at St. Catharines

Nab 3 Convicts - - Foil Roadblock Dash at Gunpoint

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) Police at a roadblock looking for three escaped convicts wanted for kidnapping and rape arrested three men today.

Police, after a period of conflicting reports, said they were "almost positive" they were the three wanted men.

At first, they were identified as the three convicts, then there was a report that only one convict was among the three.

The men were arrested at gunpoint at a roadblock in the city.

Police said they were taken to police headquarters here in separate police cars for questioning.

Police throughout the province were looking for John Eaton, 25, of Moose Jaw, Sask., Harold Dankwardt, 20, of Kitchener and Thomas Brydges, 21, of Elmira, Ont., who escaped from Collins Bay penitentiary in Kingston Wednesday in a panel truck.

Police believe they are the men who kidnapped and raped a Scarborough woman Thursday and attempted to attack a motorist near Beaverton, about 40 miles north of Toronto Friday.

Warrants charging the men with kidnapping and rape were sworn out by provincial police Friday.

Police said the men tried to run a roadblock manned by one cruiser and two constables. Their car hit the cruiser and spun around.

Brendan Kennedy, 28, of St. Catharines, an eyewitness, said "clothes and guns spewed out of the car all over the place."

Mr. Kennedy said police approached the car with guns drawn and had no trouble making the arrest.

He described the guns as "shotguns and rifles."

Provincial police have been told by radio to resume normal patrols in the St. Catharines area.

Three men appeared at the farm home of Ronald McGuire at Blackheath, 10 miles south of here at 7 a.m. When the McGuire's offered to call police for help, the men fled.

Later, the men paid Gordon Bates, a local service station operator, to tow the car out of the snowbank, police said.

The report moved the centre of the search area from the east side of Lake Simcoe, where a motorist, Frank Bobyk of Barrie, was stopped on the highway by two men Friday afternoon and fended off an attack by raising the power-operated window of his car.

The men escaped from the medium security Collins Bay Penitentiary at Kingston in a panel truck Wednesday.

All available off-duty police in the Niagara Peninsula area are being pressed into service to help track down the men.

The motorist, Frank Bobyk of Barrie, was stopped on the highway by two men Friday afternoon and fended off an attack with the power window of his car.

Provincial police at Beaverton, 25 miles east of Barrie, said they were fairly certain the attack came from the men who Thursday kidnapped Eveline Forsyth, 40, of Scarborough, from her car and left her tied to a chair in a motel room north of Barrie.

Mrs. Forsyth's attackers were believed to be three convicts who crashed out of Collins Bay Penitentiary at Kingston in a panel truck Wednesday.

Warrants charging the three men with kidnapping and rape were sworn out by provincial police Friday.

The three are John Eaton, 25, of Moose Jaw, Sask., Harold Dankwardt, 20, of Kitchener and Thomas Brydges, 21, of Elmira, Ont.

Police at Beaverton, 25 miles east of Barrie, said Mr. Bobyk was flagged down by a man on Highway 12, six miles south of Beaverton.

He told police that when he stopped a second man came up to the car and one of the men said there was a sick woman in a car parked just off the highway.

Mild Weather Brings Flood Danger Warnings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The second day of a February mild spell Friday sent temperatures to records in various Ontario communities, melted out a number of winter carnivals, forced the cancellation of ski competitions and brought flood danger warnings from the provincial government.

Establishing high - temperature records for Feb. 11 were:

—Killaloe, 43 degrees, six higher than the record set in 1950;

—North Bay, 38 degrees, previous record 34 in 1960;

—Centralia, 41 degrees, previous record 37 in 1950 and 1951.

—Toronto, 42 degrees, previous record 40 in 1951.

Wiarton with 38 degrees, Windsor with 42 and Ottawa with 43 tied previous records.

At Sault Ste. Marie, the winter carnival was washed away in a flood of melted snow, and the Yankeanuck invitational international ski meet was cancelled. Harness racing took the place of a snowmobile race.

Outdoor events at the Barrie winter carnival were almost all cancelled.

The Ontario junior ski meet at Georgian Peaks near Collingwood was readjusted because of lack of snow on the slopes. The nordic events were moved to North Bay.

The conservation authorities branch of the provincial government warned that some flooding was possible in southern Ontario because of rain and runoff from the snow melt. It said ice jams on major rivers and streams were also possible.

Wind-swept ice floes from the St. Clair River disrupted operation of the Walpole Island ferry across the Syne Channel Friday, and 147 Walpole Indian children attending Wallaceburg schools were dismissed early to ensure their arrival home during the day.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Maximums today should again be pleasantly mild even though they will be a few degrees colder than those recorded Friday.

With cold arctic air advancing eastward across the Prairies and a Texas storm expected to move towards the lower Great Lakes on Sunday the end of the pleasantly mild weather is in sight. The arctic air will spread into the northern regions overnight and early Sunday preceded by snow and drifting snow and followed by snowflurries. The Texas storm will bring some snow to southern Ontario on Sunday. Over Southwestern Ontario the snow could change to rain.

Schammerhorn drove the children through the flood to Sidney Street.

For area residents the safety threat is no idle factor. In 1960 a boy drowned in flooded drainage ditch at nearby College and Lemoine Streets. (Firefighter Ralph Thompson who found the child and attempted to revive him, attributes arthritis he now suffers to the incident).

However, indignation against city council runs the safety hazard a good second in house-owners' mind right now. Bluntly, they're storming over the non-existence of storm sewers.

PAY FOR SEWERS

"Everybody on this street has been paying extra on their assessment for storm sewers we've never had," complained one man. "I phoned the tax department to find out how long I've been paying for these sewers they've not put in. Apparently it's been three years now."

City councillor Dr. Russell Scott said Parkdale Drive residents have been promised the sewers for four years.

"It's ridiculous," announced the alderman, who drove out to talk to householders late in the afternoon, "both for the residents and the protection and health of their children."

He said he would bring the issue before city council Monday night.

One resident wondered about collective action.

"I was thinking if we could get the ratepayers together to see if we could do something about it," he pondered.

Another was bluntly sarcastic and poked cynicism at the city's recent public relations gesture in sending snow removal machines to aid Oswego, N.Y.

"We can send equipment to Oswego — but they can't send a couple of trucks up here to do something about this," he cracked.

Bank Manager Retires After Long Service

TRENTON — T. W. Hetherington, the manager of the Trenton branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, announced his retirement this week, after 44 years in banking service. Mr. Hetherington worked in the Standard Bank of Canada at Belleville from 1927 to 1935.

A past president of the Trenton Rotary Club, Mr. Hetherington has also been very active in other community organizations. He and Mrs. Hetherington will continue to live in Trenton following his official retirement which will become effective in a few weeks.

Ernest Trueman, the manager of the Peterborough branch of the bank, will replace Mr. Hetherington.

Young People Take Part In Parliament

TRENTON — Tonight, young people from all Trenton churches will take part in the first Ecumenical Youth Parliament at King Street United Church and will hear brief addresses from Rev. Appleton of St. Peter's Church, Rev. Anderson of St. George's Anglican Church and Rev. Wm. McDowell, the minister of the King Street Church.

The youth group plans to seek the co-operation of other Trenton ministers with a view to holding weekly inter-denominational services. The pledge of the youth parliament is to break down religious barriers among the young people of the town and, among other objectives, press for a youth centre for the town.

top priorities. Late in 1964 he announced a program of expansion of university medical facilities to cost up to $170,000,000, he said, but it now appears this estimate was too conservative.

The federal proposal to establish a $500,000,000 health resources fund to be paid out to the provinces over the next 15 years is not large enough, the premier said.

He refused to commit Ontario to joining in a national universal medical insurance program July 31, 1967, as proposed by the federal government, because of continuing developments in this and in the whole field of federal - provincial fiscal relations.

SHOWS INTEREST

Mr. Robarts showed interest in a proposal by Quebec Premier Lesage to allow provinces to opt out of federal - provincial shared-cost programs unconditionally. The medical insurance plan would be a shared one, with Ottawa contributing 50 per cent to provinces meeting certain conditions.

Ontario is not pleased with the four conditions the federal government says it must meet to qualify for the grant. Premier Robarts particularly does not like the idea of making medical insurance compulsory.

Quebec is opting out of shared - cost programs in return for a federal financial contribution about equal to the amount of money lost to the province through the lack of a federal share.

Mr. Robarts said Ontario has no policy on opting out, but that this avenue remains open to the province.

NEW STAMPS COMING

OTTAWA (CP) — The floral emblems and crests of the Yukon and Northwest Territories will be featured on two new postage stamps which go on sale March 23, the post office announced Friday. The five-cent stamps, are the 12th and 13th in the Centennial series honoring various geographic regions.

Flying Club Holds Dinner, Dance and Awards Trophies

Twenty-five flyers received their wings and their private pilot's licences last night at the Prince Edward Flying Club's Annual Dinner Dance at Club Cedars.

Murray Clapp, chief flying instructor and manager of the Prince Edward Flying Club, presented the awards to the graduates.

The pilot's course is a 35-hour Department of Transport course which includes navigation instruction, dual and solo flying and which demands at least a 60 per cent average in the written examinations and the flight test.

Gregory Anderson, Bancroft, received the Dr. R. F. Evans Trophy for the graduating pilot with the highest combined average in the written exam and flight test. His average was 85.6 per cent.

The President's Trophy, for the person who has done the most to promote flying in the area was presented to Hadley Richardson, Frankford. Alan Lawes, president of the Oak Hills Flying Club accepted the trophy on behalf of Mr. Richardson.

The Elliot Shannon Memorial Trophy, for a member other than a director who has done the most work in the club, was won by James Law, R. R. 7, Belleville.

Donald Rodgers, reeve of Stirling, was given the "Tolip Trophy," a rather dubious distinction given to the flyer who pulls the biggest goof of the season.

Receiving pilot's licences were: David Daugharty, Basil Kirby, John Krupic and Peter Radonicich, Belleville; Gregory Anderson, Norman Maxwell, Milton McGhee and Dennis Young, Bancroft; Allen Lawes, J. F. McGarvey, Raymond Rose, Donald Rodgers and Claude Trumble, Stirling; Gary Chynne and John Farrell, Toronto; John Clarke, Woodstock; Donald Grant, Campbellford; David Harrison, Picton; Bruce Page, Verona; Harold Robinson, Wellington; Ralph Richards, Wooler; Robert Stuart, Trenton; Paul Tatton, Willowdale; Wilfred Turner, Campbellford; and Kendall Wilson, Scarborough.

Receiving co-pilot's licences were: Barbara Lumbers and Clarence Meyers, Belleville; Margaret Sine, Harold; Helen Rodgers, Stirling and Keith Whalen, Point Anne.

FRIDAY, Feb. 11, 1966

The Commons spent a third day on transport department spending, the railways coming in for most criticism.

Davie Fulton (PC — Kamloops) said the CPR wanted to trim passenger service although it had made a fortune through government land grants.

The government released the results of a study of Hong Kong veterans recommending that almost all of them should get higher pensions.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce submitted a brief to the government asking for long-range policies to promote industrial growth.

MONDAY, Feb. 14

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to continue study of spending estimates. Spending estimates for 1966-67 are to be tabled. The Senate stands adjourned until Feb. 22.

mission to the board the CPR used statistics to make the Dominion look like a losing operation while last summer the CNR' western run was overloaded.

Lawrence Watson (PC — Assiniboia) criticized the passenger and freight services of both railways. He joined the chorus of MPs who say grain is moving slowly to the West Coast.

Eldon Woolliams (PC — Bow River) said empty ships are in Vancouver harbor waiting for wheat to arrive from the Prairies.

Transport Minister Pickersgill, whose departmental estimates are being debated, said there was "marked improvement" during last week in handling wheat at Vancouver.

Other rail services took their lumps as well.

Russell Keays (PC — Gaspe) invited Mr. Pickersgill to take a trip on the CNR's Gaspe-Matapedia train. The 200-mile run had a 1915 passenger car hooked onto a freight. The passenger car has wooden benches and a coal stove, he said.

And, he said, the dayliner serves week-old sandwiches.

J. A. Habel (L — Cochrane) said the CNR should reconsider its plans to abandon passenger service on a 62-mile stretch between Kapuskasing and Hearst in Northern Ontario.

CLC to Set Up Fund To Fight Injunctions

OSHAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress will set up a defence fund to pay costs of fighting injunctions filed against labor in union disputes, says President David Archer of the Ontario Federation of Labor.

The fund will be set up to provide for court costs, legal fees, fines, damage actions or any other expense involve for unions in battling the use of injunctions, he told a press conference Friday after a two-hour meeting here of more than 60 Canadian labor heads.

Those present included George Burt of Windsor, Canadian director of United Automobile Workers of America and William Mahoney, Toronto, Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America. Claude Jodoin, Ottawa, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, and Larry Sefton of Toronto, director of Area six of United Steelworkers of America, were also on hand.

Mr. Archer said the situation at Oshawa, where a strike by the Oshawa local of the Toronto Newspaper Guild against the Oshawa Times was settled Thursday after the use of mass picketing by other labor unions, was reviewed.

WORKS ON BRIEF

The Oshawa and District Labor Council is drawing up a brief which will be presented to the CLC executive to say exactly what happened. It will be mimeographed and sent to other labor unions for their information and so they can decide what to do under similar circumstances.

Mr. Jodoin told questioners that labor's right to picket will be made plain to provincial and federal governments and that labor is going to continue its big fight against injunctions in union disputes. Because this could involve certain infringements of the Criminal Code, amendments to the code might be needed, said Mr. Jodoin.

The CLC executive committee meeting next week will consider an inquiry into injunctions. Picketing must be peaceful, he said, even though there might be 16,000 men thrown around plants.

"The streets belong to the citizens and union members are citizens," he said. "Unions are entitled to have a lawful assembly of people. I can't condone violence to stop people going through the picket lines.

"Mass picketing may help people decide that enough of their friends are against them going into a struck plant and this may help make them decide not go in."

IN MEMORIAM

SERO — In loving memory of my dear son Freeman Franklin (Johnnie) Sero, who passed away February 12, 1964.

Peaceful be thy sleep dear son,
It is sweet to breathe thy name,
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.
Oft we think of you, dear son,
And our hearts are sad with pain,
Oh, this would be a Heaven,
Could we hear your voice again.
You are gone but not forgotten,
Never shall your memory fade,
Sweetest thoughts shall ever linger,
Around the grave where you are laid.

—Always remembered by Mother and Dad, sisters Ruby and Peggy, and brother Willie.

DIVERSION SUGGESTED

T. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—remier Joseph Smallwood says the "greatest and latest concept" for the development of the Churchill River in Labrador is the diversion of its water to the Great Lakes. The premier, addressing the Newfoundland Board of Trade meeting, said the idea was "that a small amount of the electricity might be used to pump that water back across the continent into Lake Ontario or into one of the other Great Lakes . . ."

Billy Graham Picture to Be Shown Here

"The Restless Ones," considered the most successful motion picture yet produced by Evangelist Billy Graham, will be shown in Belleville on March 4 and 5 in the B.C.I. auditorium.

With the accent on youth, this feature - length film deals imaginatively and dramatically with the teen - age crisis. With a background setting provided by the 1963 Billy Graham Los Angeles Crusade artfully woven into the story pattern, "The Restless Ones" is a hard-hitting, bold aproach to social problems.

One reviewer said: "Here is a picture that tells the world the truth and comes up with an answer, not an easy answer, but an answer from beyond us." This answer will challenge and inspire young and old alike and will appeal to churchgoers and non - churchgoers. The Christian message comes through in the midst of a realistic teen-age situation, cleanly and without cloying. Swift-moving plot episodes highlight the opportunities facing the church.

Vegetable, Fruit Growers To Hold Votes

TORONTO (CP) — Organized fruit and vegetable growers will vote early next month on a proposal to set up marketing boards to establish minimum prices for their crops, spokesmen for the Ontario growers said Thursday.

James McCullough of Vineland, secretary of the Niagara Peninsula Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association, said prices of pears, plums and other fruits have fallen sharply in years of big supply.

Agriculture statistics show that in 1964 plum and prune crops combined brought growers about half the return of 10 years earlier — $490,000 compared with $941,600, he said. The return for pears was up 39 per cent to $594,000 from $362,000 but the average price was lower in 1964—3.65 cents a pound compared with 3.85 cents.

Peach growers, however, who have been setting minimum prices since 1954, reported returns in 1964 of more than double those of 10 years earlier, Mr. McCullough said.

John Wist of Kettleby, a member of the Ontario Onion Growers Association, said the 1965 crop made no money for growers.

Voting will be held March 7 for peaches, pears, plums and prunes, and March 14 for onions at various Ontario centres.

ACCEPT NEW SYMBOL

TORONTO (CP)—United Appeal campaigns in Canada will operate under a new symbol of four blue tie on a white field. The English version will include the words "United Appeal," the French will read "Partegeons" (let us share). The design, by a Toronto firm, was accepted unanimously Friday by Canadian delegates attending the conference of the United Community Funds and Councils of America.

Foxboro Woman Chief Worker On New Adventist Church Here

CHURCH BUILDER — Mrs. Leon Trupp, R. R. 1 Foxboro, hoists brick at the new Seventh-day Adventist Church now under construction on Dundas Street West in Belleville. The church, being built by volunteer labor, has seen Mrs. Trupp "man of all trades" almost single-handedly nail on the roof sheathing.

CHURCH BLUE PRINTS are checked by Mrs. Leon Trupp and volunteer worker Alfred Woodhouse of Belleville. "I've learned a lot," the woman "man of all trades" admits.

How do you get a new church built when the congregation has but limited funds to put into the project?

As far as Mrs. Leon Trupp, R. R. 1 Foxboro is concerned, the answer is to get the project started, round up all the volunteer labor possible - and then do a big share of the work by yourself.

Since early last Fall, Mrs. Trupp has been the number one "man of all trades" at the site of the new Seventh-day Adventist Church on West Dundas St. She helped to lay the foundation blocks, assisted in erecting the big laminated fir rafters, nailed practically all of the roof sheathing on by herself and is now carrying bricks and mixing mortar to get the brick finishing completed.

"I didn't know a thing about blue prints when we started the Church, but believe me I have learned a lot," Mrs. Trupp said yesterday as she paused briefly from her job of mixing mortar.

NO CONTRACTOR

The church project was commenced without a building contractor. A Seventh-day Adventist minister from the Toronto area checked on construction details on week-ends and in the interval volunteers from the 28-adult member congregation got the job done.

This week the roof sheathing is in place, the brickwork is nearing completion and then the roof insulation and shingles will go on. Still to do are the furnace and plumbing installations, the electric wiring and the interior finishing.

And Mrs. Trupp expects to keep right on the job until the finish.

Mrs. Trupp would be the first to admit that other members of the congregation have also contributed a great deal of labor to the church building.

And she is not the only woman to put in countless hours on the job. Mrs. Jennie Knister, R. R. 5, Belleville, has also put in many volunteer hours of work.

WANT OWN PASTOR

Pastor of the local Seventh-day Adventists congregation is John Howard of Kingston, but the local group are looking forward to the day when they have their own pastor. The group now holds services in the Orange Hall on Church street.

The handsome new church, when completed, will seat approximately 150, while the full basement will be used as a Sabbath School and by their Dorcas Welfare Society.

The estimated cost of the new church — not counting the thousands of hours of volunteer labor — was $36,000. But Mrs. Trupp admits that they underestimated.

Besides the countless hours put in on the church building project, Mrs. Trupp and her husband have also contributed financially.

Last fall they donated the entire apple crop from their Marsh Hill district farm to the church building fund.

"We had the best apple crop in the eight years we've been on the farm," Mrs. Trupp said. "I think it was because of the church."

Western Oils Capture Most Of Limelight in Active Trade

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets finished an active week of trading with western oils capturing most of the limelight.

At Toronto, volume was 31,505,186 shares compared with 26,539,757 last week and market value was $88,213,117 compared with $70,839,654.

Due to heavy demand in western oil stocks the oil index climbed 4.68 to 115.87, its highest level since August, 1957.

Some analysts attribute the increase to the designation of Alberta's Rainbow area as an oil field by the province's oil and gas conservation board.

Dynamic Petroleum, which had been delayed 1¼ hours following Thursday's stock opening, paced the group with a jump of 1.59 to 3.35 on 2,960,969 shares. It had been as high as 3.85.

The delay resulted from difficulty in matching buy and sell orders after the company announced it did not have information regarding a hole being drilled by Pan American Petroleum Corp. and Socony Mobil of Canada Ltd. in the Rainbow Lake area.

In other oil activity, Home Oil A was up 1⅛ to 20⅛, Scurry Rainbow 1½ to 22¾ and Canadian Superior 1 to 24.

Banks were mixed with Imperial-Commerce up ½ to 68¼ and Montreal ¼ to 63¾. Toronto-Dominion was off 1½ to 65.

Anthes Imperial and B-A Oil gained ⅜ each to 27⅛ and 31. Wainwright climbed 1.05 to 1.90. Bell Telephone fell 1¼ to 58½ and CPR 1⅛ to 62¾.

Base metals failed to regain last week's losses. Falconbridge slid 3⅛ to 105½, Cominco 1½ to 47 and Denison 1⅜ to 39. Inco was ahead 3 to 107.

Gold issues fell sharply. However, La Luz countered the trend and added 4⅜ at 24¼.

In speculative mine activity, D'Eldona lost 23 cents to 1.16 on 1,345,538 shares. Wilco was down 15 to 55 cents.

On index, industrials were up .15 to 174.18 and the TSE .19 to 164.85. Golds fell 3.23 to 178.24 and base metals 1.14 to 90.79.

At Montreal, industrials were up 1.53 to 170.98. Utilities were off 2.71 to 153.14, banks .21 to 127.95 and papers 1.27 to 124.07. Volume was 7,834,511 shares compared with 8,169,347 last week.

Employment News

The salient feature of the local employment trend during the past week was the continuing strength in the construction field which has been particularly active during the past few months.

Supplementing this phase of the economy is the increasing awareness among community's residents of the benefits to be derived from supporting and participating in the "Do It Now — Why Wait for Spring" campaign. Supporting this principle, it is to be noted that since December, eight municipal winter works projects have been approved in this area, thereby providing employment to a number of workers who might otherwise be jobless.

The winter employment campaign has publicized the tangible benefits to be derived by the community as a whole, if the "Do It Now" slogan received active support. For householders, whether rural or urban, there are many ways of supporting this campaign during the remaining winter months, such as, interior decorating, converting a basement into a recreation room or modernizing a kitchen or bathroom. There are also repairs which can be done to electrical fixtures and equipment, to furniture, garden tools, power mowers and boating, fishing and hunting equipment. Whether a skilled tradesman, semi-skilled or unskilled worker is required, the National Employment Service Office will be pleased to refer a suitable worker. This service is as close as the telephone by dialling 962-8681, the telephone number of the local NES office.

JOBS VACANT

The following employment openings are available through the local NES office —

In the female division, locally, an excellent position is available for an accounting clerk. The requirements call for 5 years' experience in bookkeeping and the ability to operate a National Cash posting machine in addition to typing. It is preferred that the successful applicant be over 27 years of age. Also required by a retail store is an experienced window trimmer.

A stenographer with 5 years' industrial experience is required by a firm situated in Northern Ontario. A good salary is offered with this position. Attractive employment opportunities are available as airplane hostesses. The requirements are single only — at time of employment — height 5'2" to 5'8" with weight in proportion to height within the 105 to 135 lb. range. The educational requirements call for high school junior matriculation or commercial or business equivalent. A monthly salary of $150 is paid during the 5-week training period with meals and hotel accommodation also being paid during this period. Thereafter an excellent salary is paid for the monthly flying time of 65 to 80 hours, depending upon the type of aircraft.

Opportunities to enter the printing trade as an apprentice occur infrequenttly anywhere but we have one now in the Quinte area, in the male division locally. One of our oldest and most esteemed publishing houses wishes to apprentice a young man in the formal 6-year course. This is a splendid chance to become a skilled member of one of the oldest and most respected crafts. Interested young men should get in touch immediately with this office.

By co-incidence — two large industries in nearby communities are looking for electrical maintenance and repairmen. Both offer satisfactory pay rates and long term employment.

Maintenance technicians are needed by a TV station in a community directly north of us — known in the trade by the titles maintenance- technician-operator and switches. Some experience is, of course, necessary.

Too numerous to describe at this time in detail, requirements exist in this and neighboring counties for a wide range of skilled tradesmen, including machinists, auto mechanics, shipfitters, steamfitters, plant maintenance men, and others.

A fourth class engineer is rather urgently needed by an industry located in Central Hastings.

If you are interested in any of these positions, seeking employment or thinking of re-entering the labor market, contact the local National Employment Service Office at 324 Church Street, Belleville, Ont., or telephone 962-8681.

No Extension For Buying Licence Plates

Every other licence plate on Ontario's roads today is going out of style.

In just over two weeks, they'll not only be out of style, they'll be illegal.

The Minister of Transport, Hon. Irwin Haskett, said today that only 49.5 per cent of plates and permits have been issued compared to 58.3 per cent at this time last year.

The Minister warned that there will be no extension of the February 28th deadline for the purchase of 1966 licence plates and vehicle permits. They have been on sale since December 1st.

"It seems to be human nature to put off the purchase of plates," said Mr. Haskett. "I strongly suggest to all those who have not obtained them that they delay no longer."

As in previous years, 1966 plates for commercial vehicles will go on sale March 1st.

RUSSIA AIDS CUBA

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Soviet trade minister announced Friday night a new trade agreement had been signed with Cuba, boosting commerce between the two countries by 20 per cent. The Soviet Union will give Cuba $91,000,000 credit to make up the difference between the goods shipped to Cuba and those sold to the U.S.S.R., the trade minister, Nikolai Patolichev, said on a Havana radio broadcast.

Taxpayers' Dilemma

A letter on this page today sets out very clearly the difficulties that average-income citizens find themselves in as the result of the provincial budget which provides for across-the-board increases in the price of almost every essential article the householder purchases today.

The writer, a district homemaker, refers to the already high cost of food, clothing and household facilities such as heat, light and water, and notes that the taxes "hit hardest the ones who can least afford it."

Although food and children's clothing are not involved in the new tax structure, the business of providing for the youngsters in these respects calls for very careful budgeting.

"The vast number of people are unable to put aside any money for savings," says the writer, adding. "There are hundreds of families living from pay day to pay day, even with both parents working full time."

And yet, as we pointed out editorially Friday, the overall increases are not unexpected. The province has already entered an era of vast expansion. Education and health services must be paid for.

The figures alone prove this. The Ontario government expenditure for the 1966-67 fiscal year beginning April 1 (when the new taxes come into effect) has been forecast by Provincial Treasurer James Allan at $1,812,900,000. The increase over spending during the current fiscal year is estimated at $318,800,000.

Of this latter amount, 73 per cent will be spent on education and health.

Ontario cannot progress without these essential services. In an age in which education is undergoing revolutionary changes to cope with the increasing demands of technology and an automated society, the people of Ontario are entitled to no less than the best. Health services are also fundamental to an advanced society such as we enjoy.

The only way these services can be provided and paid for is through taxation. And despite the extra burden it represents there are still items of a non-essential nature on which savings can be made — as the taxpayer well knows.

Never Too Old

Among the most enthusiastic globe-trotters of the jet era is a group known collectively as "little old ladies from Kansas City." Indeed, most of them are Americans and they come not only from Kansas but every state in the union.

Reading about such inveterate travellers is certainly an encouragement to the many of more tender years, from 18 up who feel the call of adventure but for one reason or another — including age, infirmity or sheer lack of get-up-and-go — seldom venture beyond their county boundaries.

Mrs. Bessie Sweeney of Washington, D.C. is a case in point. At 86 she was the oldest passenger aboard the Argentine navy cruise vessel Lapataia on its recent venture into Antarctica. She described the trip in a recent article for the Associated Press reprinted in this newspaper.

Perhaps Mrs. Sweeney had more encouragement to make such a journey than most. Her son, Edward Sweeney is president of the New York Explorers' Club, and one of Antarctica's mountain ranges is named after him. Still, there are many others like her, roaming this fast-shrinking world while they may.

And why Antarctica? Well it is one of the last frontiers, a region of incomparable natural beauty, of sunlight playing on a vast expanse of ice-capped mountains. Mrs. Sweeney, widely-travelled, calls it "the most beautiful part of the world."

Fair Play

In a film comedy screened recently at a Belleville theatre, Doris Day picked up a fox which had been pursued right to the front door of her country home in England.

Then, with a few well-chosen words she sent both hounds and huntsmen running. Turning to her companion, Hermione Baddeley, owner of her rented home, Miss Day exclaimed heatedly, "Did you ever see anything like that?" English to the core, Miss Baddeley replied: "Frankly No!"

We were reminded of this amusing little scene while reading that Ontario's wolves have found a champion in Elmer Sopha, Liberal member of the legislature for Sudbury.

Mr. Sopha told the public accounts committee that those who shot wolves from aircraft should not be awarded bounty.

Borrowing from Oscar Wilde, he said: "That is the uneatable being pursued by the unspeakable. I'm for the wolves."

Indeed, there is such a thing as fair play. But nowadays wolves, deer and other game hardly stand a chance, what with hunters in helicopters, snowcats and the like.

Our Vestige of Tail Can Cause Us Pain

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Occasionally my coccyx hurts when I sit To my knowledge I have had no injury there. What can I do to relieve the pain? — Mrs. C. S.

Dear Doctor I have had soreness in the coccyx for four months. A warm bath, rubber ring to sit on, lying on the stomach brings only temporary relief. I have been told that it is a common discomfort and will soon disappear. — Mrs. B. R.

Coccygodynia, or pain in the region of the coccyx, is rather common. The coccyx is the vestige of a tail at the end of tthe spine.

There are several causes, the most usual one being a sitting fall, as slipping on ice or a throw rug, skiing, skating, etc.

Another common cause, less obvious and hence often not suspected, is faulty sitting posture—sitting in a slouched position, frequently in soft or overstuffed chairs, usually for long periods.

Inflammatory disorders of the pelvic region, rectum, or prostate gland are occasional causes.

From any of these, frequently there is spasm of small muscles attached to the coccyx. Result: Pain when you sit.

What can you do? Sitting in warm water relieves pain and muscle spasm, but that is temporary.

One of the most effective of all remedies is one which a great many people find hard to believe — until they try it. It is the simplest treatment, and costs nothing. Sit upright on a firm seat! Thus you are using nature's upholstery, the buttocks; and are not putting pressure on the tailbone. Try it. And remember that a firm seat, not a soft or overstuffed one, is necessary.

Occasionally taping the buttocks with broad strips of adhesive to protect the bony area is used, and sometimes massage of the small muscles, through the rectum, by a physician is helpful.

Rarely is it necessary to remove the coccyx surgically.

But remember: Proper sitting posture and the right chair is most important.

Dear Dr. Molner: After a thorough physical, my doctor said I was in very good health except for some cervical erosion, which he wants to burn off. How long does it take to get over this? What is the risk if I don't have it done? Can cervical erosion lead to cancer? — Mrs. V. E.

Cervical erosion is a low-grade inflammation of the cervix or neck of the uterus. It may cause you no discomfort but can create a discharge.

The affected tissue can be removed by cautery (or "burning" with electric needle or other means). This can be done in the doctor's office and will be no more disabling than having a mole removed.

Cauterization of such affected tissue minimizes risks of cancerous changes, the cervix of course being an area which should be checked regularly for this.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does fluoridated water help prevent cavities in people past 50? We drink distilled water, but for a few cents more we can get it with fluorine, if there is any possibility that it will prevent tooth decay. — T. C. K.

No, fluoridated water is not of benefit for folks in the 50's. It does its greatest good in childhood (and even can be of value to an unborn baby), and the benefits then last throughout life.

The greatest benefit continues through about age 16; by 21 no further protection is added.

World Fair And Unity

Peterborough Examiner

It is hard to understand what reasonable basis Yvon Dupuis, former minister without portfolio, has for his opinion that a visit from Queen Elizabeth to preside at the opening of the Montreal World's Fair, would be a threat to national unity. Indeed, it is utterances such as Mr. Dupuis' which have done most to obscure the true nature of existing threats to Canadian unity.

Mr. Dupuis is simply reiterating one of the manifestations of a vague sort of disenchantment which is felt by many French - Canadians in regard to what they consider as English institutions. Although the sentiments are understandable, even excusable, they represent a kind of fuzzy-mindedness on the subject which even the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism may not clear away.

Urban Re-development Plans

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

Many Canadian metropolitan centres, like those in the United States, have launched or are planning to begin urban re-development programs. This will involve elimination of slum areas and construction of adequate housing as replacement for run-down, ram-shackle dwellings as well as obsolete business and industrial buildings.

South of the border, the administration at Washington recently established a Department of Housing and Urban Development, with its chief being Robert C. Weaver. Mr. Weaver has had extensive experience in government service, particularly in housing and re-development projects. The department's aim, as outlined by President Johnson, is to rebuild completely on a scale never before attempted, entire central and slum areas of several U.S. cities.

People dispossessed by slum clearance will be given an entirely new housing deal and it will be interesting to see just how those benefitting from this phase of the program will act in their new environment. This is a broad, long-range program which will require some years to implement. But its progress will be watched closely by authorities in large Canadian cities, who face similar undertakings if they are to remove blight under urban renewal programs.

Much the same situation applies to smaller Canadian towns and cities, like Cornwall, which is planning a start on a broad, urban renewal program in the near future. Here, city council is expected to proceed slowly and cautiously because of current financial commitments and those facing the municipality in the immediate future. But, at least, plans call for a modest beginning on urben renewal, whose cost is partly paid for by federal-provincial grants. Specificaly, the old Town Hall building on Pitt street is scheduled for replacement by modern police and fire department quarters.

The city of Hamilton already has made a good start on its urban renewal program through elimination of substandard housing, schools and other buildings. Nearby Kingston also is wrestling with the problem of eliminating slum areas and constructing housing units of modern design.

Thus urban renewal is under way in numerous Canadian and American cities. But the cost naturally is high, even with government financial aid. Decay of cities and towns is a 20th century problem that must be tackled as soon as possible in the interests of both progress and economy.

Secrecy Must Be Curbed

(Winnipeg Tribune)

The federal-provincial conference is proliferating. During 1966 no fewer than 125 meetings of federal-provincial officials are scheduled. These meetings with few exceptions will be secret. At these conferences officials will debate behind closed doors. The public will have no inkling of how decisions were made — decisions which may directly affect their daily lives and pocketbooks.

This is co-operative federalism gone wild. What began as consultation has now, in many cases, become decision-making to the point of no return. The main task of the new Parliament will be to bring this rank growth under control. If it fails to do so, the Commons may oecome a mere ceremonial remnant.

Able, Amiable Paul Martin Friend to All, Foe to None

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Happened to notice, in this still incredibly accident-prone Cabinet, who never, ever finds himself in the Parliamentary soup?

Who somehow manages to stay so clear of personal association with his trouble-starred Cabinet colleagues as to be almost remote, isolated from the contagion of their all but habitual embarrassment and not infrequent humiliation?

Naturally, Paul Martin.

In the nearly three years of this minority administration, nothing has touched him. One crisis has followed another . . . former Finance Minister Walter Gordon's successive Budget bungles . . . the damaging collisions with Quebec . . . the Lucien Rivard case . . . scandals in High Places . . . drumhead Cabinet dismissals . . . continuing ministerial re-shuffles . . . and Paul Martin remains aloof from it all.

Completely clean of any smear of the taint that seems an infection around him, Paul Martin marches grandly on in a sterilized political atmosphere of splendid sanitation.

While daily working out of his East Block office and sitting there on the Government Front Bench in the Commons, he seems to have opted out of any incriminating personal involvement with the collective Cabinet calamities.

INCOMPARABLE

He has no rival as the most urbane, accomplished debater, skilled intervener and ploymaster in Parliament.

There are none so able in so many of the refinements of the political and Parliamentary arts.

Alone in the Commons, he can cope with the Diefenbatterings before which all others in the Cabinet, including the Prime Minister, so often have crumpled.

He has been in the Commons longer — through nine successive Parliaments, this is his tenth, and 31 years — than anybody else on either side of the House.

Alone among the 26 Cabinet Ministers on the Front Benches, it would be safe to say Paul Martin has no enemies, only friends among the 264 other Members of the Commons.

They not only actively like the man, but most have a warm admiration for his sheer, silky professionalism, his smoothly sure Parliamentary know-how in getting things done.

No Member of the minority Government has clobbered the Conservatives more savagely than he — in fact, with grudging admiration rather than resentment, they give him the credit, or the blame, for doing the most to pull down their administration in the final frantic months of former Prime Minister Diefenbaker's regime.

Yet now he co-operates with them, and they with him.

For he has the talent to appear helpful and understanding when actully he isn't really being that way at all. But he is helpfully unhelpful with such amiable charm and goodwill, they forgive him the cheerful deception, even enjoy it for its effortless expertise.

COMING EVENTS

He was standing in again, just the other day, in an "acting" capacity as the Commons calls it; for Prime Minister Pearson.

And for Acting Prime Minister Martin things flowed faultlessly along through what should have been an extended and difficult Question Hour, just as if everybody in the House was a friend (which they were) and Liberals (which they definitely were not.)

Irritation? Doesn't show it.

Worry? Not Paul Martin.

Anger, panic, confusion? Never.

Instead, always calm, ever considerate, in control.

Handling the touchy House, this Parliament of minorities with silk gloves.

So how is it that, as the oldest in Parliamentary experience and wisest in the ways of the Commons, he hasn't dipped even so much as a toe in the Government's sea of woe?

How so when the administration has racketed along from crisis to crisis, the fine Parliamentary mind and the infinite political dexterity of the Old Master most of the time has been missing?

Well, whisper his multitude of friends and well-wishers with urgent hope, he is waiting.

Twice, he has bid for his Party's Leadership, losing first to Louis St. Laurent, then to Lester Pearson.

This next time could and should be his — younger Bob Winters, Mitchell Sharp and Paul Hellyer, all ambitious and desperately working, can gracefully wait their turn.

Meanwhile, Paul Martin the Old Pol is keeping his peace, being careful not to upstage the Prime Minister in Parliament, and more important, giving no faintest clue that he is impatient for this third — and at 62 what must be his last — turn for the job he has undersudied all his long and honorable political life.

Taxation And Tight Budgets

Editor,
The Intelligencer

One truly logical aspect of the new Ontario budget is the effective date: April 1. What better day could have been chosen to mark the beginning of this new tax bite than April Fools day?

It would seem that the only answer to living in Canada is to be comfortably well-off before taking up residence here, for certainly people in the low [illegible]come group are fighting a lo[illegible]ing battle to make ends meet.

Our "cost of living" is up again, and many people are barely able to afford the "cost of survival." The taxes hit hardest the very ones who can least afford it. Pay cheques dwindle away to scant pennies and less and less can be purchased for our dollar.

A vast number of people are unable to put aside any money for savings as there are hundreds of families living from pay day to pay day, often with both parents working full time. Cost of food alone amounts to hundreds of dollars per year for a family of five or six and a good portion of this "grocery money" is spent on non-edibles such as fancy packaging, advertising, and "free gifts" in packages of cereal.

Many Canadian families co[illegible]sume weiners, sausages and hamburg and only on very special occasions a roast or steak, due to the high cost of meat. A housewife may buy $1 of stew beef and serve up a nutritious meal for her family, while $1 of steak would be sufficient for only one member.

A few people may purchase major appliances or furniture as a matter of prestige or keeping up with the Jones but the average person buys only to replace worn-out items, and often can barely afford the retail price without an added sales tax to pay as well. Taxes on luxury items such as tobacco and alcohol may be feasible but essentials should be tax free, and who can consider a 'fridge or washing machine a luxury?

Children's clothing is tax free, that is until they reach th[illegible] age when their clothing co[illegible] under a pre-teen size with a higher price tag, and then their clothes are taxable. A child in public school can wear a $5 dress and no tax is paid but a high school child of 12 who must pay $8 for a skirt and $10-$15 for a dress must also pay tax. By the time children reach high school age it costs more to feed and clothe them and just when their maintenance has increased their clothing becomes taxable as well.

Country residents who moved from high taxes in the city find that on top of paying for installation and upkeep of services such as wells and pressure systems, they are also taxed extra for such things as a furnace, indoor plumbing and basements.

Rural hydro rates are up ("preferred customers" hav[illegible] lower rates) and the gasolin[illegible] used for driving to and from work amounts to a good deal of money in one year.

It would seem that the cost of living is aimed at the already overdrawn purse of the low income family. There is nothing that causes more heartache and worry than lack of money, every extra cent that the poor man has to pay is just another stone in the wall of frustration for him to beat his head against.

Mexico's 'Village in the Sun' Attracts Interesting People

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

AJIJIC, Mexico — to pronounce it, it is best to hiccup and sneeze at the same time (Ah-hee-HIC). To find it, it is best to let the burro make his own way home.

It is between Lake Chapala and the road that runs from Chapala to the Mexico City highway, about 30 miles south of Guadalajara. But there was no road when, more than 30 years ago, a couple of wandering Englishmen stumbled on the place Nor was there running water, electricity, or telephones. Naturally, they fell in love with Ajijic and stayed to write a book.

It was published under the pen name of Dane Chandos and called "Village in the Sun." Soon it was followed by a sequel called "Hotel in the Sun." For their day the books were real whistleblowers, full of intriguing little bits like how you could sit under a tree, picking big wild orchids, and wait for a mango to fall in your mouth, and how the cook at the Posada (Inn) Ajijic would make chicken for dinner if she could catch the chicken in the patio.

Then as now, this adobe-mud-brick-tile roof fishing village, its garden walls atumble with bougainvillaea, hibiscus and poinsettias, had only a couple of thousand inhabitants. But, "Village in the Sun" inevitably started a quick flurry of tourists, followed by a North American art colony, which subsequently gave way to a rash of more than 300 gringo retirees attracted by the high rate of sunny days and low rate of expenditures.

ONE TELEPHONE — UNUSED

There is water now, and electricity sometimes. Also one telephone in the back of a store somewhere, no one really knows where because it's never used (the telephone company was willing to put in lines if it got 25 subscriptions; it got four). They say the only way you can tell the Americans' houses from the natives' is by the screens on the windows, and the fact that the palefaces drive Cadillacs and Mercedes Benzes in the dusty streets, instead of pigs and cows like everyone else.

Far from having taken over, the Yankees are in danger of blending into the landscape. To save themselves, they retreat to the courts, gardens, and bar of Posada Ajijic, now in the earnest hands of an ex-Hollywood producer named Sherman Harris. Harris grows coffee in the yard near the tile swimming pool, and has fixed up the rooms of his adobe hacienda with a veritable exhibition of Mexican arts.

While his guests watch the fishermen on the beach hauling in their huge shore-anchored nets, and soak in the omnipresent sun, he "soaks" them up to $10 a day, including meals. At that rate, they can't afford to go home; one man came for two weeks, has been sitting by the pool for six months now.

All kinds of interesting people have quit the maelstrom to settle here. New York dress designer Helen Kirtland has Indians hand-looming Indian fabrics in the back room of her shop across from the Posada Ajijic. Writer Neill James broke a leg mountain climbing lo those many years ago, came here to recuperate, and also sells fashions while she's at it.

RETIREMENT CHOICE

Harris has turned out a handy pamphlet on how to retire here in everything from a $16-a month rented adobe hacienda to whatever you care to spend on installing a pool and furnishings in a luxury villa, of which Ajijic secretes plenty.

The 15-mile stretch along the wind-shielded, mountainous north shore of 50-mile-long Lake Chapala is only a segment of an American and Canadian colony stretching all the way to Guadalajara. They are 8,000 strong

Climbing a hill at Chula Vista, between Ajijic and Chapala, is a Palm Springs-like subdivision of more than 100 lots, about 75 of them occupied houses bearing names like "Dream's End." There are also a golf club, chapel, and modern motel to accommodate prospects, its dining room prospected by an eager real estate salesman.

Chapala is an old and curiously European-feeling resort town, complete with Victorian mansions facing the water above a broad park-lined promenade. The green benches and sidewalk cantinas are full of Americans taking the sun and ice cream or beer. The road to Ajijic is lined with Mediterranean style villas, red and purple tropical foliage falling all over their high stone walls.

To the dismay of sightseeing launch operators and waterfront beer gardeners, a long drought drained much of the lake away from the expensive shore property. When heavy rains upcountry refilled it, they brought with them a veritable plague of water hyacinths. The city fathers imported five sea cows to devour them. When they were gone, the fishermen netted the sea cows, and nature's balance was restored.

Guadalajara, Mexico's second city, is famed for the Mexican hat dance, pretty girls, mariachi musicians, tequila distilleries, and a climate wherein roses bloom in the city's 50-plus parks all year.

HAS FINISHED ASPECT

Unlike the typical Latin American city, which looks as if half of it were built yesterday and the other half torn down the same day, Guadalajara has a finished aspect. Its broad streets, its even provincial pace, its neighborhood plazas and cantinas where sombreroed mariachis congregate to peddle trumpet love laments, and its stately, preserved colonial buildings, all lend it a graceful veneer of time that is much to the taste of most visitors.

The Cathedral, called "New" because it was rebuilt in 1568, has unique pointed steeples built of pottery jugs and covered with tiles, and features 14 different architectural styles. In the arched courts of the Government Palace Hidalgo freed the slaves in 1810, and Benito Juarez held the capital of Mexico for 35 days in 1858. Mexico's turbulent history is commemorated on a stairway by what may be Jose Clemente Orozco's finest mural, a vigorous and bitter commentary on tyranny depicting — among other things — modern international politics in terms of a carnival.

Most visitors go to Tlaquepaque, once a suburb of the rich, to buy blown glass and other arts in the haciendas-turned-factories. But a cheaper delight is a visit, especially on Sunday, to the town square. Unlike any other in Mexico, it is enclosed by dozens of highly competitive cafes where Mexicans come to sip beer and eat barbecued kid while mariachi groups, all playing at once, try to drown each other out for 10 pesos a song. Blown glass you can buy anywhere.

Too Many Names for Same Antique Cause Confusion

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

What's in a name? Sometimes too many names for the same antique will cause confusion Vaseline glass is canary glass. It is a yellowish clear glassware named for its color. Vaseline or canary glass was popular after the Civil War.

Silver plate and sterling mean a silver metal having about 925 parts of silver in every thousand parts of metal. Sterling is the name used in the United States and Ireland while plate is the English term for the same metal.

A ladder back chair is really the same as a slat back chair. Both chairs are wooden with a back resembling the rungs of a ladder.

Flint glass is lead glass. Originally English flint glass was made from flint. Sand was used later but the name flint glass remained. Lead oxide was used in the glass so the term lead glass was also used. Both names describe a colorless, brilliant glass first made in 1676 and popular in the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries.

Q. The word "Stockton—" is pressed into the bottom of my tea set. There are other words in the circular mark that I can't read.

A. The Stockton Terra Cotta Company was founded in Stockton, Calif., in 1891. They made several types of art pottery. The name was changed to the Stockton Art Pottery Company by 1897. Many of their pieces were marked, "Rekston," the factory's trade name for a mottled pottery. The firm was never financially successful and it went out of business in 1902 after a fire.

Q. What are Baxter prints?

A. George Baxter of England printed aquatint or mezzotint colored prints that were popular in the mid - Victorian home. He made missionary prints, flower pictures, landscapes, scenes, and pictures of groups of people. Baxter even printed notepaper Sunday school cards, and other small pictures. Most Baxter prints are signed with his name and address.

Fans have had a language of their own for many years. Drawing the fan through the right hand means, "I hate you," but drawing it across the cheek means, "I love you." If a lady holds the handle of the fan to her lips it is an invitation to a kiss.

Fans are coming back into style as a "fun" accessory at formal parties.

College Hill U.C.W. Holds Coffee Party and Hat Fashion Show

The United Church Women of College Hill United Church sponsored a delightful Valentine dessert coffee party in the church hall, Wednesday evening.

The event which was attended by close to 200 women was highlighted with the fine showing of hats and several fur stoles from Woodley's with Miss Hazel Smith giving a fine commentary as the various models displayed the latest hat creations. During the course of her remarks Miss Smith stated that hats are most important this spring as they complete the "total" look of new spring fashions; also that Bretons, brimmed hats turbans were a few of the most popular styles to be worn. In the line of color pastel shades of lemon, citrous, lime, and pink are the most popular, with the stand-by colors of navy, black and white still the basic colors for any ensemble. New spring materials are imported Swiss and Italian straw silk and French flowers.

She introduced the six attractive models who wore the various creations and these included Mrs. B. Moorcroft, Mrs J. Sproule, Mrs. J. Emerson, Mrs. W. McIlquaham, Mrs. L. Blakely and Mrs. R. King.

The decor for the event was most attractive with numerous floral arrangements backgrounding the platform and the individual guest tables centred with minute hats carrying out both themes of hats and Valentine's Day. Mrs. D. Watson was in charge of the decorations and a delightful array of desserts along with a cup of coffee were served by the members, and convened by Mrs. R. Neal.

Assisting the models during the presentations were Miss Helen Smith and Miss Eva Wannamaker.

Previous to the showing of hats, the president of the U.C.W. Mrs. A. Dickens, who also greeted the guests, presented Miss Hazel Smith with a corsage of roses.

Mrs. C. Bailey expressed appreciation to Miss Smith for the fine hat show.

AFTERNOON UNIT

The Afternoon Unit of College Hill U.C.W. met the same day in the church parlors with a fairly good attendance. The devotions with "Hope" as the theme were taken by Kay Dowling, Helen Hunter and Pat King.

Margaret Vessey led a busy "buzz" session and study periods were on chapter three of U.C.W. study book, "Jesus and the Christian Life" with all taking part.

Nellie Greenwood, leader opened the business meeting.

No lunch was served as the ladies prepared the social hall for a spring hat show for the evening which was a huge success.

MOTHERS STRIKE BACK

NORTHOLT, England (CP)—Motorists here were astonished to find dozens of women and children blocking the busy main road. Lines on Life

We Live in Future

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Yesterday, today and tomorrow. Which tells you most about a man?

Some people live as if there were no tomorrow. Others, afraid of tomorrow, keep thinking of all their yesterdays.

But without an awareness of tomorrow — and what it implies — there can be little depth or beauty or hope in life. Tomorrow is what makes possible today!

It is characteristic of the development of man's spiritual life that his mind and heart point not so much to the past, but are directed to the future — even if only to a future immediately at hand. Reference to the future is grasped by the consciousness sooner than to the past, and it is a more cherished desire to look ahead than to turn back.

In later life this tendency becomes even more pronounced. But by then many of us begin to mix our hopes for the future with our doubts, anxieties and fears for what will be. For many, the future turns out to be a mixed blessing: instead of hoping, we worry. What should be an important capacity often turns out to be a questionable endowment, for it introduces an element of uncertainty into human life which is often self-defeating and self-destructive.

At this point there enter the perennial soothsayers and false-comforters. Tomorrow is only a mirage, they say; why worry, then. The day after doesn't exist until it becomes today —and today is all you ever have. Don't borrow troubles from what is not, or may never be.

LIVE IN FUTURE

But man cannot easily give up his hold on the future. He thinks in the future because, as a human, for good or evil, he lives in the future. The neurotic will live in the future fearfully and fretfully. The healthy and robust man lives courageously in the future — this is the way he gives broader and deeper dimensions to the meanings of this moment.

Worry and doubt about tomorrow are neurotic when they induce obsessional fears which destroy our capacity to see what is really before us today. Rational men who are concerned with the consequences of their acts — causes and their effects — cannot escape from worry or doubt, nor will creative men wish to. To idealize the present, to lend this very day the flavor of what can be, to enjoy the foretaste of what is in the process of becoming—these, indeed, are the pre-requisites for great cultural and spiritual undertakings.

The great architects of the future, those who built bridges linking the morrow with an idealized present, were the ancient Hebrew prophets. They did not predict or foretell what tomorrow would be; they were not soothsayers looking into crystal balls. But they had a vision. For them, the future did not consist of empirical facts and minute details. The future was a statement of an ethical and spiritual vision.

What they had we need. They gave the present a prophetic sweep. They described tomorrow in the very terms in which they believed of the world of today — the very world in which they lived.

They never arrived at their fuller tomorrows—no man does. But we, like they, can arrive there today, as long as we make room for a great vision of tomorrow in our small and fearful hearts, today.

Ontario Hospital Visitors Provided With Bus Service

Friends and relatives of patients in the Ontario Hospital in Kingston have an opportunity to visit the hospital on the third Thursday afternoon of each month at reduced bus fares.

The Belleville Branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association sponsors a bus trip to Kingston every month at a cost of $2.00 for the return trip. At present, this service is subsitized by the Association as part of its program of monthly entertainment for patients in Mowatt Wing of the Ontario Hospital. If enough people from the Belleville district make use of the bus service, the Association hopes it will become a self-supporting enterprise.

The bus will leave the Quinte Hotel in Belleville at 12.50 p.m. on Thursday, February 17. It returns from the hospital at 3.30 p.m., giving visitors about two hours to spend with patients at the hospital.

For reservations and further information, call Belleville 962-3912.

Champagne Best Medicine In World Says Centenarian

DETROIT (AP) — "Champagne is the best medicine in the world," says Canadian-born Mrs. Georgiana Larivee.

Speaking from the vantage point of her 100th birthday Friday, she said it cured her of a serious illness.

Known to many acquaintances as Aunt Georgia, Mrs. Larivee said she was born in Quebec City Feb. 11, 1866, and moved here when she was 15.

Mrs. Larivee said: "I had a terrible pain in my chest and nothing the doctors gave me seemed to help.

"Then a young priest called on me and said: 'Mrs. Larivee, what you need is champagne. If you'll just take a teaspoonful before each meal, you'll find it will help.'

"Ernest (her late husband) went right out and bought me a pint of champagne," Mrs. Larivee recalled. "When it was gone I was cured, and the only after-effect was a fondness for champagne that has remained with me ever since."

Mrs. Larivee doesn't get much champagne any more, but the sisters at the St. Joseph Home for the Aged here see to it that she has a glass of dry red wine once a day.

A BELLEVILLE MILITARY BANQUET

"For there is a music wherever there is harmony, order or proportion." — Sir Thomas Browne (1605 - 1682.)

* * *

"In going through some family papers, the other day, I came upon this old program and menu . . ." says Miss Helen Fraleck, 113 Moira Street, West, "printed for, quote: a military banquet given by The Soldiers' Wives' League of Belleville to the members of the 15th Regiment, A.L.I., No. 1 Company, 49th Regiment, Hastings Rifles, and the Officers of the Veterans' Association to meet and to honor returned comrades of the Royal Canadian Regiment from South Africa, held in the 15th Drill Hall, November 13, 1900."

Miss Fraleck kindly granted our request to see the folder, rather small in size, with the colorful British flag printed on the cover underneath a line of Tennyson's: "And ever upon the topmost roof the old banner of Britain blew."

Suddenly the affair it represented springs to life: an atmosphere of welcoming warmth and gratefully, wonderfully created and displayed by the festive board lovingly laden with dishes prepared by the ladies which their men best enjoyed; the rise of song, laughter and happy voices midst the clatter and tinkle of cutlery and glass, the undercurrent of sadness for those missing softened by the thankfulness the war is over — an ageless moment with a music of its own — known by man down the centuries touched by war . . . all this surges forth as one reads.

As in the words of Thomas Mann homecoming is a great adventure.

On the back of the folder, one reads:

The Imperial Motto: Be just: Rule well; Hold Strong. — Gilbert Parker.

Even after two years the Howes of Kingston are still discovering good things about electric heating

"Anyone who is looking to the future should certainly consider electric heating. It's more comfortable because it's always even. There are no cold draughts. It's really comfortable," says Mr. F. Howes. Recently, the Howes were interviewed to discover their feelings about electric heating. They continue:

"We make full use of the individual thermostats—they're really the answer. While the children's rooms are at 70, ours is at 64. It's nice being able to make the bathroom warmer when bathing the wee baby.

"I am more than happy with the heating and the cost. I wouldn't consider living in a house again without electric heating."

Many families in Ontario share the Howes' feelings. However, there's more to electric heating than its unmatched comfort. Flameless electric heating is safe, dependable and completely clean. There is no combustion to produce dust, dirt, film or soot.

With all its advantages electric heating costs far less than you may think. No wonder so many people are turning to electric heating for the comfort, cleanliness and economy they want in a heating system.

LOOK FOR THE TRIPLE SEAL OF QUALITY—THE STRONGEST GUARANTEE A HEATING SYSTEM CAN HAVE

The Triple Seal of Quality is a three-fold guarantee backed by the manufacturer of the heating equipment, the contractor who installed it, and the Electric Heating Association of Ontario who ensure that the system is correctly designed and the house adequately insulated.

For full information about electric heating, consult a qualified electric heating contractor, or your Hydro.

FIVE EXCELLENT WAYS TO HEAT YOUR HOME ELECTRICALLY

Baseboard units save space, permit room-by-room temperature control. Radiant or hot water types available.

Radiant ceiling heat: concealed within ceiling. Each room's temperature can be individually controlled.

Heat pump heats in winter, cools in summer. One setting maintains any desired year-round temperature.

Wall panel, with heating units behind grille, provides radiant heat with natural or fan-forced convection.

Central system: heating can easily be combined with cooling for year-round comfort.

A Lift for Living

Troubles of Life Reveal Secret Splendors of Man

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

From where I sit writing I can see flames in the fireplace consuming logs of white birch, our maple and white ash. The sweet gums, resins and scented oils that have been imprisoned in the wood cells are freed by the fire and they now fill the room with a woodsy perfume.

There is an old belief about fire wood, that when it is ablaze it gives back all the colors that went into the making of the tree from which the wood is taken. Look into the fire, say the old-timers, and you will see the pale greens and purples of a thousand dawns, bright gold flashes of sun-flooded noons and the crimson of countless sunsets.

Look again and you will behold the silver sheen of moonlit nights and the sparkling of a million stars. Until the wood is ignited it refuses to reveal its secret beauty. Wood is never fully known until it burns.

Perhaps the old belief about wood ablaze can illumine and inform our thoughts about man and his troubles. This is what a searing crisis does to us; it enables us to give back to the world all the colors of character that have been hidden away in us during more peaceful hours. Testings and trials show the stuff of which we are made.

In many churches, a frequently used prayer begins with the phrase, "O God, unto whom all hearts are open, all desires known and from whom no secrets are hid . . ." All too often this prayer is interpreted to mean only that God knows the humiliating, shameful secrets of our hearts. Of course God knows them. But this is because God knows all about us, including the bad and the good.

The secrets that are not hidden from God, the hidden things God will yet reveal about His children, include the most beautiful values in all creation. Among these glorious secrets are the sacrifices parents have made for children without ever mentioning them. Some people have quietly suffered heavy losses of money, sleep, health and life for others, without publicity, credit or complaint. But God knows. Others have sent to the needy anonymous gifts and have saved life and pride and brightened hope. God knows.

Then, too, there are the hasty unkind words that have burst upon the brain of husband and wife, of parent or child in time of family conflict, but never reached the lips because they were stopped by the intervention of a compelling tenderness. God knows.

Difficulties are our minor Judgment Days, when the real qualities of mind and soul are expressed. We can thank God for occasional emergencies that reveal what we are, both bad and good, and what needs amendment.

Maybe the Lord lets us get burnt once in a while, because it is the only time we show our true colors.

Ann Landers

Child's Study Hours Are His Responsibility

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We have two teen-age children whose grades range from fair to poor. Every teacher they have had in the last four years has said the same thing: "Very bright — but not working up to ability."

ANN LANDERS

I was a teacher myself so I know all about kids who don't work up to their ability. My husband is a teacher, too, but he says he rides herd on kids all day and he wants to relax when he comes home.

Last week I hit on a solution. I decided from 7:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. would be "study hour." During this time there would be no stereo, no radio, no TV and no telephoning. All members of the family would study together.

Last night my husband said the plan was crazy and that I should make the kids have their study before he gets home at 5:00 p.m. What do you think of a father who doesn't want to sacrifice this hour to help his children? — THE WITCH FROM WICHITA.

DEAR WITCH: I see no reason for parents to give up TV, radio or anything to get their kids to study. Students should study because it is their job — their responsibility. Any other approach is nonsense.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read another letter in your column from a grandmother who complains because her married children depend on her to baby-sit, nurse their sick kids and even bake for their parties. I wonder if these grannies know why they are imposed on?

I was the only child of parents who died young. My husband was the second son in a family of ten. So you see there was no help from either side. We learned to depend on ourselves and we raised our five children to depend on themselves.

We have 14 grandchildren and nobody borrows money from us or tries to move into our house or dumps their youngsters on us when they want to travel. Whatever we offer to do is greatly appreciated and we enjoy doing it. I believe independence is all in the upbringing. — MOTHER OF A FINE BROOD.

DEAR MOTHER: So do I. Not only are you better off but your children are better off, too — and so are their children. Congratulations for a job well done.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter married at an early age. Rita picked up a bum who treated her like dirt. We were all relieved when she divorced him.

Now Rita is engaged to a very fine young man and we are all happy for her and the children. The problem is that her future in-laws want a big wedding.

All our relatives out-did themselves with beautiful gifts when Rita married the first time. We don't want to obligate them again. Do you feel we should have a big wedding for the in-law's sake? It is the first marriage of their only son and they are adamant. — AGIN IT.

DEAR AGIN IT: It would be in poor taste to have a big wedding for your daughter a second time. As the parents of the bride this decision should be yours and I hope you stick to your guns. The groom's parents can have a reception when the bride and groom return from their honeymoon and they can make it as lavish as they wish.

Institute's 45th Anniversary Celebrated With Banquet

NAPANEE — The Napanee branch of the Women's Institute celebrated its 45th anniversary Wednesday by having a dinner meeting in the banquet hall of the Superior Restaurant, with older members and other distinguished members of the organization as guests.

Records of the branch were lost in a fire in the early 40's, when Mrs. Katherine Powell, then secretary, lost many of her belongings, including the Institute books. As one of the projects in celebration of this anniversary, older members have pooled their recollections of the early days, and Mrs. Menzo Grooms, who joined the third year, has written the history. The branch was founded February 21, 19[illegible], with the late Mrs. Alpine Wood as president, and Mrs. George Switzer as secretary.

As far as is known, only four of the first-year members are living. Only one was well enough to attend, Mrs. E. J. Pollard, who had the honor of cutting the anniversary cake, with the assistance of Mrs. Bert Seymour, a member since 1922, and Mrs. Grooms, who joined the following year.

PAST PRESIDENTS, GUESTS

Most of the living past presidents were guests, Mrs. James Haggerty, Mrs. Frank McCutcheon, now of Whtby, Mrs. Harold Shoebridge, now of Kingston and Mrs. John Jaynes, Mrs. Oay Young, Mrs. T. J. Hunt, and Mrs. David Andrews of Napanee. All were presented with corsages, as were all the other older members and the distinguished guests.

Three of the charter members, Mrs. W. W. Exley, Mrs. T. V. Anderson, and Mrs. Switzer, while living only a short distance from the banquet site sent greetings but were not well enough to attend. Mrs. Exley and Mrs. Anderson are past-presidents. Mrs. Switzer was the first secretary.

Mrs. James Haggerty is without doubt the most distinguished of those who attended. She brought honor to the branch and to the entire organization as president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada and held the office for two years with distinction.

DISTRICT PRESIDENTS ATTEND

Among the other guests was Mrs. James Moore president of the Lennox district, who brought greetings and delighted everyone with her two solos.

Mrs. Nelson Kennedy, past president of the Addington district, was also among the guests. Greetings were extended by Mrs. Everett Snider, the provincial president, who was unable to attend.

Mrs. Donald Hannah, the federation board member, was the speaker for the event, reporting the latest board meeting, and outlining the work done by the board.

Mrs. Ross Oliver was another interesting attendant at the anniversary dinner. She was a member of the Junior Institute in the early days of the branch, and has ever since been an active participant in W.I. work. She organized the branch at Empey Hill, where she is now a member.

Mrs. David Andrews is the immediate past president. President today is Mrs. Harry Edgar, who did much to make the anniversary a success. Mrs. Morley Gilbert is 1st vice-president, Mrs. John Jaynes 2nd vice-president, and Mrs. Archie Thompson is secretary. Mrs. T. J. Hunt is in charge of public relations.

Committee chairmen are: Mrs. Jaynes, Mrs. Fred Henderson, Mrs. Albert Walsh, Mrs. Albert Sladden, and Mrs. Morley Gilbert.

Grace Church UCW Fetes Senior Choir

NAPANEE — The UCW of Grace United Church entertained the members of the senior choir, and their guests, Thursday evening in the church hall. This is an annual event.

Supper was at 6:30 p.m. with the head table guests consisting of the organist and choir leader, Mrs. Grant Sexsmith and her husband; the Rev. Guy and Mrs. Case, the minister and his wife; Mrs. Moore Sanford, choir president, and Mrs. Anna McGill, her guest; and Mrs. Terry Larstone and Miss Lily Jean Rombough, leaders of the junior choir.

Martha Unit was in charge of the arrangements, with Mrs. Ralph Andrews as the convener. Table arrangements were by Mrs. Lorne Clark, and were greatly admired. The Valentine theme was carried out, with the centre or red tulips, all sorts of foods in heart shapes, and valentines as place cards. At each of the 52 places was a favor, a bird house with a tiny love bird suspended from the top. All had been constructed by Mrs. Clark's clever fingers.

An amusing program followed the supper, with everybody forgetting dignity and entering into the fun of the thing. A skit presented by 12 people, old and young, portrayed a mock Hillbillie wedding. Several contests added to the merriment. Question: How do you construct an elephant with nothing but a sheet of newspaper and your bare hands?

PARTY FOR NURSES

NAPANEE — Patients and staff of the McDonald Nursing Home gave a farewell party Thursday afternoon for three of their nurses. Mrs. Gertrude Armstrong, Mrs. Laura Clark and Miss Marilyn Lasher all registered nursing assistants, have resigned to accept positions wth the Lennox and Addington County Hospital, which will open the first of next month.

Refereshments were served, and each of the departing nurses was presented with a cup and saucer as a farewell gift.

BENEFIT GAME

Napanee Jaycees are sponsoring a hockey game next Wednesday February 16, between CKWS-TV No-Stars and the staff of the Napanee District Secondary School. Proceeds will go to the hospital fund.

CUBS HOLD PARENTS NIGHT

The 3rd Napanee Cubs are having Parents' Night Saturday evening. They meet in Trinity United Church.

NATURALIST TO SPEAK

Meeting February 18 in the County Memorial building the Napanee Horticultural Society will have as its speaker Jack Austin, noted naturalist from the Trenton area. There is an increasing interest in bird life in this area, and the work of the Humane Society is arousing more interest in homeless pets and in wild life. This meeting should attract a large audience Special invitations are going out to members of the Bird Watchers' Club and also to the Rod and Gun Club, which is sponsoring a bird house competition this spring.

NOTED ARCHITECT IS GUEST

Peter Stokes was the overnight guest Thursday of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Hutchinson. Mr. Stokes attended an executive meeting of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society that evening to discuss the expenditure of the centennial grant in the restoration of the Macpherson House. He specialized in the restoration of historic buildings, and was largely instrumental in the creation of Upper Canada Village, advising on all the buildings there.

CLOSES U.S. OFFICE

PHNOM PENH (AP)—Cambodian's chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, announced Saturday he has ordered the closing of the Asia Foundation's Cambodian office. He said the foundation has lately become an agent for American policies and had threatened to compromise Cambodian "neutrality." The private American foundation's headquarters are in San Francisco.

Pennies Support Asian Child

DESERONTO — Pennies, nickles and dimes contributed by the boys and girls of the Deseronto Public School are keeping a boy of 11, who lives on the other side of the world in school.

He is Nguyen Van Thang, who lives with his parents, two brothers and two sisters in Saigon. Until 1961 the father supported his family in a sort of way by selling bread and meat, netting 69 cents a day. But that year they fell on bad times. The father underwent surgery which totally incapacitated him.

Two years later a second disaster overtook them. Fire swept through the area and their home was destroyed along with many others. That fire left stark want in its wake. However, by some means or other the family has managed to construct a home of sorts, costing $96.09, of which they still owe $24.75. The furniture consists of two beds, one divan, a folding bed, one table and a few chairs.

DOING WELL IN SCHOOL

The boy is described by officials of the Foster Parents Plan as "nice-looking, quiet and well-mannered." He is 11 years old, is in the fourth grade, and doing very well at school.

The money which the Deseronto children contribute, $192 a year, keeps him in school, where the tuition fee is 69 cents a month. It clothes him and pays for special medical care.

Letters are exchanged monthly, going first to Montreal where they are translated. No names can be sent, as the Deseronto teachers and children were warned that if they people of Saigon obtained any names, those people would be bombarded with letters pleading for assistance.

There is no difficulty in raising the money, Principal Roach says. Children bring whatever they can whenever they can. Some bring what they would otherwise have spent for treats for themselves. Others have basket drives, or sell lemonade at stands in the summer. Everybody is interested, and at a very early age these little ones are learning that one of the greatest joys in life comes from helping others.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate "What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My mortgage lender charges me interest on every penny I have borrowed, yet pays no interest on the money collected from me each month for real estate taxes and insurance. I pay almost $60 per month for these two items with my mortgage payment. It's true that they pay the bills at the end of the year, but they have the use of my money for a whole year without interest.

When I asked for interest they laughed. Maybe you can tell me why I am not entitled to interest on my money. I'll bet millions of families are in the same situation. — "An Accountant"

ANSWER: You are not entitled to interest on your money for a very simple reason — you agreed. By contract (your mortgage) you agreed to make a monthly payment which includes interest on the mortgage, principal, taxes and insurance. There are contracts (mortgages) where the owner is allowed to pay his own taxes and insurance and thus has the use of the money for the whole year.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: First the fluorescent light in the kitchen developed a hum. Then it started in the bathroom and now the hall light has commenced to sing. The crescendo is sweeping from room to room but it's not the type of music I ENJOY.

I have replaced the fluorescent tubes and starters several times. It does no good. If you cannot suggest a solution I'm going to tear the fixtures out — "Being Driven Batty"

ANSWER: A hum in a fluorescent fixture is not caused by either the tube or starter. The ballast coil inside the fixture is responsible. The hum is transmitted through the mounting and causes the whole fixture to give off an unpleasant sound by sympathetic vibration.

The cure is easy. Take down the fixtures and instead of allowing the ballast coil to be mounted directly on the fixture, slip in some rubber pads or washers — better yet, foam rubber. The hum will now be gone — at least you will not be able to hear it.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Every house in our area has a proper name. This is the new fad because we have no street numbers. My better half has christened ours "Lucy". I hate the name but don't know how to get it changed. Any suggestions? — "Need Help"

ANSWER: I guarantee this will work . . Tell your wife you are glad she selected "Lucy" because that is the name of your first love and the mere mention of the name brings back many happy memories.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: When my house was complete the assessor stopped by. He entered all the information on his data sheet. The last question he asked was, "how much did it cost". I told him $12,000 but really it was $21,00.

I know I should not have lied. I would now like to tell the truth. My father-in-law says that two things will happen . . . My taxes will go up and I will get in trouble. What would you do? — "Worried."

ANSWER: My best guess is that you did not fool the assessor. He knew you were lying but was too polite to tell you. If it will relieve your mind tell the assessor. I am sure your taxes will go up (he probably entered the correct figure in the first place) and you willnot get into trouble — not very much any way.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Roll back the curtain of time sixty years, mount your magic carpet and park it somewhere in the village of Madoc.

The happy-go-lucky burghers of that era were not worried over Viet Nam, NHL expansion, diets, heart disease, confederation, tranquilizers and old age pensions

They followed the "unsequestered tenor of their ways"; strawberry socials, church picnics, fishing in summer, shinny in winter, hunting the year round and original "hot stove" league debates in the grocery stores.

But the sports fraternity had something to crow about.

Perhaps a lot of the present-day residents do not know it but at that time this mid-Hastings village, later a hot political battleground and home of outstanding hockey teams, boasted a lacrosse squad that won a national championship.

Mr. Arthur Vermilyea, of R.R. 5 Belleville now in his 76th year is the authority for that statement.

In a telephone interview, Mr. Vermilyea told this agent and there was a note of pride in his voice that "Madoc had the best lacrosse team in the world."

They defeated Orillia, Ontario's best," said Mr. Vermilyea ,who dabbled in lacrosse at Albert College fifty years ago, "then went to the west coast, returned and went to the east coast topping it off with a visit to New York. They came home undefeated."

Lacrosse at that time had not been condensed into the box variety. The team carried 18 men, tough, hard who could play an entire game without tiring.

"There were four full-blooded Indians on the team," Mr. Vermilyea recalled. "They were the Pine boys, Arnold, Dent, "Buck" and Hugh."

"Their father was a travelling medicine man, Vess by name, who dispensed ointments, belly drops, aches-and-pain remedies, and medicine to the farmers of the district."

"Vess travelled the sideroads and byways via two large dogs hitched to a cart. In winter they pulled a sleigh."

Other members of the team were: Bill Coe, Percy Naylor, Fred Naylor, George and "Pud" Moore, Wes Wellington, Alex Welington, Art West, Percy Phillips, Bangie Kinlaw, Charles McInroy, Alex McInroy, Glad Murphy and Russell Lewis. Herb McCoy was associated with the club but did not play,

"The four Pine brothers were outstanding. The full-blooded Indians were tough, rough and endurance personified. They never had to be relieved. Hugh was the goalkeeper."

"The other brothers," Mr. Vermilyea said, "were the originators of the bouncing shot that is a feature of present day lacrosse. In those days players shot directly at the goal .The Pines tried shooting at the ground in front of the goal causing the ball to bounce, generally in the net."

The Indians, Mr. Vermilyea said, (with no pun intended) "played hair-raising lacrosse. They could run like deer and never let up their pace from start to finish."

The other members of the team were hard as nails physically, he said.

"They were farmers by day working hard until they donned their lacrosse togs and playing a full game with out relief."

"They were a lot different to the softer city fellows who could play so long, then needed rest."

Mr. Vermilyea did not know how many members of the famous lacrosse squad are still living. "At the time when they were playing some sixty years ago they ranged in age from 18 to 24. They would be rather ancient today."

Vancouver Shades Victoria

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A late goal by Vancouver's Bob McCusker prevented Victoria Maple Leafs from regaining at least a share of first place in the Western Hockey League.

McCusker's goal, his second of the night, gave Canucks a 5-4 victory over the Leafs, leaving Victoria still two points behind Portland Buckaroos.

In other action, Seattle Totems walloped Los Angeles Blades 8-1 and Baltimore Clippers of the American League defeated San Francisco Seals of the western circuit 3-2 in an interlocking contest.

Hull To Play ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Fight For Cellar

Hawks, Habs Hassle For Loop Perch

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Today's full-card National Hockey League schedule can be broken down into two sections—the fight for the room at the top and the battle for the basement.

Montreal Canadiens, who have problems on left wing, will be trying to take a win off Chicago Black H wks, tied for first place with Detroit Red Wings. Canadiens are two points off the leaders' place.

Toronto Maple Leafs will have to handle the other first-place club, despite a rash of defence problems.

In the other game, Boston Bruins, which gave up a seemingly permanent lease on the cellar by beating Montreal 2-0 in their last game, will be squaring off in the afternoon at New York, where the Rangers now trail the Bruins by a point.

Sunday's games see the Canadiens at Detroit, the Leafs at Boston and the Rangers at Chicago.

The Leafs' Bobby Baun is recovering from a knee injury slower than expected. Hoping to play this weekend, he skated through a double workout Friday. But it turns out he won't be back in the lineup until Wednesday.

DOUBTS ON DOUGLAS

Marcel Pronovost, also out with injuries, won't play this weekend and coach Punch Imlach is dubious about Kent Douglas.

Defenceman Douglas wants to play but is still recovering from a pinched shoulder nerve picked up last Wednesday when he was piled into the boards by Edmonton Oil King Junior A. Hamilton.

Because of the holes in the defence, Leafs will be keeping Duane Rupp, up from Rochester, on the weekend lineup. Terry Sawchuk will be in goal for both weekend games so Bower can completely recover from pulled groin muscles.

But at least one Leaf should be in fine fettle. Ed Shack, 29 Friday, got 127 items in the mail for his birthday.

Canadiens have problems on left wing which itself has the problem of how to stop Bobby Hull, Chicago's super star who will continue his bid to score 50 goals in as many games and, failing that, to notch more than 50 in the 70-game season.

He shares the record for most goals in a season with Maurice Richard and Bernard Geoffrion, former Montrealers. Richard got the 50 while the NHL was still on a 50-game schedule.

HAS 44 SO FAR

Hull goes into the weekend with 44 goals in as many games, having missed four of the Hawk's 48 contests due to injuries.

He is expected to be in the lineup today although he missed the team's drill Friday because his hand was swollen from punching Detroit's Gary Bergman during a game Wednesday.

Montreal coach Toe Blake says he is worried about the lack of production from forwards John Ferguson and Dick Duff. The other member of the line, Gilles Tremblay, now has 17 goals and 11 assists, nine of the goals having come in the last 16 games.

Ferguson hasn't scored in 14 games. He got his seventh goal against Boston Jan. 8 and has picked up only two assists since. Duff, who has nine goals and 12 assists for the season to date, has scored twice and assisted twice in the last 14 games.

Commenting on these performances, Blake said "we may have to do something." He did not specify what.

Defenceman Ted Harris, who has missed 10 games because of a shoulder fractured Jan. 16, is to return tonight.

"Harris says he's ready and he'd better be," said Blake.

Locals Were Listless

Crushmen Squeeze Rollins

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Rollins Juniors picked a bad time to turn in one of their most disorganized games of the season here last night.

Oshawa Crushmen whipped the listless locals 8-2 before close to 800 fans. It was Belleville's second home loss of the week and the club, hanging onto the fourth and final playoff spot, faces away games in Kingston Sunday and Trenton Wednesday.

The game started out with great promise as both clubs flashed sharp passing, hard hitting and fast skating. Sloppy play around their own net put Rollins down 2-1 at period's end.

It was 5-2 after two periods and Oshawa added three with ease as Rollins managed only five shots on goal in the dull third period .Overall, the winners held a 32-24 shooting margin.

Goalie Wayne Brant, along with most of his mates, did not have one of his better nights. Of the ten players Belleville dressed, only Doug Potts and Carl Boomhower played close to par.

Oshawa's scoring points were well distributed. Pete Nevin and Bob Dickson had two goals and one assist each. Jerry Dionne scored once and helped on two; Jim Booth and Bill Horton got one and one apiece and Roger Knowles also scored. Gary Bradley assisted on two, Don Bowen, Frank Sawyer, Mike Hewer and Bob Edmunds on one each.

For Belleville, Steve White tied the score 1-1, on assists by Pete Fleming and Boob Boyle at 12.37 of the first. Nevin flipped home the goal that put Oshawa ahead to stay less than a minute later. Rollins' second goal came late in the second after the visitors had built a 5-1 lead. Boyle rapped home Jim Pringle's rebound.

Knowles' marker after just 16 seconds of play in the third killed any hopes of a comeback.

Belleville appeared over anxious and did not come close to scoring with a two-man advantage for a minute and a half early in the second heat. Seconds later, Booth made it 3-1 when Rollins drew their first penalty.

In all, Oshawa collected six minors to Belleville's five but scored the game's only two power-play goals.

Play was rugged at times and the Crushmen suffered three minor injuries, all through accidents. The players all returned to action.

In the first periood, Rollins had their chances, on a rink-length rush by Potts and a two-on-one pass by Boomhower that Boyle took too far past the net to shot. Frm then n it was strictly Oshawa.

Apple Kings Shade Kingston

And the plot thickens!

Trenton Apple Kings moved to within one point of the OHA Eastern Junior "B" league's final playoff berth last night.

The Apple Kings nipped Kingston Frontenacs 5-4, in Trenton, in one of the best games of the season.

Combined with Oshawa's 8-2 win over Belleville, the Trenton win tightens the hectic playoff race that much more.

Oshawa and Kingston are in a dead heat for first place, each with 38 points. Peterborough has 29, Belleville 28 and Trenton 27.

Trenton plays at Oshawa today and Belleville goes to Kingston on Sunday. The Apple Kings also visit Cobourg on Monday before meeting Belleville in Trenton Wednesday and back here next Friday.

My name is Murphy.
Friends call me Murph.

But I'm not sure I like the government getting that familiar.

It's not that we're trying to be familiar. We're trying to be efficient.

You'll remember last year's income tax form. That's the one we personalized. For computer purposes, we shortened everyone's name in the account number to the first five letters. We're doing it again this year.

So if your name's Murphy, it comes out Murph. If it's Zellinitsky, you'll get it as Zelli. If it's five letters or less, it stays that way.

Our people tell us this move will probably save the Department (therefore you) many thousands of dollars this year.

And if your government can save money like that, we're pretty sure you won't mind us getting just a little bit familiar with you.

Juniors, Bantams Lose

Moira Srs. Whip Trenton

By DAVE BRAMMER

Moira seniors defeated a rather inept Trenton squad 78-46 last night at Trenton. The juniors were defeated 62-48 and the bantams lost 63-46.

In the senior game Moira quickly moved ahead on smooth accurate passing and shooting. At the end of the first quarter Moira led 17-6. In the 2nd quarter Trenton held a slight edge as they suddenly found the mark. At half-time Moira led 33-24. The third and fourth quarters were all Moira, the Trojans completely dominating both ends to win going away 78-46

The junior game was rather dull. Gary Swan and John Hayman each scored 12 points for Moira, while Larry and Schaufele scored 20 and 15 points respectively for Trenton.

The bantam game saw Moira score 24 points in the first quarter and then blow the game. Trenton took over the lead in the third quarter and never looked back. Jeff Hume scored 17 points for Moira and Johnston scored 21 points for Trenton.

The senior scorers were: Moira — Watson 28, Bailey 14, Sheridan 9, Milligan 8, Richie 6, McLean 6, Young 3, Middleton 2, Banting 2.

Trenton — Williams 15, Gibson 15, Witriack 13, Ross 2 and MacDonald 1.

Leafs clobbered the Wings 9-1 and Canadiens blanked the Rangers 4-0 in a pair of B.M.H.A. novice games played last night.

Once again, no score sheet was turned in for the scheduled midget game.

Bruce Bibby and Wayne Warner paced the Leaf attack with three goals and an assist apiece. David Hilborn, Peter Molaski and Timothy Fort were the other marksmen Fort drew three assists, Hilborn two, Stephen Montgomery, Howard Meens and Paul Morton one each. Bruce MacDonald fired the Wings' loner, aided by Steven Gray.

Goalie James Scott chalked up the Canadiens' shutout and Terry Bridge paced the attack with two goals. Danny Murray and John Loder were the other goal-getters. Kevin McCallum collected the only assist.

Athletics Nip Regals, Oaks Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A pair of games produced 18 goals in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series Friday night, but the goaltenders stole the spotlight.

Woodstock Athletics dumped Guelph Regals 4-2 in a netminders' battle involving Harold (Boat) Hurley of the Regals and Wilf Keating of the Athletics.

And 19-year-old Vic McCutcheon, a Junior B goalie with Dixie Beehives of the Metro League, turned in a solid performance for Oakville Oaks in a 6-6 tie with Kingston Aces.

The loss reduced Guelph's first - place margin to four points over the Athletics. Bobby Robinson triggered two Woodstock goals with playing-coach Ted Power and Art Sullivan getting the others. Jimmy Robertson and Bob Pole scored for Guelph.

McCutcheon handled 38 shots in the Oakville net, but gave up goals to Bob Rawson and Tom Carty late in the third period after his team had taken a 6-4 lead. Carty and Davey Jones each scored twice for Kingston with Rawson and Dick Cherry adding one each. Carl Hymers collected three goals for the Oaks, Bill Ford two and Jack Price one.

Clutch Shot Gives Dixie Title

By STERLING TAYLOR

BRAMPTON (CP) — Clutch shooter Joe Gurowka couldn't do a thing right in the seventh and final round of the Ontario curling championship Friday until he delivered the greatest shot of the tournament with his final rock.

The draw shot, around a guard to beat out two opposition rocks, gave Gurowka and his Dixie rink a 9-8 victory over George Parks of St. Thomas, the British Consols Trophy and a berth in the Canadian championships at Halifax later this month.

It also ended a 13-end nightmare for the Dixie foursome of lead Don Mackey, second Ken Ingo and vice - skip George Howat, who had gone into the final round of the eight-rink, round - robin tournament tied with Parks for first place with a perfect 6-0 won-lost record.

Nothing went right for Gurowka in the final game. Dixie had three rocks counting when Parkes delivered his final stone in the first end, but St. Thomas wound up with one.

Then Gurowka's final shot attempt to blank the second end and retain last rock failed to roll out and he was forced to take a single.

COUNTS ONE

He forced St. Thomas to take a single on the third, but again his attempt at blanking the fourth end failed and he counted one.

Finally, the Dixie rink found the range temporarily to count two on the seventh end and take a 4 - 3 lead, but they again trailed 7-5 after 10 ends.

The Dixie quartet scored three in the 11th, giving St. Thomas last rock in the 12th and final end and holding Parkes to a tie.

But even with last shot in the extra end, Gurowka ran into trouble when his lead failed to clear off a St. Thomas guard with his first stone and roll out.

From that point on, Parkes built a rock garden in front of the rings, finally hiding two of his own stones behind it and forcing Gurowka to draw around a guard and to the centre of the rings with his final stone.

The loss was especially ironic for Parkes, who had won all his first six games with final-rock clutch shots.

ARE TIED

Rinks skipped by Bob Mann of Waterloo and Gordon Brown of Ottawa finished the tournament tied for third place with 4-3 records, while Presley Lavier of Centralia, Rod Sjoberg of Peterborough and Irvin Wallace of Port Carling finished with 2-5 records.

Jab Pierce of Dundas finished with one win and six losses.

B. C. Strangleholds Titles

By JACK BRAUCKMANN

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — British Columbians continued Friday to dominate the Canadian figure skating championships and headed into the final day of competition today with their sights set on more honors in novice and junior events.

The B.C. team, tired, nervous and a bit awed by their visit to central Ontario—centre of Canada's skating power — got a morale-boosting telegram from B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett, then settled down to take a strangle hold on national titles.

In Friday's skating, Don Phillips and Joni Graham of Vancouver won the compulsory portion of the junior dance event and are favored to take the title when they present their free-dance tonight.

Second in the event are Janet Cowling and Thomas Ball of Toronto. Patricia and Derry Allen of Ottawa are in third place as the couples prepare to enter the finals.

Ronald Shaver of Hamilton won the novice men's championship Friday, Bob McAvoy of Ottawa was runner-up but Patrick McKilligan of Vancouver kept B.C. piling up points as he moved from fifth place in figures to place third over-all.

TAKES LEAD

Cathy Irwin of Toronto, who moved there from Vancouver last year, skated to an early lead in compulsory figures Friday morning and a former clubmate from Vancouver, Judy McLeod, was a close second. In third place was Judy Williams of Galt

Today's schedule calls for finals in novice women's, junior men's, junior women's and junior dance.

Ruth Hutchinson and Benita Cave of Vancouver are 1-2 in the novice women's event. Vancouver skaters Joe Summerfield and David Killin hold the first two places in the junior men's category.

London Chances Slim

Petes Hold Point Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peterborough Petes maintained a one-point lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series Friday night and at the other end of the standings London Nationals saw their playoff chances grow dimmer.

Niagara Falls Flyers stayed within a point of the Petes when Derek Sanderson scored his second goal of the night with less than two minutes left to give the Flyers a 5-5 tie.

The Nationals remained six points behind Kitchener Rangers, who hold the eighth and last playoff spot, when they dropped a 3-1 verdict to Montreal Junior Canadiens. The Rangers also lost, 4-3 to Hamilton Red Wings.

In the only other game, Toronto Marlboros downed St. Catharines Black Hawks 6-4.

TAKE EARLY LEAD

The Petes took a 3 - 0 lead early in the game, but the Flyers battled back to tie the score. Eight of the 10 goals in the game, including Sanderson's equalizer, came on power plays. Other Niagara marksmen besides Sanderson were Jean Pronovost, Jim Lorentz and Bud Debrody. Peterborough goals went to Mickey Redmond with two and Andre Lacroix, Guy Dufour and Gerry Monohan.

London, with seven games left in the schedule, dropped its fifth in a row. Lucien Grenier scored twice and Jacques Lemaire once for the Habs. Neil Clairmont got London's lone goal and Stan Allan missed a good chance for another when he failed to score on a penalty shot in the second period.

Will Have NHL Club Some Day

VANCOUVER (CP) — Cyrus McLean, head of a group that owns Vancouver Canucks, said Friday his directors will build up their Western Hockey League team.

He told a press conference that Vancouver is not classed as a National Hockey League town at present, but "We will be some day."

Mr. McLean returned from New York where his application for a Vancouver entry in the NHL was turned down.

Meanwhile, Directors of the the Pacific National Exhibition voted to build a $6,000,000 trade and sports centre despite denial of an NHL franchise.

Oppose Games At Banff

OTTAWA (CP)—At least four Canadian organizations oppose holding the 1972 Winter Olympics at Banff National Park, Richard C. Passmore of the Canadian Wildlife Federation said Friday in a press statement.

Mr. Passmore, executive - director of the federation which has members in all provinces, said all four have lodged protests with the federal government over the proposal to hold the Games in the park.

He identified the organizations as the Canadian Audubon Society, the Canadian Society of Wildlife and Fishery Biologists, the National and Provincial Parks Association of Canada, and the Wildlife Federation.

Mr. Passmore said Mayor Jack Leslie of Calgary has said earlier this week that all Canadians, with the exception of one Western Canada historical society, were in favor of having the Games at Banff.

The opposition, Mr. Passmore said, is based on the fact that the games would cause "an intense disturbance" of the natural conditions in the park in order to provide all the facilities needed.

"All these organizations would like to see the Winter Olympics held in Canada but not in a national park."

Then He May Retire

WHO WOULDN'T SMILE — Willie Mays (left) with President Horace Stoneham after the San Francisco Giants' all star centre-fielder signed a two-year contact in San Francisco yesterday, probably making him the "highest salaried player in baseball history." It is believed the new pact calls for $125,000 a year for 1966 and 1967. Mays said he requires a two-year agreement so " . . . . I won't have any money worries the next two seasons — so I can just go out and play baseball." (AP Wirephoto)

Willie Mays Signs Record Contract

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Willie Mays, 34, says that for the next two years all he'll have to worry about is playng baseball. He might "think about retiring" when he reaches 40, or maybe not until he gets to 45.

Right now the National League's Most Valuable Player of 1965 is happy about two things—first a contract with San Francisco Giants which would bring him about $250,000 in the next two seasons, and secondly:

"I'm looking forward to going to spring training. I've been doing so much travelling and going to so many banquets, I'm actually looking forward to spring training."

Although spring training at Casa Grande doesn't open until Feb. 28, Willie plans to go to Arizona about 10 days early. He doesn't think he needs a special conditioning program and will concentrate on golf and walking.

"I'm in pretty good shape," he said.

NEARING RECORDS

A host of baseball records are in reach of wondrous Willie, who 11 times has been named the league's all - star centre fielder. To this be says:

"I never like goals. I may be able to break a lot of records, but I don't like to think about them, even though they may be within reach."

Mays does aim at two major records, the 511 National League home-run career mark of Mel Ott and the 534 by Jimmy Foxx, the most ever hit in major league baseball by a right-handed hitter.

Swinging from the left side, Babe Ruth smashed 714 for the all-time mark.

To date, Mays has hit 505 homers, 318 of them after the Giants moved from New York to San Francisco in 1958.

College Hockey

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite a five - goal third period burst by the University of Sherbrooke team, Montreal's Macdonald College defeated the visitors 7-5 Friday night in Ottawa-St. Lawrence Athletic Association hockey action.

Alex Manson was the big gun for the winners with three goals. Other scorers for Macdonald were Dave Brown, Ron Trivers, Harold Johnson and Ron Sevigny.

Jean Gauthier led the losers with three goals and Pierre Soucy and Daniel Gehto got one each.

Defeat Picton

BCI Cagers Win Three

By DAVID TEMPLER

Belleville's own collegians drew a triple victory from the visiting Picton teams last night at B.C.I. The seniors won by a good margin 80-55 while the junior and bantam squads stampeded their opponents 74-39 and 81-14 respectively.

These victories hold the B.C.I. teams in their first place position in the Bay of Quinte conference. Only one more game, that with Trenton, remains in the regular schedule.

In the senior game Ron Walsh led the collegian cagers offensively and defensively and hooped 34 points. Tom Lornie had a good night and added 19 to the score, McDougall 8, Bouma 6, Wellesley 6 and Shea 4 were the other scorers.

The game was close at half time with the score 34-31 but in the last quarter a determined Ron Walsh drove time after time through a weakening Picton defence and B.C.I. scored 31 in the period to Picton's 11.

The Picton scorers were: Murphy 15, Bently 12, Fennel 8, Davidson 8, Hobson 7, Arnaud 3, and Fyffe 1.

In the junior game John Chalmers and Ray Thibeau scored 15 each and managed to control the boards. Jim McCreary with 10 handled the ball well and set up the plays. Drumn and Truman scored 8 apiece while Hiuser 6, Mathewes 5, Harder 2, and Loynes 1, rounded out the scoring.

For Picton, Sharpe got 13 and Dulmage 11 to lead the offensive effort.

In the Bantam game a high-scoring team led by Dave Cass 38, Tarmo Heyduck 17, and Doug Grant 10 racked up the highest score of the night in their 81-14 victory.

Riteways Win Playdowns Opener

Scoring six goals in the third period, Belleville Riteways dumped Trenton 7-2 last night in the first game of their two-game, goals-to-count OMHA novice playdown series.

According to the score sheet, second game of the set will be played somewhere today, at 5.30. Original scheduling had Belleville at Trenton today with the second game back here next Wednesday. No announcement of a change was made.

Riteways will carry a five-goal spread into today's game.

Peter Smrke gave Belleville a 1-0 lead in the first period last night and it stayed that way until the third, with some fine puck stopping from Riteway goalie Brian Duffy.

Duffy lost his shutout when Trenton potted two in the third but Belleville's half dozen put the tilt in wraps.

Mark Coates and Grant Goegan scored two goals each, Smrke, Andy Ricketts and Martin Thistle one apiece. Smrke and Ricketts got two assists each, Coates, R. Barrett, Goegan, B. Sutherland, D. Flesch, Thistle, T. Whelan and W. Dainard one apiece.

G. Martin and McAlpine notched Trenton's goals, with S. Hope, R. Campbell, R. Shaw and T. Olson having helpers.

Riteways drew five of seven minor penalties.

Nicholson Divides Hoop Pair

By DAVID HURST

Last night, Nicholson Catholic College split a COSSA "B" basketball doubleheader with Campbellford winning the bantam game 34-28 and losing the junior game 81-22.

A lackadaisical attitude, with the exception of a few players, erratic shooting, ineffective checking, and incompetent ball handling were the major factors that accounted for the widely spread margin in the junior contest.

For Campbellford John Gray played an excellent game, driving very well which resulted in him scoring 38 points. Next was Jim Johnston with 10, and Rick Christie, Bill Bennett and Craig Bennett with 8 apiece.

In the hopeless Nicholson cause Bob Marbry hooped eight points followed by Pat Berine with seven and Doug Rashotte with five.

Contrary to the junior contest, the bantam game was a closely fought, see-saw battle that saw Nicholson, with two minutes left, score a field goal to break 28-28 deadlock.

Mike Allore was the big gun for Nicholson scoring 10 points. He was followed by Terry Lynch, Hubert Hicks and Stanley Muldoon who had 9, 6 and 4 points respectively.

For Campbellford, Ken Grant scored 9, Murray McCount 6 and Ron Atkinson 5.

As Campbellford did not field a senior team this year, there was no senior contest played.

Recommends Book For Grandmothers

DEAR DORIS: I have been told there is a book for training one to be a good grandma.

I have just become a grandma for the first time and I don't want to make any mistakes. If you know of such a book, would you let me know where I could get it? — GRANNY AND GLAD OF IT.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR GRANNY: Congratulations! A doctor with 12 grandchildren and heaps of experience with little ones has written a readable, lovable book of 112 pages, especially for grandmothers.

He has the insight to stress good relations between the adult generation. To quote from page 12: "It is a wonderfully rewarding feeling to see the parents relax, as they realize your approval. Nothing makes for happy grandparents as much as to see happy parents. Both have a rough road to travel. But it is so worth while!"

I'm writing you the particulars; and would also refer you to the new 122-page paperback by the St. John Ambulance Brigade, Ottawa, on "Child Care in the Home." This one was designed for baby-sitters, old or young.

Confidential to MENTALLY STUNNED: I'm afraid I can't say why some think it sinful to watch television or wear make-up or shorts. If this is the view of your adopted church, why not ask the pastor about it?

Our religion can help us most when we devote ourselves to its study; and decide for ourselves whether we can accept its teachings.

Weatherman on Plane Carrier Finds Task Not Too Difficult

By DAL WARRINGTON

ABOARD HMCS BONAVENTURE AT SEA (CP) — Most weather forecasters think they have trouble enough predicting conditions around their home offices. But Lt.-Cmdr. Frank Williams of Victoria has to do it from a weather office that's on the move.

For 2½ months this winter it's his job as meteorological officer aboard this 20,000-ton aircraft carrier to predict the weather over the Atlantic between Nova Scotia and Argentina, not to mention part of the Caribbean Sea.

"It's a challenge all right," he said. "I try to read up on the weather data of the areas where we're going. And, of course, we have the benefit of weather maps and other material prepared ashore and sent up to us by radio teletype or facsimile transmission."

After a year on Bonaventure, he says he finds forecasting at sea less difficult than he expected. He spent 10 years in the Vancouver weather office—which gave him good background on ocean lore—before the transport department gave him leave for a navy stint.

NEED WIND

A weather man's main job on a carrier is to predict conditions that affect flying. "We need a wind of about 27 knots across the deck. Bonaventure's normal top speed is about 22 knots. That means we want at least a five-knot breeze."

His little office on Bonaventure's starboard side is fitted with most of the equipment found at shore stations. His nine men take local observations of air and water temperature, barometric pressure, sky conditions and such every hour.

In the northwest Atlantic this data is radioed to Halifax every three hours to be distributed over the international weather network. Farther south the reports are sent to Washington and in the south Atlantic to a Royal Navy station in South Africa.

In return Williams gets a mass of comparable information from stations ashore and ships at sea plus copies of local forecasts that may be helpful. Weather maps are received from Washington, Halifax or Miami, depending on the ship's position.

He briefs Commodore John C. O'Brien, chief of the Bonaventure 14-ship task group, and Capt. Harry Porter, the carrier's captain, twice a day. But he may be called to the bridge at any time to give an up-to-date prediction.

Wide variations in weather are inevitable when a ship moves rapidly over the ocean. For instance, when Bonaventure sailed from Halifax Jan. 12 for a South American cruise the air temperature over the green-grey Atlantic was a frigid 11 degrees and the water temperature 30.

Sailing directly south, the temperatures started rising as the ship reached the northern edge of the Gulf Stream at about 40 degrees north latitude. By 8 o'clock next morning, less than 22 hours from Halifax, the air temperature had risen to 37 degrees and the water, now dark blue, to 62, having jumped 12 degrees in one hour.

"Weather pictures from satellites are the next big advance in forecasting," said Williams. "I think they'll be a big help, especially in detecting and predicting the movement of storms at sea."

GETTING THE WEATHER PICTURE — A navy technician in the weather office aboard HMCS Bonaventure gets the latest weather information from a shore station. The map, sent by radio, is received on a facsimile machine. The weather man's main job on the carrier is to predict conditions that affect flying. Weather observations from the ship are sent back to land stations. (CP Photo from National Defence)

Income Tax Tips

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not, in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax office.

By D. W. DAVIES, C.A.

EMPLOYEES' TRANSPORTATION EXPENSES

Any outlay by an employee for the operation of a car, or for bus and train fare to and from his place of employment is not a deductible expense. Where an employee resides is of his own choosing, and he is not allowed any deduction for travelling expenses no matter how far he may live from his place of employment. It does not matter how extenuating the circumstances may be, no deviation from this rule will be made.

Should the employer move his place of business or transfer the employee to another branch and then give the employee an allowance to cover the added transportation costs, such an allowance is not income and need not be reported if it is shown as a separate item or not included on the T4 slip. If the allowance is included with his salary then there would be no deduction at all as it would appear as just an increase in salary. To be deductible or omitted from income it must be definitely stated by the employer as not being salary but a travelling allowance.

If the employee's job is of a nature that he is required to travel away from his employer's place of business and the agreement is such that the employee furnish his own transportation for which he is not reimbursed, then he may deduct from his income the cost of his transportation. Deductions of this nature start after the employee reports for work and cease when he finishes work at night. When a claim of this nature is made, the employee must submit full details with his expense claim stating why the claim is necessary. The main point to remember is you cannot make any deduction just for travelling to and from work.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, five cent stamped envelope plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: My employer transferred me to another plant on the other side of the city. I now have to use my car to get to work. I get five gallons of gasoline per week from the company's pump. Is the price of this gas taxable income?

Answer: No. Not unless it appears on your T4 slip as a taxable benefit.

Question 2: I had to move outside the city on account of my wife's health. I must now use my car to get to work. Can I claim the extra cost to me for transportation under these circumstances?

Answer: No.

Retiring to Country Place? Maybe You Had Better Pause

By THOMAS COLLINS

If, a few years before you reach 65, you acquire a piece of land out in the country and start developing a retirement home on it, you will be following one of the Class A dreams of our times.

You also may be following a rabbit into a wildcat's hole.

The latest authoritative report on the matter comes from a man, who, in consideration of his friends and rural neighbors, will be known as Mr. Bradburn.

"It seems that most men of about 55 or 60 begin to dream about some acreage in the country, preferably with a lake or stream," he says. "They, as I did, will find such a place at some cost and then proceed to spend their every spare moment rushing from their job and their city home to pour more work and money into 'The Country Place.'

"After 10 years of this stupid activity I should know what I'm talking about."

Mr. Bradburn says these men never seem to learn that after they reach their 60's they don't have the muscle to fight off nature, build a home, "put up fences and keep them repaired against your neighbor's horses that are constantly pushing and reaching into your property."

MATTER OF DOGS

Then there's the matter of dogs. "You soon learn that dogs are smarter than people . . . the laws are for the dogs. It doesn't matter to the law if eventually, when you try to sell your property, the prospective buyer wants to know how you keep the dogs from howling all night long. Our country even allows commercial kennels to operate anywhere, and doesn't seem to mind if it ruins my home and 10 years of work . . ."

Mr. Bradburn cites the isolation of a "Country Place" as a major peril, as well as a damper on social activities. Your house would be burned down before a fire department from some nearby town responded to an alarm, even if it did respond, he explains. "And you could lie dead or near death for a week before anybody knew."

On taxes: "The tax assessors have found a new bonanza in these 'country Places' you try to develop. They aren't living homes; they are vacation homes. And surely, you're told, you can afford the latest modest 50 percent increase in your taxes.

"You will see your friends only on weekends . . . about mealtime. And naturally it does not cost you much to live because you raise all your own food. Hogwash!"

"JUST VISIT"

Mr. Bradburn urges all pre-retirement people who can stand the gaff of city taxes and regulations to remain there. And get their fill of the great outdoors by just visiting the country. "The regulations of the city that may annoy you are your very protection against dogs, horses, and people."

There are retired people who have built country places and are very happy with them. You don't see many of these. There are others who have built them and hate them, and would flee back to the city if they could do it without losing face and money. By far the largest group does a lot of dreaming, then a bit wistfully gives up the idea. The reasoning, in general, comes to this:

Country retirement places are often very difficult to resell after things sour; they are hopeless traps for widows who are left to cope alone; they can seldom lure down seven miles of country roads the old friends in the city who wouldn't visit too often down two blocks of sidewalk; they are a target for whatever uncivilized element that might be around, from animals to people, and a county sheriff is a bit harder to summon than a cop on the corner; they usually have no means of protecting property values from slum shacks or soap factories that go up across the road.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We are taking our holidays from the middle of next month and hope to tour the Carolinas. Some friends have told us that they took a tour of some of the historic private homes in Charleston. Do you know how this can be arranged? — F. B., Belleville.

ANSWER: In late March and early April the Historic Charleston Foundation sponsors tour through historic private homes. Information and tickets can be secured from Tour Headquarters and Tourist Information Bureau, 51 Meeting Street, Charleston, S.C.

QUESTION: Will you please tell us through your column where the Singing Bells are situated in Virginia and how they are reached? Also, when they may be heard? — A. C., Belleville.

ANSWER: We think you must be referring to the Luray Singing Tower (Belle Northcott Memorial) which is situated in the town of Luray, Va. Luray is in the Page Valley, separated from the main portion of the Shenandoah Valley by the Massanutten Mountain. It is on Highway 211, 9 miles west of the Skyline Drive in the Shenandoah National Park.

The 117-foot carillon tower, 25 feet square at the base, contains 47 bells, the largest weighing 7,640 pounds, the smallest 12 pounds. Manual recitals are given each Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday from March 14 to Nov. 14. These are at 3 p.m. except from June 1 to Sept 30 when they are held at 7:30 p.m. Sunset Vespers are held each Sunday July 4 to Sept. 5. There are additional recitals at the Easter Sunrise Service, Sept 5th at 3 p.m., and Labor Day at Noon. The music of the bells is best heard at a distance of 200 to 300 yards.

QUESTION: We are having some visitors from the United States over the Easter Holiday and wanted to show them the Royal Ontario Museum and Casa Loma in Toronto. Could you tell us what hours they are open? — A. G., Trenton

ANSWER: The Royal Ontario Museum is open Monday through Saturday 10 to 5, Sunday 1 to 5.

Casa Loma is open shorter hours at this season of the Year. It is open Oct 1st to May 23, 1 to 4:30, Monday through Saturday. May 24th to June 30 10 to 5:30 daily, July 1 to Labor Day, 10 to 9 daily except Sat. to 5:30, Labour Day to Oct. 1 10 to 5:30 daily. Closed Jan 1 and Dec. 25th.

QUESTION: Could you tell me the approximate distance and approximate driving time from Mexico City to Acapulco? — R. H. Belleville.

ANSWER: You should be able to do this drive comfortably in a day. It is 259 miles via the toll road which bypasses most of the towns. Tolls amount to 23 pesos. The Freeway going via Taxco is about 278 miles. This is the most popular of all side trips out of Mexico City. If the trip is taken during the in-season (about December 12 to Easter Monday), be sure to have confirmed reservations.

Murder Attempt Charged

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Three escaped convicts who led police on a three - day chase before they were finally captured Saturday were remanded today to Feb. 21, charged with the attempted murder of a policeman.

John Eaton, 25, of Moose Jaw, Sask.; Ross Harold Dankwardt 20, of Kitchener and Thomas Brydges, 21, of Elmira, Ont., entered no plea when they appeared today in the crowded courtroom. They were handcuffed and two armed policemen guarded the doors.

Police said the men spent Sunday night manacled to their cell doors on orders from the department of reform institutions.

They were captured Saturday morning on the outskirts of the city at a police roadblock.

At a press conference, officers involved in the chase said the men fired shotguns at a pursuing police cruiser before their car hit the roadblock and went into a ditch.

Their arrest at gunpoint by St. Catharines city police ended a short chase through the city's outskirts.

The men were charged specifically with attempting to murder Detective William Murdoch of St. Catharines police.

PELLET HITS COAT

Police said a pellet from a shotgun blast shattered Det. Murdoch's coat button at the tie clasp. The blast was travelling from left to right and Det. Murdoch was not hurt, said police.

Provincial police earlier had sworn out warrants for the arrest of the men on charges of kidnapping and rape.

Eaton, Brydges, Dankwardt and a fourth convict, Thomas William Fuhrman, 18, of Kitchener, broke out of the medium-security Collins Bay Penitentiary at Kingston Wednesday, crashing a panel truck through a gate.

A board of inquiry has been convened at Kingston to investigate circumstances of the escape.

Dankwardt was serving 30 months for auto theft, Eaton six years for possession of a deadly weapon and Brydges four years for auto theft.

Shortly after their escape Wednesday, Fuhrman was found hiding behind a Kingston restaurant. He had been serving 26 months for breaking, entry and theft.

Later in the day, men's and women's clothing was reported stolen from a house at Odessa, west of Kingston, and a taxi stolen in Kingston was found in

U.S. Moon Surveyor In Trouble

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) The National Aeronautics and Space Administration generally has an excellent record-launching spacecraft and making them work. But there's a skeleton in the closet: The hapless Surveyor program whose goal is to soft-land an unmanned vehicle on the moon.

The recent gentle landing of Russia's Luna IX on the lunar surface focused attention on Surveyor—a program which a congressional subcommittee recently termed "one of the least orderly and most poorly executed of NASA's projects."

The first Surveyor now is scheduled to rocket toward the moon in May, but chances of a successful soft landing on the initial attempt are not great. Project officials noted the complexity of the mission and the fact the Russians failed at least four times before recording a success.

Not only is the program three years behind schedule, its cost has mushroomed. Originally conceived in 1960 as a $50,000,000 program for seven launchings, the price tag already has reached $350,000,000 and is expected to surpass $725,000,000 million by the time the presently planned 10 launchings are completed.

To find out what went wrong, the House of Representatives space committee recently conducted an investigation.

The result was a blistering attack on both government and industry management.

Indonesia Says 300,000 Reds Killed in Reprisals for Coup

JAKARTA (Reuters)—A top Indonesian Communist went on trial before a military tribunal today on treason charges resulting from last October's attempt to overthrow the Sukarno regime.

Official Indonesian figures disclosed that more than 300,000 Communists were killed by the populace in reprisal attacks after the attempted coup. Unofficial reports have placed the death figure at close to 500,000.

The man who went on trial, Njono, was chairman of the Communist - dominated federation of trade unions. He is 40 years old. (Indonesians frequently restrict themselves to one name.)

Captured Oct. 2, the day after the takeover attempt, he was accused by the army of being one of the coup plot's leaders.

Col. Untung, who allegedly spearheaded the attempt to oust President Sukarno, also was scheduled to go on trial today, but Njono faced the tribunal alone. There was no explanation of Untung's absence.

Untung was commander of one elite presidential guard battalion when the coup attempt took place. He was captured Oct. 14 in central Java.

Early today, in preparation for the trial, troops and police cleared all roads leading to the national planning board building, where the special tribunal sat. Troops stood guard along several roads.

Foreign newspaper men and Indonesians working for foreign news media were barred from the trial on orders of the army minister, Lt.-Gen. Suharto.

The army released an alleged confession in which the Communist leader said he had planned to take over the Jakarta area with 2,000 armed members of the Communist youth (pemuda rajat) organization if Col. Untung's coup attempt had succeeded.

Decide on U.S. Planes And Navy up in Arms

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Wilson met with his top defence advisers Sunday night to seek a final decision on the politically explosive issue of whether Britain will rely on United States F-111 swing-wing bombers or aircraft carrier-based planes for its strategic defence.

The crisis has built up to such proportions that all ministers connected with the Royal Navy and several high naval officers were reported to have threatened last week to resign if the government opts for purchase of the American planes.

The government is firmly committed to hold defence spending to £2,000,000,000 ($6,000,000,000) based on 1964 prices.

This means the government cannot afford to buy the F-111s, on which it holds an option due to expire next month, and also build for the navy a big new aircraft carrier for the 1970s.

Defence Secretary Denis Healey was reported to have decided in favor of the American planes — and the navy is up in arms.

Wilson returned from Chequers, his official country residence, for the unusual Sunday meeting of the cabinet's defence and overseas planning commission.

Denis Will Be Asked to Face Two Charges

OTTAWA (CP)—County Judge Frank Costello ruled today that Raymond Denis will be tried separately on the two charges against him artsing out of the affair of narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard.

His decision, rendered at the opening of Denis' trial, followed an application by defence counsel Louis Assaly who argued that the jury would be prejudiced in deciding on the second count after hearing the evidence with respect to the first.

Crown Attorney John Cassells gave notice that in view of the judge's decision he will proceed first on the charge that Denis offered a sum of money to Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne to have Lamontagne drop his opposition to bail for Rivard during 1964 extradition proceedings in a Montreal court.

Denis, 33, was at that time executive assistant to the federal immigration minister.

Mr. Lamontagne was counsel for the U.S. government which sought to extradite Rivard to face charges on which he has since been convicted and sentenced to 20 years in prison.

The second charge accuses Denis of attempting to obstruct the course of justice by trying to dissuade Mr. Lamontagne from opposing bail.

With Mr. Assaly's motion disposed of, the next step was selection of the jury from a panel of 49 men and women.

Mr. Cassells estimated it would take five or six days to present his witnesses. Twenty-one witnesses have been subpoenaed.

Mr. Assaly said he expects it will take two or three days for his defence.

Is Irresponsible to Hold Line On Wages Says Union Expert

NIAGARA FALLS (CP)—An associate research director for the Canadian Labor Congress says unions would be irresponsible if they did not continue to seek higher wages.

Russell Irvine told an education seminar sponsored by the Ontario Federation of Labor that holding the line on wages would reduce purchasing power and the growth needed to generate the 1,000,000 new jobs necessary by 1970.

Mr. Irvine said Sunday that panic in Ottawa over recent price increases of some commodities has been reflected in proposals for cutbacks in social capital and public works, steps that would lead to a recession.

"It would be irresponsible to bow to the pressures of the more irrational elements in Ottawa to hold the line on wages'."

He said the labor movement in Canada is prepared to discuss a national incomes policy if danger of inflation arises, but this must include rents, profits and managerial salaries.

Dwight Storey, legislative director of the United Steel Workers of America (CLC), suggested "padlocking" a company's premises during a legal strike.

"As long as a company can use the courts to aid it in operating a plant, then free collective bargaining doesn't exist." He suggested legislation be passed to compel companies to remain closed during a strike.

He said padlocking would prevent the compay from hiring temporary workers and make economic forces the deciding factor in the outcome of a strike.

Lorne Ingle, solicitor for the Steel Workers, said if the preservation of existing rights is important for both sides, it is only fair that the jobs of striking employees should be protected.

Harry Waisglass, the Steelworkers' Canadian research director, blamed price increases on the "avarice, greed and hunger of the Canadian businessmen."

Mr. Waisglass said prices, rather than wages, should be restrained.

John J. Deutsch, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, said federal and provincial governments and industry should prepare their capital expenditures for five-year periods, instead of on a short term basis.

Waste in government programs and administration was blamed by the chairman of the Ontario Economic Council for preventing the province and Canada from getting full value from taxes.

Chairman W. H. Cranston said government waste costs the taxpayer just as much as featherbedding and inefficiency.

The present period of trade union militancy was cited by Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Scarborough West, as "the best time for the NDP."

Mr. Lewis said "we have never been in a better position and it won't last forever."

He said the party is riding a wave of popular support which must be cultivated and expanded before the next election.

Earlier Sunday, Gerard Rancourt, general secretary of the Quebec Federation of Labor,

Goldwater Gives Views

Opposes Begging For Peace Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Senator Barry Goldwater says an American demonstration of determination—and not what he calls "grovelling" peace offensives—will bring North Viet Nam to the conference table.

"I don't think it's our job to get the Communists to the conference table by begging, by going through other emissaries, by going through other leaders," the 1960 Republican presidential candidate said Sunday on ABC's radio-television program Issues and Answers.

"I think we'll get the Hanoi government to the conference table when we convince them we have the will to attack and that we are attacking them.

"It is a very sad spectacle to see the greatest power on earth sort of grovelling."

OTHERS ALSO COMMENT

President Johnson's peace offensive—and its failure thus far—brought these other weekend developments:

—Senator Abraham A. Ribicoff (Dem. Conn.) proposed that Johnson invite the participants in the 1954 Geneva conference to meet again to discuss a settlement in the Viet Nam War.

—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam, said the probability is "quite low" that increased military pressure by the United States in Viet Nam would lead to a confrontation with China.

—Administration officials reported the U.S. has started blacklisting non - Communist and Polish ships that trade with North Viet Nam.

'BOMB INDUSTRIES'

Goldwater suggested that air power be used to attack the industrial complexes in North Viet Nam, bomb railways and destroy the Ho Chi Minh trail and said North Viet Nam's ports could be shut down by mining them or sinking ships in them.

Goldwater, a general in the air force reserve, said more authority for the direction of the fighting should be given to "military people who have spent their lives studying the problems of strategy."

"I think men like the secretary of defence (Robert S. McNamara) should be removed completely from any part of this war other than the logistic part."

A panelist asked Goldwater if the U.S. should attack Chinese atomic plants if China got into the war.

"Frankly I would like one provocation just to knock out their atomic capability right out of the ground," Goldwater replied, "and I think they realize this and I think for that reason they are not going to become directly involved."

CREDITS AIR POWER

Gen. Taylor credited his conclusion that China is not likely to enter into war with the United States to massive U.S. air power.

He said on the CBS radio-television orogram Face the Nation the situation in Viet Nam is similar to that during the Korean War. "Our air power has been belittled for its perform-

Rice Crop Is Saved From Reds

SAIGON (AP)—Hard hit by a big combined operation which rescued a huge rice harvest, the Viet Cong struck back today with twin mine explosions that killed 47 South Vietnamese farmers and wounded seven.

Allied ground forces reported killing 150 Viet Cong in scattered clashes in the last 24 hours, while U.S. planes hammered targets in North Viet Nam. But guerrillas overran the Dinh Mon outpost in the Mekong Delta and killed or captured all 11 defenders.

The Viet Cong mines were set off on a road 10 miles southwest of Tuy Hoa, on the central coast where the U.S. 101st Airborne, South Korean marines and South Vietnamese troops have been scouring the countryside for several weeks while the rice was being harvested.

An American spokesman said the Viet Cong touched off the first blast about 7:30 a.m., catching a busload of farmers and killing 27 of them.

The mine blew a crater almost three yards deep, hurled the bus into a canal and strewed bodies about.

A crowd gathered to watch a crane lifting the bus out of the canal shortly before noon. A three-wheeled vehicle that came on the scene set off the second mine, killing another 20 South Vietnamese and wounding seven.

Observers said the twin blasts probably were the biggest terrorist toll of the war. The last of such fatal proportions was at the My Canh floating restaurant in Saigon where 42 persons were killed and 80 wounded last June 25, 1965.

The mining evidently was in retaliation for the rice harvesting, which has been highly successful in an area that until recently had to import 600 tons a month because the Viet Cong controlled a major portion of the crop.

Viet Cong Has Edge In 'Info'

By JOHN T. WHEELER

SAIGON (AP)—In South Viet Nam the U.S. military machine often performs like a well-conditioned but half-blinded heavyweight boxer pushed into a strange ring full of trap doors and stumbling blocks.

The opponent frequently seems like a cunning veteran lightweight with eyes in the back of its head.

This analogy was drawn by a U.S. commander after his troops had swooped down by helicopter in a carefully planned operation aimed at trapping a large Viet Cong force.

Aside from small-arms fire from snipers, who later escaped, the reinforced battalion missed the enemy completely.

The pattern is repeated constantly. The major battles between the Viet Cong and combined forces almost always have been on terms of the Viet Cong's choosing.

Over and over again intelligence has proven to be the most vital factor in South Viet Nam since the French war. The pattern established during the French days remains unchanged.

TOO MUCH, TOO LITTLE

The guerrillas have lots of information from its intelligence sources, the U.S. and South Vietnamese too little. This was what the U.S. commander referred to when he described U.S. combat units as half-blinded.

The fact that U.S. military operations are directed at longtime Viet Cong redoubts prompted the reference to the weird boxing ring.

The guerrillas use their intimate knowledge of the territory to full advantage in pulling out as soon as any engagement starts going too heavily against them.

Also a frustrating factor is the Viet Cong's use of extensive trench and tunnel networks as an escape trap door. In many cases too they are aided by sympathetic local villagers.

Neither the Americans nor the South Vietnamese have been able to put together an effective intelligence net to warn of Viet Cong plans. Each often operates in ignorance of what the other ally has learned. Competing intelligence agencies complicate the situation.

INFILTRATE ALLY

How do the Viet Cong know so much? It has long been accepted as fact that the Viet Cong guerrillas have infiltrated the South Vietnamese military command.

In a few cases purely U.S. operations have been launched without notification to the Saigon military—to guard against compromise. But even then the Viet Cong have somehow got advance warning.

Detroit Rabbi Shot in Head

The 59 - year - old spiritual leader of 6,000 Detroit - area Jews remained in critical condition at Sinai Hospital, where he was admitted Saturday for emergency brain surgery.

His assailant, Richard Wishnetsky, 23, remained on the critical list at nearby Providence Hospital where he was taken with a self - inflicted bullet wound. He was not expected to live, the hospital said.

U.S. Physicist Explains

'Dirty Bombs' Most Effective, 'That's What's in Inventory'

TORONTO (CP) — A United States nuclear physicist said Sunday night his country is still building the so-called "dirty nuclear bomb" because it is the most effective military weapon.

Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, who worked on the Manhattan Project that helped develop the atomic bomb during the Second World War, was interviewed on the CBC's television program This Hour Has Seven Days.

"That's what's in inventory and that's what the B-52s are carrying," he said in reference to nuclear bombs with heavy radioactive fallout.

Dr. Lapp said it is unrealistic to think of getting any kind of gentleman's agreement so that only "human" bombs are used in nuclear war. "Your opponent will use his best weapons as he sees them."

He described a nuclear war as a convulsion, "a horrible convulsion in which there'll be no time for restraint. An enemy will simply hurl his nuclear might at you as a kind of series of Jovian thunderbolts, and you in turn will not wait to evaluate the damage."

Dr. Lapp said he thought it would be technically possible for China to have a hydrogen bomb in two or three years.

He said the only way to get at the Chinese in the event of war would be to use dirty bombs with plenty of fallout.

However, he said he doubted whether the United States could win a war with China. "I don't believe you could even deter China by using the blast of a Minuteman or Polaris weapon against its cities."

Dr. Lapp said the nuclear bomb lost in the sea near Palomares, Spain, last month in the crash of a U.S. bomber contained a "tremendous amount of know-how. It's the major thing that separates China from the H-bomb."

More Funds Requested For Pollution Problem

The Federal government at Ottawa should provide more funds to get action toward the solving of the pollution problem in the Great Lakes, according to A. Douglas Alkenbrack, M.P. for Prince Edward-Lennox.

Speaking in the House of Commons on February 8th, in connection with estimates for the International Joint Commission, and Canada's share of expenses for the studies of boundary water pollution, Mr. Alkenbrack said this year's $15,000 was only a "paltry" $2,000 increase over the amount for last year.

He said the government was derelict in its duty in this regard, claiming that the 16 per cent increase would not even cover the extra costs created by the escalation of costs this year in respect to the studies.

NOT ENOUGH

Mr. Alkenbrack said that last year he had pointed out the inadequacy of the amount of $13,000 for the pollution studies and said that this year's "paltry" $2,000 more to be spent on the item was "further indication of the carelessness handling of this matter by the government."

The member for Prince Edward Lennox noted that there was a serious pollution problem in regard to Lake Erie and Lake Ontario although the Lake Erie problem was more advanced in that it amounted to the death of the lake.

Lake Ontario was fast becoming one of that class, he said.

"I ask the Secretary of State for External Affairs to seriously reconsider making available a larger sum of money in this connection in order that we may take some action toward solving the serious problem of pollution that today besets our public waters."

ance in Korea because it didn't stop the war," he explained. "It didn't stop the war but it put a ceiling on the war.

"There were at least a million more armed Chinese north of the Yalu (River) who never came into action because they could not be supported on the front under the pressure from the air."

Taylor, former chairman of the joint chiefs of staff and now a special presidential adviser, also gave some of his views in a copyrighted interview in U.S News and World Report magazine.

"It is certainly not in the interest of Red China to have a military confrontation with the United States," he said. "It would simply be completely destructive for their country if they were so rash as to do so."

'WITHDRAW 10,000'

Ribicoff said President Johnson should offer to withdraw 10,000 American troops from South Viet Nam if the Hanoi government would match the U.S. offer.

Johnson should personally invite participants to the proposed Geneva meeting, make it clear that no subject would be barred from the conference agenda and name UN Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg as chief negotiator, Ribicoff said.

The former secretary of health, education and welfare said he had written Johnson about his proposals.

The blacklisting of foreign ships that have traded with North Viet Nam began Jan. 25, it was revealed, but only came to light after the maritime administration listed the first group of barred ships in the federal register. The vessels are barred from transporting U.S.-financed cargoes from American ports.

Believe Knife Found Used in Brutal Killing

ELMVALE, Ont. (CP)—Provincial police said Sunday they have found a knife which they believe was used in the brutal killing of a six-year-old Port McNicol, Ont., boy.

Police said a hunting knife was found on the roof of the arena at this community about 15 miles northwest of Barrie.

Michael Kent was found by a family friend Friday night lying face down in mud behind the arena. The youngster had been stabbed seven times—four times in the chest and abdomen and three times in the back—in what police called a senseless and brutal murder.

Police conducted a house-to-house inquiry in Elmvale Saturday and Sunday.

Elmvale has a population of approximately 1,000.

FIRE CAUGHT UP

LONDON (AP) — The only building in The Strand to survive the Great Fire of 1666 and the Blitz caught fire here recently. The restaurant bar of the Wig and Pen Club, frequented by lawyers and journalists, was only slightly damaged.

Phone Rates Up at Wooler And Frankford

MONTREAL (CP)—Bell telephone of Canada has announced increased rates for 27 telephone exchanges in Quebec and Ontario.

The company said in a statement that because the local calling areas for the 27 exchanges have outgrown their present rate groups increases will go into effect within the next six weeks.

The Ontario exchanges affected are Bolton, Bracebridge, Callander, Cold Springs, Fenelon Falls, Field, Frankford, Grimsby, Iroquois, Massey, Oakville, Orangeville, Rodney, Spanish, Sydenham, Waterford and Wooler.

Increases for residence service range from 10 cents a month for two-party residence service in Iroquois, Fenelon Falls, Massey and Spanish to 30 cents a month in Sydenham.

Increases for business service will range from 55 cents monthly to $1.55 in the same places.

a garage at the house.

Thursday, a suburban Toronto woman said she had been kidnapped by three men and driven around central Ontario before being left bound and gagged in a motel room north of Barrie.

A province-wide police search centred around the Beaverton area about 50 miles north of Toronto Friday with reports that the men had been seen.

Frank Bobyk of Barrie told police he was attacked by a man who flagged him down on the highway. When a second man approached the car, the first told Bobyk he had a sick woman in a car down a sideroad.

BECOMES SUSPICIOUS

Bobyk said he became suspicious and pushed the button on his power window, then drove off.

Early Saturday, three men came to the farm home of Ronald McGuire at Blackheath, about 10 miles south of Hamilton. They said their car was stuck on a back road.

When McGuire offered to call police for help, the men fled. Shortly after, Gordon Bates, a service station operator, towed their car out of the mud and snow.

By this time, police said they believed the men were driving a green and white car, stolen earlier in Brantford.

The car was spotted on the outskirts of St. Catharines about 10:30 a.m., and followed by Welland County Police Chief Robert Rippey and Constable Charles Juhlke.

Police said the men smashed out a rear window in their car and fired shots at the police cruiser.

The roadblock was set up by St. Catharines detectives Murdoch and David Gittings. The car hit their police cruiser, and rolled into a ditch. Police fired warning shots, but encountered no resistance when they made the arrest.

One of the men was dressed in women's clothing.

Immigrants Up a Third In Past Year

OTTAWA (CP)—Immigration to Canada increased last year 30 per cent to 146,758 persons from 112,606 in 1964, the immigration department reported Friday.

It was the highest since the post-war peak year of 1957 when 282,164 immigrants entered the country. Immigration slumped to a low of 71,689 in 1961.

The United Kingdom again led the list of source countries with 39,875 immigrants in 1965 up from 29,279 in 1964. Italy was next with 26,398 (19,297) then came the United States with 15,143 (12,565), Germany with 8,927 (5,992), Portugal with 5,734 (5,309); Greece with 5,642 (4,391) and France with 5,225 immigrants (4,542).

Immigration from the U.S. was the highest since the Second World War. Immigrants from the West Indies totalled 2,926 compared with 2,072 a year earlier.

Ontario and Quebec continued to receive the major share of immigrants.

Ontario got 79,702 or 54 per cent; Quebec 30,346 or 21 per cent; British Columbia 18,502, Prairie Provinces 14,646, the Atlantic provinces 3,427.

Immigration Minister Marchand, commenting on the 1965 figures, said it was significant that 67 per cent of the immigrants were in the "more skilled categories" — up from 59 per cent in 1964.

Is Irresponsible

said the labor movement in his province has so far resisted the separatist movement, "but time is running out."

Mr. Rancourt said that if confederation is to last, French-Canadians must be given the feeling that Canada belongs to them as well as to English-speaking Canadians.

He urged the labor movement to seek "a type of federalism" which would serve as a model for the whole of Canada.

He told the seminar that it is still possible for Ontario work[illegible] to agree with Quebec work[illegible] on a plan which would be fair to the linguistic minorities in both provinces.

NO CONSPIRACY

Eugene Forsey, research director for the Canadian Labor Congress, said Canada is dominated by English-speaking Canadians because of a variety "of historical reasons," not because English-speaking Canadians have been engaged in a conspiracy to keep French Canadians out of seats of power.

To further Canadian unity, Mr. Forsey suggested that the entire central government become bilingual, French-Canadians be given more portfolios in the federal cabinet, New Brunswick, with its French-speaking minority, be officially made bilingual like Quebec, French education be provided [illegible] French-speaking children across the country and bilingualism be established in the courts and municipal councils of all areas where there is a substantial French-speaking population.

BCI "Winter Wonderland" Success Despite Weather

Despite some rather unseasonable 40 degree weather, students at Belleville Collegiate held their third annual "Winter Wonderland" carnival on Saturday.

Approximately two thirds of the total school enrolment turned out for many of the events, highlighted by ice and snow sculpturing on the Collegiate lawn, a hootenany, go-cart racing at Victoria Park and a men's and boys' baking contest.

In addition there was school volleyball, an arts and crafts show, nail driving contest for the girls and women teachers and a Saturday evening dance in the boys' gymnasium.

There were 15 different snow sculptures for the judges to choose from with the "Horn of Plenty" fashioned by 13-C being judged the winner.

A Grade 11-C effort - a teacup saucer and hand – won second place and a Grade 11-C face sculpture "Orful" received third place.

Judges for the snow sculpture contest were Lee Grills, M.P. for Hastings South; High School board chairman Dr. J. Barlow; school board member, J. Clarke, and high schools superintendent E. A. Orr.

Jeanette Downey was the "pilot" of the go-cart racing contest at Victoria Park with 12-D students David Clarke, Doug Murray and Ralph Spencer as the motive power.

Ray Barrick won the senior boys' baking contest with W. Beevor taking the men teachers' cake baking award.

Prices ranging up to $4 each were bid on the cakes when they were put up for auction.

Want to Halt Trafficking In Stolen Dogs

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals plans to mount a concerted attack on "inter - province trafficking of stolen dogs," Chief Inspector James St. Onge of the Society said Friday.

"Most of these dogs 'lifted' off the street end up as subjects in biology lab experiments," he said in an interview.

The society suspects some of the dogs, bought at auctions are pets "dog-napped" on neighborhood streets.

"We found a pet dog from Toronto at a biology lab in Montreal," Mr. St. Onge said. "The thieves had forgotten to take off its licence tag."

He said the animals are stolen and taken to what he termed "out-of - town auction houses," where buyers purchase dogs for the labs.

The volume of dogs used is high. "We visited one lab a week ago. It had 132 animals on hand. Five days later there were 11 left."

The animals are being used for heart disease research.

To halt the pet - thefts the CSPCA here will soon introduce a free service by which an owner can take his dog to the society and have a serial number tattooed on its flank.

Editor Found Readers Want Comic Pages

HAMILTON (CP) — The Kingston Whig-Standard has found out that its readers really enjoy comic strips.

Executive Editor Robert D. Owen told the 20th annual conference of Canadian Managing Editors Saturday what happened when the evening daily withdrew its comic page last May 31 to June 2.

"We had to close the switchboard the second day" because of calls from upset readers, he said. And more than 600 readers wrote letters of protest to the editor.

Written reaction to the withdrawal of comics included:

"Whose brilliant idea was this?"

"These things (the comics) make more sense than most of the news."

"Try the same method of finding out how popular is your editorial page."

Prospective New Industry Chooses Another Locality

TRENTON — Midland Ross Corporation advised the Trenton Industrial and Economic Development Committee on Friday that it has selected a site in another town. Rumour has it that this is in the Burlington area.

J. H. Park, assistant to the vice-president and General-Manager, stated in his letter:

"I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for all of your gracious assistance during our recent inquiries in the Trenton area. As you know, we were considering Trenton along with several other communities as a possible location for a manufacturing facility. After a somewhat lengthy and drawnout period of examination and analysis, we have made our decision to locate in an area which we felt was better suited to our needs than in Trenton.

"It is our understanding that the OMC plant has been optioned, and you have our sincere wishes that this new employer will have a long and successful relationship with the Trenton community.

"Please convey our gratitude to your associates who were also very helpful to us."

BUCKING ODDS

"The local Committee, with the Council's full support, offered a package deal to the Midland Ross Company that was as attractive as any municipality could possibly give, but we were bucking the economics of a company manufacturing for industry located in Western Ontario", said Councillor Paul Tripp, chairman of the committee. "We have no apologies to offer for our effort. The odds were against us," he added.

The Outboard Marine Corporation building was the attraction to the Trenton area and, evidently, it was the right building in the wrong part of Ontario.

Considerable interest was aroused some weeks ago when an employer, now revealed to be Midland Ross Corporation, advertised for skilled labor in the area.

The response was overwhelming and the interviewers were unable to cope with the tide of applicants.

The option concerning the Outboard Marine Building, to which Mr. Park refers in his letter, is to E. A. Meredith, a Nominee for an undisclosed person. This agreement runs to April 1, 1966, so there will be almost a two months wait to see what the decision will be.

Everett (Pat) Wannamaker assisted with the score sheets.

Must Tie Canada's Wagon To Explosion of Knowledge Geo. Hees Tells Realtors

BRIGHTON — "Shall we hitch our wagon to the explosion of new knowledge and learn how to use everything the scientific revolution offers or retreat into obscurity?"

This is the challenge which, said Hon. George Hees, Northumberland MP and former Federal Trade and Commerce Minister, confronts Canadians. He addressed the annual convention of the Ontario Association of Real Estate Boards at the Royal York hotel in Toronto this morning.

From an agricultural based economy at the beginning of World War 2, Canada catapulted itself into the ranks of the leading industrial powers, he said, with more than a million Canadians (one quarter of the working force) engaged in manufacturing. This set the stage for a mighty manufacturing upsurge in 1946 which has resulted in a continuing growth from eight billion then to more than 30 billion in manufactured products today.

While giving full credit for "this very impressive accomplishment for such a small country as ours," Mr. Hees said, impressive as it may be, we must admit it is an accomplishment based largely on the research and technology of others, notably the U.S.

EDUCATION VITAL

The key to continuing progress he said is making more money available for advanced educational study in research and technology in our universities. He termed investment in education facilities as basic to maintaining our competitive position in world markets and the Canadian standard of living.

"Canada cannot afford to spend less per capita than any of her principal industrial competitors. To do so is to court economic disaster. While the momentum behind the Canadian economy has come very largely from the exploration and exploitation of raw materials and resources, now the character of the Canadian economy is shifting. More and more emphasis is on the conversion of raw materials into manufactured goods. The world will beat a path to the door of the man who builds a better mousetrap and sells it for the lowest price! It will shun obsolete mousetraps, or even the most modern of traps if they are not offered at competitive prices".

Mr. Hees said that business men must consider costs of university buildings and maintenance as one of their cost of production to keep pace with our competitors and the rapid advance of this era of space age scientific progress.

Education is not concerned solely with a study of past history and literature in order to develop the mind. But education today has become the greatest single factor in our economic growth. Business depends on our being willing to accept the fruit of research and the amazing new sciences which can show us the way to develop new uses for our raw materials, to find out how to recover at a profit ores of low quality . . all that we do is affected by the work of the universities. They are not only the repositories of all past knowledge but the means whereby we can discover new worlds to conquer. This poses a problem in Canada, similar to that faced in Great Britain, Mr. Hees said.

"In order to keep pace with the rapidly growing need for scientific education in this country we will have to do the same as Great Britain and by 1980, double the proportion of our national income that we are spending today.

It is going to cost a great deal of money. By meeting the challenge, Mr. Hees said "the future will be the most exciting period of all, and those of us who will be alive in 1970 and 1980 will be lucky to have had a part in pioneering and to see "even as in a glass darkly" the shape of things to come.

Spotlight on Montreal

Here are two interesting items of news from Montreal: a group of 21 young American peace corps volunteers is undergoing training there for service in French-speaking Guinea; and a suggestion by showman George Hamid that Expo '67 could fall flat on its face because of a simple lack of sex appeal.

Two contrasting subjects, to be sure, and we might as well consider the latter one first. Expo officials should take seriously the words of Mr. Hamid.

"Believe me," he told the Montreal Gazette's Al Palmer, "I'm all for culture and industry. That is basic. But when I depend on those as an attraction I can only expect elderly people who are culturally inclined."

Of couse it should not be forgotten that two or three hundred attractively uniformed young women will act as guides at the exhibition. But showman Hamid is evidently thinking of top stars from the world of entertainment, dancing girls and the like. He cited Sally Rand, who drew 28,000 in one day to Atlantic City's Steel pier back in the thirties and also helped to make a success of the Chicago Fair in 1932.

Well, it is worth thinking about. Expo 67 is costing millions, and anything that will help recover such a huge expenditure should be considered.

Back to the Peace Corps. The 21 U.S. trainees were sent to Montreal because nowhere else, according to group director Gary Robinson, could they find advanced equipment for field training, along with French-speaking mechanics. And therein lies a clue to their mission in Africa — the training of Guinean mechanics in the use and maintenance of heavy machinery.

Guinea is an interesting choice for a Peace Corps mission. As we noted the other day, the former French colony relied in the early days of its independence on aid from the communist world. But Guinea was dissatisfied with the quality of this aid and it was withdrawn. Now the Americans will have an opportunity to show their paces.

Is This Discipline?

Discipline today is almost a thing of the past. It has been replaced largely by an attitude of permissiveness, laissez-faire and pragmatism. It extends all the way from public boards which fail to exercise authority where they should, to youngsters in schools who do not do as they are told.

A news item from Wallaceburg illustrates this premise. A woman told the area public school board that a teacher had taped her eight-year-old daughter's mouth on two occasions for disciplinary reasons.

So the child was talking too much in class — or so one would conclude. But does taping her mouth constitute a proper disciplinary response? Teachers are entitled to be firm. Indeed, it is a very lack of firmness that is responsible for so many of the problems of youngsters nowadays. But they are not entitled to employ methods that are at once humiliating and cruel.

One might have expected some censure of the teacher. But no. The area school board, while admitting the child's mouth had been taped, merely suggested she be re-enrolled at the school under the direction of another teacher. Her mother meanwhile had enrolled her at another school.

Individually and collectively today, people take the line of least resistance. Instead of the child being given a rap over the knuckles, her mouth was taped and instead of the teacher being told to refrain from such excesses he or she is apparently being left free to use similar measures on other children.

Sisters Released

The two young Montreal sisters who danced on a downtown Miami rooftop and waved a toy pistol at shoppers have been released — on condition they leave the country.

The case was a remarkable one for a number of reasons — the girls themselves, who seem an attractive pair who wanted only to stay in Florida; the fact that they should dream up such a stunt for such a purpose when it was likely to end in failure, as it did; and on the side of the law, an unusually understanding and compassionate judge.

Originally sentenced to 120 days in jail on disorderly conduct charges, the girls won a new trial at the request of lawyers. In the meantime Judge Gerald Tobin was injured in an auto accident. To help Susanne Bisson, 18, and her sister Monique, 20, he held court in the hospital.

"They were down and out and wanted people to care about them," said Judge Tobin. "It's human. I'm withholding adjudication — no conviction. I want you both out of the country by Monday."

But where are the parents of these girls? If they were down and out in Miami, how did they get into this situation? Who is going to look after them now? Behind their irrational behavior on the rooftop there is intelligence that could be put to better use. They could, perhaps, find work with Expo 67. An imaginative exhibition like Expo should be able to use the talents of two non-conformist sisters who evidently just want to belong somewhere.

The current scarcity of coal is making itself felt among farmers needing this commodity for their brooder stoves according to the weekly crop report issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. A number of farmers already have their baby chicks away to a good start. Mrs. George Bonisteel of this city is attending the annual meeting of the Ontario Horticultural Society in Toronto.

The Valentine party which was arranged by the Children of Mary Society in connection with St. Michael's parish, took place last evening in St. Michael's Academy and was a successful affair. Many tables of bridge and euchre were in play. The door prize, a pair of blankets, was won by Mrs. Morrison. Refreshments were served and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Piggott, East Dundas St. have left here to reside in Toronto.

About 60 members and their friends were present. The affair was most enjoyable and much credit is due to the members of the committee which arranged the event, the chairman of which was Bert Wallace.

Auto Safety In Spotlight

Vancouver Sun

The auto makers' well-polished maxim that "safety doesn't sell" is taking a severe buffeting these days.

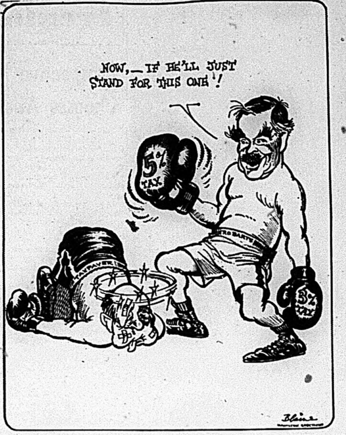
By their own admission public pressure for safety is forcing the car manufacturers to pay it more attention in designing their stylish chariots.

U. S. Ford, which felt it didn't get sufficient results from its big safety push of 1956, now is going to try again with a major advertising campaign. General Motors is publishing a booklet on safety and will begin a series of institutional advertisements. The two companies will contribute $4 million to the University of Michigan for a safety research institute.

It is not hard to find the reason for this sudden interest in safety. It is in direct response to substantial pressure from the U.S. public and Government.

The hightened interest in serious safety studies will take a long time before it shows up in the showroom. Such is the complicated production schedule that Ford's director of automotive safety says it is already too late to affect 1969 models.

The consumer can at least take heart that it has been hs complaints that have forced the auto makers to take a second look at efforts on safety.



To Your Good Health

Belladonna Helpful In Diverticulitis

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is belladonna harmful over a long period — 15 drops twice a day before meals? This seems to be helpful in preventing cramps and frequent bowel movements following a severe attack of diverticulitis. The doctor says now to take it only when there is discomfort. Please send me your booklet on "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You." I enclose the required 20 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. — H. A. R.

Diverticulitis (inflammation) of a diverticulum, or out-pouching of the bowel) can cause spasm and cramps, and belladonna (or some similar-acting drug) is effective in relieving the distress.

After the irritation has subsided, continuous use of the medication may not be needed — which, of course, is just what your physician indicated. Why take it if you don't need it?

The point to keep in mind is that all people don't respond equally to a particular drug. Fifteen drops may be too much for one person, while another may tolerate it easily.

If too much is being taken, it is manifested by symptoms such as dryness of the mouth, blurring of vision, and flushing of the skin. Thus if a patient tolerates a certain dose without such symptoms, and gets relief, prolonged use of the medication is not harmful. (However, drugs of the belladonna type should not be taken by a person with glaucoma; the drugs do not cause the eye disease but they make it worse.)

Proper diet, correct bowel habits, and ample intake of water are also important in diverticulitis.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband wears an artificial leg, but at night if he has to get up, he refuses to strap it on. He goes hopping to the bathroom. Isn't this expecting too much of his heart? He is 50 and healthy and I want to keep him that way. — Mrs. L. B.

If you want to go easy on his heart, let him travel the way that's best for him. Let him decide whether it's easier to hop twice as much on one leg, or half as much on two. In short, don't fret about this. Having a crutch handy would be another solution.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is a Bartholin cyst? Is there danger of it becomng malignant? Should it be removed surgically or will it sometimes go away on its own? — Mrs. M. W.

A Bartholin gland is located on each side of the genital opening in women. This gland is often subject to becoming plugged (a cyst is rather adequate indication of whether it ought to be removed; on occasion it can be exquisitely painful. I've sometimes wondered whether exquisite should be applied to pain, but the dictionary says one meaning of the word is keen or intense.)

Cysts just don't go away. Sometimes they become abcessed; and rupture, and there is sudden relief when the pressure is thus reduced. But a cyst eventually will seal over or become infected again.

Thus in general my reply is that if a Bartholin cyst becomes painful, have it removed and be done with the problem. However, there are so many grades of difference (Is the cyst large or small? How painful?) that you had best be guided by your doctor's advice. If it isn't too bothersome, and your doctor says, "Let's wait and see," you are running no great risk except the chance that it may become extremely sensitive.

Are Cockels Now 'In?'

The Times, London

Shades of sweet Molly Malone, who was seen, long ago, in Dublin's fair city, where girls are so pretty, wheeling her wheel - barrow through streets broad and narrow crying, Cockles and Mussels! Alive, alive Oh! Much water has flowed under the bridges of the Liffey since her day, and cockles are no longer the constant theme of street cries. Scientific prose has now caught them in its net. A monograph, just issued by the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, bears the title: The determination of natural mortality and its causes in an exploited population of cockles (Cardium edule L.). Priced at one guinea, this publication may not prove to be a best - seller. But it will no doubt be helpful to the deserving fishermen of Llanrhidian Sands in the Burry Inlet of South Wales, for whose benefit the inquiry was undertaken.

For laymen it provides food for thought. How vague most of us are about cockles! Was the badge proudly worn by pilgrims to the shrine of St. James of Compostella the shell of the cockle sold by Molly Malone and her London sisters? Do cockles vary widely in size? Captain Cook on his voyages found cockles so large that one of them was enough for two men and, near home, Kingsley noted huge mahogany cockles as big as a child's two fists. Attention of the investigators on the Welsh sands was concentrated on the mystery of the death of these tasty little creatures. Research was made easier "since cockles movement." But staying put does not save them especially in their second year of life.

No less than 91 per cent. perish in that fatal period, compared with 48 per cent. of youngsters in their first winter. Once past the second winter mark, prospects brighten for the old stagers, whose losses are less than 20 per cent. Flounders are the culprits guilty of cocklecide among the smallest; but they are acquitted of slaughtering second yearlings. For that the oyster-catcher is convicted, and the evidence against him certainly seems damning.

Universities On the Move

Canadian Forum

New problems confront the expanding universities. Their financial needs are staggering; their relationships with government — and thus their autonomy and freedom — are uncertain and in flux; their internal constitutions are in some places undergoing delicate and tense readjustment; their vast building programs make the universities the leading patrons of public architecture in this decade in Canada; their new prominence sometimes tempts them to glamorize themselves too glibly for the sake of even greater prominence.

Students in Canadian universities have become self-conscious about the quality of their academic experience at just the time when expansion has weakened the sense of community on many campuses. The possibility of face-to-face education has diminished. In their preoccupied expansionist mood, the universities have scarcely begun to consider how, and at what cost, they can organize themselves to educate their members one by one, and not in anonymous masses.

In this period, the virtues of appropriate. The universities genteel poverty are no longer have become great and powerful institutions, and if they are to meet their responsibilities they now need a clear knowledge of their objectives and priorities, an immunity to flattery, and a good patron's taste, along with traditional civility of learning.

Today in History

By The Canadian Press

Feb. 14, 1966 . . .

Captain James Cook, the British explorer, was killed 187 years ago today — in 1779 — by natives of the Sandwich Islands (now Hawaii.) Famous for his explorations in the Pacific Ocean, Cook was first sent there on a scientific expedition in 1769, after attracting attention by astronomical observations made in Canada. He had been present at Wolfe's capture of Quebec and was thereafter put in charge of charting the St. Lawrence and Newfoundland coasts.

1797—Britain won the sea battle of Cape St. Vincent.

1939 — The German battleship Bismarck was launched.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1916—the Allies made a pledge to fight until Belgium was independent; Austrian aircraft bombed Milan; German soldiers captured French trenches in Alsace.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1941—Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic of Yugoslavia conferred with Hitler at Berchtesgaden; British tanks entered Italian Tripolitania without resistance; British naval personnel casualties of 12,346 since the war began were announced.

Divorce Laws Examined

(HAMILTON SPECTATOR)

The additional grounds for divorce advocated recently by the Ontario section of the Canadian Bar Association are sensible, humane and, best of all, politically feasible.

At their annual meeting the Ontario lawyers agreed that desertion without cause for three years, cruelty as understood in Ontario law, and willful failure to consumate the marriage should be added. The first two have the widest social application.

The desertion proposal is virtually self explanatory and would relieve thousands of Ontario residents, many of them women with children, of the ball and chain of non-existent marriage to a long absent spouse.

Equally important is the cruelty provision, "As understood in Ontario law" is a key phrase worthy of amplication in the foce of the impression of the word cruelty which has filtered up from certain American states where divorces are granted for the most obviously frivolous reasons under this label.

In Ontario law, cruelty has come to mean behavior which has produced, or is likely to produce, permanent damage to physical or mental health. This is a painfully stringent and far cry from the socalled mental cruellty of "Hollywood" divorces where the anguish caused by the husband's failure to put the cat out at night has been deemed sufficient to sunder the ties that bind.

Yet, to those whose lives have been made a living hell by violent, drunken or bestial partners; it provides an avenue of escape denied by standards now considered puritanically excessive by a great majority of the population. Past decisions, related to the payment of alimony after divorce, indicate that one or even several incidents of wife beating, for instance, would not necesarily be defined as cruelty. Only a sustained and provable pattern of brutaliy, either mental or phsical, would suffice.

This surely should satisfy those who rightly fear the social conequences if the dissolution of marriage came to easily. There is comfort here only for the genuinely harassed, not for the frivolous.

At present, only adultry can disolve a legal marriage in Ontario. This is not adequate, it produces general disrespect and flaunting of the law, and condemns thousands of people to a life of misery. The lawyers' suggestion is a good one because it broadens the grounds, but not by too much.

Wages Lure Scots South

.. .. ..London Express.. .. ..

At various times various people have devoted a great deal of energy and money to keeping the Scots out of England.

The Romans were so determined about it that they built a great military wall that stretched across the borders virtually from coast to coast.

Later a system of castles, watchtowers and constant patrols tried to keep back the foraging Scots.

Later still, calculated waves of anti-Scottish feeling, whipped up by demagogues, like John Wilkes, were aimed at keeping the Scots in their place — the far side of the River Tweed.

Now Scots are being lured to England with offers of high pay, cheap accommodation and a free fly-home weekend every month.

These Flying Scots are skilled building workers with a reputation for sound, rapid work, and they're badly needed to help beat England's housing shortage.

In the London borough of Southwark at present, specially flown-in Scots builders are earning as much as $180 a week.

Oddly enough, none of them seems to like the South well enough to stay indefinitely.

Strictly Personal

Emotional Factor in Strike

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

At dinner with some friends who do political reporting in New York, we were discussing the tension and emotional heat generated by the transit strike in that city.

"You know," said one of the reporters, "in so many of these cases, even though some real disagreements exist, the disputes aren't settled sooner because of psychological factors, not because the parties can't get together on actual terms."

He then told about covering the 1946 telephone strike, when Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach was desperately trying to conciliate both sides. In the midst of an argument he whistled at some remark, and his dog Ginger, responded. Everyone smiled, the tension was suddenly broken, and the mediation quickly concluded.

Another time, he recalled, officials of the Chilean government marched into a Washington conference room in an ugly mood, about to charge the representatives of an American firm with restraint of trade.

When both groups were assembled on opposite sides of the room, and the atmosphere was reeking with hostility, Ambassador Culbertson entered. He reached into his pocket, pulled out a mechanical pink elephant, and set it on the table.

As the absurd little animal waddled across the table, everyone began to grin, and then to guffaw, as the group on the other side of the table turned the elephant and started him back. The tension was snapped, and the conference came to an amicable conclusion.

In the last 20 years, the new and fruitful field of "conflict resolution" has taught us a great deal about such matters. In many an argument between husband and wife, for instance, the heat generated in the argument causes dissension long after the original cause has been repaired or forgotten. Each party says more than it means to, and then finds it cannot gracefully retreat without seeming to lose face.

No doubt a genuine quarrel existed between the striking union and the transit authority, which could not be settled by mere good feeling. But, too often, disputants think they are arguing about "facts" and "principles" when they are really defending an attitude that has little to do with the issues at stake.

Emotions may not create labor-management disputes, but they usually carry them further than both of the disputants would care to go in their cooler moments. Mayor Lindsay might do well to lay in a season's supply of toy pink elephants for New York's next crise de nerfs.

Hot Rods in Motor Sleds

Montreal Gazette

The stepped up action which the Provincial Police have recently been taking against the drivers of motorized sleds is an inevitable result of their growing popularity.

Anyone who has spent a little time in the country this winter will probably recall many occasions when these motor sleds were seen being used quite recklessly. These vehicles are bought for pleasure, not for transportation.

For example, many motor sled owners find pleasure in using the vehicles on roads and highways. This would not matter if the road had virtually no traffic, but these motor sleds are frequently seen on roads that have a great deal of traffic.

There have also been many complaints about drivers who destroy private property. But even if no damage is done, no motor sled should be permitted to use private property if the owner raises objection.

As long as there were only a few incidents, the misuses of these vehicles could be overlooked. But, due to the growing popularity of these motor sleds, complaints have now become frequent. As a result, strict rules for their operation are justified.

These rules should neither restrict sensible use of motor sleds nor offend reasonable owners. But the irresponsible minority who are causing trouble deserve to be stopped.

Campus Liberals Again Vote Against Monarchy for Canada

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—Campus Liberals washed down lunch Sunday with some acidulous advice from new MP Gerard Pelletier.

But it evidently left them with a taste for more.

They gave him a standing ovation and a quick invitation to return next year.

His comments came after a weekend convention in which the Canadian University Liberal Federation:

—Once more voted that the Queen should no longer be recognized as Canada's monarch;

—Defeated a proposal for a form of republican government in Canada;

—Suggested a judicial commission within the Liberal party to expel members found guilty of corrupt or unethical behavior;

—Upheld the concept of a "particular status" for Quebec in Confederation.

These were the highlights in a broad range of resolutions that supported everything from voting at 18 to Walter Gordon's economic policies.

The convention sent the former finance minister a telegram expressing appreciation for these policies.

At the same time, CULF set up a policy wing called Ram-Mer. Spelled out, it means Reform Action Movement-Mouvement Edutiant Reformiste.

PC Student Federation Hears Criticism of U.S. 'Guidelines'

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative leaders sounded off against the Liberal government's stand on U.S. economic guidelines at a weekend meeting of the Progressive Conservative Student Federation.

Some 200 university students heard George Hees, member of Parliament for Northumberland, say that the Liberal government's promise to retaliate if the U.S. guidelines hurt Canada would be too late.

He said the U.S. should be made to understand that Canada should be exempted from the guidelines, which aim at restricting U.S. foreign investment.

Mr. Hees, a former cabinet minister, also said the Liberals' "disastrous" tight-money policy should be halted.

Davie Fulton, another former Conservative cabinet minister, said a responsible Canadian nationalism will not be created by a government that accepts as the basis for Canadian corporate activity guidelines laid down by a foreign government.

Foreign capital is welcome in Canada, he said, but it cannot be responsive to direction from another country. "Capital in Canada must act as Canadian," he said. The government must be prepared to assert this position.

Conservative Leader Diefenbaker said the guidelines have shown the Liberal government bends in the wind by accepting a proposition that undermines the Canadian economy.

Dalton Camp of Toronto, national president of the Conservative Association, said Canada is learning something about the realities of its economic life.

"We now are in a position whereby we must accept the policies devised in the interests of another country, but operative in our own," he said. Canada has been dominated for a generation by the continentalists.

Ambassador Is Recalled

SINGAPORE (AP) — Indonesia has recalled its ambassador to Communist China, Radio Jakarta reported Sunday.

Quoting First Deputy Premier Subandrio, the broadcast said Ambassador Djawato will submit a report "concerning the unfriendly attitude" adopted by China.

The action, announced on the eve of an investigation by military tribunals into the October coup in Indonesia, could be the first step toward a break in diplomatic relations with Peking.

Income Tax Tips

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax office.

CONSTRUCTION WORKERS

There are certain rules and regulations for income tax purposes that apply to construction workers and no one else. These apply mainly to the key men of the contractor who move with him from contract to contract in different parts of the country.

When the construction worker is paid an allowance to cover his board and lodging while away from his ordinary place of residence for periods exceeding 36 hours and such allowance is shown on the T4 slip as a "Taxable Allowance", this allowance need not be included in the taxpayer's income if he was:

(A) A married man supporting a wife in a dwelling maintained by him.

(B) A single man supporting a relative in a dwelling and on whom he was entitled to claim the equivalent of married status.

The two main points to bear in mind are first, the omission to taxable allowances only applies when the taxpayer is away in excess of 36 hours and the taxpayer has a married or equivalent exemption for income tax purposes.

A single person supporting only himself is not entitled to any claim. He must include any allowance received for board and lodging with his other income.

A construction worker living within driving distance of his home but whose work is of a technical nature and the employer requests he be on call at the construction site 24 hours per day would be considered as living away from home. This would apply to mechanics on heavy equipment, etc.

For a personal reply, enclose a self - addressed, five cent stamped envelope plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: I am a construction laborer and go wherever my employer has a contract. I am married and maintain a home. I never receive any allowance for being away. Have I any deduction for the board I pay away from home?

Answer: No.

Question 2: I am single and make my home with my brother. We both work for the same construction firm. We both get an allowance for board while away from home. Why must I include this allowance and my brother does not have to?

Answer: All single construction workers supporting no one but themselves must include these allowances in their income. See Section 5(2) of the Income Tax Act.

Long Delays Plague Ships At Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — The world's busiest grain handling port is suffering acute indigestion—and officials are wondering just how much it hurts.

Grain shipments through the port of Vancouver in February are expected to total less than 17,000,000 bushels—1,000,000 below the monthly average.

Efforts to assess the cost of shipping and rail car congestion in the port were made Sunday after a ship's captain said he would not bring back his freighter into Vancouver until he can be guaranteed "a normal loading time."

Capt. Anastasios Marcoupolos of the freighter Sonic said the 28 days he had to spend in Vancouver loading grain was the longest layover he had experienced as a seaman.

Capt. Marcoupolos completed loading of 44,400 tons of grain Saturday.

Port officials estimate a shipping company loses anywhere from a couple of hundred to thousands of dollars each day a freighter lies idle in port.

During the weekend, eight freighters were loading grain while another 10 waited their turns at the loading docks.

Gil Wamboldt and Rink Win V and G Bonspiel

The Victoria and Grey bonspiel held at the Quinte Curling Club on Saturday was an unqualified success and a past president of the Club, Gil Wamboldt, skipping a rink of Al Cameron, Ken Pinder, the president and Bill Riley won the beautiful trophy and accompanying prizes presented by "Bud" Trill, sponsor of the spiel. This was the first spiel that Mr. Wamboldt has won as a skip and he was a proud man and equally proud of his teammates for their excellent curling.

There were sixteen rinks entered and the competition was exceptionally keen. The ice was the keenest it has been all winter and the boys thoroughly enjoyed the sharp ice that was provided by the ice committee. Between the second and third draws a delicious dinner was served and the curlers voted the spiel one of the best of the series.

Of course a little levity was provided for the spiel when in the third game, the curlers dressed in various costumes and provided plenty of laughter for the large gallery that watched the proceedings. A rink skipped by Ross Booth of "Huck" Ingram, Herb Gwane and Bill Spinelli won the plaudits with their outfit and were voted the best dressed.

The other winner of three games was a rink of Tom Pearce, Jim Stewart, Doug Bennett and Neville Burroughs as skip. The two-game winner was "Bud" Trill, "Goldie" Livingston, Cliff Neill with Al McCullam as skip, and the runners-up were Fred Deacon, Dick Beare, Steve Bakay with "Pat" Houston as skip. The one-game high winner was a rink of Zeke Tobe, Ab Wonnacott, Bill Henderson with Joe Basch as skip.

CLUB WINS HONORS

The Quinte Curling Club members are certainly bringing home their share of prizes from the various spiels about the district. The veterinarians of the district last Wednesday journeyed to Perth to play in a spiel sponsored by the Central Canada Veterinary Association and a rink skipped by Dr. Finley McCorquodale of the Quinte Club won the top honors. He had as a rink Dr. Bruce Parliament of the Quinte Club, Dr. Hugh Smith of Brighton and Dr. Keith Harrison of Roslin. This rink won the Gable trophy. Another rink of Dr. Myron Mills of Napanee, Dr. R. B. Murray of Stirling, Lloyd Lantz of Quinte and Dr. D. S. Moore of Madoc captured the third prize in the same spiel.

On Saturday a mixed rink of Mrs. Madge Cowley, Dr. Frank McCue, Mrs. Jennie McCue and Dan Cowley as skip journeyed to Trenton and came home with the Molson trophy. In the first game the winners defeated a rink skipped by George Moir, in the second they defeated Ben Corke from Quinte and in the third game beat Neal Ramsay of the Trenton Club. The curlers report splendid ice and the finest of hospitality.

Education Talk Arouses Much Comment

PICTON (Staff) — A talk to Picton Rotary Club last week has caused much comment in this area. Speaking to the service club, Carl Reid, supervising principal of Picton's Public Schools, stated that teachers are working harder at their jobs of lecturing and demonstrating, of providing and using materials, but what they are doing is becoming more impersonalized. The skill of teaching, he said, may become smothered with diagrams and overhead projectors. Mr. Reid maintained that it was not what the student was taught, but how. Sometimes the teacher overlooks personality traits and natural ability. He stressed that the teaching profession should not forget that teachers are dealing with personalities, and emphasized that they do not overlook the boy in the back row.

Mr. Reid had a final word about school boards: "Boards have their frustrations too. Caught always between what they can see would be beneficial and their financial restrictions, they sometimes jump on their horse and take off in all directions, believing on the one hand that money spent on the paraphenalia of education will guarantee success and on the other hand that money will not solve anything. So often they make decisions that effect the welfare of half a community without adequately doing their homework. Unfortunately, politics sometimes dictates a decision. The only time they really frustrate me any more is when they do just exactly what I expect them to do."

RCMP Band Plays Tonight

PICTON (Staff) — A concert will be given by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Band of Ottawa tonight, Monday, at the Prince Edward Collegiate auditorium. This is sponsored by the Picton Kiwanis Club.

The proceeds of the concert will go to the newly-formed Picton Junior Band, a group of twenty six boys and girls from ages eight to thirteen years. This group was begun last October under the direction of Creighton Lockyer, assisted by Sgt. Howard Kelly of the Trenton RCAF band. The boys and girls are enthusiastic and are working very hard to become a musical organization which can be a benefit to the whole community.

At this time there is a need to purchase more instruments and have others repaired. It is hoped that by the attendance Monday night that support will be given to this worthy cause.

Opportunity Shop Needs Donations

The February meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary Opportunity Shop committee was held on Friday morning at the home of Mrs. J. R. Blackbourn, under the chairmanship of the convener, Mrs. Frank Bowler.

A report given by treasurer Mrs. W. Shand shows the shop to be in fine financial shape, and indeed there are so many customers that i is difficult to keep it stocked. The main topic under discussion was the planning of a campaign to acquaint the public with the need for more donations of articles for sale. The Opportunity Shop is the main money-making project of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary and as they have pledged themselves to raise the sum of $20,000 for the hospital as a centennial project, it was felt that a telephone canvass should be undertaken.

The committee for this year includes Mrs. Frank Bowler, Mrs. J. R. Blackbourn, Mrs. W. Shand, Miss I. Eggleton, Mrs. E. D. Tomsett, Mrs. J. C. Young, Mrs. F. H. Beeby and Mrs. C. Campbell.

The new shop, in the renovated weigh scale building on Pinnacle Street, is open Monday to Friday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., Friday evening from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturday from 9.30 p.m. to 4 p.m. The telephone number is 2-5115.

Winter Rally Started by Designer

TORONTO (CP) — Rosemary Smith, 27, a dress designer from Dublin, Ireland, waved a checked flag Friday and officially started the 1966 Canadian winter rally.

The five-foot-10 blonde came here after making international car rally history as the first woman ever to finish the Daytona Continental endurance run in Florida.

She covered 1,575 miles in 24 hours of continuous driving with her co-driver Sierra Golet of Miami, finishing in 29th place.

But she has driven more miles in other rallies, including the famed Monte Carlo.

Next to racing, Miss Smith admits her love for elegant clothes and cherishes her full-length, black mink coat.

"I like to wear bright clothes when I'm driving in a rally.

"I have to look smart to feel well so I even put on my false eyelashes."

A field of 113 cars, each with a crew of two, started the route to North Bay where the first crew is scheduled to arrive around 10 a.m. today.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

ANNUAL TEA, BAKE SALE

The annual Belleville Division for Girl Guides, Brownies and Rangers tea and bake sale will be held this year at the new Education Hall, Holloway Street United Church. The tea convened by Mrs. Ross Taylor is the only project of the division to raise funds for training and assistance required by Guide work in the city.

The bake tables are district enterprises, with the items for sale donated by the mothers and the proceeds used to further the work in their respective community. After four, the Rangers will have a candy table.

The tea, also, provides an excellent opportunity for mothers and those interested in Guiding to meet the Commissioners, Guide leaders and members of the Ladies' Auxiliary, all of whom are responsible for and contribute to the success of the Belleville Girl Guide movement.

Once Monthly Hotel Chef Takes Orders From Housewife

MONTREAL (CP) — Once a month, Pierre, the chef at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel here, takes orders from a housewife.

She arrives, notebook and recipes in hand, and plans a luncheon for about 35 guests, most of whom are members of an exclusive women's club.

The club, Les Gourmettes Internationales, is so exclusive only wives of top foreign diplomats or the wives of other important overseas representatives are eligible to join. Even then, they're only considered if a member leaves, creating a vacancy.

Each of the 29 members, from countries including France, Germany, Argentina, Greece, Poland, Morocco, the West Indies and Japan, has a turn at planning the menu with recipes from her homeland.

President of the club is French-born Mme. Maurice Billard of suburban Town of Mount Royal, who always accompanies members when they visit Pierre. Together they explain the recipes, which often have to be translated from their original languages.

SKILLED COOK HERSELF

Mme. Billard's interest in food is more than a passing one. She is a gourmet cook and has won awards for her knowledge of wines.

And food is a popular topic of conversation at home. Mme. Billard's husband is editor of the monthly French-language Le Magazine des Gourmets.

"Sometimes I don't agree with what he says, so I don't always read the magazine," said Mme Billard, who founded Les Gourmettes Internationales in 1950.

A chic grandmother of five who buys most of her clothes from " a little place" in Paris, Mme. Billard said she styled the club after many similar ones in France.

"But as far as I know, this is the only international gourmet club in the world.

"Our meetings are like the general assembly of the United Nations. Although it's a very exclusive club, the members are all very friendly. We always feel bad when a member's husband is transferred to another country and she has to leave."

The members also arrange twice-yearly dinners with their husbands.

Successful Living

Thinks TV Ads Should Be Stopped

DEAR DORIS: About the person wanting to quit smoking, I thought I'd like to get your advice on this as my daughter smokes and I was really broken-hearted when I found out she started in high school and has kept it up ever since.

She is married now. She has never smoked in front of me. I told her if she ever did I'd make her eat them. I think it is a disgrace for a woman to smoke, so you know I am old-fashioned.

Doris, I am enclosing ten cents to get your advice on this curse, and I'll put the advice in her mail box. I think TV ads ought to be stopped. — DISGUSTED.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DISGUSTED: Only lately have we come to know the harm done by smoking. When your daughter started, it was to act grown-up and one of the crowd. And if you were laying down dictums wholesale to your teen-ager, cigarettes may have been her personal declaration of independence.

Now you have learned you can't dictate to her. If you give her the article on how to stop, it must only be done with the statement that what she does is up to her; but that you do care about her health.

Then forget it! Any more nagging or bossing will defeat your purpose.

DEAR DORIS: I am 26 years old and have had artificial teeth since I was 16. My cheeks seem to have caved in quite a bit.

I read in your column where a person could have this corrected before it happened, but what can someone like me do? — CAVED IN.

DEAR CAVED IN: The prosthodonist tells me your problem is not impossible. It calls for new dentures; dentures which would increase the "bite opening" (actual distance between chin and nose.) Dentures which would provide for a proper plumping out of the cheeks as well as a good snug fit.

Well worth seeking out a specialist near you and saving up the money to pay for this highly specialized skill. Your face can be remodelled much closer to the heart's desire!

* * *

Confidential to MARILYN AND RICHARD: Yes, I think it is possible that you two might eventually find a satisfying, mature love. But not right now. It is only right that you should both go out with others when you want to. Send me your name and address on a stamped envelope, and ten cents, and I will send you my leaflet "What Is Love?", which may give you pause.

(Doris welcomes your comments and ideas. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

CNRAA Ladies' Auxiliary Marks 18th Anniversary

On Tuesday evening approximately 70 members and friends of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the C.N.R.A.A. met at Club Canara to celebrate the 18th anniversary of the Auxiliary.

The dinner under the guidance of the president, Mrs. Alice Storms, Jr., and the entertainment chairman, Mrs. Gladys Fitzgerald, was convened by the outgoing executive of last year, and consisted of fried chicken and the rest of the menu as delicious.

There were plenty of prizes donated and won by Mr. Stewart, Mrs. Doris Tapp, Mrs. Shirley Welch, Mrs. Hunter, Mr. Lou Reynolds, Mr. Allan Meagher, Mr. Jack Fitzgerald, Mr. Jim Morey, Mr. Ross Sweet, Mrs. Meagher and Mrs. Annie Haley.

After a delightful sing-song, bingo and euchre were played. The door prizes were won by Mrs. Tillie Nesbitt, a blanket and Mr. J. Hunter, a beautiful centrepiece.

Rising Food Prices Are Protested

CALGARY (CP) — Thousands of Calgary residents are up in arms over rising food prices and are asking their members of Parliament to investigate the situation, says an organizer of a "food crisis" movement.

About 2,500 letters were sent to Ottawa Friday and another 5,000 will go out next Thursday, Colleen Fowell said.

Mrs. Fowell said the letters are going to Prime Minister Pearson, Finance Minister Sharp and Calgary's three members of Parliament.

Ann Landers

Who Pays for Pills New Etiquette Problem

DEAR READERS: People frequently ask if the mail has changed since a started to write this column ten years ago. The answer is "yes, it has." A notable example is the letter which appears below. This letter could not have been written ten years ago because no one had ever heard of the Pill.

ANN LANDERS

If you think this letter is bizarre let me assure you that it is routine. I've heard from hundreds of high school and college students who want answers to thes ame question. Here it is:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My fiance is 21 and I am 20. We are university students and cannot marry for at least another year. We've gone together a long time and as you can guess we have become intimate. Naturally we don't want any children so I have been taking birth control pills.

My question is this: Do you think it is proper etiquette to ask my boy friend to share the cost of the pills? I haven't mentioned this to him because I don't feel I know him well enough to discuss money.

If you advise me to ask him to contribute toward the cost of the pills I will. Please do not use my name or identify the school. — MUM'S THE WORD.

DEAR MUM: It is interesting that you know this young man well enough to give him your most precious gift yet you don't know him well enough to talk about money.

You did not ask if you should be taking the pill so I will exercise restraint and address myself strictly to your question.

Pay for the pills yourself. You must not surrender the privilege of saying no. The young man who has a financial investment in the situation might feel entitled to demand his money's worth.

If all this sounds sordid and cheap, let me assure you it is.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We live in sunny Florida. Before you say, "That's nice," let me tell you about our problem.

My husband and I have learned to live on a limited income and it hasn't been easy. We could make it all right if winter visitors would leave us alone.

My husband's widowed aunt comes down here every year for one month. Yes, four weeks . 31 days. We have never invited her. She lets us know when to meet her at the airport and that's that. Since we only have one bedroom she rents a room from the people next door. But she is on hand for three meals a day and she sits with us every evening until bedtime.

On Sunday auntie takes us to her favorite restaurant for dinner, which is no treat. We could eat better at home. Is there a diplomatic way to get out of this corner? My patience is getting shorter every year. — ANNUAL SUCKERS.

DEAR ANNUAL: There's a way — but why must it be diplomatic? Your husband's aunt isn't exactly in line for an ambassadorship.

When auntie writes, suggest that she rent a room several blocks from you so she can meet new people and meet some interesting new friends. Explain that you'd like to have her for dinner "when you are up to it" but you aren't able to have her for 20 meals a week.

Montreal Woman Chosen Canada's Fashion Designer

MONTREAL (CP)—Marielle Fleury, one of Montreal's most promising couturieres, has been selected as Canada's Fashion Designer of the Year by fashion writers across the country.

Miss Fleury, who designs fashionable but classic clothes with an accent on color and fabric, was awarded top honors for the best exclusive creation in the national collection competition sponsored by the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union (CLC).

Miss Fleury's creation, shown during the semi-annual press show held here Jan. 21, was a sophisticated dinner ensemble. It consisted of a ruffled banded, low - backed dress of green crepe, covered by a light wool boucle coat of white, with the same hem detailing.

Miss Fleury has her own boutique here and also designs two collections for Irving Samuel of Montreal each year.

Two other designers, John Warden, originally of Niagara Falls, Ont., and Mr. Gilbert of Montreal, also won awards for their original creations.

DESIGNED ENSEMBLE

John Warden designed the best ensemble for Auckie Sanft while Mr. Gilbert received the award for the best evening dress. All three designers entered the competitive category, created for the first time this season, to promote up-and-coming Canadian designers.

Other winners of the union label awards were Jacob Crowley, Winnipeg, and Fitwell Garments, Vancouver, who tied for the best suit; Apparel Originals of Toronto for the best coat; Milday Dress of Montreal for the best dress and Juniorite of Montreal and Creative Sportswear of Toronto who tied for the best sportswear.

Mr. Gilbert, who won his third union label award in two years, created a gown of sculptured chiffon. The yoke of the Grecian body was heavily beaded in sparkling gold.

John Warden for Auckie Sanft received the ensemble award for a shirt, blouse and coat unit of tone-on-tone checked wool in white. The body of the coat was shaped with a high-placed back half-belt and ended just short of the shirt hemline.

Winners of the union label fashion awards were chosen from 14 Canadian styles seen in the national collection, Canada's only comprehensive ready-to-wear presentation.

BEEF VEGETABLE SOUP

If I were competing in a soup contest this recipe for Beef Vegetable Soup would be my entry.

It all started with a letter from Mrs. Betty V. who asked, could you please let me have the recipe for cooking soup from a beef soup bone? The soup I make is always so white and sort of tasteless. My mother used to make delicious soup with onions, barley and carrots in it."

One below-zero morning I was the first customer at the butcher shop and bought a beef bone and some shin beef and struggled home through the snow drifts and went to work making soup in my nice warm kitchen.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Beef and Liver Meat Loaf; Tomato Sauce; Scalloped Onions; Oven French Fried Potatoes; Celery and Carrot Sticks; Apple Cobbler; 10% Cream; Tea.

HOMEMADE BEEF VEGETABLE SOUP (12 cups nearly 2½ quarts):

2 pounds beef bones — preferably thigh (femur) for its marrow content — sawed into 3 pieces, 1 pound shin beef, cut up, 8 cups water, ½ onion chopped fine, 1 carrot cut into ¼" dice (¾ cup), ½ cup finely chopped celery (or ¼ teaspoon celery seed), 1 medium-large potato cut into ¼" dice (1 cup), 2 tablespoons pot or pearl barley, 2 tablespoons raw rice, ½ cup broken up noodles or macaroni alphabets, 1 cup canned (or fresh) tomatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 chicken bouillon cubes, 2 teaspoons (or 2 cubes) sugar, 4 cups water (a second amount).

In soup pot put the bones and meat on to cook in the 8 cups cold water for 3½ hours. Take out meat and bones. If you like, spoon out marrow like the Eskimos do for a special treat. Discard bones. Strain broth and chill. Skim off all fat. Chop meat into ½" pieces. Wash soup pot to remove any scum clinging to sides. Return chopped meat to chilled and skimmed broth and return to heat. Add all remaining ingredients (except marrow if saved) including second amount of water and simmer covered until the barley is tender. Sample this soup to see if it has enough salt for your taste, remembering that the bouillon cubes contain a lot.

This amount of Beef Vegetable Soup serves 12 people one 1-cup measure of soup each. Remember that the fat must be skimmed from chilled broth to give your soup a professional finish and flavor. Store leftover soup in covered jars in refrigerator where it will jell.

Mrs. Betty V., that is how to make Beef Vegetable Soup.

Ontario Has Highest Adoption Rate in N.A.

TORONTO (CP) — "My husband is a scout master and I'm a cub leader," the letter said. "We believe the boy we read about in the paper was meant to be ours."

The phrase "meant to be ours" has recurred throughout the nine years the Ontario government has been advertising children for adoption. It illustrates the success of a campaign that has made use of newspaper advertisements, newspaper features, television and monthly bulletins to give the province one of the highest adoption rates in North America.

In 1965 permanent homes were found for about 6,000 children in Ontario. By comparison, New York state in a recent 12-month period had 8,500 adoptions. It needed 16,000 in ratio of population to equal the Ontario rate.

Many of the 6,000 Ontario children were youngsters who, nine years ago, would have been virtually written off as unadoptable—colored and Indian children, those of mixed blood and others with physical handicaps.

SPREADS ADOPTION IDEA

The promotional campaign began with formation of the Adoption Resource Exchange under the direction of Laurie Charleson.

Miss Charleson has received more than 8,000 letters in response to newspaper appeals over the years. She believes the greatest benefit of the campaign has been, not the interest created in the child advertised, but the general awarness of adoption that the advertisements and stories have generated.

"Not every one of the families that writes and inquires about one dimpled 11-year-old boy is going to get that particular boy—but think of all the other dimpled 11-year-old boys waiting for homes who may be adopted by some of these same families."

The exchange does more than advertise. Its monthly bulletin goes to all 55 of the province's Children's Aid Societies. Twice a year, adoption experts from the societies meet to "trade" children and homes—the Sault Ste. Marie worker may want a teen-age boy and have the name of a family that has been looking fruitlessly for a five-year-old girl.

At the last meeting, 130 placements were made, families were found for 100 previously unadoptable children, and children were found for 30 families who had not previously found children of the desired age and background.

Many Fields Now Opened To Women

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian career women must smarten up mentally and physically if they want to take advantage of "marvellous job opportunities," says a female personnel director.

"All fields are opening to us," said Mrs. Richard Wyatt, 41, of Delta Acceptance Corp., London, Ont., in an interview. "Men are realizing that growing corporations need more brain power and women are qualified to give it."

But a career woman "must be prepared to sacrifice, be willing to learn more, be sharper and a little bit better than a man" for "if a man and woman and woman of equal ability apply for a job, the man will surely get it."

ANYONE FOR CHESS?

. . . and we do mean anyone: . . . from 7 or 8 to 107 or 108 Chess may be just what you've been missing.

We have it on the very best authority from chess expert, teacher and chess club organizer, Pat Montgomery himself. Brilliant and adored principal of a fine, modern, progressive, public school, he has taught chess in the classroom as a regular school subject since 1939—commencing with grade three—and is more convinced than ever that age 7 or 8 is the perfect time for any normal girl or boy to learn this fascinating game.

It is a common fallacy that chess is only for adults, kings and gifted children. Your average youngster or mine could have the makings of a local league chess champion — and what a boon to his confidence and personality will come from the very act of participating.

At the present time there are tens of thousands of students all over the nation reaping benefit and pleasure from this rewarding pastime.

Not only does it give the youngster a fine sense of accomplishment, but if he is having trouble with his concentration, chess is the ideal therapy—best concentration builder one ever encountered. Nothing wrong with the effect it has on the new, older player, either.

For readers who wish to stimulate their families' interest in chess this spring — now, or later during the holidays — there is no need to purchase an expensive set. Mr. Montgomery has kindly provided explicit instructions on The Making of a Chess Set (from empty, interesting spools), and an exciting comprehensive outline called How To Play Winning Chess.

All you have to do is ask, and all we ask in return is that you send us a hint or an idea, of your own, for the column. Sure you can think of one — you haven't even tried yet!

Perhaps you'll be the hero in your community to establish a chess club.

Well, it's your move! — SUSANNA

23 Fatalities Across Canada Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 23 persons died in accidents across Canada during the weekend, 18 of them in traffic.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday, local times, also showed that three persons died in an airplane crash in Manitoba, one person died of carbon monoxide poisoning in Ontario and one by fire in Nova Scotia.

Quebec had the highest number of accidental deaths, with six reported on the highways. Five died on Alberta highways.

There were also three traffic deaths in British Columbia, two in Ontario and one each in Newfoundland and Nova Scotia.

Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and Saskatchewan were fatality free.

Mechanical Shovel Turns First Sod on New Sports Project

The first sod was turned on the site of the proposed Hastings Pleasure Gardens near Belleville Saturday — and the big planned project was matched by the size of the sod.

Organizers of the scheme — projected to give Belleville and district a huge $2,500,000 recreation complex — used no ordinary spade to mark the event.

Instead, they brought in a mechanical shovel from a construction company to chew out a mammoth-size chunk on the site north of Highway 401 between Sidney Street and Highway 14.

And the project also received a lift of more material value in its first big subscription.

Richard Ellis, well-known city sports figure and sponsor, handed 24 $100 cheques to Ted Mowers, owner of the site and the man who first conceived the idea.

The presentation was the highlight of the event.

Mr. Ellis said he was making the subscription to "start the ball rolling" on the Gardens scheme — something, he said, the city and district badly needed.

Plans for the site include a 5,000-seat arena, hockey and practice ice surface, swimming, curling and outdoor sports areas.

"This is something this city has needed for a long time," said Mr. Ellis. "If we can't get something done for our children in the next few years we might as well pack it in."

ONLY ONE HITCH

There was only one hitch to the sod-turning ceremonies — the mechanical shovel, after dutifully rolling over the first sod — became stuck.

The power shovel dug itself into ground that had suddenly turned swampy almost overnight as a sudden thaw and warm weather hit the district.

However, although it bogged down, the program didn't and went off as scheduled.

Officiating at the event was Lee Grills, M.P. South Hastings, who was presented with a bottle of champagne by other participants.

However, it was a conditional presentation. Mr. Grills was instructed to keep the bottle under seal until the Gardens were completed, then return with it to help officially launch the project as a going concern.

Teachers Meet To Ratify Pact Reached

QUEBEC (CP)—The 354 striking high school teachers employed by the regional school board of Hull, Que., meet today in Hull to decide whether to accept an agreement reached by their negotiators here late Sunday night.

Ratification by the teachers would mean an end to the strike that has lasted for almost six weeks and has given an extended Christmas holiday to some 7,000 Roman Catholic students.

Donat Quimper, Quebec associate deputy minister of labor who acted as a mediator in marathon negotiating sessions during the weekend, announced the agreement but declined to give any details.

He said the teachers would rather hear the news from their own representatives than read it in the newspapers.

The regional school board had already been notified of the terms of the pact and had signified its approval, he said.

The walkout, which began Jan. 5, was called because of wages, seniority rights and working conditions.

Mr. Quimper said the abgreement covers these points and also spells out return-to-work conditions for the teachers.

The teachers had threatened last week to resign if the government tried to force them back to work. Representatives of both parties arrived in Quebec Friday and talks continued throughout the weekend.

Doctors Report Scarlet Fever Steadily Declining in Country

NAPANEE — Dr. R. A. McLellan, acting medical health officer for the County, notes that the number of cases of scarlet fever reported in the county is steadily declining. The peak was reached just before Christmas, with schools in Tamworth and South Fredericksburg, and the Golf Club School, reporting the highest number of absentees from this disease.

Asked how the disease was carried, Dr. McLellan replied. "From person to person."

Questioned as to the precautions to be taken to prevent the spread of the disease, he said, "Children may return to school a week after the disease has developed in the home, provided they themselves have not contracted it. Or they may continue to attend school if they are put on antibiotics, such as penecillin, as preventive treatment."

"Scarlet fever is one of the streptococcus diseases", he added. "Patients complain of sore throats and the throat and tonsils are badly inflamed. The so-called rash is not really a rash, but a redness of the skin."

WATER NOT CULPRIT

Dr. McLellan discounted the idea that scarlet fever could be spread through the water supply. "Certainly not through Napanee water," he said. "The water here is chlorinated and so is free of bacteria. You never find bacteria in a municipal water supply."

Disease most often contracted through drinking contaminated water are diseases of the digestive tract, such as typhoid fever, infectious jaundice, dysentery, and so-called intestinal influenza.

"The disease seems to be prevalent in certain areas of Ontario", Dr. McLennan added.

Dr. D. C. McVicker, medical health officer for Deseronto and the Reserve, is concerned that all cases of scarlet fever are not being reported to him. If a child or adult complains of sore throat, headaches, nausea and vomiting, and has circumaural pallor (whiteness around the mouth) the disease should be suspected. He advises seeing a doctor immediately. Scarlet fever is not the serious disease it used to be because we now have antibiotics, and the patient should receive these. But he warns complications sometimes occur.

DOCTOR'S CARE VITAL

The main treatment is to keep the patient warm, keep the mouth and throat clean by gargling with warm salt and water, and give plenty of fluids. But above all, see a doctor.

A child in Deseronto or on the Reserve who is absent from school through illness for more than one day must have a medical certificate before he can return to the classroom, Dr. McVicker insists. "It is the only way to stop the spread of the disease," he says.

Four cases of scarlet fever have been reported to Dr. McVicker recently.

C.W. Lambert Killed in Car Accident

NAPANEE — Slippery road and foggy conditions are given as the probable cause of a fatal accident two miles north of Napanee on Highway 41 early Saturday morning.

Charles Wesley Lambert, 40, was pinned under his car, which had left the road and come to rest in a swampy field. It had apparently rolled over several times. Mr. Lambert had been thrown out and was caught under the door. Dr. E. R. Ellicott pronounced him dead on his arrival. The Napanee detachment of the OPP received the report of the accident at 12:10 a.m.

Mr. Lambert had been an employee of Charlton Motors for five years, and for Workman Motors for four years previous to that.

He leaves his wife, who was Madeline Johnston before her marriage, and four children: Elaine, 13, and three sons, Roger, 11, Douglas, 8, and Gary 7. He is survived also by three brothers and five sisters, and by his mother, Mrs. James Lambert of the Camden Road.

Hawks On Top; Hull Out For Week

By CLAUDE HENAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

For Montreal Canadiens it seems that 13's the charm.

The Habs, unable to gain a National Hockey League victory on Detroit ice for a long time, had to wait until after the 13th loss before being able to notch a win.

Sunday night the Canadiens snapped their 13-game winless streak on Detroit ice by edging the hometowners 4-3. The Hab's last victory in Detroit was Feb. 16, 1964 And the day to break the jinx was February 13.

CHICO MAKI

Three of the six weekend games ended in ties. Saturday Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs deadlocked 3-3 and Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks came off 2-2 while New York Rangers trounced Boston Bruins 9-2.

Scorers for New York were Bob Nevin and Jean Ratelle with two goals each and Vic Hadfield, Reg Fleming, Bill Hicke, Earl Ingarfield and Gary Peters. Ron Stewart and Pit Martin tallied for Boston.

Paul Henderson scored twice for the Wings and Norm Ullman got the other. George Armstrong, Ron Ellis and Frank Mahovlich scored for Toronto. Dick Duff and Henri Richard were the Montreal marksmen while Bobby Hull and Ken Wharram did the honors for Chicago.

HULL GETS 45TH

The goal was the 45th for Hull in as many games and he has another 20 in which to smash the NHL record of 50 in a season shared with former Canadiens Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion.

Hull has missed five of Chicago's games due to injuries an seems destined to miss more as a freak accident during Saturday's game is expected to put him out of commission for the next week.

CLAUDE PROVOST

Hull injured his knee when his skate locked with that of Claude Provost.

However, despite the lack of their super-star, Chicago beat New York 6-1 Sunday to take over sole possession of first place.

Detroit, which went into weekend action tied with the Hawks for first, dropped into a second-place tie with Montreal, two points off the pace with 59. However, Montreal has two games in hand over Chicago and Detroit.

The positions of the last two teams also changed. Going into the weekend, it was New York last and Boston second-last but coming out it was a deadlock for the cellar at 32 points each.

Two weekend ties gave Toronto 51 points. The Leafs tied 4-4 with Boston Sunday while the other game of the day was Montreal's win.

SECOND ONE COUNTS

Chicago's lopsided victory came from Chico Maki, who scored two goals, and Ken Wharram, Doug Mohns, Red Hay and Eric Nesterenko who managed one each. Don Marshall scored for the Hawks in the final frame, setting the red light ablaze for the second time that evening.

However, the first time the light was lit for him rookie-referee Bruce Hood disallowed the goal, saying the puck had not gone into the net.

Hood also gave and took away a goal from Ranger's Vic Hadfield. The referee at first said there had been a goal but then, after consultation with the goal judge and linesmen, reversed his judgment.

Montreal scorers Sunday were Claude Provost with two and Gilles Tremblay and John Ferguson with one each. For Detroit it was Alex Delvecchio, playing in his 1,000th NHL game, Gordie Howe and Ron Murphy.

In the tie between Boston and Toronto, Boston scorers were Tom Williams, rookie Gilles Marotte, Johnny Bucyk and Dean Prentice. For the Leafs it was Ron Ellis with two and Orland Kurtenbach and Frank Mahovlich with one each.

The next games scheduled are for Wednesday between Montreal and Toronto, Chicago and New York and Detroit and Boston.

Hull Scores After Knee Injured

CHICAGO (AP) — Bobby Hull, Chicago Black Hawks star, is expected to be out of action for about a week because of a knee injury suffered in a 2-2 tie with Montreal Canadiens Saturday night.

In the second period, Hull and Claude Provost got their skates locked and smashed into the post of the net guarded by Chicago goalie Glenn Hall.

Provost went inside the net and Hull hit the outside.

Hull limped from the ice, missed a turn but came back to score his 45th goal of the season with 1½ minutes left in the period. He did not return for the final period.

London Players Upset

Jrs. Coach, Manager Suspended

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—London Nationals, rookie entry in the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series, have suspended coach Jack McIntyre and manager Art Lawson.

Ebbie Bishop, manager of Treasure Island Gardens where the last-place Nationals play their home games, was named interim coach and manager.

The suspensions were made by team president R. L. Bonnie following a 3-1 loss to Montreal Junior Canadiens Friday night.

Lawson was also suspended indefinitely by the OHA for a puck-throwing incident during the game against Canadiens, Bill Hanley, OHA secretary-manager, announced Sunday.

"Lawson was in charge of the pucks," Hanley said, "and when a linesman asked him for one, he hesitated and then tossed it in the direction of the officials."

PLAYERS PROTEST

A conflict of interest between Lawson and McIntyre since mid-season reached the breaking point with players after their game with Montreal. A player delegation led by captain Neil Clark went to Bishop's office, demanding their views be heard.

"The players were not happy with what happened Friday night," Bonnie said. "But basically they were torn between two loyalties—the manager and the coach.

"They indicated little respect for either of them as a result of a feeling that both parties were interfering with the respective duties of the other. They weren't sure just who was running the hockey club."

Bonnie said Bishop would remain interim manager "until the players get straightened away again."

Lawson and McIntyre will continue to be employed by the Gardens. Neither would comment on the suspensions.

Third Loss In Row

Kingston Shades Rollins 4-3

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

KINGSTON — Had they been playing horseshoes, Rollins Juniors would have had their first two Eastern Ontario Junior "B" points out of this city in nearly four years, last night.

The locals came that close to upsetting the first place Frontenacs before dropping a narrow 4-3 decision.

Belleville's loss was number three in succession and left the club in fifth place, one point behind Trenton and Peterborough.

Trenton passed Rollins on Saturday with a 4-2 victory in Oshawa. And the Apple Kings play the tail - end Cougars in Cobourg tonight.

Belleville and Trenton meet twice this week. Wednesday's scheduled game in Trenton has been postponed until next Sunday, at 3.15, while the Kings are in Belleville Friday.

Rollins forechecked the Fronts effectively most of the game as well as getting a superb goal-keeping chore from Wayne Brant. It was a scoreless tie after one heat and 3-1 for Kingston going into the third when Belleville held a 2-1 scoring margin.

Both Brant and the winners John Coates played strong hockey but the losers lacked the finish on several golden opportunities, especially in the first heat.

Steve White broke the double shutout, for Belleville, after 48 seconds of the middle frame.

WAYNE BRANT

He took Boyle's pass, and drilled it past Coates from left wing.

John Osborne tied it after Kearns did the spade work at 5.14 and Brant was flat after a great save when Terry Landon netted a rebound at 9.42. Landon was perched in front to sink Apps' pass for the 3-1 count at 16.57.

Rollins continued to battle and Bob Boyle cut the lead at 6.22 of the third. He gathered Arnie Marks' passup off the boards and waltzed in alone to beat Coates. Brant was great while Rollins served a penalty but seconds later Scott Nicholson scored on a deflection to make it 4-2.

Both sides were shorthanded when John Smith deflected Dave Muir's shot home from the corner of the net at 11.59, putting Rollins back in contention.

Brant was lifted for an extra attacker at 19.10 and Kearns drew a penalty at 19.48. The faceoff was at the Belleville blueline, however, and one of several offsides ended any local hopes.

Some of Brant's best saves came off speedy Leo Lavallee, Leeman, Babcock, Flanigan and Kearns. Kingston outshot Belleville 39-32 and twice hit a goalpost. Coates "stoned" White then Fleming on the rebound once, also beating Pringle, Boyle and Boomhower on good chances.

Belleville - Brant, Potts, Townsend, Boyle, Fleming, White, Boomhower, Stewart, Pringle, J. Smith, Muir, Duval, Marks

Kingston - Coates, Osborne, Kearns, Apps, Landon, Babcock, Graham, Lavallee, Reid, Leeman, Nicholson, Flanigan, Balson, Kinnear, Roe.

Hard Squidge For Plop

'Don't Squop My Wink!'

WATERLOO (CP)—"If you squop my wink, it'll be a difficult squidge to score a plop."

Sound strange?

It's not a bit strange to a group of students at the University of Waterloo who have formed a tiddly-wink club and claim the Canadian championship for the game.

Why the Canadian championship?

"You see, there was no other club to challenge us," says Colin McLeod, organizer of the club which boasts more than 80 players.

"Some came to laugh, but stayed to play."

After a shaky start because the student's federation was a little skeptical about sponsoring the club, the organization settled down to some hard "tiddlying."

The plan is to challenge Harvard University next month for the North American "wink title" and then challenge Oxford University for the world title.

Eight members who really know their tiddlies (or winks) will be chosen to play the matches, but McLeod, a graduate student from the University of Aberdeen, says members are having trouble with their "squops."

"To squop," he explains, "is to cover your opponent's wink (colored button) with your wink and prevent him from plopping or snapping it into a cup.

"Then of course, you must squidge your own wink and land it in the cup."

Dickinson Tops Phoenix Pack

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Little Gardner Dickinson, pain pills in hand for his ailing back, set out today in quest of a victory in what may be his last golf tournament for some time, the $60,000 Phoenix Open.

Dickinson fought off the pain in his back and the charges of several contenders Sunday, and his even-par 71 gave him a three-round total of 206 and a three-stroke lead over Bob Rosburg.

Arnold Palmer was 11 strokes off the pace going into today's final round. He has had rounds of 71-74-72.

The best scores Sunday were 67s by Terry Dill and Kermit Zarley. Dill and Dick Crawford were tied at 213, and Zarley was one of four players grouped at 215.

Also at 215 was Bill Ezinicki, the former National Hockey Leaguer from Winnipeg. Another Winnipeg native, George Knudson of Toronto, had 219.

Canada Gigantic Hockey Slave Farm

CAHA Blast

CALGARY (CP) — Expansion of the National Hockey League to 12 teams, 10 of them American, will reduce Canada to the role of a "gigantic hockey slave farm," says Gordon Juckes, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Juckes levelled a 35-minute blast at professional hockey mentors Saturday in an address to a Western Canada Senior Hockey League all-star luncheon here.

He said the recent announcement of NHL expansion is the 'final sellout" of Canadian hockey as a sport by the professionals.

"With that announcement went any idea that professional hockey gives a damn about our sport—except as a moneymaker for a chosen few.

"And in their greed they (the professionals) evidently don't care that their expansion plans carry with them the very seeds of death for hockey and their own plans."

Juckes, who lives in Melivlle, Sask., said the NHL is "our league."

"It's our league, our trophy, our game. But they have finally admitted that none of these things mean anything to the owners, except as a means of hoodwinking the Canadian public, getting our support in developing players for them for nothing and building up publicity and gates to their greater profit."

Juckes said: "The money-barons of the NHL and their equally avaricious new associates have relegated Canada to the role of a gigantic hockey slave farm. We are now to be only the gold coast of hockey.

Spurs Rally To Whip Burnley

Chelsea Stuns Leeds With 1-0 Upset

LONDON (Reuter) — Chelsea stole the honors in a shock-packed fourth round of the English Association Soccer Cup Saturday by knocking out last season's finalist, Leeds United, 1-0.

Chelsea had disposed of the Cup holder, Liverpool, in the previous round.

In the most exciting game of the fourth round, Tottenham Hotspur recovered after being two goals down in the first four minutes to beat Burnley 4-3, scoring the winning goal two minutes before the end of the game.

It was also a great day for the little clubs. Fourth-Division Southport eliminated Second-Division Cardiff City, 2-0, and Third - Division Hull City disposed of First-Division Nottingham Forest, 2-0.

TIE FAVORITES

The greatest feat of the round, however, belonged to Second-Division Rotherham United, which had a scoreless tie with Manchester United, the favorites and reigning English League champions, on Manchester's home field.

The once-mighty Wolves regained some of their glitter with a decisive 3-0 victory over First-Division Sheffield United. Bedford Town, the only non-league team left in competition, was crushed 3-0 at home by First-Division Everton.

West Ham United, current holders of the European Cup Winners Cup, struggled to a 3-3 tie with Blackburn Rovers, who played the second half without their star, Bryan Douglas.

In Chelsea's 1-0 victory over Leeds, the goal came from Bobby Tambling in the seventh minute. The young Chelsea team then withstood an almost continuous battering from Leeds, inspired by dynamic Billy Bremner.

The new wonder-boy of English football, Chelsea's 18-year-old Peter Osgood, rarely showed his goal - scoring ability, but came back to help in a magnificent Chelsea rearguard action.

Russ Win Bisons Fourth

SESTRIERE, Italy (Reuters) The Soviet Union dominated the World University Games which ended here Sunday, winning 13 medals—five gold, four silver and four bronze.

One of the gold medals won by the Russians was in the hockey tournament at Turin in which University of Manitoba Bisons finished fourth. Canada was entered only in the hockey event.

The Russians swept their five hockey games to top the standings with 10 points. Second was Romania with six points. Czechoslovakia also had six points but was placed third because of a lower goal average.

Canada had four points, made up of two victories and three losses, while Finland also had four points but a lower goal average. Italy had no victories.

International Skiing

Nancy Greene Wins Slalom

By JOHN SHORT

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—Nancy Greene of Rossland, B.C., gave Canada virtually its only success of the weekend during the first half of the Canadian international ski championship—first held in Canada under sanction of the International Ski Federation. (FIS)

Miss Greene captured the women's slalom Saturday by more than three seconds over Heidi Zimmerman of Austria.

Two Austrians captured other competitions. Christl Haas, 1964 Olympic downhill champ, won the women's giant slalom and Gerhard Nenning earned the men's slalom title. Nenning finished second to Kurt Huggler of Switzerland in the men's giant slalom.

The international competition—to conclude next weekend with an identical schedule at Mont Ste.-Ann, near Quebec City—had near - perfect conditions. More than 4,000 fans, largest crowd in the history of this Rocky Mountain resort for an alpine event, watched the final day of competition.

ONLY SEVEN FINISH

Miss Greene, 23-year-old stenographer, was one of only seven to finish two rugged runs Saturday on the 1,000-foot Mount Norquay slalom course. Third behind Miss Zimmerman was Miss Haas, followed by Karen Dokka of Burnaby, B.C., Inge Senoner of Italy, Stephenie Townsend of Banff and Heather Quipp of Ottawa.

Miss Greene almost scored a second victory in the women's giant slalom Sunday. When she slipped and fell about halfway down the course, she was nearly a second ahead of Miss Haas' time at the same position. She finished fifth, less than two seconds from the lead.

BELL COMMENTS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Newspaper publisher Max Bell says he does not believe he and oil magnate Frank McMahon would have had any better luck in securing a National Hockey League hockey franchise for Vancouver than did a group headed by businessman Cyrus McLean.

TV Loot Split, Reason

TORONTO (CP) — George (Punch) Imlach, manager-coach of Toronto Maple Leafs, said Sunday that Vancouver was turned down in its bid for a National Hockey League team because of television.

"Fans out there have been supporting Leafs and (Montreal) Canadiens on television for years," Imlach said, "but were denied a chance to have their own big-league club.

"Television is the answer to Vancouver's rejection. Montreal and Toronto would have had to share their TV with Vancouver if they'd let Vancouver in. Better to split the loot two ways, I guess, instead of three."

Brawls Feature Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph University Redmen ran their undefeated string to three and University of Western Ontario Mustangs opened up a three-point lead in a pair of wild Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association hockey encounters Saturday.

Guelph, last after losing its first nine games, tied McGill University Redmen 3-3 in Montreal. The Redmen, with two wins and a deadlock in their last three games, moved within a point of vacating the cellar.

Western, meanwhile, dumped University of Montreal Carabins 7-4 in a game that ended in a brawl.

Guelph and McGill stuck pretty much to hockey in the first and third periods but became ensnarled in a series of squabbles leading to 15 penalties in the second period, including three misconducts.

There were 23 penalties throughout the game.

Dave Pallett scored two goals for Guelph, the second at 18:45 of the final period for the tie. Fred McLellan got the other goal for the Redmen. Skip Kerner, Rick Ripstein and John Tibbitts scored for McGill.

A minor penalty with three minutes left in the Western-Montreal game brought about the brawl in which 31 penalties were assessed. The fighting led to team penalties to each squad and a assortment of majors and misconducts. Larry Babcock and Terry Knightley scored two goals each for the Mustangs while John Hospidor, Paul Courneya and Jim Dent counted one each. Yves Paquette, Andre Hayes, Jocelyn Cote and Normand Gingras scored for Montreal.

Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Norm Ullman of Detroit picked up three points during two weekend games to take over second place in the National Hockey League individual scoring race.

He got one goal and assisted on two others to raise his total to 59 points. Chicago's Bobby Hull, who picked up a goal, remained the undisputed leader with 45 goals in as many games and 29 assists for a total of 74 points.

If Hull scores six goals in the 20 games remaining, he will set a record for goals scored in a season. He now shares the present record of 50 goals with two former Montreal stars, Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion.

Ousted from second place by Ullman was Stan Mikita of Chicago who picked up only one assist during the weekend, upping his total to 58.

Tied with him at 58 is Detroit's Gordie Howe who increased his total by four points on a goal and three assists. Another Detorit man capitalized on a goal and two assists to move into fifth place. He is Alex Delvecchio who has a total of 53 points.

Montreal's Bobby Rousseau remained with a points total of 50.

Henri Richard, another Canadien, picked up one goal to move into a seventh-place tie with teammate Jean Beliveau, who has 47 points.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.
Hull, Chicago	45	29	74
Ullman, Detroit	26	33	59
Mikita, Chicago	24	34	58
Hcwe, Detroit	23	35	58

LA Blades Mess Up Leadership

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lowly Los Angeles Blades messed up the Western Hockey League leadership race during the weekend.

Saturday the Blades defeated Victoria Maple Leafs 5-3 to allow Portland Buckaroos to reach a four-point lead atop the standings.

Then Sunday they defeated Portland 3-1 to prevent the Buckaroos from taking a commanding six-point lead over the Maple Leafs.

Portland defeated Vancouver Canucks 4-2 Saturday night.

Meanwhile, American Hockey League clubs dominated the WHL on both sides of the continent.

San Francisco Seals, now in the WHL basement, fell 5-2 to Hershey Bears Saturday night and 6-3 to Providence Reds Sunday. First-place Quebec Aces beat Seattle Totems 5-3 before 7,000 fans, the second largest crowd of the season at the West Coast city.

Vancouver is third in the standings, Seattle fourth and Los Angeles fifth.

Dorothy Malone Looks Wan But Beautiful as Ever

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Just about everybody's Valentine this year is Dorothy Malone, the plucky Texan whose heart stopped, then was revived, during an 11-hour lung operation last September.

The actress now is working three full days each week on Peyton Place—more than her schedule before her illness—and enjoying it.

"I do get tired," she admitted. "And when I go out in the evening, they are very short dates. . . ."

Miss Malone looks wan but as beautiful as ever. She lost 10 pounds during the illness and another 10 since through lack of appetite.

ANSWERING MAIL

Now she feels strong enough to attend to some unfinished business: Answering the thousands of get-well messages that came to her in hospital.

"I may take years to do it, but I'm determined to answer all the letters. The stacks of mail that filled my back bathroom are beginning to diminish, but I've still got a long way to go. Now I'm starting to get thank-you notes for my thank-you notes. I'm afraid those will have to remain unanswered."

Miss Malone was stricken Sept. 22 with back pains. By evening she was near collapse and was taken to hospital where her illness was diagnosed as blood clots in her lungs. Prompt action by surgeons and use of a new heart-lung machine saved her life.

Within seven weeks she was able to return to a limited schedule of performing in Peyton Place. Now there seems to be little she can't do.

TV Seminars Excellent Public Service Efforts

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. networks administered massive doses of talk about Viet Nam to Sunday afternoon audiences.

There were two hours of taped highlights from the Senate foreign relations committee hearings on NBC, an hour of congressional commentary on CBS, Gen. Maxwell Taylor on CBS' Face the Nation' and Barry Goldwater on ABC's Issues and Answers.

These television seminars are excellent public service efforts.

On the entertainment front, the weekend highlight was the light-footed and full-voiced return of Sammy Davis Jr. to his NBC show after a month's absence.

Davis was a humble host and only occasional performer in his first, disappointing show in January. He returned with bounce and style to sing a lot of good songs, dance in his inimitable style and participate in a swinging production number adapted from his Broadway show, Golden Boy.

The Voyage of the Brigantine Yankee Friday was another of the shows CBS acquired from the National Geographic Society. The film covered a South Pacific trip on an old sailing ship with a crew of young amateurs.

Some of the shots at sea were impressive and it was a real-life adventure of the sort that sets the armchair traveller to dreaming.

NEW YORK (CP)—A Czech film many entertainment observers feel has a fair chance of winning this year's Hollywood Oscar for best foreign-language film is being distributed in the United States and Canada by a Canadian — and a woman at that.

Not only that, but Mrs. Marie Desmarais of Montreal is a former French film producer who thinks Canada is the greatest thing since talkies.

When she is not waxing ecstatic over The Shop on Main Street, which she claims is the favorite of all the European films she has ever distributed, she is apt to be rhapsodizing about "the challenge of Canada."

She is gambling a lot—money and prestige—on Shop. Should she come out a winner, undoubtedly she will seriously consider producing feature films in Canada within several years. She has been waiting "so impatiently," as she puts it, to produce feature films in Canada since emigrating there from France 20 years ago.

She also has a background in television production and distribution. Thirteen years ago, she was the first to introduce an American TV series, dubbed by herself, in France.

It was learned that Mrs. Desmarais will co-produce, with CBC-TV and the French TV network, a series of 39 half-hour episodes on Canada, the building of a country.

The first 13 episodes will deal with French Canada, the second 13 with English Canada and the final 13 with Canada as a whole.

CONTINUOUS STORY

In fictional form, somewhat a la Jack London, the series will start with one family and continue through with their descendants and their friends. It is believed to deal with Canada past and present.

Mrs. Desmarais has been working on the project for 10 years. Production probably will start next summer. Telecasting may coincide with Canada's centennial next year. French TV will telecast at least the French-Canadian segment.

Mrs. Desmarais first saw Shop in a little screening room in Prague—"it was love at first sight," she says.

Then it was shown at the 1965 Cannes film festival, where it won special acting awards. Still, no North American distributor, big or small, was interested in handling it. That was Mrs. Desmarais' cue to make an offer to the Czech government, which at first ignored her. But, after making a nuisance of herself, she persuaded it to give her the U.S. and Canadian rights.

Then, the Czechs showed the film at last September's New York film festival, where it attracted critical acclaim.

She decided to distribute Shop in the U.S. herself, with Prominent Films of New York—a small firm through which she works in the U.S.—handling the actual American sales.

What with advertising and other expenses, it's estimated she will have to sell at least $150,000 worth of rentals to theatres. However, if Shop wins the Oscar, she is virtually assured of making a profit.

A WAR SETTING

Shop opened recently in New York. Mrs. Desmarais plans to release it in Canada "after we win the Oscar."

Directed by Jan Kadar and Elmar Klos, Shop is set in a small Slovakian town during the Second World War. It concerns the relation between personal peril and the affection which a simple carpenter begins to have for an old Jewish woman whose shop he has been appointed "aryan comptroller" of during the Nazi occupation.

Mrs. Desmarais became involved in films as a young woman. She was teaching French in a school of languages in Britain when a French film company arrived on the scene looking for an intelligent girl—"somebody to take care of everything, that was me." She made herself indispensable and was put under contract.

Eventually, she became an independent producer — "in France, on the Continent, everywhere. I was always moving, I don't know why." She has been her own mistress since.

After the war, she was producing films for the French government when she began to feel uneasy—life in Europe was too unstable.

"I was scared; one did not know what tomorrow would bring. So we (her husband is dead now) decided to go to Canada. For the children (she has two sons), it was better, I think, to do that."

Still maintaining her offices in Paris and New York, she left for Montreal to become, as she is now, Canada's oldest-established independent film distributor. Arriving in Canada, she discovered, not too much to her surprise, that film distribution was a monopoly business on this side of the Atlantic.

"No good, that. Theatres were afraid to buy from me because I couldn't assure them of a good supply of film. So I acquired 151 pictures from Europe and started my business. It was a challenge, like Canada.

"In the beginning, a monopoly in Canada. Today, there are 52 distributors in the province of Quebec alone. Most of them, starting, they think it is only buying and selling and, poof, they make profits. To start as an independent in Canada today, it would be to go bankrupt in a week. But I do it well—I want to make something for my country.

"I don't usually buy films for the United States. I buy for my country, Canada."

Mrs. Desmarais feels Canada is long-overdue, that it should have had a film industry years ago.

"We are ready to do good, real Canadian films with international appeal. Look at Canada—20,000,000 people and no film industry. Czechoslovakia has only 10,000,000 and its own independent film industry. Look at Sweden, with only 5,000,000."

Of course, she concedes, it's nice to have financial support from the government in a small country. And she is waiting "impatiently" for government funds to be made available to independent film producers in Canada under new federal legislation.

"Canada—that country—ah, it can do so much. French, English, it doesn't matter. Canada matters."

Opens Tonight "Kwaheri" Proclaimed Greatest Of All African Films

African films such as "Karamoja", 'Sky Above, Mud Below", 'Women of the World" and "Mondo Cane" are said to be half revealing, mild, tame, kidd stuff in contrast to the new African expose titled "Kwaheri". Produced by Thor Brooks and David Chudnow, "Kwaheri" was filmed entirely in Africa and much of it in forbidden areas, by Miki Carter and his able assistant cameramen.

Among its many startling scenes, "Kwaheri" introduces theatre audiences to the world's foremost husband, an African tribe chief, who boasts 49 wives and a total of 212 children. The entire family is shown in the movie.

The performance of a brain operation without benefit of drugs or hypnotism by an African witch Doctor and the Fires of Puberty, in which a virgin girl is burned alive as a sacrifice to the Gods, are among "Kwaheri" highlights.

A movie affording 10,000 unbelievable sights, thousands of jungle beasts in battle, a hundred amazing scenes, "Kwaheri" is without rival as the year's outstandng cinema shocker. Sissies, or the squeamish can't take it, theatre men warn. "Kwaheri" opens tonight at the Park Theatre for a three day engagement only.

On the same program "The Walls of Hell" is the blazing saga of the liberation of Intramuros, the walled city of Manila . . . Historical Authentic filmed where it happened with a cast of thousands and starring Jock Mahoney. Complete shows are at 7.00 and 8.40 p.m.

Two Juniors Added To Ski Team

CAMP FORTUNE, Que. (CP) The Canadian Amateur Ski Association Sunday added two promising juniors to the jumping team which will represent Canada at the world championships later this month in Oslo, Norway.

Pat Morris, 16, of Ottawa and Ulf Kvendbo of Montreal were awarded places on the team following national trials at this ski resort some 15 miles northwest of Ottawa.

Other team members are seniors Max Pelt of Montreal, Jacques Charland of Trois-Rivieres and John McInnis of Revelstoke, B.C.

Alex Smart of Ottawa, the national team's coach and manager, said the jumping committee of the CASA decided to take the juniors so they could pick up valuable international experience.

The weekend trials were switched to Camp Fortune after the Sault Ste. Marie jump took a beating from mild weather.

Conditions held distances down, the longest jump being 192 feet by Pelt.

The Trots

PARIS (AP)—Favored Querido II caught the front-running Oscar RL at the wire and scored a photo-finish victory Sunday in the $60,000 Prix de Paris trotting race.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Eileens Keith turned in the best time of the winter meet at Windsor Raceway Saturday night to win the featured ninth race in 2:05.3.

The 14-1 longshot squeezed between Devil and Lochinver King in the stretch to finish one length ahead of Devil. He returned $30.70, $8.20 and $4.90.

In the afternoon card Fritzy F Mor won the feature before a record afternoon crowd of 3,892.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Watson E Frisco, with Ray McLean at the reins, came from far behind to capture the featured ninth race for a purse of $1,250 at Western Fair Raceway Saturday.

Whip Wings 4-1

Lacroix Sparks Petes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Andre Lacroix had a hand in all his team's goals as Peterborough Petes increased their lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings during the weekend.

Lacroix, the circuit's top scorer with 106 points, scored three goals and assisted on another Sunday to lead the Petes to a 4-1 victory over Hamilton Red Wings.

The victory moved the Petes three points ahead of the idle Niagara Falls Flyers in the battle for first place.

In other Sunday games, Toronto Marlboros spotted Montreal Junior Canadiens a 2-0 lead and bounced back to win 3-2, Kitchener Rangers wiped out a two-goal deficit to tie London Nationals 3-3 and St. Catharines Black Hawks erased a 2-0 lead by Oshawa Generals for a 4-4 tie.

Kitchener dumped third-place Oshawa 3-1 Saturday to climb into seventh place in the nine-team circuit.

Danny Grant scored Peterborough's other goal Sunday and Bart Crashley counted for the Red Wings, who remained in fourth place two points behind the Genrals.

Defeat Woodstock

Regals Stretch Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings remained unchanged after weekend games although Guelph Regals stretched their league lead to eight points.

The Regals defeated Woodstock Athletics 5-3 in Guelph Sunday and now have 51 points to 43 for second-place Woodstock.

In other action, the cellar-dwelling Oakville Oaks and fourth - place Galt Hornets traded home-ice wins with Galt winning 6-3 Saturday and Oakville winning 4-1 Sunday.

In Galt Saturday, Bert Brown scored three goals with Al Stintt, Carl Hatt and Gary Collins adding one apiece.

The Oaks were shut out for 42 minutes before Moe Galand connected twice and Brian Pryce added another.

Galand scored twice on Sunday, Jack Price and Carl Hymers once each.

Gary Collins got the Hornets' goal.

Sarnia Ont. Hoop Champions

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Ron Vernoche scored 31 points to pace Sarnia Knights to an 87-68 victory over Windsor Alumni Saturday night in the sudden-death wrapup of the Ontario Senior Basketball League championships.

Vernoche scored 13 field goals and hit on five foul shots as Sarnia gained revenge for two regular-season defeats by Windsor.

Windsor finished the season in first place with a 7-1 mark.

Grant Gordon scored 20 points and playing-coach Barry Howson 10 for the Knights.

In the afternoon round Howson led Sarnia to a comeback 91-72 win over Kitchener Coronets. Kitchener led 23-19 at quarter time but Howson led the rally with 27 points as Sarnia swept to victory.

Windsor entered the final by default when Hamilton Quigleys failed to appear for their game.
